That is the difference in personality. Simply one of the many illustrations of the truth that the difference in results is frequently found in the difference in men.

Now and then it is conclusively demonstrated that a retailer is charging too much profit on some particular line. But as a general thing that is the exception. On most lines the retailer does not charge enough profit. Why? He is afraid of the fellow down the street and the fellow down the street is afraid of him.

So when it comes to marking goods, fear of the other fellow is the great influence which bears the price.

Run your own business. Be your own judge of the margin of profit to ask. When you price the goods, consider only the value and your community. Leave your competitor out of it.

To be sure, competition is a factor that must be considered. But most merchants consider it too much. In marking their goods they make it the great determining influence.

It has been said that many lines in many retail stores might be advanced ten or fifteen per cent. without any change in the trade.

At first that may sound foolish. But the more you think of it the more like real truth it seems. If you think of it enough you will come to believe it.

When you reach that stage, advance some of your lines. At the same time give the clerks convincing talks on the values. Then watch the results.

Some readers of this paper have tried this experiment. They are converted now and are getting better profits than they did a year ago.

You are probably selling many lines at a smaller margin of profit than you should. Get better prices.—The Hardware Trade.

TURN ON THE LIGHTS.

ELECTRICITY bids fair to turn night into day. Men are constantly striving to do greater things with the marvelous force in which there is both life and death. It is believed that in electricity has been found the ideal light, and in the cities of the country there is a constantly growing demand for its use, a growing effort to apply the light in a new and more effective manner. The little globes blaze by thousands in the streets, in the stores and in the homes. They shine in colors, and they speak to the public from the fronts of business places in the cause of publicity.

Step into the streets of any of the large cities, and the eye is fairly dazzled with the brilliancy and the flash of the little lights. Business men recognize their value, and the city authorities are coming to an understanding of the fact that the people apreciate and demand streets that are illuminated in an attractive and brilliant manner. For instance, Denver is seeking now to be a "city of lights," and it is planned there to make the main thoroughfares almost as light as day by arches spanning the roadways and illuminated with thousands of incandescent bulbs.

DON'T NEGLECT CORRESPONDENCE.

IT would seem as if business correspondence were a thing to be played ducks and drakes with, if one is to judge from the persistent practice of certain Canadian firms of answering trade inquiries when it suits their convenience. It is hard to believe that there are business men in Canada to-day who date their letters twenty or thirty days back regularly for the simple reason that they attend to their correspondence only once a month. Fortunately such extremes are rare, and yet it is to be regretted that our average business man is not above reproach in this regard. Complaints are received continually on the ground that it is practically impossible to communicate with certain Canadian business houses. Whether it is negligence or because such firms feel that they control the situation, and have a right to subject patrons to a maximum of inconvenience, the fact remains that it is short-sighted business policy.

The human element is bound to crop up in all commercial transactions sooner or later, and it is only natural for a man who wants to do business, or to secure trade information, to feel offended when his queries are persistently ignored or shelved until such time as an answer is no longer of service. The disaffection is sure to spread from man to the community, and it is only a matter of time until its reflex action is noticed in a falling off in trade. Not even the poor business man can afford to invite such a catastrophe.

AUSTRALIA JEALOUS.

CANADIANS were surprised and amused last week at the cable announcement of there being intense irritation in Australia against Canada. It seems that the Australian Government asked our customs department to determine the market value of Canadian products shipped to Australia, in order that their own customs officials might be in a position to tax them to the fullest extent. Naturally enough the authorities at Ottawa did not see their way clear to act the spy on our people for the benefit of a foreign tax-gatherer, and refused to comply with the request. As a matter of fact Canada obtains similar information in Australia, the United States, and other countries, by means of permanently and substantially salaried agents, which is probably the course Australia will have to adopt to successfully operate a customs tariff.

J. S. Larke, Canadian commercial agent to Australia, states that the feeling of antagonism towards Canada is not widespread there; in fact it is confined to a small group of ardent protectionists, and the main object of the present agitation is to influence public opinion in the forthcoming Commonwealth elections. The real point where the shoe pinches is that Canada is now receiving the surplus capital and population of the Empire, just as Australia received them a few decades ago, while Australia is comparatively in the background as a field for settlement.

A NATIONAL BOYCOTT.

THE Chinese boycott against the United States which went into effect two weeks ago is proving itself a very real thing, and already the Chinese Government have been warned that the United States will insist on the full observance of the Tientsin Treaty of 1858, providing that

> "at each of the ports open to commerce citizens of the United States shall be permitted to import from abroad and sell, purchase and export all merchandise of which the importation or exportation is not prohibited by the laws of the Empire."

Reports from the Orient regarding the progress of the movement are conflicting. On the one hand comes the news that it is extending rapidly. Others incline to the opinion that Chinese merchants are dissatisfied with the outcome. Ex-Minister Wee Ting Fang, of Washington, declares that the spread of the boycott on American goods is a sympton of extraordinary progress toward a real nationality; that the movement has been organized by the best and most representative Chinese and is entirely pacific in character, and that the extent of the movement and the strength of the feeling manifested not only by the mercantile classes but also by the students are indicative of a new spirit in China. At the same time the boycott ought soon to be rendered unnecessary by a satisfactory settlement of the grievances complained of by the Chinese. No difficulty is presented by the exclusion of coolies from United States territory; at the same time the existing regulations press with severity upon other classes, such as merchants, travelers and students, who are compelled to undergo objectionable examinations. A clearer definition of the word "laborer" is essential, and in addition the right of appeal from decisions of immigration officials. Mr. Wee Ting Fang says an educational test would be the most effective means of preventing the ingress of coolies besides eliminating undesirable class distinctions.

Canada is an interested spectator, not only because the crisis will afford her a valuable lesson in international affairs, but because it may accrue greatly to the benefit of Canadian trade. The C.P.R. authorities have already received inquiries from Hong Kong merchants asking as to the feasibility of securing heavy supplies of Canadian flour to replace the American article which they will no longer accept. Canada can supply China with a large amount of soft wheat flour and practically unlimited quantities of the hard western Spring wheat variety.

WESTERN ASSOCIATION NEWS AND TOPICS

SECRETARY W. A. COULSON returned to Winnipeg Monday, Aug. 14, after a week spent in the interests of the association in the Southern Manitoba towns of Ridgeville, Dominion City, Arnaud and Emerson. This week he is busy in the towns Otterburn, St. Malo, St. Pierre, St. Elizabeth and Niverville. If he succeeds in completing the organization of these towns during the week, the work in Southern Manitoba will be completed. The retail merchants of the south now constitute a solid association phalanx and the benefits derived by them from their membership in the association are such as to persuade those in other parts of Manitoba and in the far west to join in the movement.

A good example of the benefits of the association is furnished by Secretary Coulson's work last week in Ridgeville, Dominion City, Arnaud and Emerson. The merchants in these towns are very much like those in other towns, and conditions there are typical of conditions in all parts of the country. Many lines of staples have been sold in these towns, through the stress of competition, at less than cost. The merchants in these towns have come to see the folly of their ways and having joined the association, they have agreed to sell the following staples at the following prices:

"Force," 15c. per package straight.
Tobacco, 10c. per plug straight.
Sugar, $6.25 per cwt. cash, and $6.50 credit.
Tomatoes, 15c. per can straight.
Corn, 2 cans for 25c.
Peas, 10c. per can.
"Saxon" rolled oats, 30c. per package.
"Royal Crown" soap, 6 bars for 25c.

It is also agreed that all butter tubs are to be charged for. Commencing this week the stores in these towns pay 14c. per lb. for butter in crocks, and 15c. per lb. for butter in tubs.

Officers of the association: President, T. J. Lawlor, Killarney, Man.; 1st vice-president, H. C. Hamelin, Lauder, Man.; 2nd vice-president, J. D. Baine, Boissevain, Man.; treasurer, Robert Rollins, Killarney; secretary and organizer, W. A. Coulson, Williamson block, Notre Dame Avenue, Winnipeg.

Executive: A. G. Munro, Morden, Man.; A. E. Hill, Griswold, Man.; W. G. McLaren, Souris, Man.; J. Brown, Neepawa, Man.; R. F. Moore, Cartwright, Man.; F. W. Clingan, Virden, Man.; N. D. McKinnon, Weyburn, Assa.; G. C. Sayles, Elva, Man.; E. H. Glinz, Oak River, Man.; E. H. Ledoux, Arnaud, Man.

Now the ordinary observer, if made acquainted with the wholesale prices of the goods mentioned above, would perhaps be inclined to think that nothing very wonderful had been accomplished. Few people outside the grocery and general store trade would credit the story that about 35 per cent. of the goods sold in a western grocery store are sold at cost or less than cost. The public think that grocers are intelligent men; they know that they are among the most enterprising, shrewd and public spirited of our citizens and they expect them to look after their own affairs intelligently. It is not intelligent business to sell goods at cost or at a loss.

There are many other items which might easily be added to that list adopted by the merchants in the Southern Manitoba towns mentioned, but this is a good start. Doubtless others will be added to the list in a few weeks.

A staple which has been sold in grocery stores in all parts of Canada at cost and less than cost is the ordinary plug tobacco. The profit is small enough when a plug of tobacco is sold at 10c., but when some foolish merchant hands out three plugs for a quarter, the profit entirely disappears. The tobacco manufacturers are acting in conjunction with the association in an effort to protect the merchants from themselves. In Southern Manitoba the merchants are getting out posters announcing a change in policy. The following notice by Smith Bros. and Wilfrid Ledoux, in Arnaud, is a case in point:

Notice.

Owing to the advance in the price of tobacco, we, the undersigned, are compelled to sell tobacco until further notice as follows:

T. & B. 3s, 30c.
T. & B. 4s, 25c.
T. & B. 9s, 10c.
Macdonald "Prince of Wales," 10c.
Brier, 10c.
Lily, 10c.
All 10c. plugs and packages sold straight.

(Sgd.) SMITH BROS.,
W. LEDOUX.

Arnaud, Aug. 10, 1905.

Similar notices are being issued in Dominion City, Ridgevile and Emerson. In Dominion City these notices are signed by Bell & McCaul, Morkill & Scott, and the Stuartburn Trading Co. In Ridgeville the notices are signed by Hinton & Co. In Emerson the firms entering into this agreement are: Hinton & Co., Whitman & Co., Bell & McCaul, A. Rivard, C. Whitman, J. E. Bedford, C. Finkleman, and T. Finklestein. This is the beginning of a systematic effort to right a bad state of affairs and the example of these merchants might be followed with profit in many towns not yet visited by the secretary.

HOW TO CAPTURE MEXICAN TRADE.

AS the goods that Canada is best fitted to supply to the Mexican market must come largely into direct competition with similar products of the United States, which are already well known and accredited, it will be seen that if Canadian trade with Mexico is to succeed, not only must the Canadian Government representatives in Mexico be as well equipped, competent and alive to the requirements of the situation, but the men who are sent to solicit business must be selected from those who know the field.

All catalogues, price lists, and general advertising matter should be printed in Spanish, and no pains should be spared in securing translations that are in every way first class. For several reasons, it will be found most satisfactory to have translations made in Mexico City, principally because really good translations can be secured there at a reasonable cost, and because in Mexico many articles of commerce, such as parts of machinery, etc., have names peculiar to that country alone.

That a large volume of lucrative trade can be secured for Canada, there is, however, no doubt, notwithstanding the lead which the United States has already obtained in the Southern Republic. Mexico, with her fourteen millions of people, requires immense quantities of lumber, fish, coal, pig iron, canned goods, agricultural machinery and many other things which Canada is as well fitted to supply as any country in the world, and the demand for these things is increasing rapidly year by year. During the last twenty years the imports of Mexico have increased from $15,000,000 to $65,000,000, and trade there is making more progress at the present time than ever before. That at present the circumstances are specially favorable to successful trade between Canada and Mexico will be seen from the fact that the Mexicans themselves—both Government and people—are very desirous of promoting and assisting it. The inversion of Canadian capital into Mexican enterprises, the visits to Mexico of the Canadian Postmaster-General, the forming in Mexico of a strong Canadian club for the purpose of creating a vogue for Canadian goods and other circumstances have greatly strengthened this desire, and with it all there is a friendship which the Mexicans have long felt for the Dominion, both as a British country and as a sister American nation, with whom they have had no territorial misunderstanding.

DAIRY PRODUCTS IMPROVING.

The official referee for cheese and butter located at Montreal reports to G. G. Publaw, chief inspector for Eastern Ontario, that out of one hundred and eleven faulty cheese received from the section east of Toronto, only seventeen were from factories receiving instruction. The chief instructors for both the eastern and western sections report that practically every factory which took instruction last year has made more or less improvement in buildings or equipment.

"SALADA"

The plausible salesman with the (so-called) "just as good" Tea as "SALADA" Ceylon Tea is continually in your path, making all manner of absurd offers and promises, if you will only allow him to unload his burden upon you.

Don't you do it---you have probably quite enough "culls" already on your shelves that were guaranteed (?) to sell well, but didn't.

"SALADA" is the most profitable tea to handle because it has an established reputation for Quality, selling and pleasing everlastingly . . . and, there being an entire absence of "HOOK" about our ways of doing business, you can never get caught.

A few moments consideration to the foregoing will not be out of place.

CELLULOID STARCH

is that kind of a combination for the dealer. When a stock of this well known brand of Laundry Starch is put in, the grocer feels that he is not taking any long chances. It is distinctly a case of "backing the favorite." He knows it will "move"—and quickly; no bargain sales from tubs at the season's end, of miscellaneous nondescripts. What a satisfaction it is to sell a Starch that you know from trial in your own home to be the "real thing." Attractive packages, heavy advertising, everything in fact that could be done to help the grocer has been and will be done continuously.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

Ontario Markets.

GROCERIES.

Toronto, Aug. 18, 1905.

TRADE on the street has been particularly slow since last issue, tendency being to curtail buying as much as possible during holiday season. The market for teas is noticably quiet on the home market, whilst all foreign markets report great activity, with prices generally firming up, and prospects of advance in all teas showing quality in cup.

Canned goods are slow, probably owing to the absence of the traveling men from the road, their return not yet having shown results. We give supplementary wholesale price list just issued by the Canners' Association. Corn prices are reduced by 10c.; catsup is considerably easier, being quoted at 65c. to 80c.; pie peaches have fallen to $1; domestic sardines have also fallen ¼c.; and all sizes of corned beef have evened down.

The local sugar market continues inactive, with prices remaining firm at previous quotations. The home demand for syrups and molasses has been of a very ordinary nature. From foreign points a better market is reported at full values. The tea market is steady almost to slowness, with foreign reports still denoting activity and prices maintaining great firmness. The market for foreign dried fruits is quiet, as usual at this season; advices from original markets denote prices as firm with upward tendency for new fruits. First arrivals of Valencia raisins will reach Canada about the last week of September, and fruit is reported as in good condition. Currants are expected to maintain a firm price throughout the season, owing to the new legislation which just came into operation. Walnuts are still expected to obtain a higher basis, last year's prices being considered away too low. The spice market continues inactive with prices unchanged. Foreign markets are strong in pepper and ginger. Maple syrups are reported at a standstill, and are accordingly crossed from our quotations. There is active demand for fresh fish, with white fish down to 8c., and trout reduced to a steady 8c.

Grain also is reported as coming to hand in good condition.

Canned Goods—The demand for canned goods has been very slow, holders are reducing present stocks as far as possible in view of arrival of new stocks, consequently orders are slow and for small volumes quotations have been somewhat easier, and several lines have been modified. Corn is now quoted at $1 to $1.10; catsup is down to 65c. Apples in gals. have dropped 10c. Pie peaches stand now at $1. Domestic sardines are down ¼c., whilst corned beef has dropped about 10c. all round. We append herewith supplementary wholesale list just issued by the Canners' Association:

Sugar—The local market in sugar has been somewhat slow. Prices, however, have ruled firm at former quotations. The U. S. market reports some heavy buying by one large refinery, which has greatly relieved the New York market, and it is computed that there are only some 4 or 5 steamers arriving during the next month whose cargoes will have to be marketed. This has had the effect of hardening the market, as there are several refineries whose stocks must be made up. The refined market is somewhat excited over the prospects of revised railroad rates. The meeting of three principal railways is believed to have fixed an agreed basis, and at their next meeting which, it is understood, will be held in New York on August 22, their new schedule will be announced. It will thus be some three weeks before it comes into operation, and as refiners are heavily overstocked it is expected that there will be some heavy withdrawals on account. The London market has been inclining toward weakness, but the market somewhat recovered, and at last report was remaining steady. We quote:

Coffee—There has been no improvement since our last in the domestic market; prices remain unmoved. In N.Y., receipts have been much smaller than the corresponding week of a year ago and the total receipts this crop year are much below a usual crop, and there is every indication of the yield being many thousands below the estimates. From original markets, reports denote great steadiness. In Brazil, frosts are reported, which are causing no little anxiety, and it is now almost certain that the crops will not come up to early estimate. In N.Y. little business was reported on our latest information; at the same time it is well to note that no spot coffee was being pressed forward. We quote:

Tea—There is practically little further to report beyond our last report; no change is apparent in the home trade except, perhaps, a further lull in business. On the street things are exceptionally quiet, prpbably in part owing to the holiday season. The London market continues to report active business, and well sustained prices. In Indians the offerings have been fairly heavy with about 10,000 packages of new crop; buyers showed distinct favor toward good liquoring teas, so that teas lacking cup character had a tendency to slacken. Ceylon sales were in excess of Indians, and all good qualities were well competed for; prices consequently ruled very firm, while the commoner grades had a tendency to ease down.

China teas were small in offerings. Some first arrivals of new season's teas were on hand, and prices ruled satisfactory, probably owing to the small quantity available, as the crop generally is not considered a good sample.

Java teas were not in offering at latest auctions. The U. S. market has been gradually improving in demand for most teas and prices are keeping well firmed up. We quote:

Foreign Dried Fruits—The home trade continues slow with little interest manifested. It is somewhat difficult to get quotations in currants for spot goods, sales being based upon future prices. Very active foreign markets are reported; orders have been received at Patras which have exhausted old crop. The new crop for shipment during present week will cost at least 40 per cent. on earliest shipments of last year. It would appear as though the legislation which has recently gone into effect will prevent the possibility of much lower prices at any time this season. Valencia raisins,—at a meeting of shippers held in Denia it was unanimously agreed to fix the date of first shipments for 20th of present month, so as to to obtain perfectly dried and matured fruit. Shipments will, therefore, probably reach Canada about last week in September and selected will cost in the neighborhood of 6 to 6½c. Prices remain unchanged. We quote:

Trade is fairly good. Jobbers' efforts are exerted towards clearing out old stocks as rapidly as possible. The new prices on fruits and vegetables quoted above are in some cases from 25 to 75 per cent. higher than last year, notably gooseberries, lawtonberries and raspberries, this being due to scarcity of fruit and the higher price of sugar.

Canned salmon situation bears a peculiar aspect. As far as can be learned, no new pack goods are sold to the trade under $4.65 f.o.b. coast, which with the 65c. per case cost of freight, would make price $5.30, delivered here, which should bring price to $5.75 to $6.00 per case at least. Some cutting under these figures is reported, but apparently only on certain brands. It is evident that only off-brands have so been offered and the trade generally are disposed to get a living profit on established brands.

Fish—The fish trade continues in good shape. A good demand is prevailing for all kinds of fresh fish, which, by the way, is not very plentiful. Prices have gone up for dore, halibut and steak-cod, but this is due to scarcity. Fresh Gaspe salmon is nearly finished, and dealers are falling back on fresh B. C. and frozen Gaspe. Foreign Dried Fruits— Dried fruits market shows little of interest, with the exception of California products. Much damage by hot weather and the getting together of the curing and packing interest will keep prices higher than last season by cents a pound. The demand for California fruit from the consumer has grown so that a good price will not restrict the consumption. The effect of taste for California fruits was felt by Valencia growers last year, and the trade look forward to an interesting season's struggle this year.

The Ottawa grocers paid a friendly visit to the Toronto offices of The Grocer on Monday.

Mr. Walter J. Elliott, Quebec representative of E. W. Gillett Co., Limited, Toronto, called at The Grocer offices, Montreal, this week. Mr. Elliott has just finished an extensive trip through the Lake St. John and Chicoutimi district and reports splendid business.

CONVERTED INTO FERTILIZER.

Ten thousand sockeye salmon were transported in scows from the Fraser River canneries on Aug. 7 to the oilery at Ladner for conversion into oil and fertilizer. The fish were unfit for canning, having commenced to decay as a result of being kept at the canneries too long.

The loss of the fish is directly attributable to the fact that the canneries were unable for over a week to pack all the fish received. All the big plants on the river were glutted with fish, and the Chinese and other cannery hands have been worked from dawn till dark, but, notwithstanding, fish have spoiled in thousands.

A branch of the Dominion Retail Merchants' Association has been organized in Brantford. President, J. M. Douglass; first vice-president, C. Gress; second vice-president, Wm. Cutmore; treasurer, J. S. Howie; secretary, Wm. Grierson.

There is talk of a vinegar industry being started at Wallaceburg within the next few months.

Cream rises to the top in obedience to a natural law.

If you look around your store you will notice some lines that always stand out from the bulk of the stock. You will call to mind that these lines are good sellers, "repeaters," the best kind of sellers. It is this distinction of quality in our product that has proved such a success in every store that carries a line of our goods. They attract attention, cultivate inquiry and give themselves a good start in the roll across the counter to the customer. Giving you a good profit and the assurance that you have a satisfied customer.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

We call the attention of buyers to the fine values in teas and coffees offered by E. D. Marceau, Montreal.

H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto, have received this week a shipment of seedless Valencia raisins in 14 and 28 lb. boxes, and are offering them at an interesting price.

W. Boulter & Sons recently received a large order for canned goods to go to the Methodist and Presbyterian missions of China. These goods replace importations from California, and speak well for this Canadian firm.

The Stewart Co., manufacturers of high grade confectionery, etc., Toronto, have largely increased their plant and facilities for turning out the highest grade chocolate and confectionery, and are prepared to give prompt attention to orders.

Buyers of Fard dates should communicate with H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto, who are sellers at low price.

J. H. Maiden, of Montreal, has been appointed agent for the Frankford Canning & Packing Co., for Montreal and Quebec.

The oyster season has opened, White & Co., Limited, Toronto, are again handling the famous Long Island natives, grown and shipped by H. C. Rowe & Co.

"Crescent" mop sticks, a new line offered by the Eby, Blain Co., Limited, Toronto, are having a very large sale.

White & Co., Limited, Toronto, made a record sale of a car of California fruit at auction, Wednesday last, Aug. 9, the sale lasting twenty-five minutes, the car grossing over $1,600.

Gallon apples are quoted by the Eby, Blain Co., Limited, Toronto, at very interesting prices.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, Toronto, are quoting very low figures on Sair and Fard dates; fair stock in good condition.

Bode's Gum Co. are making a generous offer to the jobbing trade this week. Correspondence is solicited.

ARGENTINA LEADS.

The latest weekly bulletin of the Trade and Commerce Department contains a report from the Canadian Commercial Agent at Leeds, Eng., noting the vast strides made in perfecting cold storage on the steamship lines carrying meats from the South American Republic of Argentina to British ports. It says:

"The immense increase in the importation of chilled beef and mutton from Argentina this year is one of the surprises in the meat trade. These goods arrive in first-class condition, and not only are the carcases shipped, but also the by-products, such as kidneys, livers, hearts, etc., which on account of the excellent cold starage provided on the steamers, arrive in the best of condition.

"The cause of the large increase and development in this trade has been the result of English capitalists taking the matter up and building large abattoir and cold storage plants, both in Argentina and Great Britain. I am told that by reason of the lower freights for this class of product, as compared with shipping the animals alive and having them slaughtered here at the ports, the companies interested are able to cut the prices for fresh meat, etc., almost in two.

"I referred to this matter in a former report some months ago. Since that time I have looked into the matter carefully and find that the English capitalists would be quite willing to join with the Canadians in inaugurating similar plants and service from Canada. The sea voyage from Canada being so much shorter, the prospects for an Anglo-Canadian company, along similar lines to the British companies doing business in the Argentine, are exceedingly bright."

SIGN ADVERTISING.

The 50,000 sq. feet of wall space secured by Bode's Gum are rapidly filling up. The fence surrounding the Montreal baseball grounds is now entirely covered and some of the most prominent walls in Montreal are resplendent with advertisements of Bode's gum, painted in beautiful and harmonizing colors.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Special Report from the Winnipeg Office of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, August 17th, 1905.

WHOLESALE grocery trade in Winnipeg is very active at present, and although collections are still reported slow in some parts of the country, the continued good prospects of a "bumper" crop encourage the trade to expect a marked improvement in this important respect before the end of the year.

Local wholesale houses report an unusually brisk demand for all kinds of canned meats. This is due to the influx of settlers, and the expected arrival of thousands of harvesters from the east before the end of the month. In canned fruits there is a noticeable scar scarcity of peaches and Lombard plums and consequently these goods are very firmly held at prices quoted. Canned salmon is selling well for October-November delivery, as lower prices seem improbable. Tapioca is reported a short crop and consequently the price is advancing. Advances are also noted this week in rolled oats. All foreign dried fruits show a tendency to advance.

Sugar—Local prices are still unchanged, although there have been a number of changes in New York markets. It is evident that the New York sugar market is in the hands of speculators, and the declines and advances which follow each other so fast in New York, being speculative in character, are not having any effect here. The heavy demand continues from all parts of the west, but as there is still a general impression that further declines are almost due, the buying is only for present heavy requirements. It is interesting to note that on January 1 of this year the local price of granulated in barrels was $6.05. The net result of five advances and nine declines since that date has been to reduce the price to $5.65. Sugar is exactly 1c. per lb. higher now that at the beginning of 1904. During 1904 there were 26 advances in Winnipeg and only four declines, but the course of the market during last year and this has been so abnormal that little can be safely deduced from a comparison of the course of prices in the different months of the two years. Subject to possible changes recorded in last minute Manitoba markets, we quote as follows:

Montreal granulated, in bbls	5 65
" " in sacks	5 60
" yellow, in bbls	5 15
" " in sacks	5 10
Wallaceburg, in bbls	5 55
" " in sacks	5 50

Lump, hard, in bbls	6 35
" " in ½-bbls	6 45
" " in 100-lb cases	6 35

Canned Goods—Salmon is selling well for Fall delivery, as there is very little prospect of lower prices than those quoted below. Canned meats of all kinds are in exceptionally brisk demand owing to the big influx of settlers and the expected arrival before the end of the month of thousands of harvesters. Canned peaches and Lombard plums are reported very scarce and they are being firmly held at prices quoted. We quote prices unchanged, as follows:

Foreign Dried Fruits—Almost every item in the foreign dried fruit list shows a tendency to advance. It is early yet to say much about raisins, but it is expected the new season crop will be held at a higher price than a year ago. Currants are advancing locally because of advices from Greece, which indicate much higher prices for the new crop. The advance is due, not to a short crop, but to the policy of the Grecian Government. In order to encourage the currant industry the Grecian Government have undertaken to buy at the average price all currants remaining in the hands of exporters after a certain date. Being sure of a market for their entire output, the growers and exporters are thus advancing prices. Prunes are in a very firm position in the primary markets and the new crop will be sold at much higher prices than was the last. In sympathy with these advices, local prices have been advanced by several houses, and the average of the prices quoted locally will be found below. Apricots continue to advance in primary markets and higher prices may be expected. We quote:

California raisins, muscatels, 3 crown, per lb.		0 06½

Evaporated Apples— If the local houses were buying in the east now at present prices, they could not sell evaporated apples in Winnipeg at less than 9c. This indicates the position of the market now, and prospects all point to high prices this season. The apple crop in the east is reported poor and although an unusually large proportion of it may go to the evaporators, it is expected the price will be high. We quote:

Evaporated apples (choice), 50-lb. case	0 08
" (fancy), "	0 08½

Beans—Hand-picked beans are still quoted at $2.10 to $2.15 per bushel, and the ordinary grade at $2.

Woodenware—Prices are unchanged. We quote as last week:

B. C. Markets.

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 10, 1905.

SHIPMENTS of fruit from all parts of British Columbia to Manitoba and the Northwest are now very heavy. The season is unprecedentedly early and all varieties of fruit are coming in rapidly. This time last year very few apples were offering, and no pears, with very few plums and crab apples. This year all these varieties are in abundance now, especially plums. There are also peaches and apricots, these being from the Okanagan Valley. There are also heavy shipments of blackberries, which will be coming on the market for some time yet.

Never has there been a better supply or choicer quality of fruit since the Province began to enter the field as a serious commercial competitor of other fruit districts. Early as it yet is, in the history of the development of the industry, the strides being made are remarkable. Not the least important measure adopted in bringing the commercial fruit product of British Columbia to market has been the placing of fresh fruit exhibits under capable management at the various leading fairs from Winnipeg west. Seeing is believing, and the people who live in the great wheat country see for themselves that they can buy in British Columbia the choicest of fruit. The demand will bring the supply up to all requirements ere long.

One of the lines which is being very carefully noted is that of the production of ripe tomatoes. There is an unlimited market for fresh tomatoes in Winnipeg, and almost any price will be paid for a good article. British Columbia certainly can produce the finest tomatoes to be found in the market. The districts peculiarly capable of producing them have not begun to reach their capacity. In fact, but a good beginning may be said to have been made in their production.

"Not in salmon canneries, but in cold storage, is the solution of the problem of handling the fisheries of B. C., and getting the most returns from them," is the assertion of a prominent New England gentleman, who has been spending some time on the coast, and who is likely to be interested in a cold storage proposition there. Of course, the gentleman being in the business may be said to be prejudiced. But he takes strong ground.

"Why," said he, "I saw a million dollars worth of fish destroyed, ruined, allowed to go to waste there in the past fortnight. Not an iota of that loss need have occurred if there had been cold storage facilities to take care of all the fish that were caught. It would require an extensive plant, perhaps three or four of them, but the outlay would repay the investors.

"And mind you, those fish were the very choicest of sockeyes, the finest salmon on earth. Had they been preserved and sent to market in the big cities of the east they would have realized handsome prices. And by cold storage facilities these fish could be taken care of in any quantities until the market absorbed them.

"Cold storage will one day solve all the difficulties of producers and dealers in the handling of all classes of food products that are perishable or liable to deteriorate," is the dictum of this exponent of the coming system, as he puts it. The day will come, he foretells, when there will be a complete system of cold storage plants, large ones at producing points for receiving and holding the products, smaller plants at distributing points everywhere, except at large distributing centres, where large plants

Quaker Canned Goods

The above goods are grown and packed in the Lake District, Ontario. Encircled as this territory is by Big Lake, Little Lake, West Lake and Lake Ontario, with cooling breezes constantly blowing from all quarters across the growing fields of tomatoes, corn, peas and beans, in the hottest day in summer, it makes the finest spot on earth for the perfect maturing of these vegetables.

will be needed. Fish, fruit, poultry, butter, eggs, and other farm products, will be handled, and where dairy products are received, they will merely be shipped out to other points for distribution, and fish and other products will take their place, coming forward from other centres to be distributed in their turn.

In grocery staples the market remains very quiet, inactive in many lines, it may be said. In cured meats, lards, etc., there is some movement, with no changes of note. In dairy products the supply of local dairy and creamery butter is keeping up well. The price is reasonable, dairy being 19c. and 20c. wholesale, while creamery varies from 23c. to 25c. per lb. Butter from east of the mountains supplies the Kootenay districts as of old, but little of it finding its way to the coast at this seaosn.

Eggs are pretty firm in price and demand good; local supplies of fresh are somewhat better, while eastern case stock is in evidence.

The local apples are dominating the market, with plums a good second. California shipments of these fruits have dropped down to zero. Peaches and apricots, as well as some pears still arrive. Local peaches, grown in the Okanagan, find their market in the Northwest, at better prices than they bring at the coast. A few small lots of the late varieties of cherries from Victoria are marketed. They bring $3.25 for the 24-lb. crate. $2 to $2.25 rules for blackberries, 24-lb. crates.

N. S. Markets.

Halifax, N.S., Aug. 14, 1905.

THE first shipment of apples from the Annapolis Valley reached the city on Saturday, Aug. 12. The fruit, though small in size, was of fair quality for the first of the season, and found very ready sale. Daily shipments from this out are expected.

In the grocery markets trade in general is good. A notable improvement is reported in the country districts. Orders are coming in quite regularly and money is beginning to circulate much more freely. The season promises to be a most prosperous one for the farmer all round, and this fact has added stimulus to trade. Prices continue steady and payments are much better.

The sugar market is very firm, and prices are unchanged. The demand for sugar is unusually good, large sales being reported. Smoked meats are scarce, the supply being only about equal to the demand. Prices are very firm. The market is now well supplied with local grown potatoes, and there has been a rapid decline in prices. They are now quoted at $1.25 per bushel, which price is considered quite reasonable for the time of year. Receipts of eggs are falling off and so is the demand. Prices were advanced during the week, and it is expected that they will go still higher. Choice Nova Scotia stock is now quoted at 19 to 20c., while P.E.I. stock is quoted at 18c.

Dealers are much interested in the butter market, as a result of the reports from Great Britain and other places on the condition of the market. Receipts of butter are only fair. Farmers have been busy hay making and have given little attention to butter. Choice creamery prints are quoted at 22 to 23c., and fair quality in small tubs is being sold at 20 to 21c. The general feeling in the market is that prices will advance, though increased receipts are expected after the farmers house their hay.

Reports from the Annapolis Valley show that the fruit is ripening well. While the crop will not be a large one, the apples give promise of fine quality. Canadian and English buyers are already visiting the orchards in the valley and some of them have options on the fruit. The crop of plums promises to be good and of fine quality. Some plums from Ontario were marketed during the week and found good sale. The fruit was small, but of good flavor.

Jobbers are placing good orders for canned goods. The old stock on the market is very low, and dealers are buying only sufficient to tide them over until the arrival of new stock. Fruit continues in good supply, and prices generally are high. Two small shipments of American apples were received during the week. California Bartlett pears are very high and dealers say there is no money in handling them as the fruit ripens so quickly. At retail, the price is quoted from 40 to 50c. per doz.

Fresh fish was unusually scarce all week, due principally to the presence of hordes of dog fish on the coast. It was impossible for the fishermen to set their trawls owing to the presence of these pests. Some mackerel were taken, but the price is high. One fisherman from the Western Shore, who netted one hundred fine fish, brought them to the city and disposed of them for $14.

ONTARIO CROP REPORT.

THE August crop bulletin of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, just at hand, contains the following regarding conditions on Aug. 1:

Fall Wheat—The harvesting of this crop was begun rather later than usual in most sections, but the weather was favorable for cutting, and with the improved machinery now in use many had completed the work, and some had even threshed before the 1st of August. The crop will be a big one, as regards the yield per acre, more especially in the Lake Erie counties. Most of the Fall wheat stood up well, and there was not so much "lodging" as is usual in the case of a heavy crop. A number of correspondents speak of rust, but in almost every case it was described as being only slight. Some complain of the grain as being somewhat shrunken, while others speak of it as being plump; it may be generally classified as a fair sample. Three or four correspondents mention injury from either midge or joint-worm, but all are silent as to the presence of the Hessian fly, which for the previous four years has been devastating wheat fields. In short, 1905 may be classed as one of Ontario's best Fall wheat years.

Spring Wheat — Comparatively little Spring wheat is now grown in the western half of the province, and in the eastern half the crop appears to be also decreasing in popularity. The fields were yet green, as correspondents reported; but cutting was expected to be general during the week beginning Aug. 14. The crop is described as being full in the head, with good straw, and promises more than an average yield. Odd mention only is made of rust.

Barley—This grain, like the other cereals, will go considerably over the average in yield per acre. The condition of the crop is variable, some correspondents speaking of much injury from rain and lodging, while others describe it as being first-class both in point of yield and quality. However, most of the barley raised in Ontario is now fed to live stock on the farm, and the matter of discoloration of the grain is not so important as it was some years ago when the bulk of the crop was raised for malting. While some were starting to cut about the 1st of August, most of the crop was more likely to be harvested about the middle of the month. Several correspondents speak of barley and oats being sown together as a popular feed mixture

Oats—While in a few localities oats had been cut as correspondents reported at the beginning of August, the bulk of the crop had yet a week or two to ripen. The yield promises to be one of the largest, both as regards acreage and total yields, several correspondents classing it as the finest crop in years. High lands gave magnificent yields, but in low places it suffered considerably from the wet. The straw is described as being long, bright, and stiff, and the heads as being well filled, although in some cases lodging is complained of. Rust was reported in a few instances, and two or three correspondents spoke of the presence of wire-worm.

Rye—The acreage of rye is comparatively small, and much of it is sown for pasture or soiling, and not for the grain. The yield per acre is above the average, and the grain is of good quality. The crop was harvested this year just a little before Fall wheat.

Peas—During the last four or five years the acreage of peas in this province has shrunk by about one-half, owing to the ravages of the pea weevil, or, as it is popularly called, the "bug." This season, happily, the pest is mentioned only to tell of its absence. The crop has been injured more or less by rain, nevertheless the yield per acre will run over an average. In the newer districts of the northern portion of the province the yields are among the best. The pea harvest was expected to cover about August 10 to 25, as most of the fields were quite green as correspondents wrote.

Beans—Where grown as a field crop, and give promise of a large yield per acre, notwithstanding damage from heavy rains at the time of planting. The crop had still two or three weeks to ripen when reports were received, but it was then looking well, although occasional mention was made of the presence of cut-worm.

Hay and Clover—The season has been a remarkable one for this crop, cutting ranging all the way from the last week of June to the end of July. In fact, on the first of August there was some hay yet to mow in various localities, Fall wheat and other cereals having ripened before the heavily-covered meadows could be cleared, and there being also a scarcity of labor. Hay cut early was more or less injured by rain, but that harvested later was housed in fine condition. The average yield for the province will be among the best on record, although the big yields are chiefly in the western and central counties. In the opinion of most correspondents, timothy did relatively better than clover. Like the grain crops, hay is reported as being remarkably free from injury by insects.

Flax—Flax is not so largely grown as formerly. The plant this season is generally described as being long, and of good quality of fibre, although owing to the crop being so heavy much of it got knocked down and tangled. Pulling had just commenced as correspondents wrote and the weather was then most favorable for the operation.

Hops—Very few correspondents outside of the County of Prince Edward have anything to say regarding hops. Those reporting were most favorable in their comments upon the condition of crop.

Tobacco—The growing of this crop is confined mainly to Essex and Kent in the west, and to one or two counties in the east along the St. Lawrence. Although the plant suffered considerably from wet weather early in the season, it made good recovery, and its general condition was classed as good by most of those who reported on it. Early planting is in better condition than that put in later. There are a few complaints of cut-worm.

Potatoes—A large yield of potatoes is promised, and of good quality. Some of the seed rotted on low land, owing to the wet weather just after planting, but comparatively few correspondents anticipate rot in the new crop. The bug, as usual, was present in large numbers, and in some cases an extra dose of paris green had to be applied. Bordeaux mixture for potato blight appears to be coming into favor with Ontario farmers.

Roots—The scarcity of labor, and the crowding of harvesting, forced a number of farmers to neglect their roots, and some fields are rather weedy. Nevertheless all classes of roots promise a good yield, especially mangels and sugar beets, which are doing better than turnips.

Fruit—All varieties of berries have yielded well, and grapes also promise well. Apples will be poor in point of yield, but the quality will be rather above the average. In many sections there will be barely enough for local consumption. Peaches have done better, and may be classed as from fair to good. Some correspondents report good yields of plums, while others claim an almost complete failure. The common red cherry did well, but other varieties were a disappointment. The reports regarding pears, as in the case of plums, vary much, but they have done better than apples. Correspondents account for the rather poor orchard crops, first, from lack of pollenization, owing to the wet and cold weather prevailing during the blossoming period, and, secondly, on account of many trees failing to fully recover from the effects of the severity of the last two Winters.

Bees and Honey—Bees came through the Winter in good condition, considering the trying nature of the season, and there was active swarming—in many cases too much of it. There was an abundance of nectar, relatively more in the field than in the forest, but frequent rains prevented bees from taking the fullest advantage of the situation. The average yield of the province will be about 50 pounds to a colony, Spring count, the yields ranging from 10 to 125 pounds, according to locality and the skill of the apiarist. But little mention is made of foul brood or other disease, and bees were quite thrifty as correspondents wrote.

Pastures and Live Stock—Reports are practically unanimous as to the favorable condition of pastures, several correspondents in various sections of the province declaring that Summer pastures were never better. Live stock of all classes were doing well, although in some of the St. Lawrence counties flies were very troublesome. There was a remarkably steady supply of milk during the season, but the flow was decreasing as August approached. Immense quantities of both butter and cheese have been made, but very little of either article remains in the hands of manufacturers. The creamery industry appears to be still growing in favor. The prospects are good for Fall pastures, and there will also be an abundance of hay, roots, corn, and other fodder for Fall and Winter requirements.

Corn—While there is great diversity in the reports concerning the condition of corn, the general tone may be considered favorable. The crop got a decided setback about the time of planting, owing to cold and wet weather, and the outlook for corn was most discouraging. The very favorable weather of July, however, brought growth along with a bound, and it is now likely that corn fields will give a full yield. Correspondents are generally of the opinion that corn for the silo will be relatively ahead of cob-corn in yield. A few reports question the possibility of the crop fully maturing before frost, but there are not enough of these to be regarded seriously. There are not so many com-

VEGETABLE MEN ORGANIZE.

The officers of the recently formed Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association purpose organizing branches of the association in connection with the leading cities and towns of the province.

The association will receive a government grant this year of $800. It purposes using this money to hold a large convention for vegetable growers at the time of the horticultural exhibition in Toronto next November, and also offering prizes for a large vegetable exhibit at this show. The prize list for the show has been already completed.

THE GROCER'S BEST ADVERTISEMENT.

Have you ever thought that your delivery wagon can be made your best friend? It covers the very ground it is your interest to serve; it is seen by just the identical customers you want. Send it forth, then, clean, well-painted and attractive, let it be your "silent" traveler. It's worth while.

WHALE FISHING DECLINES.

Judging from the reports received from Cape Breton factories around the coast and those at Labrador, the whale fishery seems to be declining. On an average it takes a hundred whales to make a factory pay and except the factory at Balena, very few of the factories had over fifty whales up to Aug. 7. The opinion that prevalied amongst many fishermen last year that the extinction of the whales meant the departure of the caplin and consequently the codfish from the coast is now regarded as an erroneous one, not upheld by the facts in evidence this year as regards the caplin.

TO BRING TRADE.

How few average grocers give proper consideration to their window display, and yet what can excel an artistically displayed window show. Just as a man's prestige depends upon his appearance, so the clean, well-arranged store window is the index to the interior of the store, and the customer judges accordingly.

WILL HAVE CORN EXCHANGE.

The New Westminster B.C., city council is at present considering the advisability of establishing a corn exchange in connection with the public market in the city, and if the scheme is carried out successfully, it will be the first of its kind in British Columbia.

The idea of the exchange is to provide means for the farmers to bring their oats, wheat and other grain in to market and dispose of it to the retail trade, and thereby realize better prices than they receive at present from the large milling companies which purchase almost the entire crop.

THE EVIL OF OVERBUYING.

(By W. E. Davis in Commercial Bulletin and Northwest Trade.)

THERE are plenty of careless retailers, and the Northwest with its rapidly developing country, its new towns, and the rough and ready retailing in those towns may have more than its share. There are retailers endeavoring to sell merchandise at a profit who should be following a plow, for too many times a good farmer has been spoiled while one name more is being added to the list of poor retailers. There are retailers who mean well, but don't know how and seem unable to learn. There is the same percentage of dishonest men in retail stores as in every other avenue of business.

Then there are two more classes; the retailer who has the brains and the money to run his own business, and the retailer who is dishonest, has fair ability, not enough cash, wants to do the right thing, asks for advice, receives a big assortment of it, and wriggles his way through a maze of trouble from year to year. From what I have observed, I believe that this last-named class constitutes a large part of the retail world.

The Retailer Who Overbuys.

This retailer who seems to lack the clean-cut decision and judgment which characterize the first-class business man, overbuys in at least three years out of five. He puts in the other two "catching up" with his wholesale house, and trying to study the experience account. In a year like 1902 when the boom was in the air, he caught the infection. As the steady procession of traveling salesmen went by, each relating a wonderful story of prosperity, and the big Fall trade which every town would surely have, he "loaded up." Many of them are still trying to unload. With many it will take another year.

A merchant who is quite well known over a section of the Northwest, became firmly convinced after his numerous talks with traveling salesmen, that last year was the time to make a killing. His whole career as a merchant has been such that during the past five years the credit departments with whom he has had dealings have impressed upon him the need of going slow. But early last year he became filled with enthusiasm over prospects. He capitalized the prospects. Every salesman of whom he bought, as far as can be learned, told him to take on plenty, as the Fall trade would be somthing immense, and he should have enough goods. He had enough.

This merchant is one of the best fellows you could meet in a four-days' ride. If you suggest his name to the traveling salesman who sell him, they would say, almost in concert: "Fine fellow, royal good fellow, but he don't know when to stop."

Your model jobbing house is divided into two principal departments. One sells, the other collects. The business of the merchandise end is to get rid of the goods at a fair profit. The business of the credit end is to see that the accounts are kept within reasonable limit, that the terms are adhered to, and that cash or other material evidence shows up on settlement day.

Model Jobbing House.

The good credit man will, as far as he can consistent with safety, use his best efforts to increase the business. It has been proven that a bunch of nerves and an assortment of timidity make a poor combination at the credit desk. But notwithstanding that the credit department constantly aims to make conservative business men out of the merchants with whom it deals. While the sales department is out on a campaign, retailers are being given heart-to-heart talks by the credit man, and many times is the good advice given, "Make the wholesaler carry as much of the stock as possible."

—The same mail that carries a score of letters from the credit desk advising a conservative policy, carries instructions from the various departments to the salesmen to get to work harder on certain lines. Between this pull and haul is it any wonder that the well-meaning retailer finds that his inventory tells a disappointing story of too many goods?

I contend that the wholesale house shapes the business character of the retail merchant more than any other factor or influence. As between the two departments of wholesaling, the pull of the sales department is more forceful than the haul of the credit department, because the sales end is steadily applying the whip while the influence of the credit department is felt at less frequent intervals.

What is the remedy? There is none at hand. It is a condition with which the gradual evolution of business methods must be allowed to deal. More united action among wholesalers on some of the more important points would help things. Probably a better understanding among the managers of sales departments in each line would work some benefits. But while the chase for trade is hot, please remember that if the retailer is unable to stand the gait, and overbuys, he should not be expected to stand more than half of the blame.

Education of the Retailer.

The education of the smaller retailer into a better business man will be one of the developments of the future. Two influences will work this out as far as it can be done, the credit men and the trade press.

Every year sees the machinery of wholesaling brought nearer the desks of the various departments within the house. Twenty years ago the traveling salesman was a more independent factor in trade than he is to-day. He stood between the customer and the house, and in a majority of instances stood with the customer in a dispute. He reasoned rightly that if he had the trade with him, he had little to fear from the house. If the customer kicked on an item of interest, the traveling salesman kicked too. You who have been years in Northwest trade will think of some exceptions to this rule. But the traveling salesman of twenty or twenty-five years ago represented more power and privilege than the traveling salesman of to-day, and, generally speaking, he was liberal with his concessions.

The Solution.

The policy of wholesale houses to-day is to bring the customer as much as possible in close touch with the house. The advertising department, with its catalogues, daily circulars and constant reminders, keeps the customer interested. Mail order business may show no increase which can be termed revolutionary, but it is increasing. Better mail service, better railway service, the telephone, and other potent factors in the nation's progress have brought these changes in wholesale methods. Territories are being cut down, and, while the population in all districts has increased, the big increase in traveling salesmen representing the same house in those districts, shows that the general policy trends towards keeping the house in closer communion with its trade. Under this policy it is evident that wholesale houses do not need as high-salaried men to perform their road work as they did fifteen and twenty years ago, and the percentage of tried men whose information and advice counts in the credit department will be less. There may be some traveling salesmen who will take exception to this. They can count themselves as exceptions. I realize that out of the army of salesmen in the Northwest, there are many high-class men. I speak only of what I consider is a general tendency in methods of merchandise distribution.

All this means that the education of the retailer along conservative lines must be carried on more than ever from the credit desk. You know that the fewer traveling salesmen on your staffs who can advise the retailer tactfully and wisely, the more work must be done direct. Then it follows that the centralization of this influence in the credit department will be steadily accomplished as the salesman becomes more of a salesman and less a well-balanced counselor to the retailer.

The next ten years will probably witness big advances in methods of communication between the large centres and the rural districts. We are not worrying about the retailer in the big centre. He can take care of himself and fight it out with his neighbor. The men in whom you and I are interested are they who are building their fortunes on the prosperity of towns and villages which gather around them the trade of as wide an area as possible, depending upon the enterprise and aggressiveness of the town and its merchants. Conditions are now arising, which threaten , from a trade standpoint, the independence of these towns, which would lessen their importance and which tend to decrease the importance and the prosperity of the local merchant as a factor in trade.

Broader Competition.

I do not want to be termed a pessimist. While the conditions I refer to are not favorable for many men now in the retail business, I believe that the change will bring better retailers, and I believe that with fair treatment, the small retailer, as a class, will hold his own against the big fellows in the big centres. But the small retailer must bring his business nearer a strictly business basis that most of them have done to date.

Competition is a far broader problem for the retailer than fifteen, or even ten years ago. In addition to the competition of his neighbor merchant, and possibly the merchants in the nearby towns, he must now meet the invasion of the numerous big mail-order houses, which, with their wonderful systems, are flooding the homes around him with attractive advertising matter and samples of goods. The mail-order house strikes at every business man in the town, from the dealer in threshing outfits to the dealer in pills. The rural free delivery has been a big help to these concerns, and an incentive toward the establishment of many. Rural free delivery of course has come to stay. It is in line with progress. The local merchant cannot stand in the way of progress, and does not want to. He must meet these new conditions with new methods. He must become a better merchant. He must learn that he cannot expect to compete with any considerable amount of his capital tied up in goods he is not using, and some of which he will not use for months. Such investments add to the cost of doing busines, and the retailer of the not-far-distant future must give that expense account more attention than he has if he is to succeed in the trade battles now ahead of him.

Here in the Northwest the days of easy money in retailing are almost past. Retail merchants who have made big money retailing in the past fifteen or twenty years could not do it by the same methods in the next fifteen.

We like to talk of a long profit. When we see a retailer who makes a big profit we consider him a star merchant, providing, of course, that he is reaping his profit on any considerable volume of business. But the long-profit retailer must go, and in his place we will have the man who fights back mail-order-house competition by selling at a fair profit and the smallest possible expense. Retailers may not get rich as rapidly, but they will study their business more, pay more attention to it, and be more conservative simply because conditions will force them to.

RETAIL MERCHANTS' ASSOCIATION OF CANADA

Sixth Annual Convention, Toronto, August 14 and 15, 1905.

THE sixth annual provincial convention of the Retail Merchants' Association was held in the offices of the association on Monday and Tuesday, the 14th and 15th inst. A goodly array of delegates from the different branches were present and also several prominent visitors from Quebec Province. The meeting was presided over by the president, A. L. Geen, Esq., of Belleville, and the committee of welcome was headed by His Worship the Mayor of Toronto, Controller J. J. Ward, Esq., and R. A. Donald, Esq., past president of Toronto Branch of the Manufacturers' Association.

The address of welcome so ably given by His Worship the Mayor of Toronto, Thos. Urquhart, Esq., was by no means lost on the happy crowd of retail merchants assembled in the somewhat spacious committee room of the association. He congratulated the secretary and executive on the right royal way they had engineered the Act through Parliament whereby once and for all the evils of the trading stamp were ended.

He gave to the retail merchants a place of first importance in the progress of the Dominion. He had in his early days spent several years behind the counter of a country store and knew full well that no one had a better opportunity than the retail merchant to obtain a fine knowledge of his fellows and at the same time be a power of influence in the community. He believed in organization; it was good for the people, good for the merchant and good from a municipal standpoint. He welcomed the delegates to up-to-date Toronto with its up-to-date retail merchants and progressive associations. The same line was followed by R. A. Donald, Esq., the late president of the Toronto Branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association,

The delegates from Montreal replied to the opening speeches at some length, pointing out the evils that had been worked by the trading stamp business and heartily welcoming the incoming of the new law, and expressing the hope that a future conference might be an interprovincial one and that the business men of Canada would shake hands, regardless of race, creed or distinction.

A. L. Geen, Esq., of Belleville, the president of the association, after bearing testimony to the very excellent work of the secretary, called for the reports of the secretary and treasurer. The secretary's report revealed some interesting facts in connection with the association. In 1902 they numbered only five branches. In 1903 they had increased to eight branches, in 1904 to twelve branches, and at the present time stood at sixty-five branches, with a total membership of 5,000. They had added 1,651 new members during the past year. There were some 50,000 retail merchants in the Province of Ontario, many of whom were ripe for membership. He considered the association had now reached a paying basis; they had closed the previous year with a deficit of $1,500, but the year under review had nearly wiped that out, the deficit now being only $143

By far the most important thing before the meeting was the question of amending the constitution of the association so as to take in the Dominion, and it was decided that this be done in conference with the Quebec visitors.

Among the many subjects down for discussion were those of "Pedlars and Transient Traders," "Special Fire Insurance Rates for Retail Traders," "That Fees for Examining Weights and Measures be Abolished," To Obtain Special Contracts for Power and Light," "Better Cartage Rates for Retail Traders," "To Reduce Quantity of Adulterated Foodstuffs Placed on Market," "Corporate Bodies to be Amenable to Law in Same Manner as an Individual," "The Laxity of Customs Officers Regarding Smuggling in Border Cities," "The Restriction of American Money in Canada," "The Inadvisability of Traders' Excursions in Interest of Retailers."

A further subject which created great excitement was the suggested introduction of a syatem of scheduling delinquent debtors and advertising them in the society's paper for the information of the members and as a means of securing settlement. Several committees were formed for the purpose of reporting on these subjects and handing them to the executive committee for action. On Tuesday morning the meeting reformed to receive the report of the committees and to confirm the resolution as revised by them.

By the remarks of various members of the association, whilst the "Pedlars and Transient Traders" were under discussion, it was learned that the municipal authorities have full power to cope with this nuisance by bringing into force the power conferred on them to regulate the amount of license upon such class of traders, up to $100. In some districts this has been done, with the result that these people are conspicuous by their absence. The favored plan appeared to be to fix a minimum license of $25, which at once put the small class out of the field. This matter was left with the executive committee for handling. The amended constitution was read, discussed and agreed upon, practically the same as recommended by the committee. In consequence a Quebec branch will be at once formed at Montreal.

The officers for the ensuing year were then under consideration. The president was re-elected unanimously, Mr. H. C. Ellis, of Ottawa, being in great favor as first vice-president, and Mr. W. B. Zieman as second vice-president. Mr. Fred C. Higgins, treasurer, and Mr. E. M. Trowern to continue as secretary. The meeting fully endorsing this by unanimous vote.

GREEN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

Mr. MacKinnon, commercial agent at Bristol, writing under date of July 31, says that the apple crop in Great Britain will be decidedly short this year. In Holland and Belgium apples will be quite under the average, while in Germany the crop is particularly light. All circumstances point to the prospect of a fairly firm demand for early apples from Canada, provided these can be landed in good, firm condition. Mr. MacKinnon, who is an expert on fruit, emphasizes the importance of careful packing and the free use of cold storage. He strongly urges that poor, scabby, or damaged fruit should not be sent over. If the early demands of the market are intelligently supplied, a firm and improving market will await arrivals of Winter fruit. He recommends that Canadian shippers should at least make a fair trial of Bristol as a shipping port.

An examination of the Nova Scotia apple-bearing districts shows that this year's crop, which should have been 600,000 bbls. under normal conditions, will not be more than 250,000 bbls., and may not exceed 200,000 bbls. The shortage will be chiefly in the late Winter varieties, although Gravensteins and Ribstons will also be a light crop.

Circulars from English buyers indicate a somewhat favorable market for early Canadian apples. These reports will undoubtedly stimulate shipments, and there may be a temptation on the part of the shippers to send forward immature and uncolored fruit. Such fruit will not grade No. 1, or XXX. Section 6 of the Fruit Marks Act reads as follows:

No person shall sell, or offer, expose, or have in his possession for sale, any fruit packed in a close package, upon which package is marked any designation which represents such fruit as of No. 1, or XXX, finest, best, or extra good quality, unless such fruit consists of well grown specimens of one variety, sound, of nearly uniform size, of good color for the variety, of normal shape, and not less than ninety per cent. free from scab, worm holes, bruises and other defects, and properly packed."

Mr. Eben James, commission merchant and exporter, Toronto, in his annual review on the fruit situation, says:

"The fruit from Toronto east has more than half an average crop, but less than half a full crop, with quality generally good. Baldwins in many sections are light. Ben Davis and Russets well loaded. The crop of early varieties is not heavy. West of Toronto the crop is generally light, and in some districts decidedly scabby; there are, however, a few districts containing good fruit, but generally speaking, the large producing districts are a failure. The fruit is growing large and should barrel well, especially as quality is good. In the United States, there is less than a 50 per cent. crop in the New England, Hudson River and Western New York districts, with quality in some sections better than the last two years. In the west the crop is scattering. The crop in England is very light, almost a failure, and Germany, Holland and Belgium are also very light."

Canada could now step in and supply the South African consumer with apples, which would meet with a ready demand, according to the report of C. M. Kittson to the Trade and Commerce Department. Large red varieties are most favored. They should be shipped in boxes containing about one-third of a barrel each. During the months of October, November and December the locally grown fruit is out of season, as is also Australian fruit, which country usually ships large quantities of apples and other fruits to South Africa.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Green Fruit.

Toronto, Aug 17, 1905.

The home trade in fruit continues very good. The arrivals of Californian fruits are disappointing, nothing like sufficient is coming to hand, and prices are away up, keeping profits low. A car lot of California peaches has just arrived, of very fine quality, and big prices are expected. For some time the N.Y. market had been bidding for larger supplies from California, on account of shortage, and is paying better prices, which has, doubtless, turned the supply into that state to the disadvantage of Canada. Lemons have firmed up and show an advance of 50c.; bananas have eased off by 25c. California peaches have firmed up to $1.75 and $2; domestic peaches are coming to hand in good form and are getting to an even basis. Raspberries and red currants are struck out and Lawton berries at 9c. to 10c. are added; other prices remain unchanged. We quote:

Oranges, late Valencias, per box	5 00	6 00

The domestic trade has been remarkably slow since our last issue. The supplies, however, have not been coming to hand in abundance, so that no great difficulty has been experienced and prices have, in consequence, kept their even basis. New potatoes are 10c. firmer. Tomatoes are pretty full supply and coming in in good condition at a drop to 25c. Sage and savory are now off the market. There has also been a drop of substantial nature in marrows, corn and parsnips. Other prices remain. We quote as follows:

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Green Fruits.

Montreal, Aug. 16, 1905.

The condition of the fruit market is much the same as last week. The demand continues strong generally, although some jobbers think it is only fair. Judging from the appearance, stocks are much larger than last week, but mostly composed of such fruit as California pears, peaches and plums. Five cars of those were sold on Monday, Aug. 14, at auction, and brought the following prices:

Pears, $3.40 to $3.55 per box; peaches, $1.55 to $1.65; plums, $1.85 to $2.45. It is claimed they enjoy a good demand.

Bananas on the contrary have been very quiet owing to high prices and light receipts. Eight cars only came in, which is about one-fifth of average weekly arrival at Montreal.

Lemons are just as scarce as in previous weeks and prices are still high and firm. Blueberries from Lake St. John arrived at the beginning of this week, and are at present on the market, where they meet with fair demand; they are not very plentiful. Oranges are a little easier owing to small demand. Pineapples continue scarce, and in fair demand. We quote:

Pears, boxes	3 75	4 00

grown products are the only features in this week's trade. In fact, cucumbers, carrots, cabbage, tomatoes, and celery arrive continuously, and in large lots. New domestic potatoes also show up pretty well on the market and meet with a very good demand. Good enquiries are made for home grown products, but last week's stocks, and specially on market days at Bonsecours market, were much too large for requirements, and at the close of the day many lines of vegetables were given away at ridiculous figures, some farmers clearing out their stock at 25c. per bbl., in order to get off home.

Green Fruits.

This is, of course, a Summer line. Bananas and pears are the big sellers just now. While bananas are unchanged, pears are high and very firm. Quality is good. Plums rather higher, stock fine. There is a fair sale for peaches. Some quite good apples are now seen. Oranges are about out of the market. Lemons are very high. In melons, just a fair sale is reported. Tomatoes still hold at rather high price.

Fresh and Cured Fish

AFTER THE SALMON RUN.

THERE will go into circulation in the City of Vancouver and vicinity, as a result of salmon-packing operations on the Fraser River this season, not less than $1,500,000, and the amount may run to $2,000,000. If the pack reaches the proportions estimated by the canners—and there is every reason to believe it will—the fishermen alone will receive on wage account no less than $1,250,000.

The difference between what will be paid to the fishermen and the total expenditure on account of the fisheries is made up of wages paid to white, Indian and Chinese help in the canneries, office help, maintenance and repairs of canneries, tinplate, the manufacture of tincans, nets, boats, steamers, expenses incidental to operation of traps, and management expenses, which are no small matter when it is considered that over thirty canneries are running on the river this season.

It is estimated by the canners that 12,000,000 salmon will be packed this year. If the expectations are realized approximately 925,000 cases will be put up by the canneries by the end of the season on Aug. 25. While the price has not yet been announced for the sale of the canned salmon, such a pack will be worth approximately $5,000,000.

SUCCESSFUL OYSTER BEDS.

The oyster beds planted at various points in the coast waters of British Columbia this season appear to be thriving as well as was hoped by the most sanguine. In places where the planting has been regular the oysters are thriving splendidly. In one place not far from Nanaimo they show a growth of fully an inch in a period of about three weeks, going to show that eastern oysters can be cultivated in B. C. waters with the very best success.

ANNAPOLIS VALLEY FISHERIES.

The fishing industry, which has been not overly brisk the past few years in the Annapolis Valley, is reported to be better this year than any year experienced by fishermen since the year 1885. Mr. E. B. Eaton, overseer of fisheries for Kings County, has expended much time and care in his department of business, and is rewarded by seeing the Gasperaux River yielding the largest number of salmon and herring it has yielded for many years.

The lobster yield in localities and under the present regulations in regard to close season and size limits, is decidedly on the increase.

There has been a lively fishing trade going on this year between the Valley and Boston and Digby markets. Mr. Weaver, of Port George, recently captured a halibut weighing two hundred and seventy pounds. It is to be regretted, however, that shad in Kings County have become practically extinct. The overseer reports that this is owing to the capture of spawn shad in the Annapolis and St. John rivers. The lack of this fish is especially felt in Scott's Bay and other spots where the industry had become one of the chief sources of livelihood.

The catch of other fish than shad this year has exceeded by one thousand the catch of any previous year in Kings County, and the outlook is promising.

NEW FISHING REGULATIONS.

A new regulation governing fishing for black bass, speckled trout, pickerel and maskinonge has been adopted, which provides that no small or large-mouthed black bass less than ten inches in length; no speckled trout less than six inches in length; no pickerel (dore) less than fifteen inches in length, or no maskinonge less than twenty-four inches in length shall be retained or kept out of the water, sold, offered or exposed for sale, or had in possession in Canada. Any fish mentioned of less than the minimum measurement named are to be returned to the water whence taken, alive and uninjured.

MARKET NEWS FROM TRINIDAD.

Gordon, Grant & Co., Port of Spain, Trinidad, write, under date of July 27, that stocks of nearly all American foodstuffs are much smaller than usual, but that demand is entirely of a retail nature and the market dull and inactive in consequence. The demand for pork and lard is restricted, and prices continue to weaken. Pork loins, ribs, heads, etc., are, however, saleable at full prices.

Canadian split peas are getting scarce and improving in value, and there is an improved demand for oats. There have been no landings of Newfoundland fish for some time past, which description would now sell readily. For scale, as well as most kinds of pickled fish, there is but a restricted demand at present, and prices are nominal.

The cocoa trees have been pretty well cleared, and pickings will be on a small scale during the next two or three months. Weather conditions have been favorable for the young crop, which is progressing satisfactorily and giving promise of good returns in the last months of the year.

THE NEW SUGAR INDUSTRY.

The Keystone Sugar Co. have bought the harbor docks, warehouse and land of the Whitby Harbor Co., a splendid site for the sugar company, with shipping facilities. The establishment of this involves an expenditure of at least half a million dollars. The town voted $25,000 to be paid when sugar is made. Beets have been extensively grown for the last three years, and the farmers of York, Ontario and Durham counties will supply the factory next season. A thousand acres are under crop at the present time.

GRAIN RATES REDUCED.

THE Railway Commission have issued an order which requires the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific Railways to make a general reduction in rates from Ontario points to Montreal on grain and grain products for export. The action is a result of a complaint from the Dominion Millers' Association. It seems that from the Western States to Montreal for export what is known as the Philadelphia rate has been charged whereas shippers from Ontario to Montreal have had to pay the New York rate, which is two cents higher.

According to the new arrangement the percentage charges from Ontario will be reduced more nearly to a par with those ruling in the United States. In addition grain rates from Ontario to Montreal for export must be on the same basis as from the Western States to Montreal, the New York basis still applying to Portland and St. John. The effect of the order will be to place the Canadian miller on an equal footing in respect to railway rates with the miller in the Western States, who is competing with him in the European market.

It is thought that the reduction will benefit the farming community of Ontario as much as the millers, since it will enable millers and grain dealers to pay a higher price for grain. Montreal will also benefit as traffic which formerly went via New York or other United States seaboard ports can now be shipped advantageously via Montreal.

POOR TRADE RETURNS.

The figures of trade between Canada and Australia for the past year, according to D. H. Ross, commercial agent to Australasia, are disappointing. Imports from Canada were valued at £222,064, a decrease of £130,000. This decrease is due to the reduction in imports of flour and cereals. Australia has got over her bad seasons and is now exporting cereals largely. There has been a steady increase, however, in some lines, such as boots and shoes, drugs, medicines, perfumery, preserved fish, oilmen's stores, undressed timber, etc. Australia's exports to Canada increased by £5,000. A new law has been passed in Australia requiring sacks containing wheat or oats to be of a standard size.

DEATH OF VETERAN MILLER.

Mr. David Plewes, for years in the flour and grain business at Toronto, died on Aug. 13. Mr. Plewes came to Canada from Yorkshire, Eng., in the early fifties to engage in flour milling near Burlington, Ont. In 1869 the mills were enlarged and moved to Brantford. Fourteen years ago Mr. Plewes became first secretary of the Dominion Millers' Association, which position he held until he was sent to England some years later as the representative of a number of Ontario millers. In 1895 he returned from the Old Country and commenced business in Toronto as a grain and flour merchant with offices in the Board of Trade, of which he was a member.

FRAUDULENT OATS.

According to Edgar Tripp, Canadian commercial agent to Trinidad, an inferior oat is being offered as "genuine heavy Canadian," which is not a Canadian oat at all, but what is termed in the United States "Clipped American No. 2." These oats are put up in imitation Canadian bags, and the deception is completed by each bag being marked "entered for drawback," the lettering only referring to the bags. Thus artfully prepared for consumption abroad, the shipments proceed from New York, while the reputation of the genuine product is correspondingly damaged.

CANNOT COMPETE.

Additional sub-ports of entry to Canada through the State of Montana have been denied the Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railroads. Both interests are anxious to secure a share of the grain traffic resulting from the opening up of new lands in the Provinces of Assiniboia, Saskatchewan and Alberta, and increased facilities of this kind would enable them to enter into active competition with the Canadian Pacific and the proposed Grand Trunk Pacific roads in the transportation of wheat to the eastern seaboard.

CEREAL NEWS.

The Sarnia Cereal Co. will manufacture and sell oatmeal and other grain products. Its capital is $20,000.

By judgment of the court, C. J. Hurt, miller at Carberry, Man., has been ordered to pay an eastern firm a sum amounting to nearly four thousand dollars with costs for breach of contract on a flour order.

Prof. William Saunders, director of the Dominion Experimental Farm, is now making his annual tour of inspection through the Northwest. His reports wired to the Government Departments, Ottawa, indicate that this year's crops are the most promising he has ever seen.

Western crop reports continue uniformly encouraging. Unless something occurs to prevent the realization of present prospects the west will have much more than an average crop, and the estimate of one hundred million bushels may easily be reached, with correspondingly large yields in coarser grains.

NEW COMMERCIAL TREATY.

In view of the prospect of heavy losses from the Chinese boycott, and the decision of the German Government to end the tariff arrangement under which the United States and Germany now operate, President Roosevelt has partially decided to negotiate an entirely new commercial treaty with Germany.

Tobaccos, Cigars, and Smokers' Accessories

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

KEEP TOBACCO FRESH.

THE retailer should strive above all things to keep his stock of tobacco fresh. It does not follow that he need keep a large supply on hand; in fact, a small stock is preferable—as small as will allow for fair variety. If he is not overstocked he is in a position to turn it over frequently and there is only a small chance of any of his bulk tobacco and cigarettes growing stale.

It is strange, but true nevertheless, that the smoker occasionally strikes something stale in the most up-to-date tobacco stores. Perhaps it is a package of cigarettes or a plug of tobacco. Possibly the stock was poor in the first place. Nine chances out of ten, however, it is old stuff. The grocer or general merchant who makes any pretension to keeping a tobacco department must see to it that none of his customers have reason to complain on such grounds. Stale tobacco hinders sales and what is more it soon gives him a bad reputation which inevitably spells ruin to his tobacco department.

Every grocer should be careful to have his tobacco department stocked with choice fresh tobacco and keep it fresh at all costs. A good motto for the small storekeeper in his tobacco business is, "Keep a little but keep it good."

U. S. TOBACCO MANUFACTURES.

To summarize the latest returns from the U. S. tobacco industry for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1905: Every branch of the industry has shown progress sufficient to more than wipe out the reverses of the season 1903-'04.

Last year there was a decrease in the cigar industry of 22,573,633. This galling decrease has been wiped out by an increase of 185,020,437 in a total output of 7,589,337,207, against a total output of 7,404,316,770 in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1904. The decrease in 1903-'04 was cut down by the large increase in the production of little cigars amounting to 56,345,037, and of full-fledged cigars amounting to 153,442,714. The best month in the present fiscal year was August, 1904, closely followed by June, 1905.

The output of cigarettes also increased by 141,529,802 in a total output of 3,235,103,871; the production of manufactured tobacco by 5,838,100 lbs. in a total production of 331,849,110; and the production of snuff by 971,281 lbs. in a total production of 21,131,861.

TRADE INQUIRIES.

THE following inquiries for Canadian trade have been received at the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa. The names of the firms making inquiries with their addresses, may be obtained on application to the Superintendent of Commercial Agencies, Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa.

869. Inquiry is made for the names of Canadian paper mills making "long elephant" 22 inches wide, 10 oz. and 12 oz., of 12 yard lengths.

874. A London firm wish to hear from Canadian exporters of caviare.

880. A London firm of importers of butter, cheese, tinned provisions and other produce wish to get into touch with Canadian shippers of these lines.

881. The export agents for a Norwegian firm manufacturing safety and sulphur matches wish to do business in Canada.

884. A Cape Town live stock importer, who is the contractor to the Table Bay Harbor Board, and the German Government in German East Africa, desires to get into communication with large breeders of horses and cattle.

885. An English firm offering good references are desirous of obtaining the representation of Canadian shippers of tallow, oil seeds, canned fruits and provisions and fruit pulp.

886. A Copenhagen house is seeking the representation in Denmark of a good Canadian oatmeal mill.

889. A Coventry firm are desirous of hearing from Canadian houses which import neckwear, tapes, confectionery ribbons, 5-inch scarves, and similar goods which may be made in ribbon looms.

891. A Cardiff firm state they are in a position to handle large consignments of apples, in the best condition and well packed.

892. Inquiry is made by a Newton-Addot firm for Canadian consumers of china clay and ball clay.

896. A firm of London importers would be pleased to receive samples of Canadian barley of the second grade (for brewing purposes) with quotations per 448 lbs. ex. steamer London.

897. A firm of Belfast ginger ale manufacturers wish to appoint sole resident agent for Canada.

SHOULD QUOTE C. I. F. PRICES.

Canadian exporters can afford to take a lesson from European competitors in the matter of quoting prices. In England and many continental countries, it is the customary thing for an exporter when quoting a foreign customer to quote c.i.f. prices; in other words, to make up a schedule of prices including cost of ocean transportation and all other charges to the consignee's port. Unfortunately this custom is not always observed in Canada. The manufacturer is inclined to send out his regular discount sheet with all quotations f.o.b. shipping point, or possibly sailing port.

To a foreigner with little or no conception of distances and freight rates in this country such quotations are meaningless. A liberal discount will not make much of an impression on him if he has to pay in addition to the cost of the merchandise some unknown expense for delivery to shipping port, cartage to the vessel and then for ocean freight. Even when the manufacturer insists upon naming f.o.b. factory prices, very often he doesn't take the trouble to submit calculations from which his customer can estimate freight charges. In short his method is one that makes it as difficult as possible for a customer to ascertain the cost of goods delivered at his door.

OGILVIE FLOUR MILLS CO. ENTERTAIN.

ONE of the most liberal and appropriate courtesies ever extended by any corporation to a body of business men closely identified with its trade was that of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., Montreal, through their vice-president and managing director, Mr. F. W. Thompson, last Thursday, August 10, to the Canadian Association of Master Bakers and their ladies and co-workers. On the invitation of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., the C.A.M.B., who had held their fourth annual convention in Ottawa, were brought from Ottawa to Montreal in a special C.P.R. train. About three hundred delegates were met at the Windsor street station by Messrs. F. H. Hanson, S. Ogilvie and Lieut.-Col. Labelle, and cabs were taken to the offices, laboratories and mills of the company. After an inspection of the handsome premises and laboratories, the work of the latter being explained by Mr. Gray, the company's chemist, and the process of manufacturing flour at the up-to-date mills being studied with interest and profit, a return trip was made to the Windsor Hotel.

Here a splendid luncheon had been provided. The dining room was very tastefully decorated with flags and banners and the tables likewise with flowers, and in addition to this there was an orchestra, which poured forth beautiful music during the entire sitting. The menu was all that could be desired, and after full justice had been done to it by the merry gathering, Mr. F. H. Hanson, of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., who acted as chairman, proposed the toast of the King, which was responded to loyally, and then Mr. Hanson read a telegram from Mr. F. W. Thompson, vice-president and managing director of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., regretting that he was not able to be present at such an important gathering of the master bakers, but he extended his welcome on behalf of the company and wished them every success. Mr. S. Ogilvie was then called upon to address the gathering, which he did in a few well-chosen words, and then Lieut.-Col. A. E. Labelle, the local manager of the company, made a nice little speech. There were also speeches made by Col. McKeown, master baker, of Montreal; E. Parnell, of London, Ont.; and Jas. Acton, of Toronto, after which Mr. F. H. Hanson informed the association that several special cars were in waiting to take any who desired on a tour around the city.

Most of the delegates and their lady friends took advantage of Mr. Hanson's invitation, and the tour of the city's most interesting show places was enjoyed by all. To many of the visitors the trip was novel and a revelation of the greatness of Canada's commercial metropolis. All expressed themselves as most thankful to the Ogilvie Co. and its officials for the splendid outing and entertainment provided. The Grocer's thanks are due to the Ogilvie Co. for invitation to join in the inspection of offices and mills, and in a later issue will be published a full account of the mills, etc.

A SUCCESSFUL WESTERN FIRM.

THE first thing to attract the attention of any visitor stopping off at Regina, the present Territorial capital and capital-elect of the Province of Saskatchewan, is the store of the Regina Trading Co., Limited. Situated almost directly opposite the C.P.R. depot, it is a striking indication of the commercial strides Regina has made during the last few years. The store itself, which was illustrated in last week's issue of The Grocer, has a frontage of 128 feet, the largest frontage of any store between Toronto and Victoria, B.C.

The company was organized in 1898 at a time when the eyes of the commercial world were being turned towards the west. The first store built was 54x74 feet and was opened in August, 1898. Since then the business has assumed such proportions as to necessitate the enlargement and rebuilding of the first store and a further addition will be made next year giving a total depth to the building of 160 feet, with over thirty-five thousand square feet of space.

The company carry stock to the value of $100,000 and give employment to 30 employes. The departments run are drugs and stationery, boots and shoes, clothing and furnishings, dry goods, hardware, china and crockery, groceries, tinsmithing and plumbing. The officers of the Regina Trading Co. are: President, G. Michaelis; vice-president and general manager, J. F. Bole; secretary, A. E. Gibbons; director, F. Gentner.

TO REFINE RAW SUGAR.

An interesting announcement in connection with the establishment of a beet sugar factory at Whitby, Ont., by the Keystone Sugar Co., is the intention to manufacture sugar from imported raw sugars as well. The site at the harbor, commanding as it does, water freights from Montreal, will enable cane sugar from the West Indies and raw beet sugar from Europe to be laid down on their wharves at Whitby for but little more than at Montreal. Equipped with the requisite machinery for such refining, the factory will be in operation the rest of the year when the beet campaign is over, and afford employment for one hundred hands. Two hundred will be required during the beet sugar period from October to February.

is many a merchant on the vinegar question. Hasn't time to study it. Don't try? Your customers will soon distinguish between acid vinegars and non-acid vinegars. They'll soon get the "pure fruit" taste to be found only in

GOLDEN RUSSET BRAND

GOLDEN RUSSET VINEGAR

Acid vinegar cannot be compared with fruit vinegar. Consequently acid vinegar loses its hold just as the people become critical. The merchant who pre-supposes his customers' tastes, soon precedes the merchant who does not. Golden Russet Vinegar is made for your customers. Three strengths; prices proportionate.

THE MACLEAN PUBLISHING CO., Limited
MONTREAL TORONTO WINNIPEG

THERE is no item on a grocer's shelves that more readily stamps the class of goods he handles than Flavoring Extracts. In the mistaken idea that it is more profitable for them, many grocers will sell inferior grades of flavorings, but the housekeeper is not long in finding it out, and, feeling that she has not been fairly treated, is apt to take her trade away.

It never pays to handle inferior grades of food products—the best is always cheapest and most profitable in the end. That is why Greig's Flavors have enjoyed the confidence of thousands of housewives for so many years. They are made so pure and strong that a little goes a long way This fact, together with our long and successful experience in manufacturing, enables us to state with absolute assurance that the WHITE SWAN flavors will satisfy the most exacting. It is not possible to make better goods.

Samples and quotations cheerfully sent on request. We want your trade.

THE PICKLING SEASON

Turns the thoughts toward what to "put up" and brings up the vexing Vinegar problem. There is nothing perhaps regarding which the customer must rely so implicitly on the merchant as the purchase of vinegar. A dealer can secure and hold confidence by recommending

HEINZ WHITE PICKLING VINEGAR

It is distilled from sound grain, and is, therefore, entirely free from the solid particles of vegetable matter which start fermentation in fruit vinegars. This, coupled with the fact that it has the right strength, makes it

ROSE AUTOMATIC GRINDERS

DIRECTIONS

1. Stand the Grinder on a table, holding it upright with one hand, as shown in cut, and do not change its position while using. 2. Run the knife blade through one of the slots, its edge resting between the metal disc and emery wheel, as shown in cut. 3. Use some pressure and run the blade its full length forward and backward quickly a few times, which grinds one side. 4. Place the knife blade in the other slot and repeat the operation, as at first, which grinds the other side of the blade.

Manufacturing and Distributing Industries of the Maritime Provinces

THE interests of the Maritime Provinces are, generally speaking, the same; they have the same advantages and the same drawbacks. Climatic conditions are the same, unless St. John may claim distinction on account of the fog. They were settled about the same time, and the early settlers were largely of one nationality. We would expect, therefore, that they would stand shoulder to shoulder, that here, at least, there would be no room for petty rivalries and jealousies.

While the Provinces have not yet reached that ideal state "where none was for the party but all were for the state," the tendency of the last few years has been towards union. Every citizen should be loyal to the interests of his own city, town, village or Province, but there is a larger patriotism than this, and at times local interest must be sacrificed for the good of the whole country. To take an example; in case the Maritime Provinces were united, would St. John be willing to make Halifax the capital, or would Halifax acquiesce in the capital being located in New Brunswick? There can be no unity of the Provinces, either geographically or in spirit, until each Province and each city is willing to give way at times to its sister Province or city.

In this connection, the Maritime Provinces can take a lesson from the west, and it might be worth while to contrast the eastern and western sections of Canada.

The most noticeable difference to a casual observer is the confidence or indifference manifested by so many business men in the east. There are, of course, many excepeions to this, but it is a fact that this lack of enthusiasm is causing many young men to leave for United States. The young men look on the west or the New England States as a very Utopia. One way to induce the young men to stay in their own Province is for the business men to be more optimistic, to lay more emphasis on the advantages which must accrue to the Maritime Provinces both from their natural resources and from their geographical position.

In population, the east has still the advantage. Nova Scotia has as large a population as Manitoba, British Columbia and Northwest Territories combined. Winnipeg and the west have received more free advertising than any other portion of the world. We have heard so often of the growth of this section of the Dominion that we have come to believe half the population of Canada lies west of the Great Lakes. We have placed the telescope horizontally across Canada, and have looked at the west through the small end, and at the east through the large end. As a matter of fact, the Maritime Provinces have a population of about 800,000, while Manitoba and the west have only 500,000.

There is a great difference, too, in the distributing trade. In the east it is seldom wholesalers have to ship goods farther than two hundred miles, and the bulk of the business is done within a much smaller radius. From both St. John and Halifax a great deal of the shipping is done by boat. In fact, this is so great a factor that wholesalers of Halifax do practically no business with Bay of Fundy ports, while St. John does very little with certain parts of the Nova Scotia coast line. The freight rates by water are very low, and as boats leave for these parts every day, wholesalers are able to give prompt delivery.

The Maritime Provinces have a great advantage in importing goods either from Great Britain, United States or West Indies. Both Halifax and St. John have open ports the year through, and so make a large saving by avoiding a high railroad freight. Moreover, they do not have to order so far ahead or keep such a large stock as do wholesalers in the west.

In the west the yield of wheat acts as a barometer for all lines of trade. In New Brunswick the lumbering business is the magic hand of the barometer. Inactivity in the lumber trade means poor business generally, and if extending over more than one year a number of failures is the inevitable result. This year the lumbering business has been very slow in opening up, and wholesalers, generally, are looking for the silver lining in what seems to be a very dark cloud. In Nova Scotia, fishing and mining are the dominating industries. Twenty or thirty years ago ship chandlery was the big line, not only in Nova Scotia, but also in New Brunswick; but this has generally diminished, although three large wholesale hardware firms in Halifax still devote a good deal of attention to ship chandlery.

A few years ago many wholesale grocery and provision firms handled considerable quantities of ship chandlery. This was probably due to the fact that they sold fishermen canned goods and food supplies and, having established a connection with these men, gradually came to sell sails, pulleys, rope, and the smaller fittings for wooden ships.

The days of the building of wooden ships are past, but there is no reason why at some future date the Maritime Provinces should not occupy the same proud and prominent place in building steel ships that they once held in building wooden ships. The Maritime Board of Trade took a very strong stand on this question and will send a delegation to Ottawa to urge the Government to offer some inducement in the way of bounty to induce firms to erect plants for the building of steel ships.

The general store business is an important factor in the Maritime Provinces as it is in the west. For this reason many of the wholesale hardware and metal firms carry a number of lines which would properly belong to the wholesale grocery trade. These general stores in many cases do a large business, some of them carrying over $20,000 stock.

With regard to manufacturing facilities, the Maritime Provinces are much better off than the west. Coal, which is usually one of the largest items of expense, may be had in either of the three Provinces almost direct from the mines. Raw material may be imported by water, thus securing low rates. However, a good deal of the raw material used in manufacturing is found right at home, and is as easily secured as the coal. Labor is cheaper than in the west, and there is no scarcity of skilled workmen in the Maritime Provinces. These advantages should more than make up for the handicap of the freight rates to either Ontario or the West. A few firms, however, are able to compete successfully with Ontario firms for western business, as the railway companies give a very low through rate.

Teas, sugars, molasses, confectionery, condensed milk and fish products are the principal lines in a grocery way that find their way from the Maritime Provinces to Western Canada.

ST. JOHN.

For the last ten years St. John has carried on an energetic campaign for recognition as the Winter port of Cgnada. In 1895 the Canadian Parliament decided to subsidize lines of steamships to run between St. John and Liverpool, and to employ the existing service between St. John and London. Since that time the business men of St. John have not been idle and a large portion of the trade which had been carried on through United States ports has been diverted to a Canadian port. St. John has excellent railway connections with the western part of Canada. The Intercolonial Railway has entry into Montreal over its own rails, and connection is made there with the Grand Trunk system. St. John is the Atlantic terminus of the Canadian Pacific Railway, with its main line running direct to the Pacific Coast, and with its numerous branches and connections traversing the whole western and southern portion of the continent.

St. John, however is ambitious, and aims at carrying not only Canadian trade, but United States as well. The distance from Chicago to Liverpool is shorter vis St. John than via New York.

Through rates of freight via St. John are as low as any rival route. This, coupled witn the fact that safe carriage and prompt despatch are assured, has attracted considerable trade to St. John in live stock, dressed meats, dairy produce and eggs.

It has been said dressed meats via St. John reach their destination in a more marketable condition than through any other port. This is due to the climatic condition which makes St. John more adaptable for transhipment of perishable goods than the ports farther south.

St. John is ideally situated for a manufacturing and distributing centre. It is not only able to import by water, but has the additional advantage of being able to ship by water to the majority of the retail trade.

In the pages that follow a detailed account is given of the leading wholesalers and manufacturers. In most cases the men at the head of these firms have built the business up themselves, and it is largely owing to their energy and foresight that St. John occupies the proud position she has to-day in the Maritime Provinces.

There are few large buildings in St. John such as are being erected in Winnipeg. The wholesalers in St. John started with a small building and just enough capital to keep their credit good. As their businesses grew they added a wing to the original building or else secured a warehouse nearby. In this way some of the larger firms have warehouses in all parts of the city. Considerable time must be lost by these firms and they must at times be considerably inconvenienced by this arrangement. No doubt in the near future a number of these firms will erect compact buildings. Emerson & Fisher have been the first to move and last year they erected a very fine building; a view of which is shown on another page. The most of the large wholesale grocers in St. John are young men. This is something we would hardly expect to find in a city as old as St. John. These men have been successful in accomplishing what in many cases takes a lifetime to achieve.

St. John is a great tea centre—in fact, the dealers in St. John will tell you it is destined to be the tea centre of Canada. Mr. McLean, manager of the Vim Tea Co., has the distinction of having put up the first "package tea" to be sent out of St. John. At that time, he related, he was employed by F. Hatheway & Co. He told Mr. Hatheway he thought a good trade could be worked up by selling tea in packages. Mr. Hatheway was somewhat skeptical at first, but agreed to give it a trial. Mr. McLean spent a week or so getting his stock ready and then started out to dispose of it. It proved to be a success, and the package tea business soon came to be an important item in the business of F. Hatheway & Co.

Flour is not as yet handled in paper bags in the Maritime Provinces, but is sold by the retail trade in barrels and half barrels. There is no doubt flour in paper bags would be as popular in the east as it is in Ontario and the west. The difficulty, however, is in the shipping. The most of the shipping out of St. John is done by water and the paper bags would not stand the rough usage to which they would be subjected in loading and unloading.

The package system, however, is as popular in the Maritime Provinces as in any part of Canada. This system, whether it be in connection with teas, cereals or flour, has come to stay, and we may expect each year to have articles which are now sold in bulk trade-marked and sold in packages. One wholesale grocer in Halifax made the sweeping statement that if he had money enough he would trade-mark everything he sold, as it would be a guarantee of cleanliness and quality. He did not probably mean this to be taken literally, but wished to express very strongly his approval of package and trade-marked goods.

Plant of Dominion Molasses Co., Limited, Halifax.

It would almost seem to a casual observer that St. John had more wholesale houses and commission agents than necessary. For the population it serves it has more than any other city in Canada. Some of them do a small business, however, and one man who has been in business on the wharf for years, intimated quite seriously that he was not anxious to increase his business. He made, he said, about $1,500 per year from his business and he had only one man to look after. Why, then, should he wish to extend his business when he had enough to live on? He had no ambition to be rich, and an increase of business would mean an increase of trouble and worry to him. We mention this little incident as it is typical of a class of business men in the Maritime Provinces. True, only of a small class, for the men who are doing the large share of the trade have to exercise just as much foresight and energy as their conferes in the west. There is, however, in both St. John and Halifax a class of wholesale and commission agents who merely buy when the market is low, but who makeon the market. This is their Ontario no effort to do a steady business the year through. They have a few friends who send in their orders and this is the extent of their business. For it is a fact that friendship counts for more in the Maritime Provinces than it does in the west. A connection in the Maritime Provinces is hard to secure, but once obtained it is just as hard for your competitor to take it away.

W. M. Barlow.

This firm commenced business in 1891, under the name of McCavous & Barlow. In 1893 the name was changed to Wilfred M. Barlow. From 1883 to 1891 Mr. Barlow was with Thos. Gorman. He has no travelers on rhe road, but does a cash business.

Geo. S. De Forest & Sons.

This is the second oldest wholesale grocery house in St. John, having been originally established in 1848. In 1888, Clarence W. and H. W. De Forest, two sons, were taken into the firm. In 1894, Geo. S. De Forest died, and the business was carried on by the two sons till 1901, when the partnership was dissolved, H. W. De Forest taking the "Union Blend" tea business and Clarence W. De Forest taking the wholesale grocery business. He is now applying for incorporation, and the firm will be Geo. S. De Forest & Sons, Limited.

Imported cigars from Havana and Jamaica and "Honeysuckle" teas and coffee are their specialties.

W. F. Hatheway Co., Limited.

This business was established in 1878 by W. F. Hatheway, who is still the president and manager of the firm. Fifteen years ago Mr. Hatheway introduced a system of co-operation which has proved very successful, not only to the firm, but to the employes as well. Tea girls, porters, clerks, in fact all classes of employes have stock in the company. This, of course, increases their interest in the company and at the same time enables them to get together a neat little sum of money for a "rainy day."

"Tiger Brand" tea is their specialty. Mr. Hatheway claims to have been the first to start a private label for flour. In 1884 he put his "Golden Eagle" brand flour. The Manitoba flour is called the "Red Rose."

They have also a cereal food called "Gritz," a Canadian food put up in five-pound sacks.

In 1903 the firm became a limited company and took in four travelers, Jos. A. Marven, D. W. Puddington, C. S. E. Robertson, and W. L. Harding.

Thos. Gorman.

For thirty years Mr. Gorman has been in the wholesale grocery and fish business in St. John. He had only been in business two years when he was burned out in the great conflagration of 1877. He rebuilt, however, immediately, and his business has grown with the city.

"Index Blend" teas and "Gold Coin" flour are his leaders and both are vouched for by the merchants as being first class. As one merchant remarked: "You can depend on these lines for quality as you can depend on Mr. Gorman himself, and that is saying a good deal."

Mr. Gorman started business in a building 20x50 ft. He has now twice as much space, and in addition has two large four-storey warehouses at the head of the wharf. He also has another warehouse for heavy goods on Water street.

Mr. Gorman has always given his personal attention to his business and he deserves the success he has won. He was born in St. John and has practically been in the grocery business all his life.

Jones & Schoffield.

Jones & Schoffield are one of the younger firms in the wholesale grocery business of St. John. They commenced business in 1897, occupying the building on the south wharf where Bennett Bros. now are. In 1901 they moved to 13 north wharf and there they have remained. In 1902 they purchased a warehouse in Nelson street and started a branch warehouse in Campbellton.

A peculiar thing in connection with this firm is that both Mr. Jones and Mr. Schoffield had had practically no experience in the grocery business when they started in 1897. Mr. Schoffield had been in the New Brunswick Bank and never worked a day in a grocery store. Mr. Jones had been with Geo. S. DeForest & Sons for about a year and a half. Both partners were about the same age, twenty-two years. Perhaps their success is accounted for by the courage shown by these two lads in launching out in a business about which they knew so little. Mr. Schoffield related a very amusing incident which took place when they moved to the north wharf. They had ordered a man to put up 13 in large letters on the window. He brought down the letters, but, as it was Friday, he hesitated about putting them up. Mr. Schoffield, however, told him to go on, and then proceeded to write some letters; but as he wrote down the date he noticed it was the thirteenth day of the month. This set him thinking, and as he counted up the staff he found it also consisted of thirteen members. And yet in the face of this the firm have succeeded and have now four travelers on the road, viz.: H. L. Doane, M. Atkinson, T. H. Cochrane and G. McConnell.

John Sealy.

Mr. Sealy's interests are varied, for, besides doing a large fish business in St. John, he has also a large general store at Grand River, Gaspe County, Quebec, M. J. Ahern being in charge. He also controls the Beaver Herbert Trading Co., in which over one hundred men are employed.

Mr. Sealy has been on the wharf since 1876. In 1883 he took a trip around the world, and in 1886 started in business for himself.

He does business all over Canada and a large and increasing West Indian trade, shipping such varied lines as cheese, potatoes, flour and even shingles.

Northrup & Co.

This St. John firm commenced business in 1883 and went under the name of H. W. Northrup. In 1890, I. H. Northrup was taken in as a partner, when the name was changed to Northrup & Co. In 1890 Mr. H. W. Northrup dropped out and Mr. I. H. Northrup has carried the business on himself.

The firm started with very little capital and its success is, therefore, due to the intelligence and industrious work of the two brothers.

Royal Standard flour is one of their specialties. This is an all-Manitoba flour, sold in bbls. or ½-bbls. Brown's clams is another line which this firm handle in large quantities.

L. G. Crosby.

L. G. Crosby, who is making a specialty of molasses at St. John, N.B., is well known, having been in the West Indian business for twenty-five years. Mr. Crosby is a native of Yarmouth, N.S., where he started in the West India shipping business in 1888, but has been located in St. John for the past ten years. He has made frequent trips through the West Indies, and is thoroughly conversant with his business. For some years he has been one of the largest importers of molasses in Canada. Mr. Crosby also exports large quantities of Canadian products, such as lumber, shingles and flour, to the West Indies.

Dillon Bros'. warehouses, Halifax, both corners being occupied by this firm.

J. Hunter White, Merchandise Broker.

Mr. White is a St. John boy who has always been connected with the wholesale grocery trade, having been associated for many years with one of the large wholesale grocery houses. Since 1893 he has been in business for himself, acting as a manufacturers' agent, etc., selling principally to the wholesale grocery trade, although doing some business with the other wholesale houses, particularly in drug and hardware lines. Having a connection throughout New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, he has been successful in building up a large trade. Among the houses represented by him are such well-known firms as the J. K. Armsby Co., San Francisco; S. Hanson & Son, London; Maconochie Bros., London; the Island Lead Mills, London, Eng.; Jose Segalerva, Malaga, Spain; Aughinbaugh Canning Co., Baltimore; the Gwaltney Bunkley Peanut Co., Smithfield; Bennett, Day & Co., New York; N. K. Fairbank & Co., Montreal; the A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Toronto; L. Schepp Co., Toronto; R. J. Graham, Befleville, and others.

Having a frost-proof warehouse in the very centre of the wholesale district of St. John, Mr. White gives considerable attention to Customs House work, forwarding and storage, and also for some houses collects their local accounts. In this way, among others, he represents D. McDougall & Co., Glasgow, Scotland, and is also the distributing agent for the Diamnod Flint Glass Co., of Montreal, and regularly carries in stock several cars of the N. K. Fairbank Co.'s goods.

Associated with Mr. White is his father, H. B. White, who is manager of his large and growing business in cheese and butter factory furnishings, in which he carries the only full assortment in the Maritime Provinces. Mr. White makes a specialty of cream separators, and is the Maritime depot for the Sharples Separator Co. Mr. White is the representative of The Grocer in St. John.

Baird & Peters.

One of the largest wholesale grocery houses in the Maritime Provinces is that of Baird & Peters, Ward street, St. John, N.B.

This firm was organized in 1886 by John H. Baird and C. H. Peters, the latter being the present head of the firm. Mr. Baird was one of the pioneer travelers of the Lower Provinces, and Mr. Peters had received a thorough training in the grocery business. They established themselves in a warehouse and offices on the south wharf, but in 1889 removed to larger premises, in a four-storey building on Ward street. Their trade grew from the very start, and soon they needed more warehouse accommodation. Mr. Baird's death occurred in 1892, and was a serious loss to the firm; but Mr. Peters had the faculty of gathering about him clever and capable young business men, and the trade of the house continued to expand.

Four years ago it was decided to make a specialty of tea, which had previously been carried only as a general line. A warehouse was secured on the south wharf and a blending, packing and labelling plant installed, under the direction of a tea expert. The firm at once became large importers and blenders of tea. But the rapid growth of this branch and a corresponding development in their general business rendered enlarged premises once more necessary. They secured the very large warehouse just across Ward street from that in which their grocery business was carried on, and last Spring took possession of it, removing their tea branch to the warehouse thus made vacant.

But it was found desirable to take another step in advance, and the tea business was organized as the Vim Tea Co., named after a very popular blend they had put on the market when they first made teas a specialty.

Before removing their grocery department to the new warehouse, the latter was thoroughly renovated, and new offices constructed, which are conceded to be among the handsomest in Canada, if not on the continent in this branch of trade.

Baird & Peters claim to be the largest molasses importers in the Province. Last year they imported no less than 9,328 packages, or nearly a million gallons.

The firm employ six travelers in their general grocery, six in tea and two in the department of smokers' supplies. They are now discussing the desirability of putting in a plant to manufacture grocery specialties, as the next forward step. The record of the house has been one not only of continuous, but of rapid growth and success.

T. H. Estabrooks.

The success of the tea trade of T. H. Estabrooks is remarkable. Mr. Estabrooks began business on his own account in May, 1894, with one clerk, in a small store on Dock street, St. John. For the first five or six years the trade in tea occupied only a portion of his attention. To-day he has one of the finest tea warehouses in Canada, employs over seventy persons, has seventeen travelers on the road, has branch houses in Toronto and Winnipeg, and his "Red Rose" tea is sold from Newfoundland to Vancouver. From the moment when he first devoted his whole attention to the tea business, importing, blending, and packing teas, the growth of his trade has been phenomenal.

Acadia Sugar Refinery. Woodside Plant.

A little over a year ago Mr. Estabrooks erected a new warehouse. The new building consists of five-storeys with the basement, and is located on a corner of one of the principal streets of the city near the Intercolonial Railway station; a cut of the same appears in Mr. Estabrook's advertisement in this issue of The Grocer.

White Candy Co.

This firm was established in 1891 by Mr. Thomas White, who had had some twenty-six years' experience in the wholesale and manufacturing confectionery business.

The firm manufactures a full line of confectionery from penny goods to high-grade chocolates and caramels, and in 1900 received the medal from the Paris Exposition for their exhibit of high-grade chocolates.

Their present building consists of four storeys, and basement, has 40 feet frontage and extends 100 feet to the rear.

Mr. White has always looked after the dipping of the chocolates himself, this being the most important part of the manufacturing of high-grade confections.

Mr. White claims the people of the Maritime Provinces, owing to the proximity to Boston, are better able to appreciate high-grade chocolates than are the people in any other place in Canada. This compels the manufacturer to put out the very best goods.

The firm have been gradually extending their business, and have now an excellent connection in Winnipeg. They are represented in Montreal by J. S. Creed, Board of Trade Building, and in Winnipeg by A. L. Moran.

ST. STEPHEN.

Ganong Bros., Limited.

About thirty-six years ago Ganong Bros. began business in St. Stephen as manufacturing confectioners. They have always manufactured a complete line of candy, although they state that the quality of their high-grade chocolate has steadily advanced.

They were incorporated in 1891, and erected a fine brick building in 1895, which was destroyed by fire. Another building was built and this was again destroyed by fire. They immediately rebuilt, and have now one of the finest manufacturing plants to be found east of Montreal.

"G.B." chocolates are their specialty. This is their high-grade chocolate, and the initials "G.B" are stamped on every chocolate as a guarantee of quality.

The firm are doing business in all parts of Canada, having offices in Quebec, Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver. Their business has increased over 50 per cent. in the last two years.

The firm consists of G. W. Ganong and Arthur D. Ganong. G. W. Ganong is the member of Parliament for Charlotte county.

MONCTON.

F. P. Reid & Co.

This Moncton, N.B., firm was established in 1891 as a wholesale grocery firm. They were burned out in 1897 and erected their present building in 1899. Their main building is 90x50 ft., and four storeys high. In addition to this, they have four small warehouses, all close together. They ship by both boat and rail. They have an I.C.R. siding close to their building, and for their river business they have two boats of their own. Mr. Reid died in 1902, and the business is now carried on by Mr. J. W. Y. Smith and Mr. I. F. Edgett.

"Nectar" tea and "Pyramid" lard, spices and flour are their specialties. They have a branch warehouse in Campbellton for their North Shore business. Their travelers are: Chas. L. Carter, Jas. P. Whelan, and W. H. Sharpe.

HALIFAX.

The wholesale business of Halifax is largely confined to Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland. Some firms have extensive business connections in the West Indies and Bermuda. Trade with the West Indies has shown special progress during the last few years. The exports from Halifax and St. John show a large increase in agricultural products and manufactured goods. Canadian flour is growing more and more in favor with the West Indies as well as other lines of mill products. Boots and shoes, corn brooms, box material, paper, paints and cordage are finding their way to the southern markets, and in return Canada is taking largely increased quantities of sugar, cocoanuts, cocoa, coffee, pimento, hides, etc.

All Canada is proud of Halifax harbor. Here the water is so deep that the largest vessel can come in close to shore, and the harbor is large enough to float the whole of the British fleet of warships. It would be hard to overestimate the commercial favor of such a harbor to any nation. Up to the present time the advantages have been purely commercial, but the time may come when the life and independence of the whole nation will depend on the fortification of Halifax.

Warehouse of J, Frank Crowe & Co., Halifax.

The supremacy of England and Germany as the leading manufacturing countries of Europe has resulted in the possession of their extensive coal fields, and of a navy powerful enough to protect the interests of their trade vessels. The New England States still hofd supremacy in manufacturing and distributing trade of the United States. We may therefore expect Halifax to be one of the best distributing points in Canada for sea-borne commerce.

Tendency for the last few years has been for many manufacturers either to sell direct to the retailer instead of through the jobber, or put their own trademark on the goods they manufacture. The argument is that the manufacturer must first interest the retailer in his goods before the jobber will handle them, and that when he has gone to the expense of making the goods known to the retailer he might as well have the profit instead of dividing it up with a middleman. There is much to be said for and against this argument, but the jobber must always be the medium through which imported goods are to be distributed. The manufacturer in Canada has his whole organization to look after his Canadian business. Moreover, he is familiar with the needs of the country and the idiosyncracies of the people to whom he must sell. The foreign manufacturers, on the other hand, must depend on some firm to look after their interests, aad the jobber, with his wide and extensive connections among the retail trade, is the one man available. Halifax, therefore, with its excellent harbor and its wide steamship connection, has the very best facilities for imported goods. It is for this reason we see more foreign goods in the wholesale warehouses in Halifax than in any other city in Canada.

Many years ago ship chandlery was the line to which not only wholesale hardware but provision firms as well devoted most of their attention. Wooden ships built and rigged up in the Maritime Provinces were to be found all over the world. It is interesting to note how some of the firms, as the ship chandlery line decreased gradually, worked in other lines. Black Bros., for instance, have worked into the fish curing business and have had marked success with their Halifax and Acadia brands of package codfish. Halifax is, indeed, a great fish centre for the Nova Scotia Coast and in this connection has developed an important trade with the West Indies, trading fish and other food products for the sugar, molasses and rum of the Indies, which from Halifax is sent all over the Dominion.

Halifax has many advantages to offer manufacturers. There are from twelve to fifteen miles of waterfront yet not used, and suitable sites for manufacturing plants can be procured at very reasonable prices. The rate of taxation in Halifax is very low and the manufacturer improving his plant to the extent of say $30,000 or $40,000, will not be taxed one cent for the improved value. Halifax has excellent railroad and steamship connections. It is served by four different lines of railway, Intercolonial, Dominion Atlantic, Canadian Pacific and the Southern Railroad, which has just recently been built. Another line is to be built shortly to run along the eastern coast. There are also three large steamship lines plying between Halifax and distant points. The Allan line to Liverpool and Glasgow, Pickford & Black steamers for Bermuda and the West Indies, and the Plant line to Boston and New York. There is also a monthly steamship service direct to Havre, France.

Below we give short accounts of a number of the leading wholesale and manufacturing industries located in Halifax.

H. W. Wentzell & Co.

One of the finest wholesale warehouses in the Maritime Provinces is that of H. W. Wentzell & Co., Halifax. They started in business in 1887 on Water street, when the firm was known as Wambolt & Wentzell. In 1889 the partnership was dissolved and the business has been continued up to the present by Mr. Wentzell under the name of H. W. Wentzell & Co.

Quite recently they moved into new quarters—a solid brick building, 85 x

A Business Built On the Solid Rock Of Quality

THIS IS THE LARGEST BISCUIT AND CONFECTIONERY FACTORY IN THE MARITIME PROVINCES

It was not always so, for it was once a very small affair; and it would not be so to-day, except for the fact that its policy has always been to make quality the foundation of its appeal to consumers. Beginning in a small way it grew "from less to more," as the poet says, "and from more to more," until now its products are familiar in every part of the Maritime Provinces and even further afield. We claim that in Moirs Biscuits and Confectionery the consumer gets the best value that the best materials and the best manufacturing methods can afford. People may get goods they will have to pay more for, but nothing they will like better, line for line. We are not the least bit afraid of comparisons and would be pleased to enter into correspondence with merchants anywhere who may be interested in knowing what we can do for them.

210, formerly known as the Kenney Block—purchased over a year ago from the Kenney estate for $30,000. It consists of four floors, all lighted by electricity with electric freight elevators in the rear and many other modern and up-to-date conveniences to correspond.

H. W. Wentzell & Co. are direct importers and have their own bonded warehouse. Their success is largely due to their up-to-date business methods, and they do practically a cash business. They employ some forty hands, including six regular outside travelers. They claim to have the largest stock of groceries in Nova Scotia and have a reputation for handling goods at a very close margin. One of their specialties is the "Three Star" brand tea, which is widely advertised and has an extensive sale in the Maritimes. Mr. Wentzell is also the largest shareholder in the Cape Breton Wholesale Grocery Co., of Sydney, C. B.

Acadia Sugar Refining Co.

Sugar refining began in Halifax immediately following the adoption of the National Policy, the first sugar being placed on the market early in 1880. At that time three refineries were built in the Maritime Provinces, one at Moncton, and two at Halifax. In 1893 these were merged into one company under the name of the Acadia Sugar Refining Co. The refinery at Moncton was destroyed by fire in 1896; the other two, situated at Richmond and Woodside, have worked continually since that date.

The raw sugar used by the Acadia Sugar Refining Co. is imported exclusively from the British West Indies, and the regular steamers running between Halifax and the British West Indies have the bulk of their space on the inward voyage taken with sugar for this refinery.

The company's offices are at the corner of Duke and Hollis streets, Halifax, and in Glasgow, Scotland. The directors are as follows: Thos. E. Kenney, chairman; Wiley Smith, Robert E. Harris, and T. M.Cutler, secretary, all of Halifax; W. D. Gillies, Alex. S. Brand, Wm. Henderson, and D. Brand, secretary, all of Glasgow, Scotland, and Wm. F. Humphrey, of Moncton, N.B.

Payzant & King.

Payzant & King have been in the wholesale grocery business since 1862. Their territory is confined to Nova Scotia. Owing to the rapid development of their business they have increased the size of their warehouse no less than three times. At the present time they are situated at the corner of Bedford Row and Sackville street. The personnel of the firm is made up of L. S. Payzant and L. K. Payzant.

Black Bros. & Co.

The firm of Black Bros. & Co. was founded by W. A. and S. Black as early as 1815. In 1830 the firm name became Black Bros.; in 1854 it was changed to Black Bros. & Co., and in July, 1903, to Black Bros. & Co., Limited. The present directors are: C. J. Troop, president; G. S. Troop, vice-president and manager; W. S. Troop, secretary, and R. P. Butler, treasurer. In September, 1904, they gave up their hardware business, and since then have dealt exclusively in fish, with headquarters at La Have. They have also branches at Meccatina Island and Mutton Bay, Saugenay County, Quebec, their head office being at Halifax. Black Bros. & Co.'s package fish, "Halifax," "Acadia" and "Blue Nose" brands, are all well known throughout the Canadian trade.

R. B. Seeton & Co.

R. B. Seeton & Co. date their business existence from 1875, when the firm was organized by Robert B. Seeton, who died in 1900. Since then the business has been carried on by R. M. Symons and R. H. Seeton, who conduct a wholesale grocery business under the firm name of R. H. Seeton & Co. Their offices and warehouse are situated on Pickford & Black's wharf.

Bauld Bros. & Co.

This pioneer wholesale grocery firm date from 1860. Wm. Bauld was the founder, and with his half-brother, John Gibson, carried on business in the early days under the name of Bauld & Gibson. Later, Wm. Bauld, jr., was admitted to the firm and in the year 1880, Henry G. Bauld. Since then the three senior partners have died and the junior partner, Henry G. Bauld, has carried on the business, which was started seventy-four years ago. Bauld Bros. & Co. carry one of the largest assortments of groceries in the Maritime Provinces and make a specialty of tea.

Pyke Bros.

Pyke Bros. recently celebrated their fifth birthday as manufacturers' agents in Halifax for staple groceries. Since 1900 the development of their business has been phenomenal and at the present time they occupy a large warehouse extending from Hollis to Water streets, in which they keep large stocks to supply the wholesale trade. Among the western firms represented by them are Christie, Brown & Co., the N. K. Fairbank Co., Libby, McNeil & Libby, B. L. Schepp Co., the St. Lawrence Starch Co, Collingwood Meat Co., Swift & Co. and the Postum Cereal Co.

Chas. H. Harvey.

Mr. Harvey is one of the pioneers in the grocery and fruit trade of the Eastern Provinces, having made his first sale when he was seventeen years of age. He started in business in 1879 on Sackville street, which premises he has occupied ever since. He does a big trade with the West Indies and is a large importer of West Indian and Mediterranean fruits and produce. He has also established a big business connection throughout Newfoundland and the Maritime Provinces, and has a large sale among other things for his special brand of tea known as "The Crescent."

Dillon Bros., Halifax.

Dillon Bros. have been in the grocery business in the Maritime Provinces for upwards of fifty years. The firm was organized in the first place by Patrick Dillon and twenty years later it was handed over to his sons, John, William and Denis, who gave it the firm name of Dillon Bros., which it has retained ever since. The present members of the firm are: D. C. Woods and H. B. Mackasey. Dillon Bros. have two fine warehouses on Sackville street, which are elegantly fitted out. They make a specialty of fancy French groceries and high-class wines. For many years they have had a contract for supplying H. M. ships of war calling at the port of Halifax.

Bryant & McDonald.

Bryant & McDonald started in business as tea merchants in 1900, but had the misfortune to be burned out in September last. A fine new building has replaced the old one and is fitted out with every modern appliance required by an up-to-date wholesale warehouse. They report a satisfactory trade throughout the Maritime Provinces and Quebec, especially in a package tea of "The Three Crown" brand.

Billman, Chisholm & Co.

This enterprising firm occupy a large three-storey brick warehouse on Hollis street, Halifax, where they started business in 1892. James Billman and John S. Chisholm are the principal members of the firm and do a large business as wholesale grocers throughout the Maritime Provinces.

I. B. Shaffner & Co.

About ten years ago, Ingram B. Shaffner and James Adams started in business on Barrington street as wholesale merchants in hay, flour, feed, etc. A year later they bought a large building on Water street—their present premises—from which point they conduct one of the largest businesses in their line in the Maritime Provinces. They have a branch establishment at Elmsdale, N.S., and do an extensive business in the West Indies, Newfoundland, St. Pierre and other foreign ports. Their biggest seller is "Ogilvie's Royal Household" flour.

John Tobin & Co.

John Tobin & Co. enjoy the distinction of being one of the oldest grocery firms in Canada, having started the business in 1825. Their present fine warehouse on Water street, Halifax, is a sure indication that they are still enjoying a first-class patronage from merchants in the Maritime Provinces.

Dominion Molasses Co.

While not one of the oldest business firms of Halifax, the Dominion Molasses Co. are easily one of the most progressive. Their manufacturing plant is new and up-to-date and the company have won an enviable reputation in catering to the requirements of the Canadian grocery trade. The organization of the firm dates from 1901, when the molasses business of H. R. Silver was taken over; since then their trade has developed rapidly, and at the present time it extends from Halifax to Vancouver. All the standard brands of molasses are handled by the company in addition to their private brands. These have secured a strong position among the retail trade, namely, "Beaver," "Porto Rico," "Fancy Trinidad," "E. M. Co.," all of which are too well known throughout Canada to require further reference.

An illustration on another page shows the company's premises at Dartmouth, opposite Halifax. The plant is devoted exclusively to the molasses business and contains every modern appliance for handling goods in a clean, economical manner. The business of the firm is conducted from the head office, Halifax, 109 to 111 Upper Water street.

Black Bros.' Factory at LaHave.

Moirs, Limited.

One of the foremost manufacturing establishments in Halifax city is that of Moirs, Limited, who produce biscuits and confectionery and supply a large percentage of the bread, cake and pastry sold in Halifax. It commenced as a bakery many years ago and was conducted in a small way for some time, producing the kind of bread known in those days as "baker's bread." It occurred to this management that if they would produce bread as good as the home-made article they would not only capture the best part of the bread trade then existing, but would create more by inducing people by the quality of their product to give up making bread at home This they set out to do, and how they succeeded will be understood from the fact that they make and sell 40,000 loaves every week. They were also producers of cake and pastry for city trade, and out of this branch grew their biscuit trade, which now extends all over the Maritime Provinces, and into outside markets as well. In this as well as in the bread department, they made quality the point to be arrived at, and they have had the reward which quality always brings, viz. apprecition and increasing patronage. When they commenced the manufacture of confectionery they undertook to build up their trade on exactly the same principle, and they succeeded. Their chocolates are first-class, and they have the reputation of manufacturing the biggest and best piece for a cent that the market affords in the line of penny goods.

Moirs, Limited, have also had their vicissitudes; three times their plant was burned out, and on two other occasions they suffered from fires which partially destroyed their premises. Their last fire was on February 28, 1903, when the whole plant was destroyed, leaving only bare ruined walls and confused piles of brick and twisted iron. They were not daunted, however. The very next day they were producing bread as usual, having rented various ovens, by means of which they were able to maintain their output. They promptly commenced manufacturing candy in another building and proceeded to rebuild. Within a few months they were occupying a new biscuit and candy factory, the largest and best equipped in Eastern Canada. The firm also make paper boxes, and the capacity of their two box plants is sufficient to supply not only the wants of their own business, but of a large clientele of customers for their packages.

J. Frank Crowe & Co.

This successful wholesale grocery house dates from 1897 when Mr. J. Frank Crowe purchased the wholesale and retail grocery business of A. M. Boutilier & Co. on Gottingen street, Halifax. Under the new regime trade assumed big proportions, and about five years ago it was thought advisable to sell out the retail business and concentrate on the wholesale trade. About this time the firm were obliged to move into larger premises on Water street, formerly occupied by George A. Pyke & Son. In March, 1904, fire almost completely wiped out their warehouse and stock, but thanks to their commendable enterprise, the trade was occasioned only a temporary inconvenience. On May 1, 1904, they moved into their present commodious quarters at the head of City Wharf, Water street, and since that time to date report business as having exceeded their most sanguine expectations.

Your Trade Requires the Very Best

RED ROSE TEA, in the Maritime Provinces, has been the leader for many years. It gained its position against keen competition. Gained it by sheer force of quality—intrinsic worth.

When it was first put on the market it was the best tea that had ever been sold at the price.

To-day it is the best tea sold anywhere in Canada.

This is a fact admitted by every independent judge of tea—admitted by every tea salesman who tries to sell a tea which he claims is "as good as Red Rose."

I have the same faith in good goods that I have always had—I have the same determination that Red Rose Tea shall always be the best—a tea without an equal.

Eleventh Annual Convention of the Maritime Board of Trade

Yarmouth, N.S., August 16, 17 and 18, 1905

Special Report by Our Own Representative.

DESPITE wet weather at the outset and a somewhat small attendance of delegates, the eleventh annual convention of the Maritime Board of Trade at Yarmouth, N.S., will go down to history as one of the most valuable and satisfactory meetings ever held by this important commercial organization. A stage has at length been reached in the career of the board when its members have come to the conclusion that its functions should be more than deliberative. At the Yarmouth meeting, time and time again, speakers impressed on the board the need for action, and as a result, this year an important step has been taken by the board and a permanent committee has been appointed to follow up and take action on the various resolutions passed.

Prince Edward Island was prominently to the fore at the meeting and the presence of Rev. Father Burke contributed much to quicken the interest of the board in the efforts the Islanders are making to secure their pet project,—the tunnel. At the election of officers, another Prince Edward Island man, Captain Joseph Read, was honored by being appointed to the presidency.

Several important resolutions were put through. A fast Atlantic service, better train service throughout the Provinces, a legislative union of the Provinces, confederation with the West Indies, the cultivation of tourist travel, steel shipbuilding, the abolition of statute labor and the representation of incorporated towns in county councils, were among the subjects discussed.

The meetings were presided over by Past-President E. K. Spinney, of Yarmouth, who, together with Mayor Armstrong, the city council and the Yarmouth Board of Trade, did all in their power to make the visit of the delegates a pleasure. By way of entertainment they gave a drive about the city just prior to the Thursday afternoon session, while on Friday a most enjoyable trip to Barrington by rail and return by boat was provided.

As the place for next year's meeting, Amherst was selected, as being a central place and one to which many delegates could come.

The Convention Opens.

In a steady downpour of rain, which has lasted since the preceding afternoon, the convention opened in Boston Hall soon after ten o'clock on Wednesday morning. President E. K. Spinney occupied the chair, and with him on the platform were Vice-President Joseph Read, Secretary Creed and Father Burke of Alberton, P.E.I. About fifty members were present.

Before proceeding with the business of the convention the chairman called on Mayor Armstrong, of Yarmouth, and introduced him to the delegates.

The Mayor's Welcome.

Mayor Armstrong recalled having invited the board to come to Yarmouth last year at the meeting at Moncton. It was an additional pleasure for him to be privileged to welcome the delegates this year to Yarmouth. On behalf of the citizens of the town he extended a most hearty welcome to all those present and hoped that their sojourn in Yarmouth would be both pleasant and profitable.

Roll Call.

Secretary Creed then called the roll and the majority of the constituent boards were found to be represented. The list of delegates present was as follows:

Nova Scotia.

Amherst—E. B. Elderkin, C. Owen Thompson.
Annapolis—J. M. Owen, F. C. Whitman.
Beaver River—Herbert Rice.
Bennick—J. E. Woodworth.

YARMOUTH.

Historically, Yarmouth is one of the most interesting towns in the Dominion of Canada, as in point of time it is one of the oldest. While to-day it has lost much of its early splendor as a great shipping port, this deficiency has been somewhat compensated for by a greater attractiveness in its appearance, which bids fair to make it one of the most pleasing tourist centres in the Dominion. Situated near the western extremity of Nova Scotia, on an arm of the Bay of Fundy, it extends along a gentle slope for a considerable distance east and west. It has direct railway communication with Halifax by Dominion Atlantic Railway, while it can also be reached by boat from Boston and other points.

At one time Yarmouth could boast of possessing the second largest tonnage of any port in the world, having no less than 260,000 tons afloat at one time. It was then world-famous. To-day its maritime interests are comparatively small and its industries are not very important. It is, however, a beautiful residential town, possessing attractive homes, beautiful gardens, extensive hedges and excellent roads. Its leadtng hotel, the Grand, is one of the best appointed houses in the Provinces, and one where the tourists' lot is made extremely pleasant.

Canning—C. E. Starr.
Canso—J. B. Saunders.
Digby—Clarence Jamieson, E. F. L. Jenner, W. E. Van Blascom.
Halifax—J. E. DeWolf, A. Stephen, W. A. Major, A. M. Bell, Hon. W. Ross.
Kentville—M. G. DeWolfe, C. W. Webster, Robert Harrington, W. E. Potter, Wm. Yould, B. H. Dodge.
Kings Co.—J. A. Kinsman.
Lockport—Robert McDonald.
Parrsboro—James W. Day.
Windsor—W. H. Roach.
Wolfville—J. D. Chambers, R. W. Starr.
Yarmouth—E. K. Spinney, B. B. Law, E. N. Armstrong, Arthur W. Eakin, Seymour C. Baker, W. D. Ross, R. S. Crawford, Augustus Cann, Willard M. Kelly.
Sydney, C.B.—C. P. Moore, S. P. Challoner.

New Brunswick.

St. John—W. S. Fisher, E. A. Abbott, H. C. Tull, L. G. Crosby.
Chatham—W. S. Loggie, James Nichol.
St. Stephen—E. G. Vroom.

Prince Edward Island.

Alberton—Rev. A. E. Burke, John Agnew.
Summerside—Joseph Read, M. P. P., Neil Sinclair, W. A. Brennan.

Committee on Orders.

A committee to determine the order in which the various subjects proposed by the local boards should be discussed was named by the chairman and was composed of J. E. DeWolf, Halifax; F. C. Whitman, Annapolis; E. B. Elderkin, Amherst; C. Jamieson, Digby; B. H. Dodge, Kentville; J. Kinsman, Kings County; J. Day, Parrsboro; W. H. Roach, Windsor; R. Starr, Wolfville; W. Kelley, Yarmouth; S. P. Challoner, Sydney; L. G. Crosby, St. John; J. Read, Summerside; Father Burke, Alberton; E. G. Vroom, St. Stephen; C. P. Moore, Sydney.

While the committee were absent from the hall, Secretary Creed read letters of regret from R. L. Borden, W. S. Fielding, Hon. Senator Josiah Wood, Sackville; P. Gifkins, general manager D. A. R.; D. Pottinger, general manager I.C. R.; J. M. Lyons, general passenger agent, I.C.R.; Lieut.-Col. J. B. Maclean, Toronto; the secretaries of the Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and Hamilton Boards of Trade and the Montreal Star and Toronto Globe.

Minutes of Last Meeting.

On motion of M. G. DeWolfe, seconded by J. M. Owen, the minutes of the last annual meeting at Moncton, as published in The Canadian Grocer and the annual report, were taken as read.

Report of Committee on Resolutions.

After a protracted session the committee on resolutions presented their report, recommending the discussion of the following subjects:

1. Annapolis—The inspection of cooperage stock and a standard apple barrel.
2. Berwick—The necessity of an improved railway train service between Halifax and that portion of the Annapolis Valley west of Kentville.
3. Halifax—Fast Atlantic steam service.
4. Kentville—Should not incorporated towns have representation in the council of municipalities?
5. Kentville—Municipal ownership of electric light plants.
6. Wolfville—Preservation of historic grounds.
7. Kings County—Is it desirable that the young men of the Maritime Provinces between the ages of 16 and 21 should be obliged to perform three annual drills in the militia of Canada?
8. Sydney—The desirability of wider publication in Maritime press of reports of Canadian commercial agents abroad.
9. Halifax—Protection of inland fisheries.
10. West Prince—Subsidy for steamship to ply between ports on the north side of P.E.I., Miramichi, Magdalene Islands and Sydney.

11. Parrsboro—Diversion of the Intercolonial by building a loop from Truro to Amherst, via Parrsboro.

12. Amherst—The advisability of uniting the three Maritime Provinces under one Government. Union of the Maritime Provinces.

13. Amherst—The question of the advisability of advertising by literature the advantages of the Maritime Provinces as a desirable place of settlement. What can be done to investigate and make better known the resources of these Provinces?

Co-operative efforts on the part of the Governments of the Maritime Provinces to promote desirable immigration from Europe.

14. Bear River—The necessity of urging upon the Government the granting of adequate financial assistance to any company that will build a railroad from Caledonia in the County of Queens to a point on the D.A.R. at or near the mouth of Bear River or to Digby, as may be deemed advisable, thereby affording railway connection to that section of Nova Scotia which is entirely without railway communication, and placing the towns along the route of said railway upon equal terms with other parts of the Province.

15. Halifax—Is it advisable to place the Intercolonial under a commission?

16. St. John—Daily steamship service between New Brunswick and Nova Scotia via St. John and Digby.

17. Wolfville—Abolition of statute labor in Nova Scotia.

That the Maritime Board of Trade urge upon the Governments of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island the importance of improvement in the common roads of the Provinces, and to take steps to diffuse information on the subject, especially by the distribution of literature and the appointing of an official who shall confer with the county councils and lecture on the subject in the various communities throughout his Province.

18. St. John—Recoinage by the Government of worn and mutilated Canadian silver coins.

19. Charlottetown, Southern Kings, Souris, Summerside and West Prince—Transportation between P. E. Island and the mainland.

Tunnel under the Northumberland Straits connecting P.E.I. with the mainland.

Better Winter communication between P.E.I. and the mainland.

The tunnel from P.E.I. to the mainland.

Daily Winter communication with the mainland.

20. Yarmouth—The advisability of the Government of the Maritime Provinces assisting local associations or boards of trade in promoting tourist travel.

21. Halifax—Steel shipbuilding.

22. St. John—Improvement in the London steamship service.

23. St. John—Prohibition of export of pulp logs.

24. Sydney—Night express train between Sydney and Halifax.

25.—Advisability of confederating the Dominion of Canada and British West Indies.

26. Yarmouth—The advisability of the Dominion Government taking over the railways of Western Nova Scotia and making them a part of the Intercolonial system.

WEDNESDAY MORNING.

Secretary's Report.

Amid applause the veteran secretary of the board, C. M. Creed, rose to present his report as follows:

To the President and Members of the Board of Trade:

Gentlemen,—Your secretary-treasurer begs herewith to hand you his report for the current year. All the resolutions and recommendations passed at the last annual meeting were forwarded to the Ministers of the various Departments of the Federal Government, those concerning the Local Governments were forwarded to the Premiers of same. Copies of The Canadian Grocer containing the proceedings of the annual meeting were forwarded to all boards of trade in the Maritime Provinces, as also to the delegates to the meeting.

Members of the Maritime Board of Trade in Convention Assembled at Yarmouth, N.S.

On October 28, in order to keep the resolutions passed at the annual meeting before the boards, they were printed and copies forwarded to each board, with a circular letter impressing upon them the necessity of calling the attention of the members of both the Dominion and Local Parliaments in their counties to them.

On December 21, copies of all resolutions were forwarded to W. S. Loggie, M.P., Chatham, N.B.; J. J. Hughes, M.P., P.E.I.; Dr. J. B. Black, M.P., Windsor; H. J. Logan, M.P., Amherst, and B. M. Law, M.P., Yarmouth, in advance of the meeting of the Federal Parliament in order that they could become familiar with them. On January 23, shortly after the opening of the Federal Parliament, copies of all resolutions were forwarded to all the members from the Maritime Provinces and also to several of the Senators. The correspondence connected with the same, as also from the various boards, being too voluminous to read, are on the table for the inspection of the members.

Correspondence With the Board.

This has been conducted with vigor during the year. Some of the secretaries have promptly responded to notices and letters, but the majority of them have been slow in answering, while some have never answered. It is hoped, however, the secretaries will be more prompt the coming year.

The subjects for discussion, notices to boards of the annual meeting and railway arrangements for delegates, were mailed to the boards affiliated and unaffiliated.

The annual report was published as usual and forwarded to all the boards of trade in the Maritime Provinces, and circulated generally as occasion presented.

New Boards.

During the year two new boards have been formed in Nova Scotia, viz.: Lockeport and Bear River. I am also pleased to say that the Boards of Parrsboro and North Sydney have re-affiliated and are in fine working order.

Unaffiliated boards have had every attention paid them, they have been written to frequently asking them to affiliate, I also forwarded them copies of all resolutions passed at the annual meeting and copies of the annual report, and invited them to send delegates to the annual meeting.

Affiliated Boards.

The affiliated boards on the roll of membership are as follows: New Brunswick, 6 boards, Chatham, Moncton, Newcastle, Sackville, St. John, St. Stephen; Prince Edward Island, 5 boards, Charlottetown, Summerside, Souris, Montague, Alberton; Nova Scotia and Cape Breton, 23 boards, Annapolis, Amherst, Antigonish, Berwick, Bear River, Canning, Canso, Chester, Digby, Halifax, Kentville, Kings Co., Lockeport, New Glasgow, Pictou, Parrsboro, Truro, Windsor, Wolfville, Yarmouth, Louisburg, Sydney, North Sydney.

Unaffiliated Boards.

New Brunswick, 2 boards, Fredericton, Woodstock; Nova Scotia and Cape Breton, 10 boards, Bridgewater, Dartmouth, Hantsport, Lunenburg, Liverpool, Middleton, Pugwash, Stellarton, Westville, Glace Bay. Total membership of all boards 2,205.

Chambers of Commerce.

The sixth congress of Chambers of Commerce of the Empire will be held at London, G.B., in June, 1906. An invitation has been received from the secretary, Kenric B. Murray, Esq., asking this board to send delegates and subjects for discussion at said congress, to which a reply was sent thanking him for the invitation and informing him that it would be laid before the members at the annual meeting at Yarmouth, on August 16.

In conclusion, during the past year everything requisite has been done for the advancement of the board, at the same time doing all possible to assist your worthy president, and as usual the valuable assistance and advice of M. G. DeWolfe, Esq., of Kentville, has been given, and also the able assistance of E. H. Armstrong, Esq., of Yarmouth, the corresponding secretary.

Accounts for the Year.

The accounts for the year are all prepared, but as several boards will pay their per capita tax before the close of this day's meeting they will be presented to-morrow for your approval and audit.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

CHARLES M. CREED,
Permanent Sec'y-Treas.

On motion of Captain Read, seconded by C. Jamieson, the report was unanimously adopted.

President's Address.

The popular president of the Maritime Board, E. K. Spinney, was heartily received on rising to read his annual address.

RETURN

Courtesy of Yarmouth Herald. Grand Hotel, Yarmouth, N.S., where Board of Trade met.

Gentlemen of the Maritime Board of Trade:

Before proceeding to the subject of my address, I wish to avail myself of this, the first opportunity I have had, to express my thanks for the honor you have done me in electing me president of this most important body of commercial and professional men. I regret that this prominent position has not been placed in the hands of one more competent to discharge its duties, or who would have achieved greater results. I regard your generous act, however, as a compliment to the town of Yarmouth.

You will also permit me, on behalf of the Yarmouth Board of Trade to extend a most hearty welcome. I sincerely trust that the time spent here will be well freighted with pleasure to yourselves, and as a result of your deliberations a vast amount of good may be done to the Maritime Provinces in particular and to the Dominion of Canada generally.

The discussion of the very important matters which will come before you systematically and vigorously, following up decisions reached by determined effort, must result in needed reforms and increased prosperity.

The report of your secretary, Mr. C. M. Creed, whose efforts have been indefatigable in the interest of the boards of trade of the Maritime Provinces, has been placed before you.

While the growth and extension of these boards have not been so great as we could have wished, yet there has been much encouragement in the fact that two new boards have been established and two others have become affiliated with the Maritime Board in the past year, and which now represents within its fold thirty-seven boards with memberships aggregating nineteen hundred and eighty-five members.

We can look to the future with confidence in anticipating the great influence they may exert on all important questions, voicing as they do the carefully considered views of the leading commercial and professional element of the Maritime Provinces.

Canada's Growth.

I do not propose to take up much of your valuable time on this subject, but simply desire to draw your attention to the fact that immigration has increased our population during the past ten years by 443,661. Of this Europe supplied 284,096 and our neighbors to the south 159,565.

Nearly two-thirds of this particularly large increase to our population has taken place during the years 1903 and 1904, and statistics of immigration into Canadian ports during the present year give promise to exceed greatly that of the past two years.

The financial report of the exports in 1904 shows an increase over that of 1895 of $99,882,432, while the imports in comparison with similar dates show the enormous increase of $148,430,121.

Canadian Banks.

show a net increase from beginning of 1900 to June 30, 1905, of

In paid-up capital	$ 15,975,357
Net increase in reserve	23,666,779
Increase in deposits	227,309,721
Increase in current loans ...	203,375,159
Increase in circulation	33,219,751

The above statement shows: First, that Canada is regarded favorably as a permanent home for reasons of climate, resources and broad educational facilities. Second, this fact has developed the enormous expansion of commerce. Third, the successful employment of capital is the natural outcome of commercial prosperity.

Transportation.

Since your last annual meeting that second great national transcontinental highway, the Grand Trunk Pacific, has made substantial progress. Corps of engineers have surveyed a great section of the route which this important road will traverse. It will only be a few months before the work of construction will begin, opening up a new field for the further expansion and development of this, the most important colony of the Mother Country.

While the greater benefits arising from the construction of this great national highway must necessarily accrue to the western Provinces, and while the transportation question is of supreme moment to the whole Dominion, its importance to Maritime Province interests, both for land and sea transit, cannot be overestimated.

Our coast line of 3,000 miles, dotted with commodious ports with rail connections, demand at our hands the imperative duty of unflinching vigilance to secure the material advantages to which our geographical position entitles us.

Rail connection is steadily increasing through the length and breadth of the Atlantic Provinces, and it is confidently anticipated that by the time the national transcontinental line is completed the internal arteries will supplement the great main trunk system with up-to-date branches in each of the three Provinces.

The Halifax & South Western Railway is already circling the western portion of Nova Scotia, and construction will be well under way by next season on the eastern side of that Province, giving alternate lines from Yarmouth to Sydney.

The heart of New Brunswick will be intersected by the N.T.R. and other connections between Quebec and Moncton. The long-desired and urgently-needed communication between New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island will round out the plan of twentieth century methods of transit to and from eligible trade centres at all seasons in this end of the Dominion. The coastal steam packet service gives evidence of continuous improvement. Substantially every harbor and connecting vantage point is being brought in regular touch with the principal supply centres of trade in the Maritime districts.

Business Interests.

In natural products the output throughout the Maritime Provinces has been fairly well maintained. The catch of fish has not been up to the ordinary average but higher prices have prevailed, compensating to some degree for the shortage.

An important paper was introduced at your last annual meeting discussing the importance of the Government taking active measures to preserve the lobster fisheries. While no action has yet been taken, I am informed the subject is under their careful consideration and doubtless some course will be adopted by them to further this very necessary end. Efforts should not be relaxed, as it is a matter of vital importance to those engaged in this lucrative industry.

The recommendations to establish freezing establishments and fertilizing plants for abating the ravages of the dog fish have had the attention of the Ottawa authorities, and a better condition in both cases is hoped for in the near future.

The depressed condition of the lumber trade in Great Britain has had the effect of restricting the output of lumber in sections catering to this branch of supply. The South American and West Indian markets, however, are well maintained, with the result that the mills operating in this class of product are actively and lucratively employed.

Coal mining progresses favorably, the large quantities now raised annually making it one of our leading industries. The gold from our gold fields shows a trifle lower result than the average of previous years, but with the introduction of new and up-to-date machinery much improvement is anticipated. In manufacturing industries steady advance is well sustained, the operations of several organizations assuming proportions entitling them to the front rank in comparison with similar enterprises in any part of the Dominion. The distributing business, the West Indies' trade, and different wholesale and retail trades have all enjoyed a profitable turnover, the imports and exports of the three Provinces giving in nearly every instance fair all round averages in comparison with former years.

Tourist Travel.

The volume of tourist business in the direction of the Maritime Provinces maintains satisfactory averages. Some idea of its magnitude can be gathered from the fact that the line of steamers plying between the United States and Yarmouth carried to and from these ports last season over sixty thousand passengers. Statistics for this year are not, of course, complete, but during the past month the number of passengers arriving at this port was increased by six hundred over the same month last year.

The scenic advantages and salubrious climate in our sea port Provinces are being gradually supplemented by hotels and Summer cottage accommodations in keeping with modern improvements, while entertainment and recreation show marked improvement with each successive season.

By systematic attention to advertising and furnishing concise guide books and data, the tourist business has become a recognized and welcome addition to the ordinary "between season" business of many localities.

The aggregate of tourist expenditure in the Maritime Provinces now runs into several millions of dollars annually, clearly illustrating the advantages to be derived from well directed effort. This important question will come up for your careful consideration during the present session.

Steel Ship Building.

The ardently-desired establishment of steel ship building at some point within the Maritime Provinces to replace the former flourishing industry of wooden ship building has not yet materialized, although strenuous efforts have been made to make a commencement at Halifax as an eligible locality. The postponement of the granting of a bonus by the Dominion authorities at the recent session of Parliament is a source of regret to the persons undertaking this important national work, but further efforts will be made to secure its realization in the near future.

A modern steel ship building plant has been well described as the mother of nearly every other industry, and the expansion of population resulting has been marvelous, especially in the ship yards of Germany as the latest instance. The subject is doubtless an ambitious one to carry out, but the enterprise and determination of the live business men in these Maritime Provinces will surely solve the problem at no distant day.

Chamber of Commerce of the Empire.

The London Chamber of Commerce has notified the boards of trade and commercial bodies throughout the Empire that the sixth Colonial Congress will be held in London in June, 1906. The last congress assembled in Montreal in 1903, about five hundred delegates being in attendance. Numerous important subjects will come up for discussion, some of which may well come within the scope of this board.

Trade and tariff relations between the Mother Country and its dependencies —the vital question of Imperial defence, codification of the commercial laws and customs of the whole Empire in connection with bills of lading, consignment advances, etc., are among the subjects for discussion suggested by the London Chamber.

The beneficial results accruing from these colonial conferences fully justify systematic endeavor to assist in development of the movement to promote concentration of Imperial influence on twentieth century lines to meet the strenuous trade competition in evidence throughout the world.

The cordial reception of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in England recently is an object lesson, illustrating the far reaching benefits to be achieved by thorough combination in efforts to impress business circles in Great Britain of the great strides of progress taking place in all sections of Canada from year to year.

Maritime Union.

The rapid expansion of the western portion of the Dominion of Canada, demonstrated by the creation and admission of the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan, emphasizes the importance of safeguarding the status of the Atlantic Provinces on lines of co-operation, securing a due equilibrium of political influence. The prospect of a legislative union of the Maritime Provinces was one of the leading ideas submitted at the formation of the Maritime Board of Trade.

Economy in local administration and more substantial influence in the councils of the several Parliaments are as potent factors to-day as they were a decade ago.

In connection with this important question should also be considered the imperative necessity of our Federal Government arranging some basis by which Newfoundland can be brought into union with Canada. The benefits accruing from such a result would be of incalculable value.

Fast Atlantic Service.

A slight improvement in the Atlantic mail service between the Mother Country and Canada is claimed from the records of the two new turbine steamers placed on the route in March and April last.

The first voyages of the Victorian and Virginian from Moville to Halifax did not come up to expectations. But somewhat better speed was accomplished by the Cape Race course up the Gulf of St. Lawrence to Rimouski—the last trip of the latter having reduced the time between Moville and Rimouski to six days

A test was made in June of the chances of a more rapid and satisfactory Atlantic mail delivery by intercepting the Virginian off the port of North Sydney and rushing the mails by special trains from that point. The result was a considerable improvement in the deliveries to the Maritime Province trade centres, but the deliveries beyond Rimouski were somewhat disappointing.

The running time of the special train between North Sydney and Montreal established a record, conclusively demonstrating the great advantages to be secured through landing the mails at an Atlantic terminal by steamers of modern speed. The subject will doubtless be one of those nominated for your consideration, as in the case of each of the annual gatherings since the formation of the Maritime Board of Trade.

Insurance.

Excessive premium rates of fire and marine insurance have occupied the attention of the Maritime Board of Trade for several years past, but an all round satisfactory solution has not yet been reached.

An important paper was discussed before your board at one of your previous sessions urging upon the wholesale houses insisting upon their clients protecting themselves against losses by fire. It is to be regretted that no practical results have followed the resolutions passed at that time. The subject is worthy of your earnest attention.

In addition to the increased and necessary security to the system of credit, it would lead to such improvement to the physical hazard that lower rates of premium would unquestionably result.

Some improvement has taken place in the rates on marine risks, due to the additional care given to our seaboard by the several Governments in increasing and improving the light and buoy service.

The business of life insurance, which is of even still larger importance to the people as a whole, also represents phases suggesting careful inquiry as to the safety of the invested funds representing the hard-earned savings of nearly every family in the land.

The overwhelming necessity of absolutely faithful Government inspection applies to holders of policies in the Maritime Provinces as urgently as in other portions of the continent. On general public grounds it is beyond doubt a subject demanding a certain amount of watchful consideration by representative bodies.

Exhibition.

The Provincial and county exhibitions have been held throughout the Maritime Provinces as usual, resulting in healthy emulation and endeavor in the various localities.

Next year the Dominion Industrial Exhibition will be held in the Maritime Provinces, Halifax having been decided on as the location. To these fairs and exhibitions we are undoubtedly indebted for the establishment of the Agricultural College at Truro, by the Dominion Government, under the able superintendence of Professor Cummings.

In view of the establishment of a line of steamers between Canada and Mexico, opportunities are presented for trade in farm products and live stock in the West Indies, as well as in Mexico and South America.

The Maritime Stock Breeders' Association has already taken steps to develop its business by holding annual auction sales, duly advertised in these new markets.

Wireless Telegraphy.

The installation of wireless telegraphic apparatus at Glace Bay, Sable Island and Chebucto Head, under the personal supervision of the distinguished inventor, Signor Marconi, clearly indicates the importance of these geographical vantage points in the Atlantic Provinces, not only to the Dominion but to the marine interests of the Empire.

The successful operations of these wireless stations should also prove of substantial value to passing ships of every nationality and add to the prestige of Canada as one of the foremost factors in utilizing this modern aid to the world's progress.

Municipal Betterment.

A noticeable advance is taking place in many cities, towns and villages in the Maritime Provinces in the better shape of roads and the installment of asphalt pavements, the cultivation of lawns in front of residences and numerous other improvements designed to further higher ideals of utilizing the conveniences and comforts to modern social needs.

Russo-Japanese War.

The war between Japan and Russia has continued without cessation since our last annual meeting. Although much more remote from the scene of conflict than our fellow Canadians on the Pacific Coast, we are fully alive to the dangerous complications liable to arise among the great world powers, particularly in maintaining neutral rights on the high seas, in which all Maritime communities are more or less interested.

The indications at present all seem to augur hopefully for peace, and it is much to be desired that the negotiations at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, so largely due to the well meant efforts of President Roosevelt, will, ere long, result in a complete termination of the war and the establishment of an enduring peace.

The shrewd diplomacy of King Edward VII has brought about a better understanding with France, clearing away many former causes of difference.

Cordial co-operation between the Mother Country and the great American nation to the south of us will exert a powerful and almost overmastering influence in bringing about a cessation of war for many years to come, and the substitution of arbitration in its stead for the settlement of international disputes.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

E. K. SPINNEY, President.

Referred to a Committee.

When the applause evoked by the address had subsided, M. G. DeWolfe rose and expressed his appreciation of the president's report, which he termed one of the best he had ever heard during his eleven years' connection with the board. He moved that the address be referred to a committee consisting of J. M. Owen, Alex. Stephen and Father Burke, who would report at the evening session. The motion was seconded by J. E. DeWolf and carried.

The convention then proceeded to take up the subjects for discussion in the order suggested by the committee.

A Standard Barrel.

F. C. Whitman, of the Annapolis Board, introduced the subject of a standard apple barrel and the inspection of cooperage stock. He thought there should be a standard-sized barrel for the whole Dominion. In Ontario, where the barrels were made from seconds and flour barrel staves, the size was larger than in Nova Scotia and the apple shippers of the latter Province were consequently laboring under a disadvantage. Mr. Whitman explained that a committee from the Nova Scotia Fruit Growers' Association had gone to Ottawa, and they had been promised a general meeting next June, at which a standard barrel would be established.

At present, conditions in Nova Scotia were most unsatisfactory. A large number of barrels were unfit for use and all sizes were utilized. The remedy was legislation along the line of uniformity. Every barrel should be subject to inspection; both ends should be planed; the name of the cooper should be stamped on the barrels and an inspector should visit the factories. Mr. Whitman suggested that under the Fruit Marks Act, the fruit inspectors should be required to watch the manufacture of barrels. He presented a resolution to the board along these lines.

Father Burke, president of the P.E.I. Fruit Growers' Association, in seconding the resolution, suggested leaving the working out of details to the Government and resolving the resolution into the following form:

"That a uniform barrel be adopted for Canada and the material entering into its construction be placed under Government inspection."

R. W. Starr said that he could not add much to what had been said, except to emphasize how reasonable it was to have a uniform barrel for the Dominion. Nova Scotia has passed an Act before Confederation for a minimum barrel, and now she had to compete with the large Ontario barrel. What should be impressed was that the barrel should be a unit of measurement.

J. M. Owen thought the resolution should be worded to the effect that a standard barrel be made and no shipments be sent from the Dominion except in standard barrels. He would present an amendment that no apples be exported from the Dominion in other than standard barrels and that suitable provision be made for the inspection of barrels.

W. S. Fisher, St. John, N.B.
1st Vice-President Maritime Board of Trade, 1905-06.

J. E. DeWolf—"Why should there be a different standard for export and home consumption? I am prepared to support Mr. Whitman's resolution, as a fruit inspector could do the work before the apple season begins."

C. Jamieson suggested referring the several resolutions to a committee to draft a uniform motion, but this idea was overruled as establishing a dangerour precedent.

Upon Mr. Whitman accepting Father Burke's revision of his original resolution, the motion was put to the meeting and carried unanimously.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON.

At 3.15 the convention was again called to order, when Chairman Spinney read a telegram from the Amherst Board inviting the Maritime Board to come to Amherst next year.

Improved Railroad Service

J. E. Woodworth, of the Berwick Board, in introducing the resolution from his board (No. 2), pointed out that his district was being discriminated against by the Dominion Atlantic Railway in their train schedule. People living east of Kentville could go to Halifax or Sydney, spend the day there and return the same day. Business men west of Kentville could only reach Halifax by an afternoon train and must spend the night there. Mr. Woodworth also pointed out that the small fruits from the Valley were at a great disadvantage in reaching the Halifax market. Correspondence with Halifax was also seriously handicapped by the lack of trains. Efforts to get the D.A.R. to remedy the trouble had so far been futile.

Mr. Woodworth moved the following resolution: "That in the opinion of this board, increased facilities for railway travel between Halifax and that portion of the Annapolis Valley lying west of Kentville should be provided."

This was seconded briefly by J. M. Owen. The discussion was continued by several of the members.

M. G. DeWolfe took exception to the resolution as a local one. He thought the board should only deal with broad and general subjects, and regretted that the present resolution had not been amalgamated with the general question raised by the Yarmouth Board on the subject of railway service, through the whole of Western Nova Scotia.

The chairman proposed deferring the settlement of the question until the Yarmouth resolution came up.

J. E. DeWolf saw no similarity between the two resolutions.

J. E. Woodworth claimed his resolution was not a local one, as the interests involved were not local by any means, but concerned the welfare of the whole Province.

The resolution was carried unanimously.

Fast Atlantic Service.

A. Stephen, of Halifax, found it difficult to introduce this subject in any new way, as it had been up before the board for many years. The question now was, where did the board stand after all the resolutions that had been passed since Confederation. He thought but little progress had been made and hoped that the series of resolutions, which he was about to make, would result in some definite good. The resolutions read as follows:

"Whereas the Atlantic mail service between the Mother Country and her possessions in British North America at the inception of Confederation was admittedly the shortest mail route between the continents of Europe and America, having been already in 1867 fully tested by the matured experience of over a quarter of a century;

"And whereas in the negotiations incident to merging the intended union of the Maritime Provinces into the larger compact between the two Canadian Provinces and their Atlantic neighbors a binding stipulation was agreed to in clause 145 B.N.A., to insure independent modern means of communication throughout the Dominion for obvious national considerations;

"And whereas this stipulation in clause 145 B.N.A. was the one thing needed to maintain the established advantages of the all-British mail route between Liverpool and Halifax through the construction of the railway between Halifax and Quebec, afterwards known as the I.C.R., or the people's road of Canada;

"And whereas immediately after the Act of Union the alteration of the Atlantic mail route at first to Portland, Maine, and subsequently to an unsatisfactory divided Summer and Winter route has resulted in the transfer of the greater portion of the Canadian Atlantic mails through distant foreign avenues of communication, the Postmaster-General of Canada having stated in Parliament that 564,000 pounds of Canada's Atlantic mail matter had been conveyed via New York in 1903, while only 147,000 pounds (largely parcel post) had been conveyed by the subsidized Canadian mail steamers, notwithstanding our great geographical advantages;

"And whereas the rapid expansion of Canada's cereal areas in the Western Provinces forecasts an immense development of transportation interest by land as well as by sea towards both hemispheres, which transportation interest will be largely dependent on the control of national avenues of transit for mails, passengers and freight equipped on the most modern lines;

"And whereas the opportunity to control the shortest and quickest ocean communication between Europe and America, which was within the grasp of the Dominion, has been unaccountably neglected by the governing powers in Canada, to the amazement of successive viceroys and prominent statesmen and visitors from abroad, who find themselves practically compelled to avoid Canada's direct subsidized mail and passenger service, and seek the better transportation afforded by foreign ports;

"And whereas the recent I.C.R. speed tests between Sydney and Montreal confirm and emphasize the certainty of regaining control of the shortest and quickest mail and passenger route between Europe and America as soon as modern steamers connect;

"Therefore, resolved that the Maritime Board of Trade emphatically urges upon the Dominion Government the paramount importance of stipulating in future Atlantic mail contracts that steamers capable of competing with the swiftest liners on the Atlantic should be the only vessels eligible for mail service and that Canada's expanding revenue justifies the appropriation of adequate subsidies for that purpose.

"And further resolved that the arrival and departure of the Canadian mails for Europe shall be, as far as the Dominion of Canada is responsible, at one Canadian port on the Atlantic coast line, accessible all the year round, in order that the mails between London and Montreal shall be delivered in from 120 to 150 hours, with reasonable regularity at all seasons of the year.

"And further resolved that while it may be inexpedient to enforce binding stipulations as to the transatlantic course for mail steamers, the Maritime Board of Trade once more unreservedly endorses the chart of Capt. C. O. Allen, submitted and approved at the annual meeting held at Sydney, Cape Breton, Aug. 20, 1902, as not only the shortest, but also the safest and most reliable sea route, year in and year out, for subsidized Canadian Atlantic mail steamers."

Mover A. Stephen, seconder Jos. Read.

Commenting on these resolutions, Mr. Stephen said that after Confederation the Allan Line secured a subsidy from the Government to carry the mails. These were landed at Portland until such an outcry was raised that the next contract required a landing at a Canadian port. Halifax was selected as a port of call by the Allans, and the mails were landed there. Later mails were landed at Rimouski in Summer, and this is the position to-day.

Mr. Stephen felt that the board was not active enough in this matter, and that resolutions were useless. Delegations received attention from the Government, while resolutions were pigeonholed. He hoped the board would send two or three well-informed men as far as the Pacific Ocean to address the leading Canadian boards and secure their support. He pointed out that much attention was being given to securing quick communication with the west, while the connection with the Old Country was being neglected.

"What is the cause of the delay in the establishment of a fast mail service?" asked Mr. Stephen. "It is not a matter of such enormous expense. The Allans stand in the way, endeavoring to keep things as they are. They are getting big subsidies for freight boats. How long is this condition to last? I think it has lasted long enough. Let us subsidize a service which will give us the quickest and best service."

A. M. Bell,
2nd Vice-President Maritime Board of Trade.

Continuing, Mr. Stephen pointed out how safe the route was and how rapidly mails could be delivered. While it might be doubtful whether New York would profit by such a service, there was no doubt about Chicago and the Western States.

It was often asked whether the service would pay. That was not the question, but rather would it benefit Canada? This he believed it would do by advertising the country and strengthening the ties between the Dominion and the Mother Country.

Mr. Stephen urged the sending of a delegation to Ottawa, and hoped the question would not be laid over by the board.

Captain Read, in seconding the resolution, pointed out that it was not the present kind of boats that were required, but boats equal in speed to the best that come into New York harbor. The Government were trying to placate Canadians with small morsels now and then, but Canadians required the best. They should stand on their rights, and when they asked for a fast Atlantic service show that they meant what they said.

S. P. Challoner, Sydney, referred to the fact that Sydney was the nearest point to Europe. Why should steamers go to Halifax, two hundred miles farther west? In the recent experiment in landing mails at Sydney, Sir Wm. Mulock selected that port because it was nearest to Liverpool. When the mails were landed at Sydney they reached Halifax in 10 hours. Later, when landed at Rimouski, they were 24 hours on the way. He put in a plea for Sydney as the landing place for the mails, and thought that the resolution was restricting the Atlantic port to Halifax.

J. E. DeWolf denied there was any localism in the resolution, and held it should remain as it was.

A. Stephen said it was time to stop the antediluvian method of carrying mails up the Gulf. If they were carried there Sydney was all right, but there were considerable periods when Sydney was not accessible. The board stands on record as favoring the best all round route.

The resolution was carried unanimously.

Towns and County Councils.

M. G. DeWolfe introduced the subject (No. 4) showing how the incorporated towns paid more taxes in proportion than the rest of the county. It was a case of taxation without representation. He moved, seconded by Robert Harrington:

"That in the opinion of the Maritime Board of Trade incorporated towns should have representation in the councils of the municipalities."

Jas. Nichol, Chatham, N.B., referred to the law in New Brunswick and sympathized with the incorporated towns of Nova Scotia.

J. W. Day, Parrsboro, said that in Cumberland county there were four incorporated towns, which contributed 50 per cent. of the county's expenditure. This called for some representation from the towns.

Captain Read explained conditions in Prince Edward Island.

A. W. Eakins, Yarmouth, showed how Yarmouth was treated under the existing system. He was followed by Mayor Armstrong, who expressed grave fears about the efficacy of the remedy suggested. There would be difficulties about how the representation should be made.

M. G. DeWolfe asked if there were not cases when questions came up in the county council of interest to the town, of which the town never heard until too late. To this Mayor Armstrong replied there were such cases, but that the relations between towns and counties were usually amicable.

Municipal Ownership.

J. W. Day of Parrsboro brought up subject No. 5.—the municipal ownership of electric light plants. He stated that Parrsboro was the first town in Nova Scotia to install its own electric light plant. It was now running 150 sixteen candle power lights on the streets of the town, as well as giving private service to the citizens. The revenue derived from the latter was at present only a little behind the total expense of running the plant, which was a very complete one valued at $17,000. Mr. Day referred to the difficulty other towns encountered in taking over lighting plants from private ownership and then moved:

"That municipal ownership of electric light plants would be beneficial and in the best interests of the towns in the Maritime Provinces."

The resolution was seconded by Captain Read.

W. S. Fisher, St. John, inquired of Mr. Day what provision was made at Parrsboro for wear and tear, and how they paid interest on their investment.

In reply, Mr. Day stated that they were able to pay about $125 for new equipment last year out of current revenue and the interest on their loan was also charged up to current expenses.

The resolution on being put to the meeting was carried unanimously.

Historic Spots.

J. D. Chambers, Wolfville, introduced this subject in an excellent speech. He referred to the resolution along the same lines passed last year at Moncton, A committee had at that time been appointed to discuss the whole question, but no report had as yet been prepared.

Continuing, Mr. Chambers pointed out how tourist travel meant dollars and cents to any country. The marking of spots of historic interest by monuments and stones gave a new interest to them and attracted the tourists. He believed that Canada should do its utmost to cherish the memories of the past, and moved that last year's resolution be reaffirmed.

S. P. Challoner, of Louisburg, seconded the motion, referring to the private efforts which were being made to raise a fund of $25,000 to erect a monument at Louisburg to the English and French soldiers who had fallen there.

J. M. Owen gave some details about the preservation of the old fortifications at Annapolis.

The resolution being put to the meeting was unanimously passed.

Annual Drills.

J. Kinsman, of the King's County Board, introduced the following resolution from his board:

"That it is not desirable that the young men of the Maritime Provinces between the ages of 16 and 21 should be obliged to perform three annual drills in the Militia of Canada."

In this connection Mr. Kinsman said this military service interfered with the work both of the farmer and the manufacturer, as young men of this age were the persons they relied on for their help.

J. E. Woodworth seconded the resolution, stating that the advantages to be derived from compulsory drills did not appeal to him. The drill became antiquated in ten years. Facilities for training the youths of the country in the use of the rifle were more to the point.

R. W. Starr, as an old militia officer, held that every young man should know something about drill and the use of the rifle. The early days were the time to train soldiers and make them obey orders.

M. G. DeWolfe saw good in both sides of the question, feeling that military training for the young was needed, but realizing that to take youths away from the country's industries would interfere with the revenues of the country.

A. Stephen said it was absurd to bring up such a subject at the meeting.

J. D. Chambers advocated rifle clubs, and thought militarism was running rampant in King's county.

J. E. DeWolf pointed out that they were discussing a question about which they knew little or nothing. They did not know whether there ever would be such a law.

W. S. Loggie, M.P., on being appealed to, said he had no information to give.

On motion the subject was deferred for consideration until the next annual meeting.

Commercial Reports.

In speaking on this subject (No. 8) C. P. Moore of Sydney explained that even though the Government supplied weekly reports from agents in all parts of the world, yet these were never made prominent in the local press. He would request the press to give a wider publicity to these matters. The people were a little slow in advertising, and should be educated up to it.

He moved:

"Whereas, in the opinion of this Maritime Board of Trade the reports of Canadian commercial agents abroad, as published by the Department of Trade and Commerce, contain much information of value to Canadian manufacturers, to Canadian shippers and dealers in produce; and whereas, these reports constantly present opportunities looking to the advancement of the export trade of the Dominion;

"Resolved, that this Maritime Board of Trade do, and does hereby, request of the Maritime Province press that they publish each week such information as these trade reports may contain relative to Canadian trade and commerce, and that a copy of this resolution be sent to each and every newspaper in the Maritime Provinces."

The motion was seconded by W. S. Fisher and carried unanimously, whereupon the convention adjourned until 8 o'clock.

WEDNESDAY EVENING SESSION.

When the delegates reassembled at 8.15 a good attendance of members was present, quite encouraging the hearts of the officers. J. M. Owen, on behalf of the committee, appointed to draft a vote of thanks to the president for his address, read a resolution which the committee had prepared. This was, on motion, adopted by the meeting. President Spinney replied briefly, thanking the delegates for their appreciation.

Headquarters of Pickford & Black Steamship Line, Halifax.

Steel Ship-building.

This important subject was introduced by J. E. DeWolf, of Halifax. In 1904 the difficulty had been to get a uniform opinion as to what should be the necessary protection, builders above the canals requiring more than those below. At a meeting last March, however, a resolution was drawn up and presented to the Government. Unfortunately the Government had not dealt with the matter. Mr. DeWolf simply desired to reaffirm last year's resolution and to lend the board's support to the memorial presented to the Government. Extracts from the memorial were read by Mr. DeWolf, who expressed a hope that the Government would yet take some action in the matter. He moved:

"That the Maritime Board of Trade reaffirms its resolution of Aug. 18, 1904, in favor of Government assistance to steel shipbuilding, and regrets that the Federal Government did not deal with this important matter during the last session of Parliament.

"Further resolved that this board approves of the memorial presented to the Government at Ottawa, March 23, 1905, by those now engaged or interested in steel shipbuilding and urges that early action be taken by the Government to grant the measure of assistance necessary to secure the resumption of work in the shipyards now idle, and to establish other steel shipbuilding plants in Canada. Also resolved that copies of this resolution attached to copies of resolution of 1904, be sent to all members of the Cabinet, as well as to all Maritime Province members of Parliament, and that each board here represented solicit the support of its representatives at Ottawa toward securing the necessary Government aid."

C. P. Moore, Sydney, seconded the resolution, remarking that Sydney was deeply interested in the question.

E. B. Elderkin, Amherst, said it was not a subject to be passed over lightly, as Canada needed the industry. He held that it was on just such a subject as this that the board should take energetic action. Pressure should be applied and pressure was needed to secure prompt action on the part of the Government. He did not see why the Provinces should not take the same position in steel shipbuilding as they used to in wooden shipbuilding.

J. E. DeWolf thanked Mr. Elderkin for his support and said that the Halifax Board did not intend to let the matter drop until it was settled.

Senator Ross felt that with unanimity and pressure the matter would receive better attention at next session. The Ministers had many weighty matters to consider at last session.

Father Burke recalled seeing Mr. Fielding at Ottawa soon after the delegation of manufacturers interviewed the Government and at that time the Minister was strongly in favor of helping the industry. Possibly it was for the reason given by the Senator that no action was taken.

Speaking for St. John, W. S. Fisher, explained what that city had done in helping on the matter. He believed much of the work of the board was useless, because it was never followed up, and advocated the sending of delegations to the capital. He admitted difficulties in making up delegations, but felt that obstacles were not insuperable. He felt that the time was now most opportune for the men of the Provinces to make demands for those things they needed for their development.

M. G. DeWolfe said that with such speakers as Mr. Fisher on a delegation success would be undoubted. But the Provinces had many champions at Ottawa. and yet why was it necessary to reaffirm year after year resolutions on vital matters. He could not understand it, and believed a good strong delegation might do some good.

Captain Read pictured conditions today and contrasted them with conditions a few years ago.

W. H. Roach of Windsor feared the resolution would be side-tracked again, and hoped that a delegation would be sent to Ottawa who would present such resolutions as were deemed important enough. He advocated a committee of three, one from each Province, who would deal with these questions.

E. B. Elderkin thought the matter should be crystallized immediately and a determined lobby be begun at Ottawa.

The resolution was then put to the meeting and carried unanimously.

P. E. I. Transportation.

Father Burke introduced the vital question of communication between Prince Edward Island and the mainland.

C. M. Creed, Halifax, N.S.
Secretary Maritime Board of Trade.

After thanking the board for the opportunity of presenting the subject, Father Burke proceeded to discuss the proposed tunnel. The question of communication was constantly to the fore. The people of Prince Edward Island would not desert the project until it was accomplished. Support was being received from many boards of trade in Canada.

Father Burke pointed out that Confederation was discussed in Prince Edward Island as early as 1864. The Province, however, did not enter Confederation in 1867, holding off until conditions should be made favorable for them. Efforts were made time and again to get Prince Edward Island into Confederation. Sir George Cartier finally made a promise to give the Island adequate communication, and the Island Province joined the Dominion. The terms of Confederation called for a daily steam communication with the mainland. These terms have never been carried out, and it now became the duty of all Canadians to see that they should be. Father Burke trusted the Maritime Board would lend its support to the agitation.

He traced the methods of communication since Confederation, all of which have been inadequate. Last Winter the Island was cut off for 59 days, and in other years for even longer periods the Island had been isolated. Some other means than navigation must be adopted. No one believed that continuous communication could be kept up by navigation. One permanent system of communication must be secuced, and that could only be secured by a tunnel under Northumberland Straits.

The project was not impossible. The distance was only 6½ miles, and conditions were such as to make the work of construction very easy. This project of a tunnel had been before the people for twenty years. Famous geologists had found the strata under the straits most favorable for tunneling. Shale and clay existed there, and there would be little percolation of water. The tunnel, said Father Burke, could be built in five years at a cost not exceeding $10,000,000. M. J. Haney of Toronto had offered to undertake the work for that price and to hand over the complete tunnel in 6 years. American contractors were eager to build the tunnel as a private venture.

Father Burke believed the payment of $300,000 a year interest would more than be justified in comparison with the present expenditure on ships. These cost annually $100,000 for depreciation, $100,000 for insurance, and the Prince Edward Island Railway lost $100,000 of business every year because it lacked a connection with the mainland. Accordingly Father Burke moved:

"Whereas, the Province of Prince Edward Island entered the Canadian Confederation under specific terms as to continuous communication; and, whereas, such communication has not to this day been accorded to her; and, whereas, much loss and very great hardship is occasioned to her yearly in the Winter season especially, owing to the want of permanent communication, her natural progress and the extension of interprovincial trade being thereby greatly hampered and handicapped; and, whereas, no Province of Canada, irrespective of size or population, should be without at least one permanent and efficient system of communication, provided it can be afforded by the reasonable expenditure of public money, since such system is essential to the intercourse of the the different parts of the Federation and lends greatly to up-build and consolidate them; therefore,

"Resolved, that this Maritime Board of Trade in annual convention assembled request, and does hereby urgently request, the Federal Government to complete the terms of Confederation with Prince Edward Island by the construction and operation as soon as possible of a railway tunnel under the Straits of Northumberland, the only sure, permanent and adequate system of communication available; and, further resolved, that the system of navigation in vogue, pending the construction of the tunnel, be made as perfect as may be, the new ice-breaking steamer to be built being equipped with all the modern improvements for such vessels, and by employing one of the fleet of ice-breakers on what is known as the western route."

Captain Read, in seconding the motion, gave some practical information about tunnels, referring to tunnels in London, railway tunnels under rivers, where ferries used to run, and tunnels where bridges stood. He pointed out the heavy freight rates between the Island and Halifax, and the frequent handling of freight. If direct rail communication could be secured, values in the Island would go up immensely. Then, too, the tunnel was as necessary in Summer as in Winter.

He showed how tunnels are built, referring to the Severn Tunnel, almost quite as long as the proposed Island Tunnel. To-day a tunnel could be built much more rapidly.

Still further he explained the need for regular communication with the mainland in order to steady prices, and the necessity for having the Island food products put down rapidly in any part of New Brunswick or Nova Scotia.

The resolution, on being put to the meeting, was carried unanimously.

THURSDAY MORNING SESSION.

A. M. Bell brought up the subject referred to on the preceding day—the neglect to follow up resolutions by the board—and introduced the following motion :

"That on the request of any board of trade in the Maritime Provinces, the president, or in his absence one of the vice-presidents, may appoint one or more delegates to represent the Maritime Board in any matter which has been favorably passed on by this board at any of its meetings, provided that if such delegate should not be immediately interested in the matter to be presented, his expenses shall be paid by the local board making the request."

Father Burke believed there should be a permanent committee to follow up resolutions. He suggested three men from each Province.

E. B. Elderkin seconded the resolution but believed a standing committee of one man from each Province, one of whom should be the president of the board, would be a good arrangement.

W. S. Fisher outlined a plan for a permanent committee, consisting of three men from each Province. The president and the two vice-presidents would be the senior members of the committee, and would be supported by two men from each Province.

The discussion was continued by M. G. DeWolfe, Senator Ross, and several other members.

Alex. Stephen considered a committee of three too small. He advocated a larger deputation, who would convince the Government that the Maritime Board meant business. He thought the delegation should be appointed immediately.

Father Burke, having consulted with Mr. Bell, introduced a revised resolution covering both suggestions. The following prefix was added to the original resolution :

"That a permanent committee on resolutions, composed of three members from each Maritime Province, the three presidents being members ex officio, be appointed to carry on resolutions to the sources affected and further resolved."

W. S. Fisher objected to the sending of local delegations.

J. M. Owen explained how cases would arise when local matters would have to be considered and local boards would have to take action. He believed the resolution was satisfactory.

A. M. Bell considered that the resolution should be made as elastic as possible.

The revised resolution, being put to the meeting, was now carried unanimously.

Steamship Service.

On behalf of the West Prince Board, John Agnew introduced the subject of a steamship service for the northern ports of Prince Edward Island. At present a few schooners do the trade, but a good steamship would be most beneficial. He moved :

"That the resolution passed at Moncton last yaer, with reference to steamship communication between Sydney, north ports of Prince Edward Island and the Magdalen Islands and Miramichi, be, and is hereby, reaffirmed."

S. P. Challoner seconded the motion on behalf of Sydney Board, believing such a service would be of considerable advantage to Cape Breton Island.

James Nichol, speaking for the Miramichi District, pointed out the advantages his section would derive from this service.

The question was put and carried.

Maritime Union.

W. S. Fisher regretted that the St. John member, who had proposed the subject, was unable to be present.

Speaking for Amherst, E. B. Elderkin said he was in much the same position as Mr. Fisher. He had no resolution to offer.

J. E. DeWolf suggested a large committee to draft a resolution, as the matter was most important.

M. G. DeWolfe saw no reason for putting off the settlement of the question. It had been put off at Moncton, and should not be put off again. He read the 1303 resolution introduced at Charlottetown, and suggested passing it this year.

A. M. Bell moved that the consideration of the question be deferred, and a committee of three be appointed to draft a resolution.

Mr. Fisher seconded the motion which was carried. A committee consisting of W. E. Porter, Captain Read and W. S. Fisher was appointed.

I. C. R. Diversion.

In the absence of Mr. Day, of Parrsboro, E. B. Elderkin introduced the resolution of the Parrsboro Board. At present the road from Moncton to Truro was over-taxed. A loop by Parrsboro would be only slightly longer and the grades less steep. Either the present road would have to be double-tracked or a new loop be built. The former alternative was not a wise one. He accordingly moved :

"That this board press upon the Government of Canada the importance of constructing a loop on the I.C.R. between Amherst and Athol to a point on the I.C.R. at or near Truro, and urge the said Government to immediately hold a survey of the proposed route to locate a line with a view to constructing the same."

A Commission for I. C. R.

A. M. Bell stated that the Halifax delegate, who was to take up this subject, was absent and suggested passing it over.

Inland Fisheries.

A. M. Bell brought forward a resolution on this subject as follows:

"Resolved, that the Government of Canada be requested to ascertain by scientific investigation what measures are necessary to restore and protect our inland fisheries. That having obtained this report, it should be published and distributed as widely as possible, to the end that public opinion regarding this question may universally be aroused; and that subsequently such measures may be adopted as may be found to be desirable and practical in the light of the report and the discussion which may follow its circulation."

Mr. Bell, continuing, said the matter was not sectional, nor should it be approached from the sportsman's standpoint. He believed Nova Scotia was the natural nursery for fish, being one-fifth covered with water. He understood the Government had appointed a large number of inspectors at small salaries, who did not do their work properly. There should be proper protection. If the fisheries were only protected, sportsmen would come to the Province and spend their money there.

J. M. Owen seconded the resolution. He believed the game wardens were not paid enough. He cited instances of infractions of the law and explained how the Nova Scotia fisheries were being destroyed. He advocated a permanent commission, believing the present system quite inadequate.

Senator Ross pointed out that there were laws, but they were not enforced. Complaints were made, but the culprits were never prosecuted. He thought if outsiders were appointed inspectors, there might be some improvement.

J. E. DeWolf asked why culprits were not interfered with,—simply because the game warden didn't like to accuse his neighbors and for political reasons. Even the wardens broke the law. He thought the resolution did not go far enough.

Several other speakers discussed the question, which was unanimously carried.

Chairman Spinney appointed the following committee: W. S. Fisher, E. H. Armstrong, Father Burke, Alex. Stehpen and M. G. DeWolfe, to nominate the officers and select a place of meeting for next year.

Better Steamship Service.

W. S. Fisher introduced the subject (No. 16). He thought there was no doubt there should be a better service across the Bay, to give access to the west. He moved:

"That this board reaffirm its position with reference to the desirability of securing a daily steamship service between New Brunswick and Nova Scoria via St. John and Digby, and that the incoming executive be requested to again bring the matter before the Federal Government with an urgent request that this service be provided at the earliest possible date."

Continuing, he remarked that some doubts had been expressed on the possibility of keeping up a daily service. He felt, however, that there might be considerable improvement.

The resolution was seconded by C. Jamieson, who said the difficulty was to get the company to give a better service for a larger subsidy.

J. M. Owen considered the resolution did not go far enough and thought a service to Annapolis could be instituted as well. He desired to have Annapolis added to the resolution.

President Spinney believed he was the originator of the movement. From the business standpoint, freight service to

The question was put and carried.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON SESSION.

A Pleasant Drive.

No sooner had luncheon been disposed of than the delegates were taken in hand by the Yarmouth Board and given a drive of an hour's duration about the town. The perfect weather, the smart turnouts and the genial hosts made the drive an ideal one, and on every hand exclamations of admiration were heard at the beauties of Yarmouth. The residences in the town are of substantial build and attractive architecture and are surrounded with broad lawns, gardens and hedges. The latter are the pride of the citizens of Yarmouth, and well deserve all the encomiums that were bestowed on them.

About 3.30 the convention reassembled and business was resumed.

Abolition of Statute Labor.

R. W. Starr, of Wolfville, introduced the subject. He explained that he was not the member selected to take up this matter and consequently had no resolution to offer. However, he believed it to be a subject worthy of discussion. He contended that it was better to employ skilled labor than to force every man to perform his share. It was an antiquated law and required amendment. So far as good roads were concerned everybody wanted them, but few knew how to get them. He thought that the money now being laid out on statute labor could be employed to much better advantage in securing good roads.

Captain Read suggested framing a resolution from the words of the subject on the programme, which was accepted by Mr. Starr. The latter accordingly moved:

"That the Maritime Board of Trade urge upon the Governments of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island the importance of improvement in the common roads of the Provinces and to take steps to diffuse information on the subject, especially by the distribution of literature and the appointing of an official who shall confer with the county councils and lecture on the subject in the various communities throughout his Province; and further, that statute labor in Nova Scotia be abolished."

Captain Read seconded the resolution, explaining conditions in Prince Edward Island, where statute labor was abolished five years ago. A poll tax was now in force to make up for the deficiency. Under the present conditions, it did not take any more money out of the treasury now than when statute labor was in force. He explained the system in force at some length. With regard to advocating good roads, he referred to the literature issued by the good roads associations in Ontario.

E. B. Elderkin was doubtful about how an improvement could be brought about. He recalled that there was a Good Roads Association in Nova Scotia, which had been active a few years ago, but did not think much good had been accomplished. He also questioned whether it would be possible to get statute labor abolished.

Speaking to the motion again, Mr Starr showed how there were difficulties in purchasing material for the roads, under statute labor, owing to the difficulty of getting money. The discussion was continued by J. E. DeWolf, J Kinsman and others.

B. H. Dodge said it was a vexed question on which he had a public and a private opinion. He explained the present system in force in Nova Scotia. The chief objection to direct taxation was that the people preferred to give the labor rather than the money.

Senator Ross referred to the advantage the farmers in Ontario derived from better roads. In the matter of bridges the Province was well supplied. He advocated a system of direct taxation in place of statute labor.

Alex. Stephen, Halifax, offered a suggestion that the Legislative Council and other useless institutions be abolished and the money be expended on roads.

Captain Read thought the trouble lay in the timidity of the politicians and yet they need have no cause to fear because the new system would soon prove cheaper than the old.

The resolution was put to the meeting and carried.

Recoinage.

H. C. Tilley, St. John, introduced the following resolution:

"That in the opinion of the Maritime Board of Trade, Canadian worn silver coins should be redeemed by the Government, because,

"(1) The Government have received full face value for the coins; have made a very large profit out of their issue (on present issues the profit being about one hundred per cent.), and can reproduce from worn coins, coins of full weight at a comparatively slight expense;

"(2) Coins pass from the current to the uncurrent stage imperceptibly, and the circulation of worn coins, when not redeemable, induces a large amount of small deceit in the passing of the coins and lowers the public opinion of Governmental management;

"(3) Great Britain and the United States redeem at the face and recoin their worn silver coins."

Speaking on this resolution, Mr. Tilley felt that there was a great deal of deception practised, which should not be allowed. He cited instances where coins were passed off for higher values than they were worth.

The motion was seconded by W. S. Fisher, St. John, in a brief speech. The St. John Board had recently passed a resolution on the subject at the instance of the Toronto Board. The proposition was a very fair one and should be adopted by the Government.

C. Jamieson brought up the resolution of the Digby Board on the subject of deporting Newfoundland 20-cent pieces and asked that it be added to the resolution before the meeting. This resolution read: "Resolved, that in the opinion of this board, the Government of Canada should deport alien silver specie of the denomination of 20 cents and call in the present Confederation silver of that denomination."

This was agreed to by Mr. Tilley and the question was put and carried.

Maritime Union.

W. S. Fisher reported for the committee appointed at the morning session, and introduced a resolution to the effect,

"That in the opinion of this board the time has arrived for a union of the three Provinces of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, and that a memorial to this effect be forwarded to each of the Governments and that they be urged to arrange for a meeting of representatives from each Government at an early date."

One idea brought forward by Mr Fisher was the growing power of the west, compared with the small growth of the Maritime Provinces. The question was what should be done to maintain the balance of power. The Provinces had helped in the development of the west and were now waiting for some share in the benefit. So far they had been somewhat disappointed. The great need was summed up in the one word "transportation." Better facilities for exporting the products of the west were needed. To nationalize the ports, to make them easy of access, and to improve means of traffic were the objects to be aimed at. When it was realized that for six months of the year the Provinces were the sole exits for Canadian goods, the position was stronger than was thought. In union there was strength, and possibly in a union there would be greater possibilities for securing what the Provinces needed.

A. M. Bell seconded the resolution. He felt that the matter would be fully discussed and believed an economy in government would be secured by a union.

Senator Ross considered the matter of supreme importance. What was needed was to educate public opinion. He thought the three Premiers and their Attorney-Generals should come together and formulate a plan of union, which might be put before the people.

Speaking for the Island, Captain Read was sure the people would need education before they would come into a union, though the feeling would be different if the tunnel were built.

E. B. Elderkin felt the matter was impracticable. The Provinces could not be brought together. He referred to the fact that in Prince Edward Island the tax rate was 2 mills. In uniting with Nova Scotia they would be subject to a far higher tax. He did not see how a union would give greater influence. It would reduce the number of members at Ottawa. He felt that the three Governments with all their machinery had more power and that the Provinces were fairly well treated.

Jas. Nichol realized how foolish it was to have three Parliaments for a population of 800,000, but failed to see how a union could be arranged. Some years ago it would have been easier, before the Parliament Buildings at Fredericton were built. On behalf of the people of New Brunswick, he invited the Nova Scotians to come to Fredericton and make it the capital of the united Provinces.

M. G. DeWolfe produced and read a number of newspaper clippings illustrating public opinion on the question and showing how desirable union was. He believed that the young men of the Provinces would feel prouder if they belonged to a larger portion of the Dominion and would be inclined to remain in the country.

Mayor Armstrong felt that the day for a union of the Provinces was passed in 1867, and that the difficulties were now almost insurmountable. He held that moral suasion should be employed now and later on something might be done. He did not see how there would be any more influence exerted at Ottawa if there were a union than if there were not. More good would be done by a union of the business men of the Provinces in such business unions as the Maritime Board than by legislative unions.

Captain Read deprecated the idea that there would be no greater influence at Ottawa if there were a union. At present the members from the Island exert little influence, but as members from a Maritime Province they would have a still greater influence.

In reply, Mayor Armstrong said that on all general questions the members from the Matitime Provinces stood together.

The resolution was carried with a few dissenting voices, and the meeting adjourned.

THURSDAY EVENING SESSION.

At 8.15 the chairman called the meeting to order and J. E. DeWolf presented a resolution to the effect that the Maritime Board of Trade memorialize the Government to appoint a third member on the Dominion Transportation Commission from the Maritime Provinces.

E. B. Elderkin seconded the motion, commenting on the lack of energy in the Provinces in pressing their claims. The motion was put and carried.

Sydney and Halifax Service.

S. P. Challoner of Sydney introduced the subject of a night service from Sydney to Halifax. It was not a local question as some might suppose. Sydney was a great mining and industrial proposition, with several most important industries. It had consequently a direct interest for all the towns and cities of the Provinces. At present there are two trains out of Sydney, leaving at 7 o'clock and 1 o'clock, one of which was not satisfactory for mails or for travel because of poor connections.

Mr. Challoner outlined how mails go and come from Sydney, showing the length of time consumed. Sydney and its neighboring towns did not ask for a third train, but wanted the one o'clock train removed and a night train substituted. Such a night train would facilitate travel immensely in all directions, and give an improved mail and passenger service.

The resolution presented by Mr. Challoner read that:

"Whereas, the inaugurating of a night express train service between Sydney and Halifax must prove of very great advantage to the business men of the Maritime Provinces, and a benefit to interprovincial trade interests generally;

"And, whereas, such a service would admit of the best possible through connection by rail and water for all points west of Truro, Halifax and Yarmouth;

"And, whereas, a night express train between these points would mean a great saving of time to travelers going both east and west;

"And, whereas, such a service would stimulate tourist traffic to this Province:

"Therefore, resolved that this Maritime Board of Trade do urge upon the Department of Railways that a night express train service between Sydney and Halifax be put into operation at the earliest possible moment, and that a copy of this resolution be sent to all of the Federal representatives for the Maritime Provinces, to the Minister of Railways, and to the several civic corporations throughout these Provinces."

The resolution was seconded by Alex. Stephens of Halifax. It was simply a question of justice to Cape Breton. Today the island was in a position to demand such a concession. Sydney had all the elements to make a great city and it was being built up rapidly. In the district other cities were growing up, and the place was entitled to consideration.

The resolution was passed without further discussion.

Federation With West Indies.

The subject was introduced by E. B. Elderkin of Amherst, who claimed the matter was of the utmost importance to the Maritime Provinces and the whole Dominion. The day must be looked forward to when Canada would be a mighty nation, and it was time to round off Canada with possessions which would supply wants not to be supplied inside the Dominion. He believed the British West Indies would be willing to enter a confederacy with Canada. Neither Canada nor the Indies produced similar products, and an interchange of products would be of mutual advantage. If Canada did not take in the Indies, the opportunity would pass and the latter would join the United States. By taking in the Indies the importance of the Maritime Provinces would be increased. The ports of the Provinces would be the gateways for the passage of all Canadian products for the West Indian Islands. He moved that:

"The Maritime Board of Trade at Yarmouth in annual session convened, respectfully ask the Federal Government to take such action in the premises as will lead to the entrance of the British West India Islands into the Canadian Confederation;

"Further resolved, the secretary be, and is hereby, instructed to forward this resolution to the members of the Federal Government, and to the members of the Senate and the House of Commons."

The resolution was seconded by W. S. Fisher of St. John. There was a strong desire among the islands to trade with Canada, but they had better connections with United States ports. The time was opportune to do something, as they would soon be united with some larger country, and this larger country should be Canada.

W. D. Taunton, Halifax, corroborated the statements made about union sentiment in the islands. Since the adoption of the preferential tariff, the situation had been greatly strengthened. The system of Government was bad and was a heavy tax on the people, so that they would welcome relief by joining the Dominion.

J. E. DeWolf pointed out that the United States were monopolizing trade between the Philippines and their home ports, and between their West Indian Islands and home ports, and he indicated that trade between Canada and the Indies would be of advantage to the Canadian marine and to Canadian shipbuilding.

The resolution was carried unanimously.

A committee comprising Messrs. Fisher, Elderkin, Taunton and Read, was appointed to draft a memorial along these lines to be presented to the Government. The same committee was empowered to take steps to interest the people of the islands in the subject.

Advertising the Provinces.

Captain Read moved that the board reaffirm the resolution of last year and reappoint the committees then appointed, asking them to make a report at the next meeting of the board.

J. E. DeWolf seconded the motion, which was carcied.

Tourist Travel.

A. W. Eakins of Yarmouth introduced the subject. For several years he had much to do with advertising his part of the Province. He felt that the work was of sufficient importance to merit attention from the Government. Provided 10,000 tourists visited Yarmouth and spent at least $50 each, the benefit to the town would total $500,000. He felt that the most effective plan which the Government could adopt would be to employ two or three experts to write up illustrated accounts of the Provinces to be inserted in the leading American magazines. He accordingly moved:

"That in the opinion of this, the Maritime Board of Trade, the several Legislatures of the Maritime Provinces should take into consideration the expediency of appropriating some reasonably large sum of money and expending it in a comprehensive and systematic plan of publicity in the direction mentioned, or in assisting the several local associations which are organized for the purpose of promoting tourist travel."

The motion was seconded by M. G. DeWolfe, who realized that the local efforts made by the various boards of trade were inadequate and should be supplemented by Government aid. He further hoped that better hotels and boarding houses would be opened, better conveyances provided, and no overcharging indulged in. He read a letter from a gentleman in Dublin, in reply to his article in the 1905 Export Number of The Canadian Grocer, showing how little the Provinces were known. Advertising was the great remedy for this defect.

The discussion was continued by Senator Ross, W. S. Fisher, John Agnew, S. P. Challoner, and some others, and the resolution was passed unanimously.

New Officers.

Father Burke reported for the nominating committee, naming the following officers:

President—Capt. Read, Summerside.

1st Vice-President—W. S. Fisher, St. John.

2nd Vice-President—A. M. Bell, Halifax.

Per. Sec'y.—C. M. Creed, Halifax.

Auditor—M. G. DeWolfe, Kentville.

Cor. Sec'y.—D. K. Currie, Summerside.

On motion the report was adopted and the chairman introduced the new president to the meeting.

In a brief speech Captain Read thanked the convention for the honor conferred upon him.

Financial Statement.

C. M. Creed now read the financial statement of the association.

M. G. DeWolfe, Auditor.

Yarmouth, N.S., August 16, 1905.

On motion the report was adopted.

Place of Meeting.

John Agnew invited the board to visit Summerside next year, and moved that Summerside be the next place of meeting. The motion was seconded by Father Burke.

J. E. DeWolf moved that the invitation from the Amherst Board be accepted, on the ground that Amherst was a more central point. The motion was seconded by J. Nichol.

Upon a standing vote being taken, Amherst was selected as the next place of meeting, and E. B. Elderkin thanked the board for their acceptance of the Amherst Board's invitation.

Father Burke moved that the thanks of the board be extended to the retiring president of the board, to the officers of the Yarmouth Board, and to all others who had assisted in making the present meeting a success, including the press and the mayor and council of Yarmouth.

The motion was seconded by Senator Ross and carried unanimously.

Speeches followed from E. K. Spinney, who replied both for himself and the press and Mayor Armstrong, after which President Read announced the names of the permanent committee to act as a delegation for the board when necessary, as follows: E. K. Spinney, Yarmouth; W. M. Jarvis, St. John; Father Burke, Alberton; J. E. DeWolf, Halifax;

M. G. DeWolfe, Kentville, N.S.
Auditor Maritime Board of Trade.

J. Nichol, Chatham; S. N. Rattenbury, Charlottetown; G. A. R. Rollings, Sydney; J. Robinson, Moncton; A. P. Prouse, Murray Harbor.

The meeting concluded with the singing of the "National Anthem."

SOME YARMOUTH CHICKENS.

Room 109!

Who said Yarmouth was a dry town?

B. H. Dodge, M.P.P., kept the fun going every time he rose to speak.

Past President Spinney is a capital entertainer, and he had everything just right—except the rain.

References to the presence of the representatives of the MacLean Publishing Co. were greeted with applause. Thanks!

There's a nice Whist Club in Yarmouth, and through President Spinney's kindness some of the delegates were entertained there.

Secretary Creed was given a splendid opportunity to sing a song for the crowd at the opening session, but he failed to rise to the occasion.

"May I ask the mover of the resolution," said Captain Read, "if he means three drills a year for the boys or a drill for three years?" (Laughter).

"I'm the old man yet," said "Charlev" Creed amid wild applause as he thanked the convention for re-appointing him to the secretaryship.

M. G. DeWolfe was rather taken back when his remark that the members at Ottawa didn't get much of a reward for their services was greeted with laughter.

Senator Ross was an apologist for the Government whenever an accusation of neglect came up. His expression, "wearied with their long labors at Ottawa," evoked much comment.

Special thanks were tendered the MacLean Publishing Co. for the attention they paid to the proceedings of the board. The company had three representatives this year at Yarmouth.

The Grand Hotel came in for many compliments. M. G. DeWolfe said it only lacked an elevator and elevators. Another delegate claimed it was the best hotel in the Provinces.

Senator Ross told with great glee about his present of a 20-year-old bottle of Scotch last Christmas. He kept it until March 24, when he celebrated his golden wedding with it.

Captain Read Tells One.

"Tunnels are so common in England that people there wonder there are so few in Canada. Why, when they were building the C.P.R. across the prairie, an Englishman came along and on seeing the work of construction exclaimed: 'I don't see how you can ever put this railway through; there won't be any tunnels!'"

Senator Ross' Sympathy.

"The way I feel towards Prince Edward Island is something like the way the Irish M.P. felt in London, when he encountered one night a big man lying in a gutter. 'My man,' said he, 'I wish I could help you up, but I can't; so I'll just lie down beside you and keep you company.'"

Father Burke is Witty.

"When it comes to advertising this tunnel we may be accused of being like the fussy man who was traveling some distance on the railroad. He had a trunk in the baggage car, and every stop the train made he would rush into the car to see that the trunk was there. Finally the irritated baggage-man called out to him, 'I wish you were an elephant instead of an ass, and then you'd always have your trunk with you.'"

SUGGESTED BY CONVENTION.

THE Maritime Board of Trade, whose proceedings are fully reported in this issue of The Canadian Grocer, is a unique organization, a business man's voluntary parliament, where matters of interest, local, Provincial and National, are discussed with a refreshing frankness, and to which the student of current thought may turn with confidence for a trustworthy index of Maritime opinion.

The impression is received from attending the meetings of the board that the members are very much in earnest, and a laudable enthusiasm for the advancement of the interests of the east is everywhere apparent. If open to criticism upon any point it is on a perhaps natural tendency to consider matters of purely local interest of greater National importance than their sister Provinces may be disposed to admit, and a desire to shoulder the financing of these local projects upon the Federal Government.

These matters are, however, incidental and the questions of larger interest were handled in a manner that would have reflected credit upon a parliament whose members were under the fine stimulus of an adequate indemnity.

A fast mail service is one of the questions discussed of general interest. It is, indeed, little creditable that in spite of our present subsidies, 564,000 pounds of Canada's Atlantic mail matter had been conveyed in 1903 via New York, while only 147,000 pounds, largely parcel post, via Canadian ports. The demand for first-class service in return for future subsidies was well advised.

The proposition for a union of the three Eastern Provinces, endorsed by the convention, was a step in the right direction, and if local interests can be overcome the east would gain in strength and solidarity. Economies of administration and a better choice of public men could be secured.

The resolution dealing with the placing of the Intercolonial Railway under a commission was, unfortunately, not discussed. There are many in Central Canada who are of the opinion that such a move would result in placing the Intercolonial on a paying basis. The views of those most directly concerned would be interesting.

The resolution passed a year ago, calling on the Government to afford protection necessary to encourage the building of steel ships, was reaffirmed, and it is to be hoped that in the tariff revision, so long promised, this important matter will receive due and sympathetic consideration.

The rounding off of Confederation by the inclusion of Newfoundland and the West Indies, endorsed by the convention, affords food for thought. As to Newfoundland there is little question in the minds of Canadians generally and the Government could increase its prestige in no more signal manner than by the realization of this project. The inclusion of the West Indies is a matter that has been given less thought. The idea is almost Imperial in its scope, and is extremely seductive. The fact that our Maritime friends, who are best acquainted with the conditions in the Island, have so enthusiastically endorsed the idea argues for its feasibility. May the day hasten when we can speak of our Canadian Dominions beyond the sea.

A NOT IMPOSSIBLE TASK.

IT is to be hoped that the proposed reorganization of the Intercolonial Railway will be upon a business basis. In spite of the best efforts of the few good men who have occupied the portfolio of Minister of Railways, the Intercolonial has been managed altogether too much in the interests of the politicians. This has been the case no matter which party happened to be in power. Men well-intentioned in both parties have tried to manage the road properly, but they have each in turn had to submit to the pressure of party exigencies.

If the Hon. Mr. Emmerson can introduce a system of management similar to that employed by private commercial enterprises he will be entitled to the thanks of the country, while a stigma under which public railway ownership now rests would be removed. There may be a great deal to discourage him, but there is also a great deal to encourage him. And the task is not, after all, a hopeless one. It can be done, if there is steadfastness behind the resolution.

PERNICIOUS BUSINESS LEGISLATION.

THE business interests of Canada have of late been the victims of a series of Provincial Legislative abortions that have been aimed at that freedom of trade throughout the Dominion which was one of the great objects of Confederation. These ill-advised and futile measures have taken the form of taxes on commercial travelers, registration fees, and the like, and while yielding no great revenue have been vexatious in the extreme, tending to discourage trade rather than to assist in defraying the expenses of Government.

A number of incorporated firms doing business throughout the Dominion have recently received notice from the Government of Nova Scotia that by a recent Act of that Province they were required to pay a registration fee according to the amount of their capitalization. Some paid it, and others paid no attention to the notice. It is claimed that there the matter dropped, that the Act is ultra vires and the fee non-collectable. At any rate those that have paid the fee are making efforts to recover the amount paid, and so far as known no steps have been taken to enforce payment from delinquents.

If there is anything that mitigates the distaste mankind in general have for paying a tax it is the feeling that the impost is inevitable and is levied on all alike. Otherwise taxation becomes unbearable.

All this system of petty taxation is wrong, and savors of the "octroi" duties of the middle ages, by which each locality sought to hedge itself around with a multiplicity of petty exactions directed against their neighbors, but which succeeded only in discouraging commerce and making life wearisome.

Nova Scotia is by no means alone in this regard—all the Provinces have sinned. But as in this case there seems no possibility of making the collection of the fee general it should be dropped altogether.

An early occasion should be taken for an inter-Provincial conference, at which this vexatious subject should receive attention, and means be taken for the removal of all such barriers to trade among the various Provinces.

Whatever their pretext, such extra-Provincial enactments are opposed to the Confederation principle, and should be abolished. They emphasize the necessity frequently urged by this paper of larger representation of business men in our Parliaments.

TECHNICAL TRAINING FOR CLERKS.

IN this age of canned and package goods there is a danger of the storekeeper becoming merely an automaton for the distribution of goods. Latterly he is able to worry along with little or no technical knowledge of the articles handled. The fixing of prices has got beyond his control to a large extent, and even his profits in many instances are practically arranged by the manufacturer. Many of the older men in the trade know what it is to have served an apprenticeship varying from three to seven years under a master who had in all probability plodded along quietly, and was not only master of his men but an expert in his line.

Time has changed all this; a great deal of the detail which was formerly considered a necessary part of the grocer's education is now done in the factory. What is more, there is a growing tendency among the trade to accept this state of affairs, and to consider that any man will do for a grocery clerk. As a matter of fact there never was a period when there was greater necessity for the retail grocer to be thoroughly conversant with the technicalities of trade. A grocer is in that most important position of standing between the producer and the consumer, and it is imperative that he should have an intimate knowledge of the goods he handles. He should be prepared to fill the position of honest advisor to his clients in such a manner as will secure and hold their confidence; he cannot do this unless he first knows the A.B.C.'s of the goods he is selling.

It is here that the importance of the technical education of the present generation of clerks comes in. True, the system of teaching in force fifty years ago is no use to-day. The average grocer is not near enough to his man to impart the necessary knowledge. Besides, many of the articles in a grocery store to-day were unknown a decade ago. The clerk is to a large extent thrown on his own resources, but given an honest desire to acquire knowledge of the trade, he will find ample means of acquiring much useful information. The Canadian Grocer has anticipated the need by giving "articles" from time to time on the origin and manufacture of foodstuffs and staple articles in the grocery trade.

A NARROW POLICY.

MANUFACTURERS west of Montreal are continually complaining about the policy of the Nova Scotia Government in exacting a royalty upon the coal mined in that Province, in consideration of the protection accorded them by the tariff. This royalty, added to the great cost of transportation, makes the price of Nova Scotia coal in Ontario quite prohibitive, and the result is that practically all the coal consumed in Ontario is imported from Pennsylvania and Ohio. On this coal a duty of 67 cents per ton is exacted, and it adds materially to the cost of production in Ontario manufactories.

Now this duty was, of course, imposed to benefit the mines of Nova Scotia, but the Ontario manufacturers claim that this result is not achieved in their case, as the Provincial royalty prevents the eastern coal from being marketable in Ontario.

For a solution of the problem, two courses are proposed. One is that the Nova Scotia Government should waive the royalty on coal shipped west of Montreal, which would enable it to compete successfully with the imported fuel. But this question has often been discussed, and the authorities in the eastern Province show no disposition to make such a concession. The other plan is to remove the duty from coal coming into Ontario; but this would give rise to complaints of unfair discrimination in favor of one Province.

The question is rapidly becoming an acute one, and the Ontario men are using all possible means to secure a more equitable adjustment of the difficulty.

MEN WANTED.

THE cry comes from the Great West that in spite of the thousands of men who have gone there to help gather the bounteous harvest the supply falls far short of the demand.

This state of affairs is likely to be repeated for some years to come. The grain-producing qualities of the west promise for a great while to increase faster than the army of workers and the machinery for gathering the harvest. This illustrates more than words can demonstrate the possibilities of the western prairies, whose fringe has scarcely yet been touched by the agriculturist.

The scarcity of labor is not confined to the agricultural industry of the Great West. In Ontario there is also a scarcity, although not to the same extent as in the newer and less settled parts of Canada. The Government reports recently issued show this.

Nor are the growers of grain alone in experiencing a shortage in the supply of labor. Manufacturers employing skilled mechanics also want more men of desired ability than they can get. There may be a superabundance of incapables, but of men who know how to do things there is a dearth rather than an over supply.

Canada wants men, but they must be of the right type.

The time is not far distant when Canada will follow the lead of Great Britain in the matter of educating the grocery clerk, namely, by opening technical schools. By such means clerks are able to acquire knowledge which would be impossible under other conditions. Many grocers considered experienced and well informed under the old regime, find it well worth their while to refreshen their memories and get hold of new ideas. Sons of tradesmen, after availing themselves of the advantages of technical training, are found re-forming the business established by their fathers on a distinctly scientific basis. The question of technical education is one of importance to the business community at large, and calls for immediate attention; meanwhile it behoves each clerk to see to it that he leaves no stone unturned to thoroughly equip himself in regard to the knowledge of his trade.

WESTERN ASSOCIATION NEWS AND TOPICS

WITH organization of the southern part of Manitoba almost completed, the association executive have a solid basis to build on. As good results of organization are seen in Southern Manitoba it should be comparatively easy work to interest the merchants who remain outside the association. At the recent semi-annual meeting, Secretary Coulson remarked in reply to a question from some person that his strongest argument in approaching a merchant and asking him to join was the long list of members already secured. Everyone recognizes that the association has before it projects which can be successfully carried out in any district only as all the retail merchants in that district accord their support to the movement. Consequently there are many who are willing to join only when they are assured that the "other fellow" is also a member. The large membership list already secured should help materially to overcome this very common objection.

A leading Winnipeg wholesaler, in conversation with The Canadian Grocer the other day, explained the position which he and others in the wholesale trade take in regard to the association proposals respecting the opening of new accounts in towns which are thought to be well supplied already with retail stores. He agreed that it would be most unfair for any wholesale house to start up in business a new man in any town already well supplied with stores simply because that house was unable to sell to any of the merchants already in business. He would condemn any such policy as unfair to the retail trade. But there was another side to the story.

"In very many towns," he explained, "the stores now doing business are not as progressive as they should be. The merchants are not up to date and, moreover, they are very slow pay. They do a long credit business and we have to wait a long time for our money. Now, suppose some live, up-to-date man comes here from the east, looks over the ground and decides to start in business in one of those towns. He comes to me with the cash to buy his stock. Now, why shouldn't I sell to him?"

Evidently, to this question there are two sides, which can be argued at considerable length. Perhaps in the final analysis it is dangerous to make sweeping statements or to lay down general rules. Each case should be considered on its merits and each case requires careful consideration by the executive and by the wholesale trade.

W. Ledoux, Arnaud, Man., member of Executive Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada.

MR. A. M. PIPER.

THE GROCER has from time to time had the privilege of presenting to its readers photos of prominent Canadian merchants, manufacturers, and men connected with the grocery trade, a feature much appreciated by its readers throughout Canada.

In this issue we present the portrait of Mr. A. M. Piper, of A. M. Piper & Co., coffees, spices and baking powders, etc., 116 Jarvis street, Toronto. Mr. Piper may be said to have been raised and brought up in the business which he so thoroughly understands and with which he has always been closely identified, and though still a comparatively young man he is thoroughly well known to the trade in Canada. Mr. Piper served his apprenticeship with the large and well-known Rochester, N.Y., coffee and spice house, R. D. Van De Carr, where he remained seven years. In 1872 he made his first trip to Canada to Clifton, now known as Niagara Falls, re-shipping from that point his firm's goods to all parts of the Dominion.

This was prior to the National Policy days. On the adoption of that policy by the Government of Sir John A. Macdonald in 1878, Mr. Van De Carr opened up a branch in the city of Hamilton, Ont., and Mr. Piper was placed in charge of the Canadian business. After four years in Hamilton the branch was moved to Toronto, with Mr. Piper still as manager. After a year he went with Todhunter, Mitchell & Co., as manufacturer, and was in that capacity two years, when his health failing the firm gave him a position as traveler, and it speaks well for his work on the road when it is stated that he occupied the position for fifteen years.

A. M. Piper,
A. M. Piper & Co., Toronto.

About this time he went into business on his own account on Adelaide street west, being joined in the venture by Mr. Langskill, one of Toronto's best known retail grocers, under the name of Piper & Langskill. After six years, during which time his firm had built up a good trade, not only locally but in the outlying districts, he made an arrangement with Todhunter, Mitchell & Co., disposing of his business to his old firm and resuming a prominent position on the road.

On January 1 last Mr. Piper severed his connection with Todhunter, Mitchell & Co., and opened up the factory at 116 Jarvis street, Toronto. Here he has established an up-to-date coffee roasting and grinding factory, baking powders, extracts and spice mill, and is now securing a goodly share of the trade. Mr. Piper's knowledge of the business in every detail, combined with his pleasant and agreeable manner, brings him a welcome wherever he has once done business. For many years Mr. Piper made periodical trips through the Maritime Provinces and Quebec, and his many customers in the east have ever found his word and conduct reliable, and if knowledge of business, experience on the road and hard work make for success, the firm of A. M. Piper & Co. will secure it.

GROCERIES.

Montreal, Thursday, Aug. 24, 1905.

THE general condition of the grocery jobbing trade is a quiet one. Business is not equal to that of last week. The fact that travelers have been off the road on holidays, and the harvesting operations of farmers, have resulted in lighter orders from country points. The demand for sugar is not as heavy as it has been, country demand being small. Teas have shown good business and the generally firm prices and strong feeling of further enhancement in all grades and kinds of teas, has resulted in better business. The general opinion among the trade is that higher prices in teas are undoubtedly in sight during the next month or six weeks. The heavy shortage in Japans, particularly low grades, has provoked lively trade, and good demand. London and Colombo are both strong in Ceylon greens and blacks, and China teas also are stronger. Molasses and syrup are quiet. Coffees, firm and looking higher. Spices continue strong. Canned goods have been fairly active, deliveries of early orders being attended to by jobbers. The speculation as to new prices on corn and tomatoes is interesting, and low prices are looked for. Weather conditions at present promise large crop and the cry of short pack is being discounted by the trade. Certain it is that the restrictive prices of 1904 are not looked for. Dried fruits are showing interest and the near arrival of new dried fruit at low prices will tend to stimulate buying. California dried fruits are high, and in prunes, small sizes may be left out of consideration—there are none under 50 to 60's. Fish business is commencing to look up, and the arrival of the first oysters is noted. Codfish is scarce and high. Green fruits are fairly active, apples being prominent as well as pears. Bananas fairly plentiful at good prices. Flour is steady and feed scarce. Hay coming in slowly, farmers being too busy with harvesting. Butter, cheese and eggs are worrying dealers exceedingly, and the situation in these lines is decidedly unusual and puzzling.

Canned Goods—Trade is reported good. Orders for early fruits and vegetables are being filled by the trade. New prices of corn and tomatoes are not yet out. Some speculation is noted by brokers and jobbers, and it is reported that both tomatoes and corn are being sold short. Speculation as to price puts figures at about 80c. for tomatoes and 70c. to 72 1-2c. for corn, and even under this is mentioned. If the fine weather holds it is expected large crops will be available. A letter from one of the leading packers was shown us, in which it is stated that there will be sufficient of both corn and vegetables to fill all orders, and barring untoward weather, the pack will be heavy. In face of this, prices are looked to as being away under those of last season. The feeling in the trade is that these two lines will be listed to allow of retailing at three tins for 25c., a popular price, and one that would meet the approval of both jobber and retailer, and certainly that of the consumer.

As regards canned salmon, despite the reported heavy run of sockeye and corresponding pack, prices asked on the coast to-day are in most instances higher than opening prices of the season. Watt, Scott & Goodacre, in their report under date of Aug. 21, explain this anomaly as follows:

"The U. S. canners, in a desire to drive buying into Alaska Red channels, have fixed a price of $6 per case on Puget Sound sockeye. We have not heard that the U. S. Association are making one price for home consumption, and another for export to G.B.; if not, it follows that the B. C. packers have London market to themselves.

"Even should Great Britain leave a handsome balance in British Columbia at the end of the season, there is on record an order-in-council making 1906 a close season for B. C. salmon. But if this legislation is annulled, there remains the fac that 1906 will in the ordinary course of events be a season of small runs.

"We do not advocate buying salmon for 1906-7 requirements, but more foolish things have been done."

Sugar—Trade during the past week has been fair, though a slight falling off in demand is reported by the jobbing trade. An easier foreign beet market leaves the possibility of a decline in the air. Country orders are getting smaller and dealers seem to have sized up their requirements.

Syrups and Molasses—Conditions are unchanged in molasses. A fair amount of business is turning over and the fear that was prevalent lately that an advance would take place, has not as yet materialized. General conditions warrant careful study of the situation. Corn syrups are showing some improvement in demand.

Teas—The situation in teas is reported very much improved during the week. Brokers and jobbers alike say business is good and all feel that this condition is likely to improve. Japans are firm. Early liquoring medium grade Japans have advanced in the United States during the past few weeks; in fact, first crop teas of all grades are firmer, due no doubt to shortage in settlements, and this will no doubt be felt in greater measure after the third crop has been picked. Ceylon greens are firm, but show no change since last report. New pea leaf Chinas are arriving and showing fair quality, though in the opinion of some heavy dealers, not as good cup quality as last year. China blacks steady and firm.

LAST MINUTE PROVISION MARKET.

Montreal, Thursday, Aug. 24, 12.30 p.m.

BUTTER—Market unchanged and dull some dealers looked for advance; no profit at present high prices; good to fine, 21½c. to 22c.; choicest, 22¼c. to 22½c. and Fancy Townships, 22¾c.

CHEESE—Market continues strong; export demand lighter; Townships, 11¾c.; Quebecs, 11¼c.; finest Ontario, 11¾c.

EGGS—Firm market; demand light; country buyers still troubled to get supplies at profitable figures; have to pay 16½c. to 17c. for straight gathered stock.

PROVISIONS—Quiet, but steady market; no change; live hogs, supplies light, but equal to packers' demands.

Foreign Dried Fruits—More activity is noticed among the trade in foreign dried fruits. As regards currants, the arrangement with the Bank of Athens having now been completed, the market has assumed a steadier tone and considerable business has been done during the past few days. Naturally, the price of currants is somewhat higher than it has been during the past two years, but is still very moderate, more so, perhaps, than was expected, owing to the powers conferred by the Government upon the syndicate.

Raisins—Quite important orders have been given for Valencias for shipment, during the present month, as well as for first direct steamer at prices about 2s. less than was paid last year for similar shipments. With an average crop these low prices seem to be appreciated by importers, and it would not surprise us in view of the scarcity of fruit on this market and the natural active demand for new fruit, to see shippers increase their prices in the near future. It has occurred in the past that the opening prices were found to be the lowest of the season and history may repeat itself. First shipments via Liverpool were made on the 20th inst. and should reach here in about three weeks.

Walnuts—The small stocks remaining in France, of Grenobles, have been cornered by a Bordeaux shipper and prices have consequently advanced. Shelled walnuts are practically in the same position and the advance we predicted some time ago is now "un fait accompli," the market having advanced about 3c. per lb. during the last month. Sicily Filberts seem to have touched bottom, and importers who took advantage of our advice to get their orders in early at the recent low prices are to be congratulated.

Dates are going to be cheap this year, and it is expected that shipments will be made from Bussorah early in October, and prices are expected to open low.

As regards California evaporated fruits, A. P. Tippet & Co. advise a strong market, and crop far short of original estimate. Small prunes will be practically unobtainable, the largest quantity of fruit running 50-60's. Quotations are subject to change without notice.

Evaporated Apples—Owing to a shortage in the apple crop, and perhaps also to a slight improvement in demand, last week's advance in evaporated apples has been maintained; none are to be found, it is claimed, for less than 7c. per lb., the margin being from 7c. to 7 1-2c. Dried apples, however, have seen no change and are still dull at 2 1-2c. to 3c.

Beans—The demand for beans has taken a bad drop and in consequence prices are now easier. A large jobber says that no offer is made in beans outside of $1.60. The stocks continue to be very light and fully equal to demand.

Feed—The feed market is this week in first-class condition. Although the demand was very good last week, it has nevertheless much improved. This is due to inquiries from the country, where pastures, it is said, are poor and to the fact that very little hay is arriving. Both Ontario and Manitoba bran have gone up, while mouillie, which shares also this improvement, seems to hold firm. We quote:

Manitoba bran, in bags, per ton	18 00

Flour—This week's trade in flour is decidely quiet. Millers report a small demand generally and some have taken forward steps in reducing their prices. Exports do not seem to be in any better condition than for a few weeks past. This dragging condition has prevailed for quite a few weeks, although occasionally an improvement has looked near. Just at present dealers are much reserved in their prophesies. We quote:

Rolled Oats—The usual dullness prevails in this line. Demand is limited both locally and abroad. In fact, exports are very small, while dealers report a very quiet local business in rolled oats as well as in oatmeal. Prices have seen a drop on account of this quietness. We quote:

Fine oatmeal, bags	2 85 2 90

Hay—Receipts of hay are small, and consequently, local stocks light. A good demand is reported, however. The hay crop this year has been large, but not especially fine in quality. Farmers are still busy in the country and do not bring in their new hay freely.

No. 1 new hay is not to be found on the market and No. 1 old is very scarce, and selling at $9. Medium grades are more plentiful, and at firm prices, as below:

Ontario Markets.

GROCERIES.

Toronto, Aug. 25, 1905.

THE general business conditions are presenting a better aspect since our last issue; there has been a greater activity in receipt of orders, which points to the fact of depleted stocks, owing, probably, in measure to the report of the return of a number of the holiday folk. Prices of canned goods have been amended to suit revised canners' prices, with demand showing slight improvement. Sugar has been active, with reports from foreign markets showing fluctuation and home prices firm. Syrups are slow and no new feature to report. Coffee has shown more activity with prices firming.

There has been more demand for tea but little inclination is manifest to purchase beyond immediate need, owing to the belief that the present high prices are not warranted by either the quality or the general conditions. In foreign dried fruits there has been good business doing with prices ruling firm. Nuts are featureless. Rice and tapioca are quiet, with strong reports from primal points. Spices have made a distinct move, with good prospects. Eggs are arriving in more abundance and firm prices are ruling. Fresh fish is well to the front and prices inclined to firm up for rise.

The wheat market is showing greater activity. Some export sales have already been effected in Ontario Winter wheat, but not of sufficient account to establish a definite price. Flour has been steady with former prices ruling firm, and trade of only small bulk. Cereals have been occupying attention, and oats have made an advance of 25c. The situation in hides is somewhat unsatisfactory; prices have advanced without apparent reason, and consequently buying is somewhat deranged. It is expected that prices will drop to a lower parity at early date.

Canned Goods—Trade in canned goods has remained inactive though somewhat improved upon the previous week's report. Our quotations have been amended according to the supplementary lists of new cannings, all other goods remaining unchanged. We quote:

Sugar—The local sugar market has been more active the last week, and prices continue firm at previous quotations. From foreign markets reports are somewhat eccentric. The firm tone at European points, which has developed at close of last week, proved of short duration. On Monday last cables denoted a decided fall on the London markets, with only slight recovering, market closing with lower prices and steadier prospects.

The United States market for "refined" is reported as steady with prices stiffening to firmness, refiners holding at present quotations. Few new sales were reported, but a fair quantity was removed on previous contracts. Some heavy sales are reported of "raws" by the refiners at the present basis of quotations, but no authentic confirmation is reported. Our previous quotations still rule. We quote:

Syrups and Molasses—Home trade in these goods is of small volume and uninteresting. Prices remain without change. Reports from United States points denote small holdings with dealers not pushing sales. Jobbers and bakers were inquiring against Fall season, and a limited business has been done. We quote:

Coffee—Trade in coffee has been more active, and our previous quotations continue firm. The advices to hand from New York denote a firmer market. For spot coffee the demand was active, but little business was transacted owing to the relatively high prices asked. In mild grades a firm market continued to be reported with good business done at full prices. The report of frost in the Brazil area, and consequent damage to the crops was a factor in firming prices, and created a measure of activity on the speculative markets. We quote:

Tea—There has been a measure of activity in tea sales since our last issue for stocking up purposes. It is considered, however, that present prices will not warrant heavy buying. The general opinion is that the London market excitement is altogether unwarranted, and that a few weeks will see a steadier and easier market. The London market for July experienced a brisk demand for all descriptions of tea, buyers showing great anxiety to replenish stocks, and had it not been for the heavy stocks accumulated a much higher ratio of price would have resulted, considering that July is one of the smallest months for arrivals. Withdrawals for the month of July will be the highest in the history of the trade. The great demand is for high-grade teas. All teas showing good cup quality are stoutly competed for at an advance of 4c., while commoner grades are less keen at an advance of about 1c. The London sales have been closed since our last issue, and no new reports are to hand. We quote:

Foreign Dried Fruits—There has been greater activity in the home market since our last report, and we are able to report good business in Valencia raisins, with prospects advancing. Retailers of Soap

Those who have been in the business for 25 years or more know that the price of Baby's Own Soap to the trade has never changed. The retailing price, however, has gradually declined from 40c. to 30c. and even to 25c. a box. At that price the profit to the retailer is almost nothing.

That this state of affairs injures the sale of Baby's Own Soap we are quite sure, and while in the last five years its production has doubled we know that under other conditions it would have trebled or more. For us to cut our price would in no way meet the case. Ambitious dealers would at once, as they have in the past, announce a further cut in the price of Baby's Own to draw custom for their other lines, and we would be paying the price.

When the question of forming the business of Alfred Savage & Son into a joint stock company was discussed, one of the important factors which decided the change was the opportunity it would afford to interest dealers in the manufacturing profit as well as their own end of all our lines.

A retailer owning a few shares in the business would surely push the sales of our products. So before offering the few shares which we have decided to sell to the public we are tendering them to the trade throughout Canada.

Until Sept. 30th no application will be considered except from dealers in soap. Not only will the dealer thus stand to profit from every sale he makes of Albert Soaps, but the increase in the market value of the shares will surely benefit him.

Similar concerns in England and the United States have seen their shares increase from par to two or even three times their face value. The issue, however, is limited, and first come first served It is hoped, however, that every shareholder in Albert Soaps Limited will be a handler of their goods. Prospectus containing full information will be mailed on request.

N. B. Markets.

New Brunswick, Aug. 21, 1905.

THERE is improved business, though it might still be called quiet. With, however, the beginning of September Fall trade will commence. Not only is there the regular business of supplying the retail grocers in the city and throughout this Province, as well as a large part of Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia, but there is also a large business with those lumbermen who send crews into the woods. This is chiefly business in the heavy groceries. The accounts are large. Just now our tourist business is large. August is the best month.

Spice—In spice the season of demand is just beginning. The market is tending firmer. Particularly is this true in cloves. There have been no cloves for a long time. Ginger is still low and nutmegs are cheap. Cream of tartar is costing a shade lower.

Oil—In burning oil there is an improved sale. The demand for Canadian burning oil is very small. Price of oil has been extremely low. In fact, oil was never so cheap as the present tank waggon price. Lubricating oils are finding rather less sale as the season advances. There is a fair sale for paint oil Burning oil, barrels, 17c. to 17 1-2c., tank wagon, 15c. Linseed raw, 52c.; boiled 55c. Turpentine $1.

Salt—In Liverpool coarse market has been well supplied this Summer, there being continued regular arrivals. Prices have ruled firm. Sales are good and this is the season of demand. Liverpool factory filled has a limited sle. Canadian fine is freely sold. There is increased sale for fancy table salt prepared so as not to harden. Liverpool coarse salt, 62c. to 65c. Canadian fine, bulk bags, $1.15 Liverpool factory filled, $1.10; Canadian fine bulk, barrels, $1.85 Trapani salt, 18c. to 20c. per bushel; Canadian cheese salt, $2.25; Canadian fine, 20-lb. boxes 23c., 10's 14c.; Canadian butter salt, $2.20; barrels, 100-3 $3.30, 60-5 $3.10, 30-10 $2.85; cartons, cases of 24, 60-5 $1.90.

Canned Goods—Many of our dealers are losing money on peas, as quite a quantity were carried over. New are extremely low. In spot corn and tomatoes, prices are rather higher. Large quantities have been contracted for, both from association and outside packers. Fruits unchanged. In oysters, prices are firmer. Meats have a steady sale. New Spring salmon are here. This means rather lower prices. Lobsters hold at extreme figures. Domestic sardines unchanged. Haddies, kipper and clams, only a fair supply. Scallops are scarce. Corn, $1.05 to $1.25; tomatoes, $1.30 to $1.35; beans, 80c. to 95c.; peas, 65c. to 80c.; Flemish beauty pears, 2's, $1.55 bartletts, 2's, $1.70; 3's, $2.25; peaches, 2's, $1.90; 3's, $2.87 1-2; to $2.90; pumpkin, 85c. to 90c.; cherries, 2's, $2.35 to $2.50; salmon, pinks, $4; cohoes, $4.50 to $5.50; Springs, $5.75 to $6; lobsters, $12 to $13; sardines, 1-4's, $3.75 to $4; haddies, $4; kippers, $4; clams, $3.75 to $4.

Green Fruit—Dealers are very busy. Bananas are still the backbone of the trade. Oranges, very scarce and high. Lemons are at almost extreme figures. There is a steady sale, but in small quantities. Pears are high. Eastern as well as California stock now offered. California plums are high. Quality fine. Georgia peaches were a short crop. Californias are high. Apples are still quite high. Melons sell slowly. Some grapes seen, but are still high. The crop of Nova Scotia cherries was very small. All fruits east are a light crop. Bananas, $1.50 to $2.50; oranges, California, $6.50; lemons, $8.00 per case, $6.50 per box; tomatoes. 5c. per lb.; apples, $5; California peaches, $2; pears, $4; plums, $2.50; melons, 60c.

Dried Fruits—This is a line of increasing interest. California peaches and apricots have advanced rapidly. Prunes are higher and are much above last year. Old seeded are higher. While new California raisins are not quoted, full prices are expected. Loose muscatels are out of the market. Spot valencias are scarce. New will cost quite low, and the outlook is for good business. Malaga layers quoted about as last year. Loose, higher. In currants, old are higher; new will cost high; market firm. The sale is for cleaned, chiefly in packages. Dates and figs will be quite low. Peels about as usual. There was a wide range in the price of citron offered. Evaporated apples are higher. The outlook is for full figures. Onions are a light stock. Valencias hold the market, prices firmer. Valencia onions, $2.50 to $2.75; evaporated apples, 7 1-2c. to 8c.; Valencia layers, 6 1-2c. to 7 1-2c.; loose muscatels, 3 crown, 7c. to 7 1-2c.; seeded, 8 1-2c. to 9 1-2c.; currants, bulk cleaned, 6 1-2c.; packages, 7c. to 7 1-2c.; sultanas, 7c.; prunes, 90-100, 25's, 5c.; apricots, 14c.; peaches, 12c.; dates, 4c.

Sugar—While the price has been advanced slightly, there is little confidence in the market. Stocks very light. Dealers buy from hand to mouth. Some foreign granulated has been offered very low; fair shape. Granulated, barrels, $5.10; bags, 5c.; bright yellow, barrels, $4.90; second grade, $4.60; unbranded, $4.45.

Flour, Feed and Meal—Ontarios are again lower and it is felt Manitoba must follow. Difference is greater than for a long time. Oatmeal, while still high, is not so firmly held; stocks large. Oats are rather lower. Cornmeal is higher; a steady sale. Beans are unsteady in price. but are higher, though some have been able to import at shaded figures. Manitoba flour, $6.10 to $6.15; Ontario, $5.05 to $5.10; oatmeal, $5.50; cornmeal, $3; hand-picked beans, $1.90 to $1.95.

N. S. Markets.

Halifax, N.S., Aug. 22, 1905.

REVIEWING the grocery trade since the opening of the year up to the present time, a member of one of the largest wholesale houses in this city said that business was now good; in fact it was beyond expectations. The bad Winter and the backward Spring very greatly affected business, and he pointed out that during the month of February the Intercolonial and the Dominion Atlantic Railways moved freight only on a two or three days' schedule, and this stagnated trade.

The markets are very slow at present. The Bank fish which have been made are coming in now more freely, and the last sale here ex-vessel was at $5.55. Heavy arrivals, however, will not be along for another month. Some shore fish from Newfoundland are also coming in, and are bringing from $5 to $5.50. According to advices from St. John's, Newfoundland, prices there are steady and unchanged. There is not likely to be any drop this month. The position of the market will be largely dependent on the size of the catch on the northern part of the Coast of Labrador, from which there is no definite news at the present time. If the take by the floaters is about fair, the whole catch will be an average one, and even this will make a five dollar price for prime mercantile. The northern floaters are getting more and more into the custom of bringing their fish home to make on the Newfoundland Coast, and thus making it rank within shore, and tending to overstock the shore market and force down the price. The foreign markets are a little slow all around just at this time. The demand in the Portuguese and Oporto markets is light, and prices are low.

Canned Goods—Last season's canned goods have all been cleared up, and the new pack is coming to empty markets. The feature of the market at the present time is the low price of the new pack of peas. Standard brands are being quoted here at as low as 62½c. a dozen. Local dealers have placed good orders this season.

Sugar—The demand for sugar continues good. Since June 27 last there has only been one advance in the price. The increase was 5c. per 100 pounds, and this is considered something unusual in the preserving season. The demand may be said to be unusually heavy, and there is no indication of a change in prices. Holders of raw sugar are now more confident of the market. Quotations here follow: Cut loaf, in bbls., $5.65; granulated, $5.10; Austrian granulated, $5; bright yellow, $4.90; No. 1 yellow, $4.60; unbranded yellows, $4.45. All net prices.

Hams and Bacon—On the local market hams and bacon have all been cleared up. Prices have been strong straight along. The supply has not been equal to the demand, and at times there was a shortage on the market. Hams are quoted at 15c., and bacon at 12c. This has been an exceptionally good year for this class of goods. Teas and coffees are in good demand, with prices about steady.

The Brand of Quality

From the beginning, THE OLD HOMESTEAD people have made quality the first object of their efforts. For quality always tells in the end and, sometimes, as in the case of OLD HOMESTEAD canned goods, from the beginning.

Grocers who have worked late and early building up a good business know the importance of a reputation for just a little better goods than their competitors.

OLD HOMESTEAD goods just fitted their case. The labels were more beautiful, the tins more dependable, and the contents more delicious than any of the old brands. As a consequence, OLD HOMESTEAD goods made a strong hit with the consumer, and increased trade for the retailer.

If you have never given OLD HOMESTEAD BRAND a trial, try them now. A small order will do at first, for larger will follow. Be sure you get OLD HOMESTEAD BRAND.

B. C. Markets.

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 17, 1905.

RAPID as the expansion of the fruit growing industry has been in B.C. during the past two or three years, it by no means keeps pace with the vast market demand in the three Canadian west Provinces. At Winnipeg, and even further west, the remark is frequently made that B.C. does not give the people of the prairie city a chance to try its fruit. The reason simply is that there is not enough fruit to go round. Down the main line of the C.P.R. as far as Regina, and on the Calgary and Edmonton and the Prince Albert branches, a considerable proportion of B. C. fruit is now marketed. In fact, this year it is very noticeable that the fruit from Washington State and other U. S. points, is nearly displaced by similar varieties of fruit from B.C.

The peaches raised in the Okanagan are all being marketed in the Northwest, and they are of the very finest quality. A comparison with those from California results in a verdict in favor of the B. C. peach. It is juicy, luscious, and full-flavored. Firm of texture, it is yet as full of juice as a plum, though handling well and standing the shipment splendidly. This is but the second year that any quantity has been available for the market, but another year will see large additions to the quantities produced. Being raised on irrigated land, the crop is independent of climatic conditions and the number of orchards coming into bearing is very considerable.

The work done by the British Columbia Government in the past two years under the very able management of R. M. Palmer, of the Department of Agriculture, has placed B.C. before its natural market in a proper light. It has shown that the varieties and the quality of fruit can be shipped from this Province, and now the Northwest are looking this way for their supplies. The work carried out by Mr. Palmer has been in the form of exhibits of fresh and preserved B. C. fruits at some of the leading Manitoba and Northwest exhibitions. Last year Winnipeg and Brandon were visited. This year both these places were favored with the handsome and attractive fruit exhibits, and Indian Head and Regina were also visited. Mr. Palmer, assisted by Mr. W. J. Brandrith, secretary of the B. C. Fruit-Growers' Association, was in charge of the exhibit. There was this year a much larger variety of fruit displayed for the reason that small fruits and cherries were later in their season, and apples, pears, plums, peaches and apricots were earlier. A very great range as to variety was available. The exhibits through the three or four weeks of the campaign were refreshed from time to time by daily supplies shipped direct by growers. That which was in danger of going stale was sold at cost, and the people given a concrete illustration of the quality of the fruit of B. C.

Mr. Palmer, who has just returned, says that the campaign was in every way successful, and the splendid showing made is bringing the capacity of the Province as a fruit producer very strongly before the people of the Prairie Provinces. It merely remains for the growers in B. C. to continue as they have started and they will capture the whole market, as soon as the supply enables them to do so.

For once more, and most authorities say for four years, the salmon run is over. The legendary fourth year of plenty has once more been well exemplified. Never was there a better run of fish. The regrettable feature is that never was there more waste. Millions of dead fish were floating on the waters of the Gulf. These were destroyed because the canneries could not take care of them in the heaviest portion of the run, and the fish would go stale. Sometimes it was the surplus of individual fishermen over the limit of 200 to the boat placed by the canneries. But undoubtedly part of the fault (the individual fisherman, of course, says all the fault) is to be charged to the fish traps. They swept with their great drag nets thousands at a haul. Scow-loads were said to have gone bad and to have been taken out to sea and dumped.

The serious feature of the salmon situation is that the prospects are that next year there will be a very light run. Also that 1908 will be a poor run. Last year was extremely poor and in 1902 the run was but little better. The run of 1903 being somewhat better than the other two years, making up the four year cycle, the canners think that 1907 will be better than the year 1906 and 1908. It was for this reason that the Dominion Government enacted the regulation to make a close season for the two years last mentioned. This will, however, be inoperative, because the Legislature of Washington State failed to enact co-operative measures.

Settlement is progressing in Northern B. C. this year to an extent hardly to be credited. Up the Skeena River and its branches, hardy pioneers have pushed their way in to valleys known to be fertile for farming as well as rich in coal, timber and minerals. The Premier, Hon. Mr. McBride, and the Minister of Lands and Works, Hon. Mr. Green, have returned from a tour of the northern part of the Province, which the Premier dubs "New British Columbia," so great is its extent and so great the development beginning. It is anticipated that in reaching the coast a line from the G.T.P. will cross this region, hence the attraction of so many prospectors and settlers there. They are preparing to go in for grain and cattle very extensively and have a large area under settlement.

WHOLESALE GROCER'S HOLIDAY.

MR. Hugh Blain, of the Eby, Blain Co., Limited, Toronto, is taking a well earned holiday through Quebec, the Maritime Provinces and the Eastern States, in company with his daughter. The Grocer had the privilege and pleasure of an interview at the Windsor, and a few hours of pleasant reminiscences were indulged in. Recognizing in Mr. Blain one of Toronto's leading merchants, and undoubtedly one of Canada's best known figures in wholesale grocery circles, The Grocer took occasion to inquire into his views on grocery conditions and trade matters in the West. Speaking of grocery affairs, Mr. Blain said: "The general condition of the grocery trade in Toronto and as far as my knowledge goes, of Ontario and the west generally, is most satisfactory, and the outlook decidedly encouraging for a good season's trade. Crop conditions on the whole are good, trade is on a good basis, manufacturing steady and new industries springing up in a substantial manner. As regards my own city, I may say that Toronto is assuming the position its geographical location entitles it to, that of the leading receiving and distributing centre of the products of the soil, and with the completion of the several lines of railway under construction by the C.P.R., the Great Northern and James Bay lines, will more than ever make it the centre of a vast trade. The serious fire which visited our city last year was a hard blow but the vitality of the commercial interests of Toronto, with the enterprise of the business community, was strong enough to overcome the disaster, and today the effect has shown itself in a greater and more substantial rebuilding in the visited section. It is this very commercial resiliency that makes Toronto great and augurs for a great future. It would be impolitic for me to make comparisons with your great metropolis, its position is well known and recognized, and the growth and prosperity of Montreal reflects itself upon the country."

Mr. Hugh Blain,

Reverting to the conditions between the jobbing and retail grocery trade, Mr. Blain stated that many of the questions that had been disturbing in the trade were eliminated and those that were still of a more or less frictious character would gradually be reduced and done away with. "It requires only a rational consideration of matters, a common sense consideration of the conditions surrounding many of the retailers, to bring all these disturbing elements into line, and so place both the jobber and retailer on a footing where a reasonable living profit will obtain. The calling of the grocer is one which at best is none too profitable for the amount of money invested, the hard labor, long hours and the natural risks of the business necessary for its conduct, and it is in the interests of the trade generally that many of the changes introduced have been made, and I believe, conscienously are admitted as being positively beneficial by even those who were too prone to criticize the movement as one of caste or class. Trade is in a continual state of evolution and conditions that were logical twenty or even ten years ago, could not be accepted and workable now, and it is necessary that business men, both wholesale and retail, adapt themselves to such means and methods as are in keeping with prevailing conditions, only by so doing can all interests be satisfactorily served."

Mr. Blain and daughter spent Sunday and Monday in Montreal, departing for Quebec and the Sagnenay. The sight of the squadron of H. S. H. Prince Louis of Battenburg at Quebec will be one taken in by them en route. Mr. Blain expects to be back in Toronto during the second week of the Exhibition, no doubt greatly benefitted by the tour.

CANNED FRUITS

We have been so busy discussing the Canned Goods' situation in general the past few weeks that we have neglected mentioning Canned Fruits.

We are very pleased to be able to say that Our Canned Fruits this season are the very finest that have ever been packed in this or any other country. Owing, however, to the very high prices we have had to pay this season for fruits (you know how much more you yourselves have had to pay for your fruits this season) and, also to the increased cost of sugar, we have had to make a slight advance in prices over last season, we could of course, have kept down the cost of packing by slack filling the tins and by using less sugar, but in conformity with our determined policy to pack only goods of the very best quality, we have filled the cans to their capacity and have preserved the fruits in extra heavy syrup. In this connection we may say that some packers have been accustomed to pack their fruits in a light syrup. We, however, have preserved our fruits in an extra heavy syrup, which means an extra cost for sugar of about 15c. per doz.

We consider it highly important that you should call the attention of your customers to the fact that all our fruits known as Heavy Syrup and Preserved, under any of our brands, are equal to the finest home-made fruits, and are ready prepared for the tables of the most fastidious. You should also draw your customers' attention to the fact that we only accept for canning purposes fruits at their highest stage of perfection and when best fit for table use.

We guarantee our fruits to be absolutely pure and preserved with cane sugar only. Our fruits are also put up under perfect sanitary conditions and in a most scientific manner.

If you have not yet placed your season's order for fruits you should do so at once, as the pack is limited and the demand is extraordinarily strong.

Housewives have come to realize that the canned fruits of the Canadian Canners, Limited, are cheaper in price and better in quality than those preserved in their own kitchens. If you wish to increase your trade in canned fruits, buy and sell only brands such as: Aylmer, Little Chief, Log Cabin, Bowlby's, Auto, Simcoe, Delhi, Boulter's, Lalor's, Thistle, Kent, Lakeport, Schenck's, Lowrey's, Saylor's Brands.

DIAMOND BRAND MAPLE SYRUP

MFD. BY SUGARS LTD MONTREAL

HAS A FLAVOR EQUAL TO FRESH GOODS DIRECT FROM THE BUSH.

INDEPENDENT—SURE THING!

IT is easy to buy canned PEAS now at cost; also very easy to criticise them, but it takes a lot of study and hard work to produce a satisfactory canned pea. We hope that every Packer is producing the best pea possible. This will do more to increase the consumption than the cost prices. We are doing our best to make the "AUTUMN LEAF BRAND" just right. We have a few thousand cases more of the medium grade peas to offer at prices that will forever eliminate the Hawker in that line.

"AUTUMN LEAF BRAND CORN."—When it comes to nice fancy sweet sugar corn it is a 100 to one that we lead. Reasons why:—Our Manager learned the corn canning business with the world-renowned corn packer, J. W. Jones, of Portland, Me., commencing August, 1869, and followed the business from that time. He has a thorough technical knowledge as well as the practical experience of all these years, with and at the head of some of the oldest and largest Packers in the U.S., as well as with the most important Packer in Canada. If you want more proof, and the best line of canned corn, ask for the "Autumn Leaf Brand."

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

Montreal, Aug. 24, 1905.

THERE has been another advance in the cheese market. Unfortunately, however, it seems as if this last advance had again been too sudden and carried too far, and the consequence will probably be another dull spell until British importers get accustomed to the higher prices and again commence to send in their orders.

While the situation, as formerly pointed out, is undoubtedly strong, the high prices ruling at present are certainly a "stumbling block" for legitimate order business, and the more conservative dealers are commencing to show a desire to sell their present holdings rather than add high priced stock to them; in fact it is not considered safe or good policy to stock up with goods at present high prices for future demand, no matter how sound the situation may appear at present. There is a limit to the value of goods, and when any article which has been considered a necessity becomes a luxury, the general demand falls into insignificance, and then the available supplies are bound to meet a limited demand.

The supplies from Canada are undoubtedly a most important factor in the British cheese markets, but, after all, there are many other sources of supply to be considered. When our season of production ends a new season opens in the Antipodes, and thus it goes on. The British consumer may be obliged to pay a little more for his pound of cheese, and perhaps he may eat a little less to even up; at any rate it is well for merchants to act with caution when prices reach a point where the consumption might fall off.

Our stocks are still at a low point, but while our recent shipments are now showing a decrease as compared with last year, stocks in Great Britain have lately shown a slight increase. On the other hand, our daily receipts are falling off, and there is no doubt a considerable shrinkage in the flow of milk. Present values may therefore be justified, but there does not seem to be much room to continue the upward movement in prices.

Butter has also advanced again. Reports from the United Kingdom tell us that butter has not been selling well; a considerable quantity has been carried over until it became stale, etc. This is unfortunate, but we have no control over it. If the British importer wishes to speculate for higher prices and overholds his butter, it is his property, and he can do what he likes with it. But if this deteriorated article is put on the market as finest Canadian creamery it may be said that our product may suffer in reputation, and we may lose business without any fault of ours. Our average quality of creamery butter, while it is fresh, is wholesome and palatable, and it does not seem right that speculation should be allowed to ruin the reputation of our product.

From our present standpoint prices are not likely to recede, and, as butter is wanted, a good, fair trade should result. The British retailer may resort to cheap substitutes, as "Margarine," but where butter is wanted such substitutes will not fill the demand.

Dairy butter continues to be scarce and dear, and will probably remain in this position for the balance of the season.

LONDON, ENG., PRODUCE LETTER.

(By Our Own Correspondent.)

THE public holiday during the week of Aug. 10 has had the effect of making the spot demand for butter even quieter than usual, but, owing to the general shortage, good prices are being asked and, in most cases, realized. Naturally the retail trade is viewing the upward tendency with considerable anxiety, and it remains to be seen whether they will continue to buy at prsent stiffish prices.

The London market has not responded to Canadian prices; nor can it be expected to do so, owing to the upward leaps and bounds of quotations, and buyers have been compelled to recede. For instance, to-day (Aug. 10) quotations on eastern creameries c.i.f. stand at 108s. as against 102s. a week ago, and those firms who were fortunate enough to purchase at a lower figure then ruling have cleared out at a substantial profit. But at such a price it seems almost an impossibility for merchants to make money, and unless stocks are very short Canadians will find it difficult to command the prices asked for.

In the matter of quality, reports go to show that there is still considerable variation in quality, and this also deserves consideration. It is felt that, in course of time, Canadians will succeed in shipping butter of a more uniform quality, and it might be said right here that if a milder butter can be sent along, it will be a decided improvement. Some of the casks, casually inspected, are found as salt as brine. This refers more particularly to the London market.

As to packages, there appears to be a decided preference for boxes over pails here, the former securing a saving of from one to two shillings in the handling. This does not mean to imply that pails do not give satisfaction, for, taken together, they give no cause for complaint, although some districts ship better than others.

The Danish market is unchanged today and quotations are steady, the rapid advances of late interfering very much with the sale. Finest Danish butter is quoted at 120s. to 122s. New Zealand is expecting to realize high prices for butter also, having rapidly cleared off their last shipments over here some weeks back. This is evidently going to be a year of great caution in the butter world here, for with confusion reigning in Russia, heavy calls from the continent on Danish supplies, and short supplies from elsewhere, buyers, unless careful, will be involved in heavy losses. As is always the case in such situations, the speculative element is strong.

In regard to the question of the butter supremacy on this side, about which some mention was made in The Canadian Grocer of July 14, the palm would undoubtedly go to the country producing butter of the most uniform quality and weight, and the most regular supplies. The ever-varying demand of the world's markets forbids regular supplies to this country and gives birth to that speculation in which both quality and weight are often sacrificed, so that there seems little probability of any country ever being in a position to claim the palm as its own. But at the same time it must be fully understood that the public demand, which after all is of paramount importance, will always be for the best quality, and the country that neglects to turn out the finest grade will have to take a back seat. There are periods in every year when butter from each country shows improvment over others for the time being. A correspondent reports that he has seen New Zealand qual to Danish, and others could say the same, especially in regard to last season. For that matter, times have been—not seldom either—when Canadian butter has been voted "equal to any." When salting, the limit should be from 2 per cent. to 3 per cent. of salt, for heavily salting simply means deteriorating the value, which in the long run is against the maker.

Last minute reports show that the bacon market is firm, and prices are on the upward turn. Supplies are shorter than was expected from most sources, and, although there has been an advance of from 2s. to 3s. on Canadian, good sales are secured.

In cheese, the market is firm and active, with an all-round shortage. There are very few fine Canadian left, and all classes of Dutch are taken up on landing. The general outlook is good.

Provisions—The market has been fairly good since our last, demand continues to advance, with little change in arrivals. Smoked breakfast bacon has advanced 1c. Lard has again advanced 1-4c. Hogs are slightly easier, purchases having been made at $9.75.

Butter—Arrivals of butter are still coming in slowly, this fact with demand on a steady increase has resulted in still further stiffening prices, and creameries have made a further advance of 1c.

All arrivals to hand have been sold for immediate consumption, nothing going into cold storage to increase stocks. Available stocks have not been known to be so low for a long time. The present conditions are expected to continue until after harvest operations are completed, so that with the usual steadily increasing demand at this season, prices are expected to continue firm. We quote:

Cheese—The market in cheese continues to firm up in sympathy with the butter situation, prices being advanced 1-4c. Home consumption is good, with foreign markets steady, owing to lower basis of the U. S. prices. The export market is not expecting any serious movement until prices reach a more steady basis.

Cheese—The cheese market is keeping operators interested. The high prices ruling and the condition of the English market does not make for profitable business by dealers. Activity is the leading characteristic of the market. The report that dealers cannot get orders at present prices would indicate the presence of short interests. Prices, 11 1-4c. for Quebec, 11 3-8c. for Township, and 11 1-2c. to 11 5-8c. for Ontario.

Eggs—The egg market is firm in tone but unchanged as to our last prices. An improvement is shown in stock arriving due to cooler weather and the fact that hens are getting the benefit of the grain fields. Country buyers report having to pay 16c to 17c. for straight gathered stock, though in exceptional cases 15 1-2c. was paid. Selects are selling at 22c., No. 2 15 1-2c. to 16 1-2c. and straight gathered 17 1-2c. to 18c.

Butter—Butter market is firm and steady. Trading is not heavy and buyers complain of inability to get supplies at profitable prices. Fancy Township creamery is quoted at 22 3-4c., choicest 22 1-4c. to 22 1-2c., and good to fine 21 3-4c. to 22 1-4c.

Provisions—In barrel pork prices are higher, stocks are very light. Heavy mess pork can hardly be bought in the local market. There is a fair supply of clear. There is a wide range in quality. Beef also higher. Canadian is very scarce. In pure lard, western packers largely out of the market. Prices higher. Refined has also been slightly advanced. In hams, prices quite high. Rolls scarce. Fresh beef is dull. Domestic is low and of but fair quality. Lamb keeps at quite full price. Farmers are busy haying. Veal has but a light demand. Little offering. Mutton, dull. Pork has little sale.

In his latest report to the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, C. M. Kittson, Canadian Commercial Agent to South Africa, says South Africa imports a considerable quantity of box shooks for her productions of apples, pears, eggs, bananas, etc. Sweden at present monopolizes the demand, but there is no reason why Canadian manufacturers should not get a share of the trade if they will adapt themselves to the requirements of South African importers.

Recent estimates made from present indications of the California citrus crop for next year point to a record-breaker. That there will be upwards of 35,000 carloads is certain, and the aggregate may reach 40,000. The current year ends Oct. 31, with shipments that will total more than 30,000 cars, and the daily average now is about 20 cars.

If the estimates given prove correct the crop next year will break the record by fully 5,000 cars, as the present season is doing by about 3,000 cars. Returns for the shipments this season show that the Southern California Fruit Exshange will have distributed $7,000,000 to growers for fruit shipped for its members. Close calculation upon the output for next season places the net amount that will come to the growers at about $12,000,000.

Reports to hand from the Niagara fruit district say that the peach crop is an abundant one. At the same time it must be remembered that the total number of trees at present under bearing is very considerably less than the total number of say two years ago. The hard Winter which followed that season was a very severe test and greatly thinned the trees; later still, the San Jose scale added to the damage, so that while the crop per acre will probably be satisfactory, it is a debatable question whether in the aggregate the crop will meet the demand. It is computed that hundreds of acres have been depleted in the manner mentioned, so that what may be now considered an excellent crop must not be taken in comparison with the good crop of a few years ago. Besides this there are nearly twice as many canning factories doing business this year, so that it is very questionable whether prices will fall as low as was expected. The low price quoted at the present moment is for inferior fruit.

The apple crop is a complete failure, owing to the insect pest. The yield, however, of plums and other fruits is so abundant that the scarcity of apples will hardly be felt.

The potato crop in the immediate neighborhood of Toronto is showing signs of rot on account of the late excessive rains.

Originally an excellent crop was expected, prospects were promising for abundance, and good prices were expected, but with the heavy rain conditions have changed, and great disappointmrnt is the result.

The present outlook of the lemon market is disquieting. The universal use of the lemon places it under the category of almost a household necessity.

The news, therefore, that spot stocks have been depleted for some time, and that available stocks from outside points have now become exhausted, make the situation for the moment a serious one.

It is not unusual for some fifty thousand cases to change hands in Toronto alone in one week, and this is only about sufficient to keep the market steady and prices within reach.

From reliable sources we learn that California has quite stopped supplies, and that there are only about four thousand cases afloat from the primal markets of Italy with which to replete the whole of the American continent—a mere drop in the ocean.

This being the situation, holders of lemons are not inclined to rush sales of the small stocks on hand. It will not, therefore, be surprising to see the market reach fabulous prices before the new fruit arrives, which will not be before October.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Green Fruit.

Toronto, Aug. 24, 1905.

THE home market continues good, consumption is steadily advancing, the return of holiday folks is making a perceptible increase in trade. The scarcity in lemons is still an important feature. Californians are all gone, Italians are nearly depleted; there are only some four thousand cases afloat to supply the whole American continent. The demand for lemons is always a steady feature on market, and with these conditions it will not be surprising to see prices reach eight dollars before new season's arrivals in October.

Bananas are easier on account of increased arrivals. Domestic peaches are also coming in freer and prices have dropped for the larger fruit. Gooseberries are now off the market. Lawtonberries have dropped. Canadian cantaloupes are now quoted at baskets 40c., crates one dollar. Californian Tokay grapes are arriving in very good condition, and are quoted at three dollars and three twenty-five. Other prices are unchanged. We quote :

The home trade is showing only very moderate activity. Supplies coming to hand are by no means too abundant, which alone accounts for the firm parity of prices. Domestic tomatoes are arriving more freely, with the result that prices have steadied and are now firm at twenty to twenty-five cents. Jersey sweet potatoes are coming in in good condition, and are now quoted at $3.50 to $4. Green pepper has dropped to 50c. Other prices remain unchanged. We quote as follows :

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Green Fruits.

Montreal, Aug. 24, 1905.

The fruit market, according to dealers' statements, is active and shows improvement over that of last week. This is due to the fine weather we have had for the last few days.

The total receipt of fruit seems to be larger, too, judging by the appearance of the stores, which are encumbered with all kinds and grades of domestic and foreign fruits. On Monday morning were sold by auction five cars of California fruits as follows: Bartlett pears, very best stock, $3.25 to $3.65; ripe pears, $1.25 to $1.80; peaches, $1.10 to $1.55; plums, $1.50 to $2.40.

Bananas are more plentiful owing to fifteen cars having arrived last week, instead of eight for the previous week. Still it is not believed that the larger receipts will affect prices. The demand, though not active, keeps up well enough.

Lemons, scarce as ever and always in fair demand, are sold between $5 and $6, although $5.50 appears to be the lowest price. Oranges are not to be found at present on the Montreal market; some are expected soon, however, aad will probably sell at about $5.50 per box.

Apples are also in fair quantity. They are Duchess and Astrakan, and are worth from $3 to $3.25 per bbl. There seems to be a good inquiry for them. Montreal muskmelons, in fair lots, are selling between $7 and $10 per basket, Vegetables.

Dealers continue to receive large lots of domestic vegetables, but do not claim there has been much improvement over last week's trade. The demand is only fair and steady and stocks over supplied.

As before, the arrivals consist of cabbages, cucumbers, tomatoes, celery, etc. Prices for cucumbers and cabbage are easier on account of the big stocks carried by local dealers.

Onions are not to say plentiful, there being only Spanish onions, which enjoy only a very moderate demand at $2 per case. New potatoes continue in favor at firm prices. We quote:

The Deep Sea Fisheries of the Atlantic Coast

HOW THE FISH ARE TAKEN

THE extent and value of the Atlantic deep sea fisheries of Canada are little known in Western Canada, except among those who are directly interested in them as fish dealers. It will be of interest to our readers to hear something of methods pursued in catching, curing and marketing this form of food, which is more and more entering into consumption all over the Dominion. People are now beginning to realize that in the codfish they can get the very best form of food, having nearly as much nourishment pound for pound as the best beef, and which can be prepared in so many different ways that it is always a tempting dish.

fleet consists of about two hundred vessels varying in size from fifty tons to one hundred and twenty tons, valued at about $1,000,000 and employing about four thousand men and boys.

(1) Trawling.—This fishing is prosecuted in vessels of about 100 tons, with from 15 to 18 men in each vessel. They begin to fit for the voyage about March 15 each year. The fitting consists of taking on board food for two months, a quantity of coarse salt, usually obtained from Trapani or Turk's Islands, and a quantity of frozen herring, say 15,000, for bait. The last are stored in pens built in the vessel's hold, and packed in ice.

1,000 hooks to the trawl. Each vessel will carry from 14 to 18 of these trawls according to the number of men. To each end of the trawl there is attached a mooring rope, usually 90 fathoms long, with a small anchor for mooring the trawl and a buoy with staff and flag to locate it by. Each vessel carries seven or eight boats or dories, which rest into one another and stand on the decks amidship on both sides of the vessel. Two men and one trawl go to each dory.

The vessels sailing from Lunenburg in the Spring go to what is known as the Bank Queereau, La Have Bank, or Sable Island Bank. On arriving at the spot

The three fishes that make up the bulk of value in the deep sea fisheries are (1) cod; (2) haddock, (3) hake. They are put in order of excellence, for while as fresh fish the haddock is decidedly superior to the cod, as a salted fish the cod is much better, and as will be seen in the deep sea fisheries all the fish must be salted.

There are three methods pursued in catching the fish—(1) trawling, (2) hand-lining, (3) trapping. On the Atlantic seaboard the most important fishing fleet hails from the county of Lunenburg, Nova Scotia, commonly called "The Gloucester of Canada." This

Each vessel is fitted with a large Manila hawser, usually 9½ inches in circumference and about 240 fathoms long, for anchoring on the banks. Rope is used as it has been found that chain has not the necessary resiliency, besides being too heavy. The trawl, so called, is made up of about 1,000 fathoms of tarred cotton line of about the thickness of a lead pencil, weighing 22 lbs. to 300 fathoms—called the head-line. At every fathom of its length there is attached a much lighter tarred cotton line weighing but 5 lbs. to 300 fathoms and one-half fathom long. To the end of this light line is attached the hook, thus giving where the captain has decided to try, the vessel is anchored, her sails furled, and what is known as a riding sail put up in place of the mainsail. The trawls are then baited with pieces of herring and put in tubs four to a dory. The dories are then launched and proceed to windward to set the trawl. This is done by dropping the anchor with trawl and buoy attached, and while one man rows the other pays out the trawl, dropping the other anchor at the end. In hauling the trawl they simply pick it up by the mooring and under-run it, taking off the fish and re-baiting the trawl if the captain decided to stay on that ground.

The fish so taken are taken to the vessel and forked onto the deck where the dressing crew awaits them. These consist of header, throater, splitter and salter. The throater cuts the throat, the header removes the head and entrails, saving the liver for oil, and the splitter splits the fish down the belly to the tail and washes it in clean water, and the salter puts sufficient salt on it to preserve it until it can be landed for curing. The fish are then packed away in the pens which hold salt until all the pens are full of fish and all the salt used, if she be lucky enough to get so many fish, which rarely happens in the Spring.

The first or Spring trip lasts until June 1, when the vessel repairs to her home port and unloads the fish, which are put into the hands of the makers or dryers. She then puts out for the Summer trip, which lasts from June 10 to September 30, and is prosecuted in the same way, the only difference being in the fishing ground and bait. The scene usually shifts to the Grand Banks of Newfoundland as the new ground and caplin is used for bait during June and part of July, and after that the squid is used when obtainable.

A good average catch for the season would be 1,500 quintals dry, or about 250,000 lbs. green. The total value of this catch in an average year would be about $1,250,000.

Hand-lining.—The preliminaries as to fitting, etc., are just the same in hand-lining as in trawling, except that in the place of herring American clams packed in barrels are used until the squid come on the Banks. These vessels carry from 14 to 18 dories, each manned by one man, who fishes two hand-lines only, weighing 8 lbs. to 300 fathoms. They use pretty much the same fishing ground, though a number of them go out the Gulf of St. Lawrence to fish instead of on the Banks.

Trapping.—This form of fishing is peculiar to the Labrador Coast where the fish run in schools. A trap is simply a large room made of netting often 60 fathoms square, with a door and a long strip of netting leading to the shore called a leader. The trap is set from 40 to 50 fathoms off shore and moored with stout ropes and heavy anchors. The leader goes into the door-way and stretches to the land. The school of fish following the caplin (a species of small herring) find the leader in their path and swim along it into the trap. When the fishermen wish to haul the trap they take large boats alongside it and gradually haul the trap into them, thus collecting all the fish in a small area, when they are dipped out with dip nets. A peculiar feature about this fishery is that the fish will only trap for about two months, usually from June 15 to August 15, and after that what are known as the second run of fish must be taken with hand lines.

Various Methods of Curing.

The methods of curing the fish after they have been landed are practically the same no matter how the fish were taken, so that what is a description of one is a description of all.

Dry Curing.

The greater part of the catch of the Lunenburg fleet is dry cured by the following process: On arrival at her home port the fare of each vessel is divided up in about 100 to 200 quintal lots and given out to men who make a living from this part of the business, viz., the curing of the fish. The fish when landed are piled in a store in piles averaging about 5 feet in height by the size of the store in length. When the maker thinks the weather is suitable he proceeds to wash the fish out by hand. This is done usually in large butts or tubs with brushes in salt or brackish water. A good deal of judgment is necessary in deciding when to wash fish out, as should a damp spell of weather come and it should be found impossible to spread the fish in the sun for four or five days they become what is known as slimy and have to be washed over again.

When washed they are piled again and weights put on them to press the water out. After a day or two of this they are taken out and spread on the flakes, which are usually made of wooden slats, and there exposed to the sun and wind for about two days. Here again care must be exercised, for if the sun gets too hot there is danger of the fish burning and so losing a large proportion of its market value. At night they are gathered in piles on the flakes and boxes made for the purpose put over them.

Fish Drying Yards in Maritime Fishing Town.

After two days on the flakes the fish are again put in the store and piled as before. There they stay for a period of from ten days to two weeks. This is known as sweat pile treatment, for the salt in the fish causes them to soften up again.

After that length of time they are again spread on the flakes for two days, and then are ready for market. Fish thus cured are marketed in the West Indies, South America, Spain, Italy, Greece, England, and to a limited extent in Canada.

Pickle Curing.

Another form of curing and marketing is what is known as pickle curing. In this the fish are taken from the vessel, thoroughly washed, and put in puncheons with salt and water. After being there for three weeks they are taken out and put on the flakes for two days. These fish are generally used for putting up the boneless codfish that is now so generally coming into use in Canada. When taken from the flakes they are put into the factory where men skin them and take the larger bones out; then they are handed to girls who, with tweezers, extract all the small bones. After that they are cut up and packed in various forms from a one pound cake to a hundred pound box. This process enables the thrifty housewife to get good fish in small quantities, and also does away with the trouble of skinning and boning it at home, no small matter nowadays while the burning question of domestics is always to the fore.

The pickle curing process of marketing has been pursued in Gloucester and Boston for many years, but it is only recently that it has been taken up in Canada to any extent. Besides being a boon to the housekeeper, it is a decided convenience to the grocer, as it gives him small handy packages done up very attractively and on which there is no shrinkage in profits through loss of weight, as sometimes happens him when handling the whole fish.

Smoke Curing.

Another branch of fish curing is smoking. This belongs more especially in the shore fisheries, as smoked fish to be good should be put in the smoke house as soon as possible after being taken out of the water. Haddock, from which are made the delicious finnan haddie, and herring, from which are made bloaters, are the two fishes used principally in the process of curing. The smoked fish industry is growing every year, and now the Atlantic seaboard cannot begin to supply the Canadian demand. The last two forms of cured fish are sold in Canada alone practically, though other markets could be opened for the first of them no doubt.

Another form of fish that is constantly growing in favor in Canada is the shredded codfish. This is put up in dainty cartons of one-half pound each, and is largely used for making the popular fish ball and other breakfast dishes.

INDEMNITY FOR FISHERMEN.

The tribunal appointed in connection with the Anglo-French differences in Newfoundland has awarded indemnities amounting to $275,000 to French owners, fishermen and sailors on the treaty shore.

A strong effort will be made by the cannery men of Washington State to secure a $200,000 appropriation from the U.S. Government to build fish hatcheries on the Fraser River.

Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions

THE MID-SUMMER WINDOW.

THE midsummer and early Fall season for vegetables and green goods offers the grocer an excellent opportunity to fix up an attractive window display. The first thing for him to do, of course, is to have his store window clean; it should be washed and polished until it shines. Then he may proceed to arrange his goods in such a manner as will tempt the passerby to come in and investigate further. A customer always looks for perfect order and neatness in a grocery store. There should be a definite place for everything. For instance, fish should not be put in unpleasant proximity to articles likely to absorb foreign odors. A grocer knows which things should be kept apart and should see to it that they are not allowed to get mixed up.

Another objectionable practice existing among a great many grocers is leaving everything in the store exposed while the place is being swept. Crackers, vegetables and other things which are uncovered should be protected from all dust and always kept fresh and appetizing in appearance.

There is nothing which is more unattractive or tends more to keep customers away than to leave in the window wilted or spoiled fruits and vegetables. If such are left in the windows people passing by naturally get the idea that the goods inside the store are in the same condition and will not go in. On the other hand, nothing adds so much to the appearance of a store as a neat and attractive arrangement of nice crisp, fresh vegetables in the window. They look appetizing and tempt customers to come in. Once they are inside there are a dozen things which can be called to their attention and it is no man's fault if a nice order cannot be traced to the window display. Nearly all up-to-date grocers now have a fountain or springling device in their windows in Summer which keeps their vegetables fresh all the time. This arrangement does not cost much and saves more in preventing fruits and vegetables from spoiling than it costs.

In the first place, nothing but the very best quality of fruit and vegetables should be bought. Customers can easily be educated to buy the best; they soon find that it is the cheapest in the end and will not ask for anything but first-grade goods. If half-spoiled fruits are bought they will not keep any time and will not be half disposed of before they will have to be thrown away.

When vegetables and green goods are not in season the windows can be made and kept attractive by a display of canned goods, preserved fruits and pickles. These can be arranged in a very attractive manner with a little care and planning.

Preserved fruits or pickles should never be left in the window until they lose their color from exposure to the sun, for the simple reason that if customers notice this they will not care to buy. Two or three days is long enough to leave a display in the window, which should, moreover, be so varied that customers will not tire of looking at the same display. The thing is to attract the notice of the passerby, and once this is got, to keep it at all costs.

The following additional suggestions will be found useful to the retailer during August and September:

Make the store look cool and inviting and have the display in the windows, on the counters, and on the floor, of a character to whet the appetite. Don't put cold weather goods on exhibition; they make people feel hot. Pickles are in order; not jams and jellies. Relishes are tempting. A clam cocktail, or the dressing to make one, is more alluring than materials for hot beverages. Lemons invite to refreshment.

A punch bowl of iced tea, another with iced coffee, and a service at nominal cost of grape juice, will win trade and popularize the store. It is a question whether a nominal charge of two or three cents a glass is not better than a free service. People always appreciate what they pay for.

Do not be afraid of a free use of clean water on windows and store floor. Keep the latter well sprinkled. Screened doors and windows will keep out the insects.

To ventilate, keep up a circulation of air night and day. Keep the transom over the door open all night and a rear window as well.

Now is the time to have store windows and doors well screened. A few palms, ferns or blooming plants can be used to give an air of coolness to the store.

AGENCY FOR PATRAS CURRANTS.

Thos. B. Clift, St. John's, Nfld., has been appointed sole agent for Newfoundland for the long-established and well-known Greek currant shippers, Hancock & Wood, Patras. The trade treaty negotiated between Greece and Newfoundland through Great Britain has been ratified, and both countries look forward to an increased exchange of business. Newfoundland has agreed to reduce the duty on currants entering the colony, while Greece has considerably lowered its tariff on Newfoundland codfish, salmon and other sea products. Mr. Clift looks forward to good business in Greek products through the new treaty arrangements. Mr. Clift's principals are the only British currant house in Greece, Mr. Wood being also British Consul.

The Canadian exhibit at Pittsburg, Pa., is attracting 30,000 people daily, who talk about the great agricultural resources of Canada as if they would like to cross the border and take up farms on this side.

Biscuits and Confectionery

CONFECTIONERY AS A STAPLE.

PROFIT is the first consideration in establishing a store. To obtain this is the great endeavor of every trader, and many are the devices, some questionable, some otherwise, to which recourse is made. There is one feature, however, to which attention may be drawn, and which, if properly heeded, might be the means of giving to the grocer a revenue far in excess of the extra trouble and expense involved.

Many grocers carry their confectionery more as a side line than as a staple, and relegate these goods to an unimportant corner or shelf. By confectionery is meant not only sweets and candies, but all lines of cakes and biscuits usually classed as household confections.

During the past quarter of a century trade has gone under a complete revolution, and the "up-to-date" retail grocer will consider as his line anything that can be ranked as a household necessity; such a man will carry in his store many a line which his opponent round the corner cannot be induced to stock. The time has now come when confectionery in its fullest details—cakes, biscuits, sweets and pastries—must be considered a legitimate staple in the grocery trade; and the grocer, if he is to keep on top, must now bring his confectionery boldly to the front, and see to it that he not only has a few popular lines, but a full and complete line of all kinds of confections.

Give your confectionery department a special place in your store and arrange it attractively to take your customer's eye, and with a little extra pushing you will soon have a department paying you equal to anything you carry, and which will attract to your store the young and coming generation, just the ones you want.

Further, when once your confectionery department is located, add a few small tables and chairs, and what is to hinder a judicious light refreshment being served, such as a cup of tea and a biscuit? You have the tea, coffee and cocoa; you have the cake and biscuits; why not use it as an additional attraction to your store—a paying one too? In England and continental cities many a grocer runs a good side issue in the form of light refreshments, making his favorite blend the leader, and at the same time educating his customers' palates in tea and coffee tasting. An instance is on record where a grocer gave up his shop parlor for this purpose and he soon had a room full nearly every afternoon, the very time he was usually quiet, and with a good revenue to boot. His sales of sweets and confections increased as well.

THE ART OF SAMPLING.

It is remarkable the results which will accrue by judicious sampling of a given district. First and foremost the storekeeper must be certain of his article. It should be the best of its kind, no second grade goods. The giving of a poor article will kill trade, not make it. Second. It should be neatly and attractively gotten up. The first impression is the lasting one. Given an attractive sample, the recipient expects a good thing—the first move in the direction of success. Third. Do not fail to have the name, address, and price clearly upon it.

Suppose you try this with your confectionery. A good corner of the street at the busiest time of the day; a neat, tasty confection handed to the passer-by by an equally neat and well-dressed boy with a well-worded notice of the fact in your usual advertisement space in the local journal, and you will welcome the result. A successful candy dealer in the United States has built up a large business in this way.

BRANCHING OUT.

D. B. McColl, baker and confectioner, of Owen Sound, has just removed to new commodious premises, which have been specially built to suit the requirements of the business. In addition to a fine show shop, he has installed two large modern ovens, and all the modern equipments for an up-to-date bakery. Sanitation and cleanliness are features made of first importance.

QUAKER SUGAR AND CREAM CORN

This is a line we are now packing which we intend to make our main specialty. Packed from the finest Maine Seed, with the ears all selected, with the cans well filled with corn and not watery juice. We believe there is a future for an article of this class of goods if properly placed on the market and the attention of the consumers called to its superior merits. There is no line of goods packed in cans that varies so much as corn in quality, consequently there should be an opening on the market for a really high-class article, something in which the goods were not only at the tip-top but that every can could be depended on to be of a high and uniform quality. This is what we claim for Sugar and Cream and the reputation of the Quaker is behind these assertions. While the contents inside of a can are of more importance than the oustide, it may not come amiss to say that these goods are sent out in very handsome embossed wrappers, far superior to anything we have yet seen from our competitors.

Orange Meat

John T. James is a general merchant at Bridgeburg, Ont., and unsolicited he thus wrote us:

"Enclosed find receipt for Express Order for $1.00, sent for advertising purposes, on account of purchase of 5 cases of Orange Meat. We will give the goods full display, but one strong point in selling Orange Meat is that we do not carry any other cereal like it. . . . I do not think we have lost many sales by this as we never have any complaint about Orange Meat. We use it in our own house and so can fully recommend it. We carry the large size, too, and have found no trouble from these ten-cent goods as yet. We can sell Orange Meat as long as it is kept up in quality."

It will be "kept up."

Flour and Cereal Foods

GOOD TIMES FOLLOW THE CROPS.

WITH Ontario wheat already on the market and the work of harvesting the western grain crop getting under way, business men are beginning to ask themselves the question, "How is trade going to be this Fall and Winter?" The period of danger from rust, frost and wet weather is slipping away with little or no damage so far, and by the most conservative the yield is now placed at 81,000,000 bushels. Figured at the very low average of 21 bushels per acre and 75c. per bushel, the farmers of the west will probably realize $63,000,000 for their labors. It is difficult to realize the far-reaching effect of such a sum of money distributed among the population of a new country. Small wonder that the railroads offer excursion rates at harvest time. They could well afford to carry twenty thousand harvesters free of charge for the sake of having the western grain crop to haul, to say nothing of the freightage on what $63,000,000 will buy and the indirect advantage that accrues from commercial prosperity.

The August report of the United States Government, which is generally regarded as a final summary of what the grain crops are to be, forecasts the largest grain crops ever harvested in the republic. Wheat is estimated at 710,000,000 bushels, or 160,000,000 bushels larger than in 1904; corn at 2,700,000,000 bushels, 230,000,000 bushels in excess of last year; and oats at 950,000,000, surpassing the yield of 1904 by over 50,000,000 bushels.

On the whole the farmers of Canada and the United States will reap a record harvest this year. As a class the farming community is among the most prosperous on the North American Continent, and it looks as if even better times were in store for them and for the trade generally.

A SEASONABLE HINT.

This is not the season for ready sales of cereals, a little later stocks will move freely, and trade will hum. In the meantime, during the hot weather, it is well to ask what is being done with those package cereals which must be carried in stock. A place of storage should be found for them, cool and dry; they should never be stored in a place where the sun can reach them. A shelf in the window or at the side of the store, may be an excellent place for show, but not so for storage if the sun reaches it. The continued heat on the package, with the natural moisture of the grain is a fruitful source of germination, and will have disastrous effects on the cereals. The stock will be spoilt, bringing trouble and loss to the grocer. A little thought and care will avoid this.

N.W. FALL-WHEAT EXPERIMENTS.

In Southern Alberta the experiments in Fall wheat have proved in every way satisfactory, the turkey-red variety proving itself the best calculated to meet the local climatic conditions.

The experiments in Dauphin, Man., have been yielding some very fine specimens, samples of which have been sent to the Dominion emigration office.

Experiments are to be made in the Gilbert Plains district of Manitoba this Fall, with the turkey-red variety. Although the Winter is a good deal more severe than in Alberta, where it was so successful, equal results are looked for.

Lorne McGibbon, general manager of the Canadian Rubber Co., was elected vice-chairman, to succeed Lt.-Col. Burland.

Thre are twenty-five nominations for the new executive committee, of whom eighteen are to be elected by ballot this week.

RICE AS A FLOUR.

American millers are turning their attention to the question of the manufacture of rice flour. In Germany and Holland, and (in a lesser degree) in England, they have been converting rice into flour for a long time, but it has never come into great favor; it has been used mainly as an adjunct to manufacture such as "cones" for dusting, and like purposes. Experiments are under way with a view to introducing it as a blend to wheat flour for bread baking. It is claimed that a properly made rice flour will produce bread of exceptional whiteness.

In the Southern States, millers have already equipped the factories with machinery for flouring rice, and it is expected by this means the rice farms will be brought to a point of prosperity.

A party of bankers and grain men left Winnipeg Aug. 19 on a trip through the wheat section of the Canadian west.

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

TOBACCO sales are good, gradually and decidedly increasing each year; this year shows an advance on sales of the same season last year. There is little question that the use of tobacco has come to stay. The question for the grocer to ask himself is, "Am I getting my full share of the trade?" To judge from the small amount of interest taken by the average grocer in his tobacco department, it would not do for him to expect to materially increase his turnover on the lines he is going.

"Anything worth doing at all is worth doing well." If it is worth while running a tobacco department, then have a tobacco department in right down earnest; run it as up-to-date as your tea department. Set yourself to discover what are the lines in demand in your locality. Stock those lines, and find out all about them, the character of each, and the virtue of every one in particular. You will then be in a position to recommend the right brand to the right man. Get enthusiastic about your goods, be sure and have the best of its kind, believe in the goods yourself and your customer will soon believe the same, and catch on. The world approves of an earnest man in business, and there will be little difficulty in holding your trade if you know and believe in the goods you sell. If the grocer is indifferent to his tobacco goods, the customer will think the goods are indifferent, and the other fellow will get the trade.

Not only is there tobacco, but there are many accessories to it, all bearing good profit, and a demand all ready at your door. Have them nicely displayed in a good light, and marked in plain figures. Many a customer from time to time wishes to make a present to a friend, and a show like this will go a long way to make him decide.

Then, there are the women folks, constantly in and out of the store, they can often be induced to add the husband's tobacco to their weekly purchases, especially when the grocer's knowledge as to the most suitable is thrown in. Your tobacco opportunities are certainly great.

HISTORY OF TOBACCO.

TOBACCO has had a very chequered history as far as its introduction into Europe is concerned. In America its use is lost in antiquity, although smoking dried tobacco leaves is spoken of as being in practice among the Indians of Hispaniola as early as 1526. It found its way into Europe in the year 1559; was introduced into England in the year 1565 by Sir J. Hawkins, and in 1573 it seems to have been pretty generally known there. During the year 1586 it was made famous by Sir Walter Raleigh and Sir James Drake. About this time its use was made the butt of the popular wits. The clergy strenuously denounced its popularity, and King James I. issued a pamphlet against its use.

Kings, popes and sultans are all found arrayed against it, and smokers of the soothing weed were condemned to cruel punishments. In the canton of Berne the prohibition of the use of tobacco was put among the ten commandments.

In Turkey smoking was made a capital offence. In spite of this category of denunciation and prohibition tobacco smoking has become the most extensively used luxury in the world, from peasant to king.

TOBACCO CROP A VALUABLE ASSET.

A report which has come to hand referring to the tobacco crops of Central and South America is interesting, not only as showing the development which has been made in that country, but as an example to Canada of the great monetary value of a tobacco crop. Canadian tobacco cultivation can scarcely be said to have passed the experimental stage; yet Canadian leaf is gradually growing in favor as a blend with foreign growths. Given the necessary amount of care in cultivation, coupled with the experience of past and future experiments, there is no reason why tobacco culture should not be to Canada a valuable and continually increasing agricultural asset.

The tobacco crop of Cuba for the year 1904 is given as thirty million dollars in value; about thirteen and a half million was exported as "leaf," about ten thousand dollars' value was exported as "stems," about twelve and a half million as "cigars," and four hundred and five thousand dollars as "cigarettes." The export of "cut" tobacco amounted to over eighty-one thousand dollars, and tobacco "seed" to the value of upwards of three thousand dollars.

The tobacco crop of Mexico was estimated as twenty million pounds. The exported tobacco is chiefly the production of one State, namely, Vera Cruz, all of which goes to the European market. Very little Mexican tobacco goes to the United States on account of the prohibitive tariff. Almost all the exports are made of cigars and cigarettes, which accounts for the fact that a quantity of leaf tobacco is imported from Virginia for the purpose of blending with the native leaf.

CONFIDENCE GAME.

The old familiar confidence trick has been worked with partial success in Toronto.

During the past week a well-dressed man called upon most of the wholesale grocers, and with a degree of authority placed an order to be sent to a well-known firm in Brougham. The order was entered and in the conversation which followed the "artful dodger" succeeded in "drawing" the wholesaler for a moderate amount. He did not find all the wholesalers good game.

Mr. Thomas B. Greening, president of the Pure Gold Manufacturing Co., has returned from his recent trip to England. Mr. Greening went over and came back on the Ionian, and was delighted with the appointments on this fine steamer. On the return trip the Ionian brought back 186 second-class passengers, nearly all Scotch families, for the Northwest. Mr. Greening reports that they were a very superior class, intelligent, and all appeared to have sufficient means and ample furniture to make comfortable homes for themselves upon their arrival. Evidently our emigration agents are succeeding in interesting the better classes in Great Britain in the advantages offered by Canada.

SUCCESSFUL SERVICE.

The Canada-Cuban-Mexican steamship service is proving successful. The second vessel to sail from the port of Montreal will be the Dahomey, now on her way to Canada with a cargo of raw sugar. The Dahomey will sail on or about August 26 for Cuba and Mexico, with practically a full cargo. For Cuba there will be paving blocks, hay and general cargo, and for Mexico the chief cargo will be box hooks. The Dahomey will also load a considerable quantity of salted fish at Halifax for the southern markets.

GLEANED FROM THE TRAVELERS.

J. Steeper, grocer and confectioner, Markham, has sold out to Mr. E. Torance.

Kirk Bros., grocers, Bracebridge, have just completed large additions to their buildings, and are instaling new fittings. They also intend putting in a new store front.

I. B. Dingwall, city traveler for F. W. Humphrey, Toronto, is resigning his position, and will become a partner with W. T. McDonnell as wholesale produce and commission merchants, 63 Colborne street, Toronto. Until lately Mr. McDonnell ran a grocery store on Church street.

W. Totton has just left F. W. Humphrey, Toronto, to take an active part in the management of his store in Queen street east. The store at 1094 has been found too small. He is removing to more convenient premises at 1098. He intends also taking an agency for sick and accident insurance.

C. Stevens of White & Co., Limited, Toronto, is leaving that company to go on the road for F. W. Humphrey, wholesale grocer.

More Money In Your Pocket

IS THE MEANING OF

Our Special Offer In Brooms

HAVE YOU SEEN THE NEW

PERFECTION BROOM?

OLD STYLE

It is no exaggeration to say that it represents the high water mark in broom making. It combines all the merits of the ordinary broom, and has, besides, a device which makes it just twice as strong and therefore twice as lasting as the ordinary broom. This device consists of a special handle, deeply inserted, with a cross wire at the end. This secures absolute rigidity, and so does away with that weak point of the old broom, viz: working loose at the shoulder. Yet Perfection Brooms cost no more than other brooms.

PERFECTION

OUR PROPOSITION

In order to convince you that the Perfection Broom is all we claim for it, send us a sample order for 6 dozen and we will prepay freight to the extent of 30 cents per hundred. If the goods are not satisfactory you may return them at our expense.

PRICES: 3 string, $2.30; 4 string, $2.75

Every Perfection Broom sold means a satisfied customer, and your satisfied customers are your principal asset.

These Brooms are sold exclusively by

THE PICKLING SEASON

Turns the thoughts toward what to "put up" and brings up the vexing Vinegar problem. There is nothing perhaps regarding which the customer must rely so implicitly on the merchant as the purchase of vinegar. A dealer can secure and hold confidence by recommending

HEINZ WHITE PICKLING VINEGAR

It is distilled from sound grain, and is, therefore, entirely free from the solid particles of vegetable matter which start fermentation in fruit vinegars. This, coupled with the fact that it has the right strength, makes it

ROSE AUTOMATIC GRINDERS

DIRECTIONS

1. Stand the Grinder on a table, holding it upright with one hand, as shown in cut, and do not change its position while using. 2. Run the knife blade through one of the slots, its edge resting between the metal disc and emery wheel, as shown in cut. 3. Use some pressure and run the blade its full length forward and backward quickly a few times, which grinds one side. 4. Place the knife blade in the other slot and repeat the operation, as at first, which grinds the other side of the blade.

Modern Merchandising demands modern methods. The ALLISON COUPON BOOK is a strictly modern CONVENIENCE and SAFEGUARD against mistakes and consequent loss of money. It is better than any pass-book, punch or check system ever invented, and its absolute accuracy makes it the CHEAPEST SYSTEM on this big earth—excepting, of course, the cash system. See here:

IF A MAN WANTS CREDIT

for $10, give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book, charge him with $10, and there you are. No trouble at all. If he buys a plug of tobacco for ten cents, just tear off a ten-cent coupon—that's all. And so on for all his purchases up to limit of the book. NO PASS BOOK. NO WRITING. NO TIME LOST. NO KICKING. There are other Coupon Books, of course, but why not have the best? "ENTERPRISE" PAYS

The buzz of customers—the ring of the cash register—the clink of coin increase in a grocery store that is Enterprising in methods and equipment. An "Enterprise" Electrically Driven Coffee Mill decreases expense, increases business. A novelty a few years ago, now a necessity in every grocery.

The illustration shows our mill No. 83 fitted with ¼ H.P. motor, furnished for either direct or alternating current. It is 30 inches high, 22 inches long, 14 inches wide and weighs 115 pounds.

The nickel-plated hopper has a capacity of 4 pounds of coffee. It will granulate 1 pound of coffee a minute or pulverize ¼ pound a minute. Each machine is equipped with pulverizing grinders and can be regulated for fine or coarse grinding while running.

We will be pleased to send prices and practical suggestions; also our catalogue showing complete line of Mills, Food Choppers and other "Enterprise" grocers' specialties.

The Man Behind the Counter is the one we recognize. We want the co-operation of the retail clerks throughout the country in extending and increasing the sale of the great Fairbank specialties:

Gold Dust Washing Powder
Fairy Soap, Copco Soap
Fairbank's Glycerine-Tar Soap
Fairbank's Scouring Soap
Fairbank's Sanitary Soap

We are willing and anxious to acknowledge the service they can render us by rewarding them in direct proportion to the interest they display in pushing these goods. Our method of rewarding is "The Fairbank Plan," which is a system of couponing our specialties in such a manner that the coupons can be easily removed when the goods are sold, and giving for these coupons useful articles, the best that money can buy. Our whole aim is to give the clerks the best value we can secure.

The products embraced in "The Fairbank Plan" are easily sold because they are the best value and give the greatest satisfaction to the consumer. They increase the trade of the store and "The Fairbank Plan" rewards the dealer or his clerks for selling them.

Send for a copy of "The Fairbank Plan" illustrated premium list. It will pay you.

Canadian National Exhibition

THE formal opening of the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto by Hon. J. P. Whitney, Premier of Ontario, on Tuesday was attended by the usual interesting ceremonies, speeches, directors' dinner, and, as a special feature, music by the Irish Guards' Band and drill manoeuvres by the sailors of Prince Louis of Battenburg's squadron now lying at Quebec. The Grocer representative's tour through the various buildings and show places, tends to bear out the opinion of Dr. Orr, manager, and the board of directors that the Exhibition of 1905 will eclipse all previous ones. In many of the departments, such as the mechanical, electrical, and agricultural, the entries are unusually large and the exhibits of a high class. The introduction some years ago by several of the leading Canadian manufacturers of actual working appliances from their factories and shops, showing the processes of manufacture of their products, is more extensively followed this year. This feature is interesting and instructive and introduces the public more closely to a knowledge of what they wear and use, and also leaves the impression that Canada as a manufacturing country is rapidly advancing to the front.

As concerns food products and lines more directly handled by the grocery trade, The Grocer noticed that the exhibits were more numerous, better arranged and displayed and of a higher order than in former years. In the Main Building the displays are particularly striking. Entering by the eastern door along the front aisle the first exhibit was that of J. H. Grimm, Montreal, whose display of maple products, backed by a model of a typical Canadian sugar bush showing the old and new methods of producing these goods, is tempting enough and creditable to the industry. Near by in the main aisle the Cowan Cocoa and Chocolate Co., Limited, Toronto, have a large space where the delicious cup of cocoa was served out to the scribe. Samples of cocoa and chocolates are tastefully displayed. A number of young ladies were busy catering to the wants of visitors. Opposite the Cowan Co. the E. W. Gillett Co., Limited, Toronto, have a large space devoted to Magic Baking Powder, Gillett's Lye, Royal Yeast and their other well-known products. This section is one of the largest and most tastefully decorated in the building and no expense appears to have been spared to make it striking and attractive. The exhibit of the Frontenac Cereal Co., Kingston, consisting of Orange Meat, is in color effect and arrangement attractive, and the scribe's appetite was whetted by the sample served out. Blue Ribbon Tea was next in line and the crowds that were waited upon by the staff evidenced the favor in which this beverage was held. The Bates Mfg. Co.'s display of minced meats, unfermented wines and cream cheese, on the same aisle, attracted attention and the sampling of the various lines by The Grocer left him satisfied as to the excellence of the goods. Mela-Gama tea exhibit by F. J. White, Toronto, was unique and attractive, and this tea was much appreciated by visitors. In the prepared cheese line, The Grocer noticed the exhibit of the A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., and the Ingersoll Packing Co., both of which lines were exhibited and served in elaborately decorated booths, that of the MacLaren Co. having the enormous large fac simile pots so well known. Pure Gold coffees and specialties occupy a large corner on the north aisle and are, as usual, tastefully arranged and displayed. The Eby, Blain Co.'s huge Kinhee coffee pot, which looms over and above all surrounding exhibits, is surrounded by pyramids of Gold Medal coffee and Kolona tea, which is served to the public in a well-arranged booth. Another exhibitor of cocoas and chocolates is Walter Baker & Co., Boston, Mass., who occupy a large space at the end of the north aisle. In the extract of beef line, the two exhibitors are Bovril, Limited, and Armour & Co., Limited. Heinz Pickle Co., Pittsburg, are, as usual, one of the largest exhibitors, and the pyramidal display of the 57 varieties is bound to arrest attention and comment. Samples of the goods are served out by a staff of young ladies. Webb's chocolates are well to the front in the centre cross aisle. In the cereal line, The Grocer noticed the exhibit of the Canadian Shredded Wheat Co., International Food Co., Norka (exhibited by the Eby, Blain Co., Limited) Malta Vita, American Cereal Co., Quaker Oats, Pettijohn's Food, Appitezo, Orange Meat, while Wee MacGreegor held forth in a special position on the grounds near the Art Building.

The biscuit exhibit of Christie, Brown Co., Limited, is a large and improved style over former years, the coloring of the woodwork surrounding the large assortment of biscuits being rich. The Edwardsburg Starch Co.'s display of their culinary and laundry starches and the Crown brand table syrup, which is directly across from E. W. Gillett Co., Limited, in the centre aisle, is one of the largest and best arranged in the building and visitors can certainly not pass the display. Borden's condensed milk and evaporated cream display in the main cross aisle is as far as the scribe was able to note the only exhibit of this important industry.

Leaving the Main Building, the next visit was to the Manufacturers' Annex. Here the Canada Maple Exchange's exhibit of maple syrups, sugars and confections was the first striking exhibit. Cerebos salt, grocers' sundries, shoe polishes, dressings and stove polishes were prominently arranged by the various manufacturers. In the Dairy Building a magnificent display of cheese and butter was noted. This building drew to itself large crowds and the exposition of the manufacture of Canada's leading exports is becoming deservedly more interesting to visitors to the Exhibition. Lectures by the leading Canadian professors in our agricultural colleges and experimental farms are delivered, and the development of the industry and its importance explained.

In an afternoon's walk through the various buildings, it is possible The Grocer may have missed a few of the lines directly of interest to the trade. Taking the Exhibition as a whole, the number of exhibitors this year is seventeen hundred and seventy-one, some of whom have five or more entries of goods. In the industrial exhibits are: Manufacturers and liberal arts 116, transportation 36, implements 50, stoves 16, machinery 34, women's work 8, manufacturers' annex 22, dairy building 8, automobiles 6 and on the grounds outside of the buildings 12.

The following is a list of exhibitors interesting to the grocery trades:

Manufacturers' and Liberal Arts' Building—McGregor Harris Co., Eureka Refrigerator Co., Devonshire Cream Chocolate Co., Canadian Gelatine Co., Dayton Computing Scale Co., Blue Ribbon Tea Co., Toronto; L. H. Packard & Co., Limited, Montreal; Canadian Time Recording Co., W. H. Dunn, J. S. Fry

A NEW APPOINTMENT.

MR. I. S. WOTHERSPOON has received the appointment of superintendent of publicity department of the Ogilvie Flour Milling Co., Limited, Montreal. Mr. Wotherspoon has, since entering commercial life, always been connected with the produce and flour and feed interests. He was with the well-known firm of A. A. Ayer & Co. for six years in the capacity of cheese and butter buyer, visiting all the cheese boards and dairying centres. After leaving Ayer & Co. he opened up on his own account at Board of Trade Building, Montreal, as import and export commission merchant, representing several large European houses. During his business career Mr. Wotherspoon was always able to secure a good share of trade, and while on the road as cheese and butter buyer was most successful About a month ago the Ogilvie Flour

Mills Co., Limited, secured his services, placing him in charge of the publicity department, a position which requires, above all things, a sound business experience, coupled with good judgment and prompt action, all of which attributes Mr. Wotherspoon's experience and training entitle him to possess. Mr. Wotherspoon is to be congratulated upon securing such an important appointment and he carries with him the hearty good wishes of his friend The Grocer.

GLEANED FROM THE TRAVELERS.

MICHAUD & LEVESQUE, grocers, Sturgeon Falls, are erecting a fine new block which will cost upwards of $30,000.

Wm. McClarty, Owen Sound, has just completed renovating his store. This will now be one of the handsomest grocery stores in the neighborhood.

Whitehead & Heuther, grocers, Walkerton, have recently purchased the block adjoining, and will continue it as a crockery department.

F. Ballachey, Paisley, has just completed the rebuilding of his store and has fitted it out in a most complete and convenient form. He has also added a dry goods department, with very elaborate fittings, which will undoubtedly add considerable trade.

W. M. Croft, Brockville, has purchased the grocery department of G. W. Lawrence and has removed it to new premises a few doors south. He reports that in addition to holding the existing trade he has already added many more customers to the accounts.

W. J. Johns, Niagara and King streets, Toronto, has bought out the stock of the late W. J. Stewart, and will continue the business at Queen street west.

Henderson & Co., Toronto, have opened up a new grocery store on Bloor street west, at the corner of Shaw street.

W. D. McCarthey, Lippincott street, Toronto, has opened up a new grocery store.

J. Lydatt, Toronto, has opened up a new grocery store at the corner of Salem and Shanly streets.

A. D. Cross, Port Colborne, has converted his liquor store into a fine grocery stand.

Thos. Cox, Brantford, has opened a new grocery store.

A. Sherks, Bridgeburg, has just completed the fitting up of a new store which will be opened shortly as a grocery stand.

J. H. Wilson, Orillia, is just completing a fine building which he expects to open on the 1st of September as a grocery stand.

McInnes, Tiverton, has just moved into his new premises which are beautifully fitted and considered a great credit to the town. It will be remembered that this store was burned down about a year ago.

DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITICISM

Edited by Our Ad. Expert, TORONTO.

NOTE—Herein are discussed the principles and practice of advertising. Subscribers are invited to send our Expert specimens of their newspaper and other advertising, for the purpose of review in this department. Address care of Department of Advertising, THE CANADIAN GROCER.

OUTDOOR ADVERTISING.

LIGHT is thrown upon the commercial side of sign and poster advertising by the tenth annual report of the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society. Letters were sent by the society to fourteen large advertisers, who are each said to spend from $200,000 to $1,000,000 a year for publicity, asking them what proportion of their appropriations went for out-door display. The advertisers were asked to give their opinions of the usefulness of signs and posters. One firm, whose appropriation is said to be close to half a million a year, replied that they spent five per cent. of their advertising money in signs and did not regard them as desirable mediums. Another house, spending about $500,000 a year in all forms of advertising, had invested a few hundred dollars in street car signs and posters, with disappointing results. A firm whose advertising bills amount to $800,000 yearly, told the society that out-door advertising is not profitable compared with other methods.—Anon.

The question of street publicity is attracting considerable attention just now, and it would seem from the above that such advertising must either augment its popularity or loosen its present hold on the commercial man.

Manufacturers in great number are employing it on a large scale as a business medium, many others are said to be on the eve of doing so. Now and then, however, some individual appears who condemns the innovation, alleges dollar upon dollar is being wasted, and, as in the case quoted, gives figures, taken from actual tests, as conclusive testimony. It would be foolish as well as unprofitable to attempt in these pages anything like an analysis of the case from the aspect of the manufacturer alone, but, in a larger sense, the acceptance or non-acceptance of the utility of out-door advertising involves a principle in publicity, and the growth of this principle just at present is beginning to affect the commercial policies of retail merchants in our own and other countries.

While the manufacturer has been decorating the hillsides and rooftops with big displays, and in other flagrant ways been heralding the triumph of his goods, the retail merchant has been imitating on a miniature scale; he has been making use of his awning for enumerating some slogans, has been employing the store walls to announce, in huge letters, specialties; or he has been distributing in conspicuous places on fences nearby certain business "eye-catchers."

The retailer and the manufacturer in the above pursuits have been advertising. That cannot be gainsaid. The argument adduced by some against this style of advertising is mere cavil—criticism from an aesthetic standpoint. Other argument, like that herein quoted, is of a more tangible character—costs versus returns. This phase of the case is important.

The average retailer has no surplus fund for advertising purposes; his jaunt into out-door publicity will, therefore, never be as extensive as that of the manufacturer, even comparatively speaking, but the retailer's advertising fund is never too small to be wasted if it be used ineffectively. A number of retailers, like manufacturers, tire at the seeming tardiness with which newspaper advertising brings results and the meagreness of the results when they do come. These retailers desire more rapid methods. Why condense ideas to newspaper space, they argue, when you might placard them on streets and thus get quicker returns and on a larger scale. So much for some merchants' logic, in spite of the fact that they generally believe the best business—the business that lives—is built slowly. Inseparable from the business of slow, steady, perennial growth is the newspaper, that priceless auxiliary. The meteoric existence of the circus or exposition is never to be the model of any manufacturer who pretends to study "ways and means," much less the model of any retailer. Ephemeral concerns employ ephemeral methods—tremendous while they last. Every eye must be attracted, every home must be enthusiastic; out-door advertising is the wizard, it covers a marvellously large ground in a marvellously short time, but it exacts steep recompense.

It is true that the retailer, no matter where situated, should call into service all those advertising mediums which cost him but a trifle—in other words, make use of his own property. But the retailer should never employ classes of advertising at once foreign to the conditions under which he merchandises; when he does this his advertising gets beyond him, he begins to confuse sales with notoriety. Painting the awning is passable because the awning is part of the retailer's chattels. Decorating store walls, likewise, does not incur big expenditures. When the retailer, however, goes beyond these—meanders into the manufacturers' sign quagmire—he begins to wage war on his finances and to shake his faith in newspapers, which all the time are ready to support him.

Next to his own energy and sagacity the newspaper is the retailer's best friend. It secures for him the most business at the smallest expenditure. Time was when the utility of the daily or weekly was as dubious as out-door advertising is to-day; that time was when organized advertising was unknown. One can imagine the novelty and apparent egotism attached in those days to a merchant publishing his name below laudatory utterances on his goods; the same novelty is attached to a good deal of the sign and poster advertising now, when it is called to do service for every-day essentials, not to announce amusements. To the newspaper the public have long ago presented credentials and allotted them their proper sphere; but where are the credentials of the signboard and the bunting print? They belong to the parade; they have been appropriated by the manufacturer; they have been scented by the retailer. To the parade they are valuable, to the manufacturer dangerous; to the retailer useless. The business of the merchant is to reach out so far and no farther. This the newspaper does handily for him because it is a trained force, fully equipped, fully endorsed. This the signboard will never do for him because it is an experiment, and because its course is not defined. In the newspaper the merchant receives public attention crystalized. In the signboard he sees divided attempts to create attention—he pays for pioneer work.

The writer of the article from which the excrept is taken was so convinced of the futility of out-door advertising that he took the time and trouble to secure the statistics which the society had secured by writing to a big list of advertisers, soliciting their opinions. The result, as will be discerned even from the few cases quoted herewith, was a preponderance of argument against the out-door system. The same results might have been expected if the opinions of retailers were taken on the subject, keeping, of course, their own particular cases in view. Yet it is amazing what a small amount of newspaper advertising is done by retail grocers. Allowing for the confinements of locality, perishability of goods, fluctuations of prices, etc., the proportion, as compared with hardware or dry goods merchants, is about one to every ten. The latter do not indulge in so many store signs as the grocers, yet they can only bid for a limited trade and under practically identical conditions. Why, then, the difference? Are grocers making the mistake of centralizing in abundance and when spreading doing so unmethodically, preferring an ad. on any street to an ad. in a particular paper? It would seem in some cases as if grocers were more willing to spend money on:

ROBINS IS THE

displayed in ostentatious fashion on the store wall, than to spend it on:

IMPRESSIONS OF ENGLAND.

Mr. Roy H. C. Ewing, of S. H. & A. S. Ewing, coffee and spice manufacturers, Montreal, who was a member of the recent Canadian manufacturers' excursion to England, was seen by The Grocer on his return last week. Mr. Ewing was most enthusiastic in his appreciation of the reception the Canadian manufacturers had received at the hands of their English hosts. The impression that the English manufacturer was slow and not in line with the march of events was an erroneous one, and while in some instances it was noticed that the methods employed seemed crude, on the whole the English manufacturer was not looking for many pointers from foreigners. London—its vastness, activity, its wonderful shipping docks and money institutions—did not fail to impress Mr. Ewing and the members of the excursion party.

The side trips to Birmingham, Manchester, Sheffield, Leeds, and other manufacturing cities, were one continuous round of experience and knowledge for the visitors. The interchange of ideas of such a large number of business men and manufacturers could not fail but be of benefit to both the British and Canadians. From a physical point of view Mr. Ewing appears to have benefitted, as his ruddy complexion indicates an active outdoor experience, and this, combined with the commercial benefits obtained, will make the trip a memorable one.

TRADE WITH WEST INDIES.

It is gratifying at all times to hear of the extension of our export trade, and at the present moment when attention is being directed to the West Indian colonies, it is especially gratifying to be able to reproduce the following letter, bearing date the present month, which speaks satisfactorily to both merchant and customer:

A COFFEE MAN TO BE HONORED.

The name of Mr. D. Gillmor, of this city, who contested Charlotte county in the Liberal interest at the last general election, is being mentioned by his New Brunswick friends for the Senatorship left vacant by the lamented death of Mr. Wark. Mr. Gillmor, although in Montreal for many years, has maintained his close connection with his native county, making it each year his residence in the Summer. He is popular in the county, is public-spirited, and he and his father, the late Senator Gillmor, have been closely identified with the political history of Charlotte for many years. If chosen for the position there would be general agreement that an excellent choice had been made.

The above report from the Montreal Herald of Tuesday last is pleasant news, and Mr. Gillmor's many friends in the trade hope the report is authentic. Mr. Gillmor is head of the Canadian firm of Chase & Sanborn, the well-known coffee importers and roasters.

FRASER RIVER CONDITIONS.

EVERYTHING points to the fact that salmon fishing is very near its close. The sockeye run is practically at an end. The appearance of the humpbacks in great number, some days ago, is accepted as the usual indication of the end of the sockeye run.

On the Puget Sound, cannery men concede that the sockeye run is over. B.C. packers, too, agreed that the season has about closed. On the Fraser River districts hope is weakening of making up a full complement of sockeye pack; the second rush, which had been so confidently relied upon to make up the deficiency, shows no signs of coming; both wind and tide have been several times favorable, with still no sign of the rush. with sixty per cent. humpbacks in the traps and the same conditions at other points in the Sound, it is considered improbable that anything will occur to materially alter the prospects. The total season's pack is not now expected to exceed two-thirds of previous estimates. The Skeena River pack is nearing completion, the whole of which it is expected will be shipped to Australia and New Zealand. The Skeena River salmon have been in great demand in those colonies, and consequently command top prices.

The pack on Puget Sound to date is estimated at about six hundred thousand cases. The Blaine output from eight canneries is about two hundred and fifty thousand. The Anacortes pack from six canneries is about two hundred and fifty-eight thousand, and the four Bellingham canneries two hundred and ten thousand cases. The Fraser River pack to date is believed to be nearly six hundred thousand cases. In order to give anything like a moderate supply, it should reach seven hundred thousand before the close of the pack, and from latest reports to hand it is expected to do so.

Comparing statistics which have come to hand with the conditions of 1901, the year in which the pack beat all previous records, it is found that the total result will be some two to three hundred thousand cases less than that year, a comparison of prices too reveals the fact that they are somewhat dearer than last season. On the Fraser River there has already begun a rush of prices, some independent canneries are giving as much as twelve and a half cents, whilst the associated prices remain at ten cents. A feature of no small importance in this situation is that American canners have raided the market under the belief that there is bound to be a shortage in their own markets and are therefore giving better prices than the associated, in order to induce sales.

New Brunswick Conditions.

In these districts the salmon fishing season is over, the law providing for its closing on Aug. 15th. It has been the record season for seventeen years as regards catch of salmon, prices, however, —probably on account of the large catch —have been lower than usual. There are some seventy boats in operation on the New Brunswick coast, the whole of which have done exceedingly well, prices, although lower than last season, were not so low as to take away the benefits of the increased catch. More fish would have been landed had it not been for their unexpected disappearance from the bay a full week before the closing of the season. Altogether the feeling is one of general satisfaction at the season's prospects.

NEWFOUNDLAND COD FISHERIES.

LATEST reports to hand denote a decided falling off in arrivals of cod-fish at Newfoundland points. The present season is likely to fall behind any season for the past five years. The cod-fish fleet consists of but fifty vessels of the larger sort, as compared with upwards of one hundred a few years ago. this, in itself, will account for some decrease in the supply. The rule followed of late, to make two short trips in place of the one lengthened trip formerly in favor, makes up in some measure for the falling off in number of vessels. The results in catch, however, have never reached the former high standard. Only twenty vessels have as yet come in from their first trips, bringing reports of short catches, and it is not expected that many will return for the second trip this year, on account of bad prospects.

Indications are therefore of a short supply and prices are expected to rule higher as the season advances.

Demand is all that is looked for and compares very favorably with last year at same time. Large orders are expected shortly which will absorb supplies as quickly as they arrive.

VANCOUVER COD FISHERIES.

The first vessel has arrived at Anacartes from the Behring Sea cod fishing, bringing reports of generally good catches. It had on board upwards of one hundred and ten thousand fish, equal to about five hundred and fifty tons weight, and had completed its two thousand mile trip in three weeks. Another vessel is following closely with an equally good catch.

SHORT LOBSTER PACK.

Reports from a very reliable source say that the lobster pack on the Gaspe coast, New Brunswick, and portions of Nova Scotia this season is very short, and it is estimated that the total catch will be fully a third to one-half less than last year. Many fishermen did not get half their usual catch and the packers were hard pressed to keep the factories going. These reports would indicte that high prices may be looked for in lobsters.

NEWFOUNDLAND HERRING FISHERIES.

The enforcement of the laws relating to the herring fisheries is under consideration by the Newfoundland Government, the object being to prevent fishing by the American fishermen during the Autumn season. There are two policies proposed; one being to refuse to permit the purchase of herring from the colonial fisherfolk; the other to levy an export duty on all herring conveyed to American markets, with special penalties should the fish be landed in Canadian ports or at St. Pierre.

FRASER RIVER LICENSES.

The Dominion Government officials are showing great activity in enforcing the license laws on the Fraser River. Hitherto holders of licenses taken out at northern points of the Province have been allowed to travel south, and continue fishing in the Fraser River, when their own fishing was completed. This year, however, for the first time in the history of the salmon fishing of these districts, licenses taken out in one district are not being honored in another. Quite a number of northern men have had to take out a fresh license—ten dollars in each case. Canners and fishermen alike are protesting against this enforcement of the law.

PRICE OF SOCKEYES.

The shortage of the past three seasons in the packing of sockeye salmon is a prominent factor in the prices that have been announced. At the present time there is not a case of sockeye salmon on the British Columbia markets, and the new pack comes without any competition.

FRENCH SARDINES A FAILURE.

Of the six hundred boats which went out for sardines, all have returned to Douanenez empty, with the exception of fifty, and these have only small hauls. This season is expected to be the worst ever experienced by the fishermen of Brittany. Three years ago, there was almost a famine among these fishermen, and public subscriptions had to be solicited on their behalf.

"HALF" CANS OF SALMON.

Salmon packers are this season canning only a moderate quantity of half-pound cans. Prices of half-pounds will in consequence open higher than last year. The difficulty in packing and extra labor incurred on half cans is the reason given, and as a large pack was in anticipation it was not considered advisable to pack a full complement of halves.

REJECTING GOODS.

A LEADING grocery broker, in conversation with The Grocer, gave expression to the following interesting remarks: "I noticed a few weeks ago a very strong and pertinent editorial in The Grocer on the subject of the habit of retailers returning jobbers' drafts, and I am thoroughly convinced the jobbing trade acknowledge the exposition of the cases as set forth by you as being a timely and necessary one. While you were on the subject I think it would have been very appropriate had you referred also to the brokers' and importers' complaints against the jobbing trade of Canada for similar action. I feel sure I voice the feeling and opinion of my fellow brokers when I say that we have as serious—if not more serious—cause for complaint against the wholesale grocery and jobbing trade, for their cavalier treatment of our interests, than they have against their retail customers. During the many years I have had the privilege of doing business with Canadian houses, I have times out of number suffered serious loss through the rejection of goods bought by jobbers, and invariably for no just reason. Goods sold by me on recognized trade standards have on arrival at jobbers' warehouses been either flatly refused or held under storage and other expense, pending the possible securing of a concession in price by the jobber. Frequently the cause of complaint was a trivial one, sometimes so trivial that a similar complaint from the jobber's customer would have been turned down 'sans ceremonie,' and I think that your journal should be open to a discussion of our position, and if the jobbing interests will consider the situation some amelioration of this rejection of goods by them may result. It certainly should receive a more appreciable consideration on their part."

The Grocer's view of the position, as stated by the broker in question, is that matters of this kind could be satisfactorily arranged between the parties if due weight were given by the importer to the position the broker is placed in by having to make allowances for account of his principals. Goods bought in good faith and on standards that are accepted by the trade should not be thrown back. The broker's position is certainly an unenviable one in cases where a line of goods is rejected, and an amicable solving of the question should not be difficult.

CANNING TROUBLE.

The following copy of a circular letter issued by a Baltimore packing company has been handed to us, and is an instructive document as showing the American style of drawing attention to the troubles:

"In the mythological gallery of gods sat Comus dispensing mirth and joy to the gods of greater or less degree, and unto his satellites as well. He is out of business now, leaving no successor. Every packer in Maryland will swear he's dead, for not one single little mirth, nor a solitary lonesome joy has been theirs since the puzzling, perplexting, provoking packing of tomatoes began.

"From the time this plant was discovered by the American Indian to the present hour, its capacity for shrouding itself in mystery and concealing its real intentions has never been measured. With equal facility it inspires pleasure and creates pain, engenders hope and breeds despair, fills expectation and causes miscalculation. Its early stage holds one agape with anticipation and leaves him aghast with disappointment. It is capricious, sometimes rushing on like a torrent, again it is like a stagnant pool. Whimsical, it fills the lap of earth with extravagance and prodigality, or, becoming churlish, refuses to yield an atom of fruit from its luxuriant vines. Its weapons are doubt and assurance. The wielding of one paralyzes, the other prostrates. Careless and indifferent, it neither condoles with the man who has disposed of its fruit before the appearance of the blossom upon its vines, nor rejoices with him who is content to sell only at the time of harvest. Each year its vagaries differ. There be fat and lean years. In this year of grace there is found to be:

"An acreage shortage of 50 per cent.

"A reduction in canneries equal to 30 per cent.

"The rotting on the vines by successive rains.

"Which will necessitate the jobber paying the full cost price per dozen tins and a little more, so that the office boy will receive his weekly wage and likewise the man who sweeps, dusts and washes the office windows."

TRADE INQUIRIES.

THE following inquiries for Canadian trade have been received at the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa. The names of the firms making inquiries, with their addresses, may be obtained on application to the Superintendent of Commercial Agencies, Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa :

898. A Burgundy firm dealing in wines desires to get into communication with Canadian trade.

899. A French firm in Cognac wants a good representative on the Canadian market to sell its first-class brandies.

900. A French champagne firm wishes suitable Canadian resident agent.

901. A well known firm in Concarneau (France) wishes to introduce its alimentary products in Canada.

902. A Bordeaux firm exporting olive oil desires to appoint an agent in Canada.

904. A Parisian brush manufacturer desires a valuable agent in the Canadian market.

906. A scale manufacturer near Paris wants to be put in touch with Canadian buyers.

908. A Parisian firm dealing in siphons for soda water wishes to correspond with Canadian buyers.

909. A French manufacturer would sell his working stock and whole machinery in perfect state, to Canadian buyer; will take charge of setting up.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. A. B. Hardwicke, Canadian agent for Pyle's Pearline, is at present calling upon the trade in Montreal.

Mr. J. E. Millette, representing Ocean Mills, Montreal, reports good trade from the Maritime Provinces.

Major Zeph. Hebert, of Hudon, Hebert & Cie., Montreal, is spending a few days with his family at Bellevue, Lake St. Joseph, P.Q.

Wendel J. Hyatt of Leamington has accepted a position as traveler with the Port Hope Brewing Co. His route will be from Toronto west.

Mr. John Horne, sales manager of Campbell Bros. & Wilson, Winnipeg, returned early in the week from a pleasant holiday trip in the east.

J. W. Davey, Berlin, formerly in the baker business, is traveling for the Lake Huron & Manitoba Milling Co., Goderich, with territory in Northern and Western Ontario.

Mr. John N. Creed, representing Thos. J. Lipton, tea and coffee planter, is at present in Montreal in the interests of Lipton's teas and coffees. Mr. Creed will make a trip through Quebec.

Mr. Wm. C. Boyle, secretary-treasurer the John L. Cassidy Co., Limited, Montreal, is taking a ten days' rest at Cleveland, Lake Muskoka District, where Mr. Boyle's family are Summering.

Mr. J. A. Courtemanche, representing Ocean Mills, manufacturers of "Chinese Starch" and other grocers' specialties, is making his regular trip through Western Ontario, and reports increased business.

Mr. A. Suter, of Crossfield, Lampard, Clark & Co., London and Colombo, who has been in the New York branch during the past two months, is in Montreal for a few days. Mr. Suter returns to New York on Saturday.

Mr. C. P. Shinn, advertising manager of the Tea and Coffee Trade Journal, New York, is visiting the leading trade centres in Canada in the interest of his paper. He was in Toronto this week and is heading westward.

Mr. H. C. McGinnis, Eastern Ontario representative of Chase & Sanborn, Montreal, is at present in Royal Victoria Hospital, having undergone an operation for appendicitis. The Grocer wishes him a speedy recovery.

Mr. Wm. Georgeson, member of the firm of Codville & Co., of Winnipeg, returned to that city last week from a short business trip to Calgary and other western towns. Mr. Georgeson was much encouraged by the splendid crop outlook.

Mr. E. B. Goodacre, of Watt, Scott & Goodacre, Montreal, is back to business after a two weeks' pleasant vacation at Lake Goumond, near Nominingue, P.Q., very much bronzed up and ruddy, indicating that the northern mountain air was fully taken advantage of.

Lou Chapman, traveler for T. Kinnear & Co., wholesale grocers, Toronto, for about 20 years in Northern Ontario and the Manitoulin Island, is now traveling for the Davidson & Hay, Limited, in the same line of business. He is succeeded by A. Jameson, formerly with the Canada Biscuit Co.

Mr. S. S. Arnold, Manitoba, Northwest and B.C. representative of R. Herron & Co., Montreal, is at headquarters this week. As usual, Mr. Arnold is full of news and some new curiosities gathered by him during his latest trip are exhibited with pleasure. Business is reported excellent and prospects cheering.

Mr. Thomas Upton, Hamilton, Ont., is a visitor to Montreal this week, making a little excursion with several members of his family. The Grocer did not notice his gun, but that is presumably taking a rest until the hunting season opens. No better Nimrod than Thomas Upton can be found, go one far and wide.

Mr. E. E. Dodson has been appointed agricultural superintendent to the Keystone Sugar Co., at Whitby. He is to have active charge of the acreage, with Mr. A. W. Jackson as his assistant. Mr. Dodson was formerly connected with the Wallaceburg Sugar Co., and should therefore prove a most desirable man for the position.

R. McJannet has severed his connections with the Pilot Mound Grain Co., and has taken a position as purchasing traveler with the Dunsieth Grain Co., of Winnipeg. His duties will commence with that company about Sept. 15. J. C. Stewart, who has been buying for the Ogilvie Co., will take the position previously occupied by R. McJannet.

Mr. B. Trudel, of L. Chaput, Fils & Co.'s sampleroom staff, has returned from a two weeks' vacation spent with a party of friends at their private lake and fishing grounds at Lake Veillet, north of Three Rivers, P.Q. A very pleasant outing was spent in the wild, and a good ruddy color put on by Mr. Trudel, evidencing lots of outdoor enjoyment.

Mr. Chas. E. Moyle, sales manager, E. W. Gillett Co., Limited, Toronto, paid a call at the Montreal offices of The Grocer last Friday. Mr. Moyle was returning from a holiday trip to the Saguenay and Quebec. In conversation with The Grocer, Mr. Moyle stated that the expansion of their business was exceeeding even their most sanguine expectations. The company's exhibit of their products at the Toronto Exhibition would this year be superior to anything yet attempted by them.

Mr. John Carsley, president of the Ozo Co., Limited, Montreal, is back from a trip to England. Mr. Carsley while abroad on his vacation studied the leading English pickle industries, and his acquired knowledge will be evident in the superior quality of his company's pickles. A visit to the factory by The Grocer this week showed the finest quality of cucumbers possible to obtain, all grown from special imported seed, and this year's output of the Ozo Co. should do credit to the company and to Canada.

Mr. John Everett, traveler in Eastern Ontario for Christie, Brown Co., Limited, Toronto, who has been spending the past three months in England, returned to Toronto this week. Mr. and Mrs. Everett arrived in Halifax last Tuesday, and after spending a few days with friends in that city took the western journey in easy stages on account of Mrs. Everett's health, which is not of the best. During Mr. Everett's stay in Montreal he honored The Grocer with a call. The holiday was a good one and thoroughly enjoyed, though after an absence of thirty-five years most of the old friends had gone on their long journey and the old landmarks had changed or been removed in the progress and growth of the old home. Mr. Everett started out with renewed vigor last Monday, and his many friends in the east will be pleased to see him on the old stamping ground.

THE BACON SITUATION.

THE high prices of hogs which have been ruling for some time are having a somewhat serious effect on the Canadian market for the dressed product.

Farmers themselves are aware that prices cannot maintain the present high parity; these prices were attained to attract to the market well-conditioned hogs, the farmers being inclined to hold back supplies. Farmers, however, in order to secure the advantage of present prices, have been hastening hogs to the packers before they were in proper condition, having the effect of materially reducing the grading, and consequently lowering the output of the best grades of bacon and ham for the export trade.

The export market is of first importance, it has been gained upon superiority, and only by keeping a high standard can it be held. The Danish and English market prices have been maintained against those of American productions by force of quality alone.

The condition of the three centres of European trade (Liverpool, London and Southampton) is at present anything but satisfactory. The cold storage warehouses are filled with low-grade American products, and their holders are ready to rush the market at the first signs of advance, so that the hope of the Canadian exporter is in his ability to main-

Sellers of Soap

A Limited Liability Company with capital of $200,000 in shares of $50.00 has been formed to take over the business of Soap Manufacturing which has been carried on for many years by the firm of A. Savage & Son. The business, however, remains under the same management, the change being due principally to the desire of the sole partner in the old firm to interest some of his employees in the business.

Besides this was the idea that the change offered an opportunity to give to the trade a profit on all the Albert Soaps they handled.

While the wholesale price of Baby's Own Soap has never been changed since it was first offered to the trade, the retail price has been constantly reduced. Seeking to profit by its well-known excellence, and to draw trade for other lines, aggressive retailers have vied with one another in bringing down its selling price until now the public can buy it practically as cheap as the wholesaler.

The inevitable result is that many retailers object to sell it and only the keen appreciation of users has enabled its sale to constantly increase. To-day, twice the quantity is sold in Canada that was sold five years ago.

A limited number of Albert Soap shares is being placed on the market. By becoming shareholders in the Company retailers will share in the manufacturer's profit as well as their own. To give to all a good chance of securing an allotment this stock will be reserved exclusively for the Retail Soap Trade until Sept. 30th; any stock left over then will be offered to the public.

The face value of the shares is $50.00 and dividends will accrue from the start. Similar concerns are earning very large dividends in England and the United States, and shares bought a few years ago at par are worth very much more now. It is hoped that the Soap trade in Canada will avail themselves of our offer and complete prospectus will be mailed on request.

Announcement

We beg to announce to the Grocers of Canada that owing to the rapid increase of our business and the large and increasing demand for Walker Bin Fixtures we have found it necessary to add to our factory facilities and have purchased a larger and better equipped plant in the Town of Berlin, where, with the most modern machinery, experienced workmen and every facility necessary to our special line of manufacture, we will be able to give more prompt attention than heretofore to all orders for Modern Grocery Store Fixtures.

tain quality, and so keep his price on a paying basis.

The U.S. packers, to a large extent, are the makers of the farmers' prices; the farmer consequently markets his hogs as soon as ever it reaches their limit, without regard to the high standard of condition ruling in Canadian markets, the result being that the American export products cannot be compared with Canadian, which has been able to lead the market by from three to four shillings per cwt.

The market is at present very unsteady, a drop of three shillings has just been cabled, which will have the effect of still further loading cold storage. What is expected by experienced exporters is that markets will firm up to a steady basis, and maintain themselves until the opening of the Autumn season. Quotations at Liverpool at time of going to press are: Canadian (Wiltshire) bacon, 60 to 63s. Hams, 53s.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

A record sale was made by White & Co., Limited, Toronto, on a car of California peaches, pears, plums and grapes this week, at their auction, the car grossing $1,875—the highest ever obtained on a single car at one sale in Toronto.

E. L. Jemmett, Beamsville, wishes to advise the trade that his "Crown Brand" peaches will be graded into three classes—"Select," No. 1 and 2; that a guarantee will be placed in every basket shipped as "Crown Brand," and that the peaches will be of uniform size.

White & Co., Limited, Toronto, rereceived their first consignment of Almeria grapes in barrels. The fruit was exceptionally well colored for so early.

Many of our best city retail grocers now keep a few packets of Wilson's fly pads on their counters, where they may be seen by customers. Frequent and profitable sales are made in this way with little expenditure of time upon the part of the staff.

Laporte, Martin & Cie. call buyers' attention to the prominent firms represented by them in Canada. All these firms are in the front rank in their several specialties, and the success reported by Laporte, Martin & Cie. would indicate appreciation on part of the trade.

Bailey's "Extract of Clams" are a good line with Jason S. Creed, Board of Trade, Montreal. This Boston delicacy, so well known in the United States, is meeting with good sale by the best grocers.

White & Co., Limited, Toronto, received 1,000 crates Denia onions this week—50-lb. crates. California fruit is meeting with great sales in Toronto owing to the scarcity of good local peaches. Niagara peaches, however, should be in in fair quantities this coming week.

CANADIAN PRODUCT IN BRITAIN.

PROF. H. H. DEAN, of the Ontario Agricultural College, returned from some of the leading dairy centres of Great Britain, Ireland and Northern Europe on Saturday, after an absence of about two months. He briefly reports as follows:

(1) The trade in Great Britain is very favorably disposed towards Canadian butter. It is arriving in better condition than it has ever done before. While preservatives are not in favor, if butter can be landed in good condition without them, the trade is agreed that some form of preservative is necessary in order to have saltless butter hold its flavor. The only fear is that too much may be added by the Canadian maker, thus causing trouble to the dealer if it contain over one-half per cent. of boracic acid, the maximum allowed in British markets. There is likely to be a good demand for Canadian butter for some time to come—at least until the Russo-Japanese war concludes and for some time thereafter.

(2) The trade is indifferent on the question of cool-curing and paraffining cheese.

(3) The best Canadian Cheddar cheese is equal to the best English and Scotch Cheddars, but does not bring the same price, largely because of prejudice in favor of home goods. Not all English Cheddars are first-class by any means. Possibly a larger percentage of them are of first quality than is the case with Canadian, because the climatic conditions are more favorable in Great Britain to the making of fine cheese. The best Canadian butter is probably equal to the best Danish butter when first made, but owing to the greater distance and longer time required to reach the market, it is not so good when delivered. It also lacks the uniformity which is so characteristic of Danish butter. This uniformity is the result of uniform methods of manufacture and the adoption of pasteurization and pure cultures in making it.

(4) Co-operative cow-testing societies among the Danish farmers are doing much to improve the dairy stock. This plan is also being adopted by the Scotch dairymen. The expense is not very great and is borne by the farmers interested. This is probably one of the most important steps taken by the Danish dairymen during the past ten years to improve their dairy stock. Some of the prominent men are advising the introduction of Jersey blood to improve the richness of the Danish cow's milk. An interesting experiment is now under way to test the advisability of this step. They expect to have results in eight or ten years which will guide the farmers on this point.

(5) The European agricultural colleges, dairy schools and experimental stations are doing good work for the European farmer. As a rule they are on a much smaller scale than the one at Guelph. The Ontario Agricultural College suffers nothing by comparison with the best European institutions doing similar work.

In all the British markets he found a growing disposition to treat Canadian food products very favorably. This is a feeling which should be fostered in every possible way.

GOLD STANDARD VS RED FEATHER

"Baseball is red hot in the great little city of Calgary. The Codville-Smith Co., Limited, heretofore have had an invincible team; they call themselves the 'Gold Standard,' scooping everything that came along; but they tackled the 'Red Feather' team of James Turner & Co., and met corkers. They were beaten so easily they did not know what was the matter until it was all over; and now the 'Red Feather' people are happy."

N. B. Markets.

St. John, N.B., Aug. 28, 1905.

WHILE business is reported fair, there is no disguising the fact that the feeling amongst the trade is different from a year ago. With sugar continually dropping and flour, that is Ontario grades, off say $1.40 in six months—the larger part of this decline being in the last three—it is not surprising there is somewhat of a depressed feeling, and there is little to offset this condition. The lines which have advanced, as fish, pork, lard and dairy products, being not largely stocked.

Spice—At this season has good attention. Pepper and cloves are rather higher. Nutmegs keep very low. In rice rather higher prices are asked. Cream of tartar, which is perhaps the most changeable line in the grocery business, while low, is held more firmly.

With this week the general Saturday half-holiday stops. The wholesale grocers, however, continue it right through the year.

Oil—There is increased consumption of burning oil. Now is the season prices are likely to advance. Market is reported firmer; outside buyers have largely bought their Winter's supply at the extreme low prices which have ruled. The city retailers, depending on the tank wagon, do not as a rule carry stock, and cannot buy ahead. In Linseed oil, low prices rule. Turpentine, which has been high right through the season, is easier. Lubricating oils have rather light sale. In cod oil, there are fair receipts; price is rather low.

Salt—In Liverpool coarse salt a further cargo is due in two weeks; buyers, however, have orders placed for shipment from ship's side, this meaning quite a saving. There has been a good demand. Prices are firmly held. In fine salt, Canadian has the market; sales are rather quiet.

Canned Goods—While the association has lead to better profits the situation is not altogether satisfactory. Several lines of new goods, as peas, beans, strawberries and raspberries have been received. Peas, which have been ruling low, are likely to be quoted higher. Corn and tomatoes are acarce and, particularly for tomatoes, full prices are asked. New Spring salmon has come to hand followed by a drop in price. Meats are unchanged. Lobsters, extreme. Gal. apples are dull, with prices low. Oysters are firmly held; this is not, however, a large market. Fruits unchanged. Scallops are scarce. Domestic sardines are a fair pack so far. Haddies short. It is early yet to give report on kippers.

Green Fruit—Bananas are held quite firm. American apples gre still being sold, some domestic now coming in, with best grades quite high. Apples and plums are each a short crop. In plums, Ontarios are being freely received. Pears are high, except Californian stock; those received are small and for this reason have but a fair sale. Peaches are high. Oranges are extreme in price, and the same is true of lemons. Tomatoes are still high.

Dried Fruits—California prunes, peaches and apricots have so far advanced that those who have not bought are inclined to take their chances buying later. Currants are of interest. Quite a quantity of old goods, both bulk and packages, have been bought. New goods for import are about half-cent higher than last year. Rather more Valencia raisins are being bought than usdal, as they are low and the outlook in other grades will be high. Dates, figs and peels will show little change. Evaporated apples are rather higher. The outlook is for full figures. Owing to the high price there is some inquiry for dried apples. Onions are higher.

Sugar—The slight advance of five cents which threw out a hope to the trade that better things were in store, has been followed by a decline of ten cents, and market is again depressed. Stocks are light.

Molasses—There have been two cargoes of Porto Rico landed this week. There is now quite a large stock held. It is, however, in few hands and prices are well maintained; stock of choice Barbadoes is not large; there is a fair stock of fancy.

Fish—There is little in fresh fish. Shad should be here, but there are none. Pickled shad, perhaps our best pickled fish, has this last year or two been so high as to be almost out of reach. Dry fish is still extremely high, while pickled herring are perhaps slightly easier; prices are high. Smoked herring is beginning to follow the other lines, being low, yet firm.

Flour, Feed and Meal— Dealers are much displeased at the rapid decline of Ontario; they feel the millers are not selling any more flour, and are preventing those who hold stocks clearing them up. One thirty is now the difference between Manitoba and Ontario; this is out of reason and lower Manitoba flour is expected. Cornmeal in unchanged. Oatmeal is unchanged; millers prices slightly lower. Local prices have been low—market overstocked. Beans are easier; some quite low prices for future are quoted.

A MODEL FOOD LAW.

The general food law of Porto Rico is one of the most "up-to-date" of those to which the United States Department of Agriculture has been giving its paternal attention. "No article of food, drink, drug, etc., can be sold or offered for sale in Porto Rico, nor can it be stored or exposed for sale therein or be transported in or into said island with the purpose of storing, selling, exposing, or offering it for sale in the same, if it be adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of these terms as defined therein." The standards for butter and cheese are given, also cocoa and coffee; the latter must not contain less than 0.65 per cent. of caffein, or more than 5 per cent. of ash or 14 per cent. of water. If it is roasted, it must contain not less than 0.65 per cent. of caffein, 25 per cent. of extract soluble in boiling water, not more than 5.25 per cent. of ash, or 4 per cent. of water. Coffee substitutes must be branded in letters not less than half an inch in height, with expressions, coffee with chicory, coffee with hedionda, etc., according to the nature of the mixture. The law also specifies what constitutes adulteration in flour, jellies, jams, preserves, juices, honey, lard, condensed milk or cream, molasses, oilve oil, sugar, tea, vinegar; and defines preservatives and names those permissible in food provided their presence is indicated by the label.

NATIONAL C. R. CO.'S WORKS.

REMARKABLE as an instance of neighborly spirit between the people of two cities, and as an example of the willingness of modern manufacturers to learn from the success of others, was the visit to Dayton recently of 1,000 employes of the Procter & Gamble Co., of Cincinnati. They came to visit the model factory of the National Cash Register Co. and to learn something of the novel methods in vogue there. The N.C.R. Co. gave a dinner to the visiting workers and their wives and children, over 1,500 people in all.

Celebrate Profit-Sharing.

The visit of the Cincinnati workers was a part of the celebration of the thirty-seventh semi-annual profit-sharing of the Procter & Gamble Co. Twice each year this concern divides among its workers a share of the profits which their work has created. At the time of the distribution of these dividends a celebration is always held. In Winter this takes the form of a mass meeting, and in Summer an excursion is arranged to some nearby place of interest, the visit to Dayton combining the features of a pleasure outing and an educational trip.

Came on Special Trains.

The excursionists came to Dayton in two special trains over the Big Four and the C.H. & D. From the station they were taken in special cars to the N.C.R. factory, where elaborate preparations had been made for their entertainment. For an hour and a half parties of the visitors, in charge of one hundred special guides, were conducted through the big factory and its extensive grounds, studying the methods of manufacture and the Welfare Work in vogue there. The visitors were much interested in landscape gardening, their own factory buildings being surrounded with lawns and gardens and overgrown with luxuriant vines. The bathrooms maintained by the Dayton Co. for its employes were another attraction for the soap-makers.

After the inspection of the factory, the visitors were entertained at an illustrated stereopticon lecture in Welfare Hall, the factory dining room, where each day luncheon is served to 1,000 men and women.

Dinner Served to Visitors.

Following the lecture, dinner was served to the 1,500 visitors. An elaborate menu had been prepared on short notice. The dinner was prepared and served by the Domestic Economy Department of the big Dayton factory. This department has charge of serving luncheon to the employes.

Dinner over, the Cincinnati visitors made a trip to the Dayton Soldiers' Home and other places of interest about the city. They returned to Cincinnati late in the afternoon.

Commenting upon the success of the excursion, Mr. W. H. Garrison of the Cincinnati concern, said: "Our visit to Dayton and Dayton's leading factory has been most profitable for our employes. They have had a chance to study new methods which enable them to do better work on their return. We hope the Dayton people will send some of their employes to visit us and make a study of the methods in vogue at our plant."

THE FUTURE OF CANADA.

THE centre of the next great world development, according to the New York Wall Street Journal, promises to be on this side of the Atlantic—in Canada, in fact, the prime agent of the coming development will be the new transcontinental railway with termini on the shores of the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans.

The cost of the undertaking is variously estimated at from $150,000,000 to $200,000,000, and the railroad is to be completed and equipped within five years. Aside altogether from benefits which its construction will bring to Canada, through the opening of an entirely virgin territory to settlement and production, the mere fact that such an enormous sum of money is to be expended in the country, largely in the shape of wages and for supplies which will be wholly of home production, is a sufficient guarantee of great general prosperity during the period of building at least. But when it is considered that the present wheat-producing capacity of the Canadian West is only two per cent. of the equally good-growing land which will be thrown open to cultivation by the construction of this great national undertaking, the possibilities are simply staggering. It means that within ten years the production of wheat in Canada will be limited only by the ability to find the labor to cultivate the land and handle the crops. This development means a coming economic change, which must be taken into consideration as a world's factor. Canada is now producing about one-sixth of the wheat raised in North America. Her new facilities will increase her ability so vastly that it is evident that she will before many years control the grain markets of the world, and in that fact there is much food for thought for the agriculturist of the United States.

Only second in importance to her wheat production, if indeed it long remains second, will be the return promised from the forests and mines, now practically inaccessible, but to be opened to the world with the completion of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. So far we have referred only to the building of the main line of something less than 4,000 miles, but it is the purpose of the Government of the Dominion to build innumerable branches, so that the most remote parts of the main line will be brought into touch with the existing railroads not only of Canada, but of the United States. One of these lines is already under construction—from Toronto to Lake Temiskaming, about 300 miles north in a straight line from the city on Lake Ontario.

Everything indicates that Canada is full of mineral—the precious metals, coal, iron, copper, tin, nickel, phosphates, and, in fact, everything that the requirements of the world demand abound, to say nothing of oil. These fields are thus far untouched. How valuable they are may be gathered from one accidental find on the Temiskaming Railway at Cobalt. Granting that there may be exaggeration about the glowing reports from this district, it must be admitted that sufficient has been shown to raise the hopes of Canadians that this hitherto unexplored country may prove an Eldorado. At least enough has been found to justify scientific search for precious and other metals, and it must be confessed that the mining history of Canada warrants the most thorough exploration. How greatly this will be accelerated by the construction of the new road needs no argument to prove. Important finds of oil and coal have already been announced by the surveying parties, and altogether there seems to be good reason for the optimism which prevails in Canada at the present time.

BENEFITING CANADA.

MANUFACTURERS in this country are not worrying over the present boycott of United States goods entering China. The situation is the outcome of a discrimination against Chinese labor as well as a lack of discrimination when their travelers, merchants and scholars attempted to enter the republic. This result had never been anticipated, but is a natural retaliation that is causing the Americans considerable concern at the present time.

Already inquiries have been received from China regarding Canadian manufactured products, and before the trouble is adjusted many of our enterprising manufacturers and jobbers will have secured an opening for future trade with the Celestial Empire. Our strenuous neighbors will some day waken to the fact that a generous policy in dealing with other countries is, after all, the most profitable.

MILLIONS FOR MATERIAL.

WHERE all the material to be used in the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific is coming from is not yet known, but it has already been estimated what will be required to supply some of the necessary articles for the four thousand five hundred miles of track which the completion of the road will add to Canada's present twenty thousand railroad mileage. It has been figured that it will require 10,500,000 ties, nearly 500,000 tons of rails, 42,000,000 spikes, 5,000,000 bolts, 2,500,000 angle bars and fish plates, guards and tie plates also in the millions. It is estimated 500 locomotives, 30,000 freight cars, and 500 passenger cars will be required. Other items are bridge timber and steel, stations, telephones and telegraphs, water tanks, terminal facilities, fencing, etc., entailing an outlay of millions of dollars. These items are sufficient to warrant the commencement of many new industries at present not in active operation.

EASTERN PEACE PROSPECTS.

AS we go to press, the welcome news that a basis of peace has been arrived at is confirmed.

We cannot withhold our hearty congratulations upon the receipt of such unexpectedly welcome news. The representatives of both Japanese and Russian Governments cannot be too highly commend upon the remarkably good feeling that has existed between them all through these most difficult negotiations. Russia has always been considered a mighty power and one to be reckoned with seriously. Japan, on the other hand, has suddenly blossomed forth from a position of almost seclusion into a prominent place among the nations; even after making due allowance for the extraordinary manner of Japan's military and naval successes, it can be easily conceived that the dignity of Russia, backed by a history of centuries, needed careful and diplomatic treatment of an unusual kind.

This is the feature which gave to our esteemed friend and neighbor, the American President, an opportunity to distinguish himself, and to place him on record as the masterpiece of sagacious diplomacy. That he has fully justified his position as referee in perhaps the greatest war conference of modern times, and at the same time most delicate, is clear reading to the whole civilized world.

Public opinion has met with a decided check in the unexpected surrender by Japan of every point opposed by Russia. No one—not even Russia herself—was prepared for this. That some concession should be made was freely discussed, but not for a moment was anyone found bold enough to advocate such a complete withdrawal.

In the main, Japan is praised for her magniminity as the conquering power, whilst Russia is honored as having obtained the most remarkable diplomatic victory ever accorded a vanquished foe. Anyhow, the approach of the possibility of peace is a universal cause for rejoicing to the civilized world. Commerce can now go forward to the eastern world without fear; the introduction of better conditions which must inevitably follow the change of regime, and the establishment of a confidence hitherto unknown, are all factors which spell prosperity to the world of exporters amongst which Canada is one of the most important.

What, however, were the influences which induced such a complete revolution in the prospects of peace? Are there not factors to be considered not apparent on the surface, and may it not be that on penetrating the many diverse issues at stake some light will be obtained? It is not given to the general public, or even confidential envoys, to know all behind the scenes of the diplomatic world. A significant circumstance, however, and one perhaps not given its true importance, was the fact that as time went on and the conference accomplished little, it was Japan's Emperor himself who ruled events. Previously Japan had made her minimum terms known to Russia, and Russia, after the usual procrastinations, refused points she never expected Japan to concede. There is only one interpretation, viz.: that Russia's policy was for continued war. Why, will probably never be known to the world. It is noticeable, however, that a revised treaty with Great Britain had just been completed by Japan, and it is within reason to suppose that Japan's ally was the speaking factor in such a remarkable surrender. Britain's interests in the East are great; India has been seriously affected by Japan's successes. Russia has infinitely more to gain in India than in Manchuria. A disaffected India means Russia's opportunity. The secret of controlling India is their profound respect for the white race; further success of Japan would be the death knell to this.

All points considered, it looks that Japan has risked the world's opinion for British friendship, and what seems like a surrender is in reality a great diplomatic checkmate to Russian ambition.

OUR TRADE WITH THE WEST INDIES

IT is now some ten years since steam communication was opened up between Canada, the Windward West India Islands and Georgetown, Demerara. At the time of the inauguration of the steam service the trade was carried on by sailing vessels from Nova Scotian ports, and by steam via New York; as with all business the world over, steam has superseded sail to a very large extent, and this applies to the Canada-West Indian trade as well as all others. During the early stages of the enterprise the difficulties in connection with this trade were almost insuperable. Year by year, however, the obstacles are being removed and for a few years past the exchange of products has been steadily growing in volume.

The Government of Canada has from time to time granted assistance to this enterprise and has so revised the tariff as to favor the importation of British Island sugar and other products. The Government might perhaps go a little further and consider what it could do in connection with encouraging the direct importation of West Indian fruit, which at present goes largely to the United States. From the Canadian standpoint the advantages for such a market as the British West Indies and Demerara afford should not be lost sight of. Canada, however, is a young country; her manufactories are young, consequently with the rapidly increasing demands of the home market, it is more perhaps than Canadian manufacturers can be expected to do to supply the West Indian trade. Flour is of course produced in Canada in enormous quantities; the market in the south is not a small one, and is well worth the strenuous efforts of Canadian millers.

By close attention and continually following up the shippers and receivers, the West Indian markets are receiving more and more attention. There is also a growing increase in the exports of flour. Canadian peas, too, are finding their way to these markets through Canadian channels in very much larger quantities. Boots and shoes, corn brooms, butter, cheese, paint, cordage, box material, furniture and other manufactures of wood are being shipped in increased quantities, and it would appear as if the wedge having once entered the opening will increase; that is, the volume of traffic will grow year by year.

A great deal, however, depends upon the manufacturers and commission houses themselves; the steam service is an established fact, and it is up to the Canadians who are in these special lines of business to improve their opportunities and make the interchange of products one of considerable moment in the trade of the Dominion. So far as imports are concerned, the quantity of sugar has during the last five years increased from almost nothing to some 80,000 to 100,000 tons for the first half of 1905. The coffee used in Canada should find its way here from these islands, as well as cocoa and fruit. The consumption of these articles will increase with the rapid growth now going on in Canada so that this half of the business is not without its bright side.

To Pickford & Black belongs the credit for having established this business; they have followed it along with considerable energy up to the present time. At first their service was monthly, now it is semi-monthly, there being six boats employed in the West Indian traffic. All credit is due them for the persistent manner in which they have followed up the business in the face of many difficulties and discouragements.

DAMAGED EXPORT CHEESE.

OUR attention has been again drawn to the unsatisfactory packing of the cheese consigned to the European markets. Packages are arriving in various deplorable conditions. Some are put into altogether too small or too large packages, others again have not been properly secured and are arriving without covers.

All these points are important and consigners must see that packages are in good condition.

WESTERN ASSOCIATION NEWS AND TOPICS

Secretary W. A. Coulson writes to The Canadian Grocer from Minnedosa giving some report of the progress which has been made by the association during the last fortnight. He is at present hard at work organizing the town on the Yorkton and Minnedosa branches, and has work before him in that section that will keep him busily occupied for some weeks.

The increase in membership is most gratifying, the following names of new members having been sent to The Canadian Grocer for publication:

Gladstone—Galloway Bros., S. Schooley, Broadfoot Bros., A. W. White.

Otterburne—A. Lasalle, Geo. Rennant.

Eden—S. L. Patmore, Kerr & Graham.

St. Pierre—Lasalle Carey Co., Limited, E. Tetreault, Jos. Madore, Louis Tessier.

This long and highly encouraging list of members has been added to the roll since the semi-annual meeting. Readers acquainted with these towns will realize how thorough and complete has been the organization.

Only two short months remain now until November 1, which, as readers of this paper are aware, is a red letter day in the association. On that day united effort will be made to deal effectively with the long credit evil. The association remedy is well known to readers of The Canadian Grocer, and it need not be defended or elaborated at this time. But too much stress can not be laid upon the absolute necessity of united effort. What one struggling merchant can not do alone can easily be accomplished by the united efforts of all the merchants in any one town or series of towns. It is encouraging, therefore, to see how complete is the organization in all the towns now organized.

A good plan is being followed by the association members in a number of Manitoba towns. They are issuing circulars to all their customers explaining fully the new plan which goes into effect on November 1. In some cases separate circulars are issued by the different stores, in others all the merchants in the town are uniting to issue one circular upon which the names of all appear. Perhaps the latter plan is the better, as it shows all customers that the merchants mean what they say and intend to stand together. At the same time the reasonableness of the proposal should disarm all opposition. Surely no fair minded farmer can find serious fault with the association's credit proposals. In all such circulars it would be wise to lay stress upon the fact that the merchants are insisting upon cash payments only during the Winter months after the crops are harvested, and that reasonable credit will not be refused from April to November, while customers are in greatest need of assistance. It would be well also to point out that retailers have to pay for a good proportion of their stock within 30 days. Take your customers into your confidence.

"I am forming a local organization in each town," Secretary Coulson writes The Canadian Grocer, "and the work is very thorough. In many towns where there has been a great deal of dissatisfaction in the handling of produce and the cutting of prices of staples, the difficulties have been entirely removed, and in the majority of towns a 'black list' has been started to protect the merchants from 'dead beats.' The drawing up of a 'black list' is a good feature of association work. In all communities there are a few worthless fellows who make a practice of preying upon good-natured, easy-going merchants, and who, like Rawdon Crawley and Becky Sharpe in 'Vanity Fair,' have apparently solved the problem of 'living upon nothing a year' and living as comfortably as others who work hard and pay their debts. If merchants will compare accounts owed them they can easily stop this practice."

From Geo. C. Sayles of Elva, Manitoba, a prominent association worker and a member of the executive, the following letter has been received:

Aug. 22, 1905.

The Editor Canadian Grocer,
Winnipeg, Man.:

Dear Sir,—At the semi-annual meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada, held in Winnipeg in July last, there was a fair representation of the dealers throughout the country. At this meeting various topics were discussed, the principal being the curtailment of the credit system and the better handling of produce.

The credit system is no doubt one of the worst evils with which the western merchant has to contend, and I think that the resolution adopted at that meeting should be carried out by every retailer in the west, viz., the closing of books from Nov. 1 to April 1 of each and every year. Also the establishing of a mercantile agency between merchants in the same town and adjoining ones for protection from the dead beats who go from place to place getting credit wherever they can.

The produce question was also discussed at some length. My contention was then, and is now, that we need a better market for our produce. The only way to secure this, in my mind, is to establish a clearing house in Winnipeg for handling our goods. My idea is that the merchants form a joint stock company, said company to acquire by purchase, or otherwise, a cold storage plant of sufficient capacity to handle all trade; that the company place all eggs in cold storage or pickle and hold them until better prices could be obtained. Also the placing of all butter in cold storage.

The building of the G.T.P. will consume an unlimited amount of produce, and we may as well be in a position to supply the contractors as to have some one else do it with our goods. The same company could, if it were thought advisable, handle fruits as well. Probably then we could get some good apples if a man were sent down to Ontario to buy for us. Good ones have been very scarce in the past few years. As far as the produce business is concerned, I may say that I have been connected with it all my life, and know whereof I speak. I would very much like to hear from other merchants along this same line. Yours truly,

GEO. C. SAYLES.

In his reference to the produce question Mr. Sayles opens up a new line of thought and makes a suggestion which will probably be new to most grocers and general merchants. The Canadian Grocer would be glad to hear from other merchants their opinions upon this matter. Communications will be treated as confidential and published under a nom de plume when so desired.

At the recent convention this subject was discussed quite freely, and it was evident that there were many different opinions held. Not a few of the speakers maintained that the root of the whole difficulty lay with the retailer himself. Most complaint was caused by the prices paid the country merchants by the produce houses for dairy butter. But it was pointed out that most country stores pay a uniform price for all grades of butter whether it is good, bad, or indifferent in quality, and it was strongly hinted that much of the dairy butter received is not of the best quality. Now the produce houses can find a ready market for good dairy butter, and they could afford to pay much more for it if they did not have to buy at the same time a large quantity of very poor butter. The profits made by the produce houses on the good butter they buy are counterbalanced by the losses on the poor butter, much of which eventually finds its way to the soap factory.

As was pointed out at the convention, the real remedy is a difficult one, but it is not impossible of accomplishment.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

Quebec Markets.

GROCERIES.

Montreal, Thursday, Aug. 31, 1905.

ALTHOUGH this week's trade may be called good it is apparent that general activity was greatly lacking. Very few lines have seen an increase in demand. Sugar on the contrary is falling off, but is expected to revive within a week or two. A crisis on the European markets has been little talked of, but jobbers fail to take any interest in it as they believe it will not have an effect on the local market. As to canned goods they are featureless, and much speculation is still indulged in about the coming packs. A steady business is done in dried fruits. The tea market has assumed a strong tone generally. The shortage in Japans has caused better demand. Although local prices have not been noticeably advanced as yet, it is a firm belief among jobbers that higher figures will rule shortly. Molasses are steady and well enough in demand; syrups are quiet.

Coffees and spices have gained and maintained a strong tone. As to dried fruits, they continue in good demand. Fish is unchanged and seems to attract much attention. It has been in a better condition for this season of the year than for many years past. Flour is on the quiet side and the reduction of prices did not seem to stir up the trade. Feed is enjoying a very satisfactory business just at present, while rolled oats and hay are decidedly dull. Other country products have seen little change and are generally quiet.

Canned Goods—The situation remains much the same. Trade generally seems good. Jobbers continue to push their old stocks, and orders are booked and filled for early vegetables and fruits. As usual, much is expected from the coming corn and tomato pack, but figures are only speculative, with a strong feeling in the trade for much lower figures. We quote:

Sugar—Though business is still satisfactory in sugar it is apparent that there is slight falling off in demand. Most lines are declining in prices in sympathy with reduction in raw sugars. European markets have felt a crisis over the failure of a big refinery which occurred at the beginning of this week. Jobbers can only express hopes that this will not affect our market. We quote:

Syrups and Molasses—Molasses continue to enjoy a good demand at unchanged prices. Syrups, on the other hand, seem quiet this week. Holders do not think there is an immediate danger of a rise in molasses, as the market is at present firm. Business on the whole is fairly good. We quote:

Tea—Teas continue to improve. Jobbers and brokers report a most satisfactory business for last week and agree that it will maintain. Japan teas, however, are very scarce. Advices from Japan say the third crop is in preparation, but shows a decrease. Importers cannot buy from native growers regardless of cost, owing to an increase in home consumption. Suitable teas are thus unobtainable and therefore transactions impossible. The China greens crop is said to be 30 per cent. smaller than that of last year while China blacks are also short. China Ping Suey has gone up two cents. Ceylon teas remain much the same as last reported. Prices are as below. We quote:

Coffee—The tone of the market continues strong. High prices are firmly maintained and dealers all agree that higher figures will shortly rule. This is due to stocks being small on account of light receipts and to a steady demand for all grades. Santos have gone up one cent. Other coffees remain unchanged as yet. We quote:

Spices—There is little new to say about spices. The local market is firm and dealers report an excellent demand for peppers and cloves while other lines are also in good shape, but not especially active. Singapore whites have gone up one cent. The New York market continues unchanged. We quote:

Rice and Tapioca—Both these markets are in the same condition as last week. Tapioca remains strong, while rice is somewhat quiet. No changes in prices to report. We quote:

Foreign Dried Fruits—Jobbers report a very good and steady demand for dried fruits. Especially good business is done in currants and Valencia and Malaga raisins. A decline is expected, however, in raisins when the new Valencias arrive about middle of September. Other lines are in good shape but featureless. Prices unchanged. We quote:

LAST MINUTE PROVISION MARKET.

Montreal, Thursday, Aug. 31, 12.30 p.m.

BUTTER — Quiet, but steady; small demand; choicest, 21½ to 22c.; fancy townships, 22½c.

CHEESE—Market dull; reaction follows advance; prices lower; Quebec, 11½c.; townships, 11¼c; Ontario, 11½c.

EGGS—Market active and firm; good demand, but stocks and receipts light; straight gathered, 20c.; select, 23c.

PROVISIONS — No change; market continues strong and active; supplies only sufficient for packers' requirements.

Fish—Fresh fish continues in good demand and dealers report that other lines also begin to improve as weather becomes cooler. Supplies of dore and pike are small. Other lines are plentiful. Halibut is lower, probably on account of better and larger receipts. The same applies to brook trout. Smoked and salt fish are finding their way on the market much more freely owing to cooler weather. We quote:

Country Produce.

Maple Products—Both sugar and syrup are still quiet. Dealers, however, expect that during the coming month the market will improve. At present the demand is very small. No changes in prices. We quote:

Maple syrup, in wood, per lb	0 06	0 06½
" in large tins	0 07½	0 07½
Pure new sugar, per lb		0 10
Pure Beauce County, per lb	0 06	0 07

Evaporated Apples — No practical change in this line. On account of the claimed shortage in apples it is natural that prices will be high for some time yet. No better demand for evaporated, which sell from 6 1-2c. to 7 1-2c. As to dried apples, there is no change to report. Prices, 2 1-2c. to 3c.

Beans—Beans are at present finding a very good market. Dealers are anticipating trade will improve and old stocks will be out of the way for the early new beans, which are expected about the middle of September. The crop is not said to be large, but fully equal in quality to that of last year. The margin of prices is much wider this week. We quote:

Choice prime beans	1 50	1 70
Lower grades	1 40	1 50

Honey—New honey is in fair demand this week, and stocks of it are large enough to meet requirements. It is now arriving in good sized lots. Stocks of old honey have been practically cleared out. We quote:

White clover, extracted tins	0 07	0 07½
" kegs	0 07½	0 07½
" comb, new	0 12	0 13
Buckwheat	0 06	0 06½

Hops—The same dull condition still rules over the local market. The American crops, however, seem to be in good shape for a large yield. It is reported that England will also have a larger yield than last year if the weather keeps fine. The local market is featureless. We quote:

B.C.	0 22	0 25
Fair to good	0 18	0 20

Feed— Last week's improvement in feed is well maintained. Bran and mouillie are in good demand at firm prices. The drop in the demand for hay is an important feature in this. Dealers declare themselves highly satisfied with the present condition of the trade, and are of opinion this activity will last for some time owing to light receipts of hay. We quote:

Manitoba bran, in bags, per ton		18 00
" shorts	20 00	21 00
Ontario bran, in bulk		17 00
" shorts	20 00	21 00
Mouillie	24 00	27 00

Flour—Millers report flour in fair demand, though locally the market is quiet. On account of this some grades have become easier from ten to twenty cents. We quote:

Royal Household		5 40
Hungarian		5 10
Manitoba spring wheat patents	5 30	5 40
" strong bakers	5 00	5 10

Winter wheat patents	5 30	5 50
Straight rollers	5 00	5 10
Extra	4 50	4 60
Straight rollers, bags, 90 per cent.	2 40	2 50

Rolled Oats—A general drop in prices is about the only feature this week. This is due to new oats being active at low prices. Ontario oatmeal millers have been good buyers of oats, which fact has stimulated the market. Otherwise trade is on the quiet side. We quote:

Fine oatmeal, bags	2 65	2 70
Standard oatmeal, bags	2 55	2 60
Granulated " "	2 55	2 60
Rolled oats, "	2 10	2 20
" bbls.		5 10
" 90-lb. bags	2 40	2 45
" 80-lb. bags	2 10	2 20

Hay—The demand for hay has completely dropped, attributable to oats being at low figures. Local stocks are more plentiful than last week, as farmers are bringing in larger lots. Prices have fallen somewhat. We quote:

No. 1 timothy	8 00
" 2 " choice	7 00
" 2 " ordinary	6 50
Clover	6 00
Clover mixed	6 50

Ontario Markets.

GROCERIES.

Toronto, Aug. 31, 1905.

THE general business outlook is particularly promising, good orders have been coming to hand, stocks are being rapidly reduced, and the spirit pervading the trade is noticeably anticipative of good. Canned goods are still occupying attention and prices ruling firm. Sugar has had a not altogether unexpected drop of 10c. in sympathy with the raw market, which has evened up on the arrival of reliable news of new beet crops. Syrups are uninteresting, save for the usual table demand for corn syrups. Sugar markets abroad are continuing weak and inactive. Coffee continues to attract attention on the home market. Foreign markets, however, are weak and uncertain, with no definite firmness at primal points.

Tea has asserted itself despite its former weakness, and buying is assuming a more rational character. Prices rule firm and strong. Foreign dried fruits are causing a good deal of excitement, primal markets are firm, and the world demand is good and increasing. The new legislation laws are expected to come into active force shortly, with the natural result of hardening prices. Spices are getting more attractive, demand is perceptibly increasing, and a general belief is that Canadian consumption is maturing. Dried fish is nominal. Fresh fish is in active demand with supply inclining to shortness and prices firming. Eggs are very unsatisfactory, supply is not up to par, and quality has met with much discontent. Honey is arriving in good condition and maintaining prices. The hide market is still eccentric, and a change is expected at any moment. Breakfast foods have eased somewhat, with oat products now firm at revised quotations and wheat products still uncertain. Grain markets are unsteady, offerings are coming in freely, whilst demand is slow and inactive. Prices have generally declined since our last, with a still weakening tendency.

Canned Goods—Steady demand continues to manifest itself in these lines. Orders for forward delivery of new goods are reported. Old lines on hand are not over abundant, and are expected to be depleted before opening of new goods. Prices remain unchanged. We quote:

Sugar—The domestic trade has somewhat slowed down; trade has been active for the past few weeks, but owing no doubt to the fact that the preserving season is now well advanced demand has steadied itself. The raw market for some time has been in an uncertain mood, probably on account of unascertained state of coming crops. Now, however, that the knowledge is accepted to be reliable, and that the beet market in old and new has reached a parity, the prices of refined have dropped 10c. all through in sympathy, our prices are corrected accordingly. The European markets are continuing weak and uncertain, little business is doing, and transactions are at lower ranges. New York reflects the weakness of Europe. Raw were on offering to refiners, but little interest was manifest, they having their immediate wants fairly well protected, and were disposed to hold off and await developments before again operating with any degree of freedom. Only a limited business was transacted in refined sugars. The continued weakness of the raw market has destroyed all confidence in the situation. We quote:

Syrups and Molasses—The domestic trade has been remarkably slow for some time, and continues to be of little interest, excepting for corn syrups, for which a demand is more or less in exercise for table purposes. Previous quotations remain unchanged:

Coffee—Domestic consumption continues to be interesting; a steadily increasing demand is a noticeable feature, the milder grades being the most favored. Foreign markets are reported as doing only a moderate volume of business. Prices are uncertain, any attempt to an upward move soon finding its original place. The Brazil market continues irregular; offerings are on a slightly advanced basis; but little business is resultant. A slight activity is reported in New York, which had the effect of steadying prices for the present. We quote :

Tea—The home market, especially on the street, has shown greater activity; inquiries reveal more inclination to lay in stock. Samples to hand of new season's teas are showing better quality, and it is now believed that the coming teas are of a better grade than originally reported. Foreign markets still report great activity, the principal demand being for the best and medium grades. In London the stocks were almost depleted of all good teas, so that when the rush came the call was almost exclusively for teas of good standard. Common teas are commanding scant consideration, and consequently are not maintaining the high ratio of price. Indian teas are coming to hand freely, but only in sufficient quantity to meet the market demand. Prices are ruling high, with all teas showing quality advancing. Ceylons are marketing teas of extra fine liquoring quality, and recent sales showed an advancing tendency. China teas are selling quickly, with only moderate supply and prices firming up, but no advance. Java teas had a good market and were considered somewhat desirable, fetching some good prices. Foreign and Dried Fruits—Trade has been more interesting since our last issue. On the street some good orders have been in evidence in several lines of new fruits. The crop of Valencia raisins is now known to be somewhat larger than last year, and have sold freely for September shipment. Shippers have been endeavoring to get a higher ratio of price to the extent of about one shilling on previous quotations, and this has somewhat retarded sales. Currants have been selling fairly well, but at a price which is actually below what was previously considered the irreducible minimum price. A report from Mr. Dem Schisas, of Patras, mentions that the Authorized Currant Co. has not yet completed arrangements to commence buying, and will not be in a position to do so until September, when the market is expected to harden up. The crop is reported as generally behind that of last year as regards quality. Prices are ruling a good cent per lb. in advance of last season. Sultanas are opening well, and the very favorable prices of these fruits have resulted in an active demand. Nuts are uninteresting, and there is nothing new to report. Comadra figs are advancing on the primal markets to the extent of about sixpence per lb., and are showing excellent quality. We quote :

Hides, Tallow, Skins and Wool—The uncertain condition of this market still continues. Prices are altogether too high to warrant continuance. Inspected hides are ½c. firmer than last week. The Chicago market is also ruling high and equally as unsatisfactory. A report to hand from there mentions buffs as being in demand, but dealers had none to offer, and says that no doubt a good lot of western bundles would have brought good figures. N. S. Markets.

Halifax, N.S., Aug. 29

TRADE continues good and orders from outlying sections are coming in quite freely. Business in Cape Breton is unusually brisk; trade from that part of the Province is better than it has been for a long time. With the steel mills running full time and the collieries all in operation, trade is bound to be in a good way of prosperity.

As regards prices, little change is noted. Sugar continues firm, and there is good demand.

The market is well supplied with all fruit except oranges, which are remarkably scarce, and good stock is easily selling at $5 per 100 wholesale. California Bartlett pears are higher than they have been for years; they are quoted at 60 cents per dozen on market, and dealers say there is no money in them even at such prices.

Butter continues in good demand, with prices steady. Last week's quotations remain unchanged.

The receipts of eggs are falling off and consequently quotations have advanced to 20 cents here, and 18 cents on the Island.

During the early part of the week there was a scarcity of bananas, but the arrival of the steamer Veritas with over 5,000 bunches relieved the market.

Apples are coming in more freely. The early varieties are small and the sale for them is slow; better qualities are expected in a few days.

High prices are looked for by dealers in fish during the coming Winter. Reports of catches by the Lunenburg bank fleet are not encouraging. The amount landed has not been proportionately large, and the catches this Summer have been in many cases below the average. No bait is to be had at Newfoundland or on the Grand Banks, and it is expected that within a few days the fleet will sail for Canso. The situation there is no better, despite some reports of bait striking in the vicinity, and failing to get bait there, the fleet will reach Lunenburg in a few weeks with their present fares, which are not large in the aggregate. This being the case, the price is bound to advance. Some dealers predict that cod will go to six dollars during the coming Winter. The first sailings of the Lunenburg fleet were made on frozen bait, and the highest catch was 1,250 quintals, while the second vessel had 1,000. Some vessels went as low as 75 quintals, but the average was between 300 and 400. The highest catch on the second sailing so far reported is 1,000 quintals; others heard from have 250 to 500.

The price of flour has suddenly dropped fifty cents per barrel. One of the largest flour dealers in the city quotes the retail price at $5.30 a barrel and the wholesale price at $5.05 a barrel. He says the cause of this fluctuation is the abundant crop of wheat in Ontario. There is no decline in the price of Manitoba flour, it is still selling at 6.15 a barrel on market. This is on account of Manitoba having sufficient demand for all of her own production of wheat. There has been no change in the Manitoba prices for the past three months.

WINNIPEG COMMISSION FIRM.

A NEW firm of manufacturers' agents and commission merchants commencing business in Winnipeg is that of C. & J. Jones, who have opened sample rooms in the Union Bank Building. They have secured a strong line of agencies and through the wholesale trade they are reaching the retail stores of the west where their products are already meeting with a good reception. Their list of agencies includes the following firms:

Astley Cooper, Leeds, table jellies, etc.; Frank Abraham, London and Patras, dried fruit; Johnston, Baird & Co., Glasgow, coffee essences and sauce manufacturers; W. & R. Jacob & Co., Limited, Dublin, biscuits, cakes, etc.; Tuxford & Nephews, Melton Mowbray, Stilton and other English cheese, plum puddings, etc.; Schwartz Bros., London, custard powders, vanilla cream, etc.; The Sankey Sugar Co., Liverpool; Salt Royal, Manchester, table salt; James Robertson & Sons, Paisley, jams, etc.; Societe Marquet Jeune, France, French sardines; Paletorpes' Limited, Dudley Port, England, preserved foods.

SALT AND ITS MANUFACTURE.

Salt is now manufactured from brines or mined as rock salt in fifteen of the United States, the amount produced annually being about three million tons. At Syracuse, New York State, which is one of the chief sources of supply, the salt is obtained from natural brines which are raised by pumps and flow in a continuous stream into tanks where coarse sediment is deposited. The clear liquid is then allowed to flow into a set of large shallow pans, and permitted to evaporate under the influence of the sun's rays until small crystals of salt appear. When this occurs, the concentrated brine is drawn off into a third set of tanks, and as the water evaporates salt is deposited. When the layer of salt thus obtained is about three inches thick it is drawn up the sloping sides of the pans by means of long-handled scrapers, and put into tubs with perforated bottoms to drain, after which it is taken to the storage bins. In England, as is well known, the chief sources of supply of salt are brine springs in Worcestershire and Cheshire, but the liquid, containing about 22 per cent. of salt, is boiled in pans for about 30 hours, instead of being exposed to slow evaporation as at Syracuse. A sediment of other salts is thus accumulated at the bottom of the pan and is raked away. The liquid is then allowed to cool until crystals of common salt begin to appear, and when this temperature is reached it is maintained for several days while the salt is forming.—Leisure Hour.

MONTREAL NEWS.

Death came suddenly to Mr. John Orpe, butter and cheese exporter, on Saturday, from heart failure. The deceased had just come from his bath when, without warning, he collapsed and shortly afterwards expired.

Mr. Orpe was 58 years of age, and came to America from Staffordshire, England, in 1870, settling in Orange, N.J. He engaged in business there, and in New York, and eventually opened a branch office in Montreal. Five years ago Mr. Orpe removed to Montreal to live, closing his New York office.

OBITUARY.

Mr. J. H. Carter, a prominent citizen of St. Mary's, Ont., died suddenly on Friday, the 25th inst., of heart failure, at the age of 51 years. Mr. Carter would be known to readers of The Grocer as at one time a member of the firm of Box & Carter, grain dealers, St. Mary's.

ONTARIO FRUIT REPORTS.

The fruit conditions have changed for the worse very considerably since the last report. The falling off in prospects is greatest in plums and apples. The reasons offered for this may be considered under three heads: excessive rains during the blossoming period, Spring frosts and the effects of previous heavy crops.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

"Easy selling" is the verdict of dealers who have handled the "Easy Pickin'" toothpicks offered by the Eby, Blain Co. They are the best five-cent package ever offered to the trade.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. are selling apricots at interesting prices.

We call attention of the trade to the Bode's Gum Co.'s ad. in this week's Grocer.

H. P. Eckardt & Co., report a large increase in the sale of Diamond Crystal salt.

E. D. Smith's pure fruit preserves and jellies are offered by the Eby, Blain Co., who are the sole agents for Toronto and vicinity.

Extra fine quality washed Brazil nuts may be had from H. P. Eckardt & Co.

Mr. Monday, representing Messrs. S. H. Ewing & Sons, Montreal, is calling at all the principal points in Quebec in the interests of his firm.

MANUFACTURE OF COGNAC BRANDY.

From United States Consul Jakcson, La Rachelle, France.

PURE Cognac brandies are distilled from wines produced in the Cognac region, the Charente and Charente Inferieure, and are classed in quality by the section from which the wine comes. We have the "fine champagne," the "petite champagne," "borderies," "fins bois," "bois ordinaires," and "bois communs."

The "fine champagne" is grown in a section of the country directly to the south of Cognac, comprising half a circle, of which Cognac is the centre. The "petite champagne" is grown in a section which would be inclosed between the first circle and a larger one parallel to it at a distance of several miles. The "borderie" is produced in a triangular bit of territory immediately to the north and slightly to the west of Cognac. Surrounding these areas, but extending a greater distance to the west and to the east, is the region in which is produced the "bois ordinaire," while the "bois commun" is produced between the last mentioned section and the coast directly to the west and southwest. The "bois commun" is also produced on the islands of Re and Oleron.

The wines are distilled under three different auspices:

1. By the "bouilleur de cru," a vineyard owner, who distills his own product and sells it to the manufacturer. He usually possesses one still; sometimes two.

2. The "proprietaire," who distills his own product and that of his neighbors, from whom he may buy the wine or for whom he may distill for remuneration in kind. The "proprietaire" may possess four to eight stills.

3. The "merchant," who owns many important distilleries wherein are reduced to brandy the wines from his own vineyards and purchased wines. When the wine is bought, the producer is paid in accordance with the degree of alcohol contained. The merchant may have sixteen, or even twenty, stills in each of his establishments, with a capacity for reducing 40,000 to 50,000 hectoliters (1,065,680 to 1,320,850 gallons) of wine during the season.

The methods of distillation vary greatly with the kind of wine, the district, and the person who has charge of the distillery. It may be said, as a rule, that all Cognac wines are distilled with the lees. The stills employed in the champagne district are usually simple pot stills, with or without "chauffe-vin." The simple still consists of the "chaudiere," of boiler; the "chapiteau," which connects the boiler with the third part, and the condenser, with its serpentines. The "chauffe-vin" is supposed to be an improvement on the simple still, by which several hours may be saved on each operation. It consists of a reservoir connected with the boiler, through which passes the pipe of the "chapiteau" containing the hot vapors of the wine, which warm the wine to a degree just under that necessary to produce vapors in sufficient quantity to be condensed; consequently when the boiler is emptied it can be refilled at once with wine at a temperature high enough to begin to give off vapors at once when over fire. The boiler is filled with wine by means of a pump, if the still has no "chauffe-vin," and from the chauffe-vin" if having one. The boilers contain usually about 500 liters (132 gallons), and the liquid is evaporated by an even but mild heat, which is continued until the alcoholometer indicates that the distillate contains 0 alcohol. At this time it it found that from one-fourth to one-third of the quantity of wine has passed through the condenser, and that this distillate contains from 25 to 35 per cent. per volume of alcohol. It is called "brouillis."

In the small distilleries a still is filled three times before enough brouillis is obtained to commence its redistillation. In the larger distilleries the products from three stills are united in a single still, and another or second distillation commences, by which the brouillis is converted into brandy. This is called "la bonne chauffe." The "bonne chauffe" is divided into three or four sections, as follows:

Five per cent. of liquor, which leaves the still possesses a highly disagreeable ordor, due to excessive quantities of concentrated aldehydes and acetic ethers, of a color often greenish or whitish, called "la tete" or heading, which is received in a receptacle and kept apart from that which follows. The quantity may exceed 5 per cent., depending on the nature or quality of the wine. These headings are later mixed with another brouillis, or with what is called "seconds." This alcoholic heading, in condensing, has washed the interior of the serpentine and has removed certain oily matters which remained in the spiral from the preceding distillation. The part of the distillate which follows, known as the "coeur" or heart of the "bonne chauffe," is clear, and consists of from 80 to 85 per cent. of alcohol. The "coeur" continues to run into the same receptacle until the alcoholometer indicates that the liquor leaving the still contains 50 per cent. or perhaps 55 per cent. of alcohol, according to the wine. When properly carried on, this process lasts about eight hours, and the liquid contains from 66 to 70 per cent. of alcohol. This product is brandy. The distillation, however, is continued until again the alcoholometer registers 0 alcohol. The product of this third part of the distillation is called "queue" or tailing, and is generally added to the next lot of wine placed in the still. It contains from 20 to 24 per cent. of alcohol. Sometimes, however, when the wine is very rich in alcohol, a fourth is produced, which is known as "seconds," and consists of that part of the operation wherein the distillate reduces its strength from 60 to 20 degrees. These seconds are usually added to the next brouillis, while the remander of the alcohol obtained—that is, from 20 degrees to 0, which in this case is the tailing—is mixed with the next batch of wine. The seconds require about four hours of distillation, which makes the entire process last about twelve hours. This length of time of course applies to the "bonne chauffe."

The quality of the brandy produced may depend very largely on the purity of the copper of which the boiler, "chapiteau," and serpentine is composed, as it has ofen been remarked that the oily acids attack the metal and bring away in the distillate very perceptible quantities of copper compounds, which are disagreeable to the taste and are probably dangerous to health. Length of time taken may also mean much. Wine distilled too rapidly may force its fumes too quickly through the serpentine to be condensed, and consequently some of the elements most volatile may escape. Again the point where the heart is separated from the tailing during the "bonne chauffe" may influence the taste and quality of the distillate. Certain of the superior alcohols pass earlier in the evaporation and the others later.

There are also what may be described as compound stills. These were invented with the object of producing brandy direct from wine in one operation or distillation. The principle of all these stills is that of a "chauffe-vin" and boiler combined in such manner as to obtain the complete condensation of vapors which leave the boiler, thus producing a brouillis, which in its turn is redistilled. The condensation is generally effected by the "chauffe-vin," and the brouillis is collected in another or secondary boiler, in which is enclosed the larger one. The heat, which is furnished by the alcoholic vapors of the boiling wine, produces a distillation of the brouillis, the vapors of which in their turn are sent into the serpentine and condensed into brandy. There are very large numbers and varieties of these compound stills, which are used only in the country of the "bois," where wines contain very much less aroma and have a peculiar taste which is called "terroir" or soily. The brandies produced from the bois wines are usually mixed or blended with the highly aromatic brandy of the "champagne" or of the "borderies" districts. A volume could be written describing the various compound stills which, although unchanging in principle, become more and more complicated as distance increases from Cognac, the centre of the brandy business. The most complicated ones are used in the districts of "bois communs," and especially in the islands of Re and Oleron.

In one of the larger distilleries I visited the distillation was carried on as follows, the boilers being filled twice in twenty-four hours: (1) In the morning half of the sixteen stills were filled with wine and had produced by evening the impure alcohol known as the brouillis or "flegme;" (2) in the evening all the boilers were filled with wine, and the next morning they had produced the brouillis; (3) all of the brouillis collected the evening before and the morning following, from twenty-four different stills is divided up and placed in eight of the sixteen stills and is submitted to a redistillation or rectification called "doubling." The other sivteen stills are filled with wine, as on the morning of the day before, in order to combine the process regularly and without interruption in the same manner during the entire season.

By this system each man is charged in the morning with the filling of one boiler with brouillis and one with wine; in the evening, two boilers with wine. This idea is the direct result of the distillation of wine, i.e., one-third, so that three boilers must be filled with wine and distilled by each man in order to have sufficient brouillis to fill a single boiler and commence its rectification. Each time a still is filled and each time its product is obtained, whether brouillis or brandy, a declaration is made upon a register, which is kept continually at the disposition of the regie. Each barrel of wine, before it goes to the still, is numbered, and the still into which it goes must be known; its degree of alcohol is also inscribed in duplicate on a register, one copy of which is placed in a box of which only the officials of the regie have the key; the other copy remains as a stub in the register. The amount of brandy produced from that particular barrel of wine must be in proportion to its alcoholic strength, and a register of the quantity obtained in brouillis is kept in the same manner as for the wine. When the brouillis in its turn is distilled, a corresponding record is kept of it and of the brandy which it produces. The products are placed in casks, each of which is numbered, and the quantity and strength of alcohol therein is also indicated on the barrel. This alcohol cannot be removed from the premises, neither can any alcohol be brought to the premises or carried from one portion of a town or city to another without a permit from the regie, of which permits careful records are kept. The permits indicate by their color, white or pink, whether the alcohol represented by them is of wine or some other source than wine. It can be readily understood that this system renders the manipulation of alcohol exceedingly difficult to persons who desire to use it and conceal the fact, nevertheless I am ready to believe that permits are accorded to certain Cognac houses under which they receive other alcohol than that of wine. But this is a fact of which the Government officials always must have cognizance. It must also be remembered that it is not forbidden to redistill industrial alcohol with wine or lees of wine. But the record of such distillation must be kept, and is known to the Government officials.

The residues of the wine which is left in the still after the brouillis has been produced may be used for the manufacture of fraudulent liquors; but happily at Cognac it has been found recently that it is much more profitable to denaturate these residues with lime in order to produce tartar salts, which contain from 48 to 52 per cent. of pure tartaric acid. From recent unexpected visits to many distilleries, I believe that I am in a position to declare that several of the most important Cognac houses can not redistill the lees of wine, as I have seen them being mixed in the vats with lime and have knowledge of existing contracts with various houses to dispose of all these lees, which must be denaturated at the distillery for the manufacture of tartaric acid. Formerly, when the vintages were very small, owing to the ravages of the phylloxera, many irresponsible people added to the wine they distilled, rectified spirit produced from beets. The large quantities of wine produced in the last four years make this proceeding practically useless from a financial point of view. It is further rendered exceedingly difficult by the new regulations of the French Government represented by the regie. It must be remembered, however, that the regie does not exist for the purpose of assuring the French Government and the public at large that a certain distillation is carried on in such a manner as to produce the best brandy, but to assure them that the alcohol contained in the brandy is pure grape alcohol. To this end the wine is followed by the control and is under the surveillance of these officers from the time it is put in barrels, during transport to the distillery, while being distilled, when it leaves the distillery as brandy, and until it reaches the consumer or until it leaves the country. The functions of the regie and the operations under their direct surveillance are: (1) Stamping or branding the boilers of the still and measuring them to know exactly their capacity; (2) each year before distillation begins, a declaration must be made covering the number, kind, and capacity of the various apparatus to be used. The machinery named is allowed to be put in service only under the surveillance of the regie, who have the right to exact information regarding it each time it is considered necessary.

DRIED FRUIT DEPARTMENT.

RETAIL grocers might make much more of their dried fruit department than they do. At present prices, particularly, there is good money to be made from exploiting dried fruits, particularly the more popular varieties. Prunes are nearly always good sale, and peaches and apricots are frequently sold in large lots. Raisins, grocers always have a demand for, and there are increasing calls for currants. With these different varieties, all more popular than ever before, excellent opportunity is offered to greatly strengthen the department a grocer may now have, or to create an entirely new one—profitable and active.

The first thing to be considered in establishing a dried fruit department is to consider what varieties will be most acceptable in your particular locality. For instance, it would be unwise to make much business in dried apples in a region where there are plenty of fresh apples always obtainable. Dried fruit is a substitute for fresh and should always be treated so. If fresh fruit is plentiful at low prices it isn't likely that dried stock will sell so rapidly. If the supply of fresh fruit declines, or if anything occurs to make it short, it will be wise to offer dried fruits as substitutes.

Prunes.

No dried fruit is better for the retailer to handle than prunes. Not only are prunes good for sellers to handle, but they are good to eat. Their flavor is good and they are healthful. It would be much better for many thousands of people, particularly those who follow a sedentary life, to eat prunes at least once a day, preferably in the morning, but if they eat them morning and night the benefits derived would be that much larger. In the cities this is better understood than it is in the country, and more prunes are offered. Naturally the comparative scarcity if fresh fruits at certain seasons of the year and the always high prices of good fresh fruits make a desirable substitute far more popular than it would be under other conditions.

At present prunes can be bought for very low figures, and it would be well for retailers to obtain from their jobbers such quantities as they think they can handle as an experiment and offer them as low as they can. The prune trade has been killed during the past few years by too high prices—prices which have no warrant because wholesale prices have generally been low, and are low yet. Retailers are entitled to a legitimate profit, but when they refuse to handle anything unless it pays an exorbitant percentage they not only reduce their own trade, but they spoil business in other departments as well.

Get a quantity of prunes that you can offer at a small sum for three or five pounds. Get your customers to buy enough to really test them and ask them to tell you how they like them. It is good business to encourage purchases of a commodity in this way, and if you can at the same time you sell them tell them how to cook the fruit so it will be satisfactory you will strengthen your position and cause customers to come back again for more. Frequently a customer is lost because the fruit is not cooked properly, but only those unacquainted with it would be likely to be bothered in that way, and a hint or two with the bundle would result in much good to your trade later.

Peaches and Apricots.

Much the same observations can be applied to peaches and apricots. Dried yellow peaches, when properly cooked, are almost as fresh as when newly picked from the tree. They are frequently much better than the fresh fruit that comes a long way on the cars. But as is the case with prunes, a word or two of instruction regarding the proper means of cooking will go a long way toward making and keeping a desirable customer.

Apricots are not so great favorites in the east because of their extreme acidity, yet at some seasons of the year, notably Spring, this acidity is a desirable feature. Nearly everyone craves something acid and these dried fruits are good food products to supply it. Apricots usually cost more than the others, but after all the expense is slight, provided the retailer has purchased judiciously and has offered special sales to induce purchases from him.

Raisins.

Raisins are everywhere. It doesn't seem necessary to say much about them, yet it is no doubt true that their sale might be largely increased without much increase in expense. There are many varieties and many grades, but unquestionably the most popular is the seeded put up in convenient cartons. Housewives who formerly had to seed their raisins with a knife, as everyone did ten years ago, fully appreciate the advantages of buying them all seeded in handsome cartons. They are seeded much better than could ever be done by hand. The raisin is not injured so badly and the general shape is maintained.

Retailers do not sell as many as they might. They scarcely ever make any special announcement regarding raisins. Yet if they would it is probably true that important additions might be made to the business which is now done. A special advertisement could be published, making an offer on raisins for a certain day. This would bring in new customers as well as old. When you do that you should have a display of as many varieties of raisins as you can get together. You would probably have a large number many of your customers never saw. It might mean a large increase in business from customers who have been buying raisins of you for years. Not many people outside the business know how many varieties of raisins there are, and a display of as many as you can conveniently secure would be interesting and instructive.

Currants.

The question of currants is also interesting in this connection. Cleaned currants are sent out in cartons, the same as seeded raisins are, and they can be used in the household cookery almost as freely. For instance, scarcely any fruit can equal them in mince pies, and they are also used in all varieties of fruit cakes, imparting a rich, peculiar flavor that is their own and which cannot be obtained from any other fruit.

The cost of all these fruits is small. They need not frighten the most economical buyer, and they will add much to the cuisine of any family which uses them freely. Where there are children, prunes, apricots, peaches, raisins and similar fruits are important additions to the family bill of fare. Very many persons like to eat these dried fruits out of hand. Peaches can be eaten that way with mach satisfaction, and frequently the larger sized prunes are eaten in the same manner, while the bunch and cluster raisins are especially adapted for that manner of consumption. For light lunches, either for home or when there is some afternoon gathering, bunch or cluster raisins are an important addition to the bill of fare.

Figs and Dates.

Dates, an increasingly popular fruit, have not been mentioned. They are not so popular as raisins because they are more apt to be sticky and disagreeable to handle, but date forks have been provided now and it is possible to partake of them without touching them with the hands. They are of delightful flavor and are a nutritious, healthful diet. Long and exhaustive labor can be performed upon a diet of dates and bread, and they are healthful in other ways.

Figs are frequently purchased by retail grocers, but they might build up a better business in them. Some of the larger sizes are especially desirable for table use, and often will be served as a course in a dinner. They are nutritious, healthful and comparatively inexpensive.

The retailers who undertake increasing their sales of dried fruits will find that their entire business will increase proportionately.—New England Grocer.

CHANGED PROPRIETORS.

W. J. Brougham, of Medicine Hat, has purchased the fruit, confectionery and grocery business which has been so successfully conducted for the past seven years on the corner of Montreal and Railway streets by Chas. H. Evans. Mr. Brougham has had some experience in the business and as Mr. Evans will be with him until the first of the month he will be in a position to handle the trade in a manner which should hold all old customers and doubtless attract many new ones.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Special Report from the Winnipeg Office of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Market quotations corrected by telegraph up till 12 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 31st, 1905.)

WESTERN wholesale grocery trades are still quite active there being a strong demand for general grocery supplies during the harvest. Dealers are ordering liberally as they are encouraged by the uniformly cheering reports of the harvest from all parts of the west. Only some entirely unforeseen dissater can now prevent the 1905 crop from being very much the largest on record, and this means a year of unprecedented prosperity in the west. A decline of 10c. per cwt. in sugar was announced last week, too late to be reported in last week's issue. It was not entirely unexpected as the tendency of the sugar market has been towards lower prices for some time. There have been heavy movements of canned meats for the harvest trade, and in fact almost all items in the canned goods list, are in good demand. Tapioca is still advancing; the general tendency of the grocery market seems to be towards higher prices with the single important exception of sugar.

Sugar—The long expected decline in sugar has at last occurred and prices are now 10c. lower than they have been for the last six weeks and more. We quote:

Canned Goods—New red raspberries of the 1905 pack are on the market now, and are included in the list below. The price is $3.58 per case for grades 2 and 3, and $3.63 for grade 1. New season canned tomatoes will be on the market in about two or three weeks, when present prices will be likely to decline, old stock is now selling as high as $3.00 per case. Canned meats are in strong demand and prices are steady. We quote:

PERSONAL THANKS.

The following, addressed to Col. Maclean, president of the MacLean Publishing Co., is from Mr. E. K. Spinney, Yarmouth, N.S., past president of the Maritime Board of Trade:

"I cannot refrain from again expressing my personal thanks for your generosity in the liberal manner in which you reported the proceedings of the annual meeting of the Maritime Board of Trade at Yarmouth.

"You have also received the official gratitude of the delegates to this meeting by their vote of thanks unanimously passed by them at the close of the session. Your representatives were all men of unquestioned high standing in their profession which is an extraordinary compliment.

"I sincerely regret the absence of your esteemed self as I feel certain you would have enjoyed some features of the programme."

The annual report of the Cape Town Chamber of Commerce to hand contains much information which ought to be invaluable to all interested in foreign trade. In addition to a resume of the deliberations of the Cape Town Chamber of Commerce, the report includes complete statistics of the trade of Cape Colony for the year ended Dec. 31, 1904.

BRANCHING OUT.

The Canada Business College, of Chatham, Ont. (Mr. McLaughlin, principal), will shortly begin the erection of a handsome building in the residential district of Chatham where they will be able to accommodate twice their present number of students. The new institution(which, it is claimed, will be the only one of its kind in Canada) will be situated in the midst of attractive and extensive grounds, which will afford recreation and variety of sport for the pupils. The new building is expected to be completed by next Summer.

FRUIT TREES IN WINNIPEG.

A Winnipeg resident has been experimenting with a degree of success in growing a number of crabapple trees in a plot of ground adjoining her residence. Upwards of twenty trees are to be seen there, well laden with fruit. Mrs. Bond —the resident referred to—is to be congratulated upon her success, the early and late frosts, so disastrous to fruit growing, are well known in Winnipeg, and it speaks well for the care and perseverance which must have been expended.

INDEPENDENT—SURE THING!

IT is easy to buy canned PEAS now at cost; also very easy to criticise them, but it takes a lot of study and hard work to produce a satisfactory canned pea. We hope that every Packer is producing the best pea possible. This will do more to increase the consumption than the cost prices. We are doing our best to make the "AUTUMN LEAF BRAND" just right. We have a few thousand cases more of the medium grade peas to offer at prices that will forever eliminate the Hawker in that line.

"AUTUMN LEAF BRAND CORN."—When it comes to nice fancy sweet sugar corn it is a 100 to one that we lead. Reasons why:—Our Manager learned the corn canning business with the world-renowned corn packer, J. W. Jones, of Portland, Me., commencing August, 1869, and followed the business from that time. He has a thorough technical knowledge as well as the practical experience of all these years, with and at the head of some of the oldest and largest Packers in the U.S., as well as with the most important Packer in Canada. If you want more proof, and the best line of canned corn, ask for the "Autumn Leaf Brand."

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

THE cheese market remains very steady in spite of the comparatively high prices ruling, but buyers are acting very cautiously and taking only what they are obliged to take. Late country markets showed a great irregularity, some being forced up unreasonably and others remaining nearly at the level of the selling basis.

When prices reach a point where there is hardly any chance for speculation, operators naturally become more or less timid and cautious and this is the present condition; we have nearly three months more of our production to dispose of, and no matter how sound the situation may be in point of supply and demand, the "hand-to-mouth trade" is a slow one and it is, after all, the speculation that advances or lowers the values of our products.

The situation on cheese is sound enough not to encourage any "short selling," and the prices are too high to speculate on a further material advance. The best that can be done now is to supply the natural demand and take care of the goods that cannot be sold promptly for the coming season of non-production. But holding cheese is expensive; it costs money for storage, insurance, shrinkage in weight, interest, etc., and all these charges count up very quickly, so that there should be a fair prospect of higher prices in the future to make the holding of cheese profitable.

It is true that our stocks of cheese in Canada are unusually small for this time of the year, and although the stocks in Great Britain have recently increased somewhat, they are not by any means excessive. This makes the situation statistically sound, but our prices are so high that there is no incentive for speculators to put away goods for a further advance, always considering the cost of carrying goods for any length of time.

The best to be expected from now on is a steady and gradually rising market. The make is falling off and the natural demand in the United Kingdom will probably absorb all the goods we can produce; but we cannot possibly look for large profits after this.

Butter is also high, but the market here is ruled more by the supplies of other countries on the British markets and for a while at least it seems that butter may become dearer before the demand will be cut off. Relatively butter is cheaper now than cheese, but it is not as easy to store butter as cheese, as it loses flavor of freshness quicker and gets into second-class sooner on this account; further, the Australian butter will rule the British butter markets during the Winter months, and it would not seem good policy to store any butter here.

As pointed out before in these articles, the consumption of cheese in the United Kingdom decreases when the consumption of butter falls off. When the retailer has to sell it at more than one shilling per pound, the British consumer will take margarine for butter in enough cases to check any extraordinary advance in prices of butter; and as far as cheese is concerned, there are always supplies of cheap meats to be considered, if Australian mutton, American bacon, etc. offer any inducement of economy, especially during the Winter months when it is necessary to have fires in the humblest of homes, the demand for cheese as an article of food falls off.

LONDON, ENG., LETTER.

(By Our Own Correspondent.)

REFERRING to your Montreal bulletin in the issue of August 3, from Montreal, in regard to the butter position over here, inquiry on the spot goes to show that the statements made in that report are fully endorsed by buyers on this side in every respect. At the then high prices no one here would attempt to follow your market by purchasing, and consequently some shippers on your side have reduced their prices very materially from the higher point. Their cables to-day (Aug. 17) from Montreal quote 106s. for choice Eastern Townships, whereas on Aug. 3 they offered from 112s. to 114s. There are some heavy shipments to arrive soon, and at this lower price sellers on this side will be content with a small profit. Dairy butter is quoted at 96s. c.i.f., and that price will certainly have the effect of keeping it out of the market here. The demand for butter, as usual in the middle of August, has not been so keen, but in September we look for more steadfast trade. As the Argentine season is over, there is practically no stock of Argentine butter on hand. Siberian supplies will become lighter from this out, and present prices rule for these from 96s. to 104s. The New Zealand markets are very excited, but it looks as if liberal supplies will come from that quarter. The same may also be said of Victoria, New South Wales and Queensland. New Zealand factories are asking 104s. 6d. to 106s., and even 107s. c.i.f. London, but buyers here will act with the greatest caution, so this may be a year more for consignments than for direct c.i.f. business. The demand for Danish is only fair, high prices naturally restricting business.

Another little hint about packing. New Zealand butter in a great many cases comes across in cases paraffined inside, and it has been suggested that Canadians would do well to copy the idea. It has the effect of keeping the butter in better condition and it arrives on this side in a finer state of preservation.

Although, as stated above, a few Canadian butter shippers have decided to meet the requirements of this market in the matter of price, it still remains to be seen whether the more reasonable quotations of the past week are to become general. The flow of milk seems to have been somewhat smaller than usual in Canada, but this has affected the output of cheese rather than of butter, and in view of this fact Canadians must be holding back considerable quantities of butter in the hope of realizing big prices. The success of this speculation depends altogether upon the quantity of supplies to this market from other sources. Up to the present, there has been a decided shortage of butter, and it was hoped that Canadians would come forward to supply the deficiency. They did, but their prices were impossible. Up to the present buyers have struggled along without having been actually forced to accept prices asked. Now, it is hoped, relief is in sight, for good supplies will arrive from Australia and New Zealand in time to supply the increased September demand. Canadians will watch the prices of these new arrivals with interest. They will probably be high, but not prohibitive. As to European supplies for the British market, the position is causing some anxiety. The unsettled state of affairs in Russia prevents any really reliable information from being received from that quarter, and this increases the speculative tendency a little. However, the Siberian season is drawing to a close and in any case, supplies from that country would be small at this time of year. As to Danish butter, it is the opinion of some that Denmark will, from now onward, furnish smaller supplies to this market, on account of the calls made upon her output by German demands. When it is remembered that Germany is enjoying a period of industrial prosperity, and that the scale of wages is growing higher and the people beginning to live less economically, there is no reason to doubt that the demand for butter, which has been steadily increasing, will continue. Even a German, under the circumstances, would prefer butter to margarine at his meals.

D. Hopper and wife, Cookstown, have just returned from a three weeks' pleasure trip to Montreal and eastern points.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

Provisions—Trade has been distinctly good in provisions since our last issue. Smoked breakfast bacon has still further stiffened the lower range of price advancing 1c. Small hams have also firmed to 15c. Heavy mess pork has advanced from $17.50 to $18.00. There has been a perceptible advance in arrivals of hogs, and the former high prices are gradually weakening to a more even basis. Sales this week have been affected at $9.50 for good class hogs. Butter—The market is still showing a great lack of life, arrivals are slow to come in, whilst the demand is a steadily increasing one. There is practically no export trade, the American market being on a lower basis, buyers for export are now turning attention to that market, with the result that this market is seemingly closed for the present. We quote:

Cheese — The market for cheese, which practically relies upon its export for life, is, at the present moment without energy. Moderate supplies have been arriving with still further hardening of prices. The general opinion is that no bulk trade will mature until prices are on what would be considered a more rational basis. A prominent holder on this market for export has recently offered a large parcel of seveal thousand by cable, at a margin below market values, but no business has transpired.

Cheese—The cheese market is steady, but inactive owing to a small demand. Prices, however, are firm with holders and no signs of very near drop. Dealers agree that last week's rise was premature, and are figuring on a reaction for September, when cheese of higher quality will arrive. Quebec is quoted 11 3-8c. to 11 1-2c.; Townships, 11 5-8c. to 11 3-4c. and Ontarios, 11 3-4c. to 11 7-8c. Exports from Montreal are large and above those of last year for corresponding period.

Butter—There is almost an absence of any demand for butter and notwithstanding this fact prices remain firm. Arrivals at the beginning of this week were small, but it is thought they will exceed those of last week. Many dealers prophecy a near decline, but others seem confident this firmness will be maintained for a while.

Eggs—Eggs are higher and market shows much strength. This is due to a larger demand and dealers say that sales are made freely at those high figures, and that stocks move quickly although receipts show an increase over those of the previous week. Straight gathered are selling at 17 1-2c. to 18c., while selects bring 23c.

Provisions—In barrel pork the stock is very small. Fair enquiry is reported with prices advancing. Beef firm to hardening. Pure lard is scarce and held at full figures. Refined still quoted on low basis. Hams continue firm.

In fresh meat, beef moves slowly with domestic quoted at low figures. Retail prices are at extreme figures. Lamb is still firm with American buyers picking up large consignments. Veal and mutton is reported light sales. Little pork yet seen, quite full prices rule.

GREEN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

THE AMERICAN PEANUT.

STATISTICIANS of the Department of Agriculture say there are consumed annually in the United States some six million bushels of peanuts, the production of which forms not the least important industry of the south. The greater quantity of this most valuable nut comes from Suffolk, Va., though there are many that come from Smithfield, Wakefield, Franklin, Waverly and Petersburg.

It is an interesting fact, not generally known, that the "goober," or "pinder" as the peanut is commonly known, in the south, did not come prominently before the American people till the days of the Civil War. It is said that the soldiers of both armies found that the peanut growing sections of Dixie afforded a most satisfactory camping ground for such as were short of rations. It was then, when the hungry soldiers fed upon the peanuts, and gave thanks that such a hunger-satisfying nut could be obtained by a little foraging, that the humble "goober" began to be appreciated. Since then the cultivation of the peanut has assumed great importance, and now there are fifty-acre peanut farms in Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee and other Southern States, where in the sixties were only "patches" devoted to the growing of the "goober."

The finest variety of peanut grown in this country is that known as the "bunch," but the "Virginia running" may be said to be the most widely known and most popular with the trade. In fact, it may be termed the typical American peanut. The pods are large and white and will weigh about twenty-two pounds to the bushel. In point of favor, size and hardness of hull, these are the best peanuts grown, and "selects" from these are known as the "Jumbo."

Every year the peanut crop becomes more valuable, and it grows evident that the time is coming when diversified interests will make it more so. Millions of bushels are now annually used in the Old World for the production of peanut oil, which by some is regarded as equal to olive oil. Already the manufacturers of peanut oil in the United States have announced that the only drawback to the oil mills here, especially in Tennessee, is the insufficient output of peanuts.

ONTARIO VEGETABLE GROWERS' ASSOCIATION.

The officers of the recently-formed Ontario Vegetable-Growers' Association purpose organizing branches of the association in connection with the leading cities and towns of the Province. Organizers will be sent out during this month to towns and cities with the object of forming branch associations. These organizers will be members of the association, who are leading market gardeners in the vicinity of Toronto and Hamilton.

The association will receive a Government grant this year of $800. It purposes using this money to hold a large convention for vegetable growers at the time of the horticultural exhibition in Toronto, next November, and also offering prizes for a large vegetable exhibit at this show. The prize list for the show has already been completed.

The constitution of the association provides for the formation of branch associations. The vegetable growers in the vicinity of any town or city may organize a branch association, for which the membership fee is $1. The presidents of these branch associations become directors of the Provincial association, and have their expenses paid while attending meetings of its executive. The branch associations are expected to pay the Provincial association 40 cents for each of their members, which makes all members of the local association members of the Provincial association. The Provincial association sends all its members copies of the annual report of its convention, a monthly magazine which is the official organ of the association and other printed matter. Vegetable growers who would like to see one of these branch associations formed in their vicinity are invited to write to H. B. Cowan, Department of Agriculture, Toronto, who is the secretary of the Ontario Vegetable-Growers' Association.—London Free Press.

FRUIT MARKET TAKES DAY OFF.

The fruit market employes held their third annual picnic in the lacrosse grounds, Hanlan's Point, on Wednesday afternoon. The market closed at two o'clock, in time to allow the committee of management to make arrangements. About 300 were present and enjoyed to the full the game of baseball between the east end and the west end. The broom game and tug of war provided good sport.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Green Fruits.

Toronto, Aug. 31, 1905.

The home market in fruits has been particularly good, and is expected to continue so for the whole season. This year is reported on market as being a record one from a financial point for the Californian fruits. The great scarcity at other points has enabled that market to maintain high standard of prices, and at the same time keep up the volume of trade. Bananas have never before carried such enormous sales as the present season, and this applies not only to Canada, but to almost all markets; their condition, also, has never been better. It was usually considered good if shippers realized from five to six hundred dollars per car; this year a car load has been fetching in the neighborhood of fifteen to seventeen hundred dollars. Lemons continue to command high figures and will continue to do so until new arrivals in September or October. Georgia and Delawa oranges are ranging at high figures. The domestic peaches are coming in in the best growths and are expected to be a good crop; prices have somewhat stiffened for good fruit. Pears are scarce and have advanced 25c. per box. Cantaloupes and melons are easier. We quote:

Trade has made a somewhat upward move since our last issue, the demand is more steady and solid. Produce is coming in freely and is of good quality and condition. Egg plants are down to 35c. and parsnips are weakening owing to abundance of supply. Other goods remain steady. We quote:

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Green Fruits.

Montreal, Aug. 31, 1905.

The fruit trade continues quite active, though fruits are generally scarce and high.

On Monday, two cars of California fruits were sold as follows: Pears, $4.15 to $4.30; peaches, $1.75; plums, $2.75 to $3.25; and Tokay grapes at $4.25. All those fruits are selling well at high prices and dealers agree that this year has been a banner year in California fruits.

Receipt of bananas is lighter than that of last week: nine cars only; and for corresponding week last year, 30 cars arrived in Montreal. High prices are maintainled in bananas owing to the steady good demand and scarcity.

Oranges are very scarce and not much in demand. The last car of the season has arrived this week.

A few baskets of grapes are seen here and there, but they have a poor appearance and do not seem to catch any attention.

Apples, the Duchess and Astrachan

Fish and Oysters

Some dealers are not aware that we are large handlers of Fresh Caught Fish, holding large contracts for daily supplies. Our cold storage plant, situated in the building, enables us to handle this business satisfactorily.

Also, the Oyster Season is on. We have the exclusive handling of Rowe's Celebrated Long Island Natives, noted for their size and exquisite flavor.

We are also sole agents for Syda & Cousins' famous Scotch cured Finnan Haddies.

The above is worthy of your consideration.

Vegetables.

The vegetable trade is good and active though featureless. Dealers are in constant receipt of home-grown vegetables, which are immediately sold, thus keeping stocks low as regards quantity, although at the same time a good business is being transacted in all lines. CHINESE FRUITS.

From United States Consul Anderson, Hangehau, China.

THE somewhat crude products of the Middle Kingdom are unsatisfactory and disappointing to most foreigners used to the highly developed fruits of America or Europe. There are some, however, which are of considerable merit, and there is no question that a judicious crossing with fruits from other countries would benefit the latter considerably. One advantageous feature about Chinese fruits is in their keeping quality, as a rule. This is especially true of pears and oranges.

Berries are few and poor. Near foreign settlements, as at Shanghai and Peking, the strawberry has been introduced and is cultivated by Chinese gardeners with a patience which is never seen in the United States and seldom in Europe. The strawberries thus cultivated are fairly good. A few other foreign berries have been introduced, but so far they are practically experiments. The Chinese seem to have no native berries worthy of mention, although in the country districts some are used by the poorer classes.

Practically all parts of China have peaches of varied qualities, but only in the north do they approach the foreign standard.

The Chinese cultivate a number of varieties of native grapes, the small sort being made into the well-known Chinese raisins. In North China, near Chifu, the varieties of grapes introduced by American missionaries about ten years ago are doing well and the product is very satisfactory, although it lacks the fine flavor of the American grape. These grapes are shipped over considerable territory, especially along the coast.

Chinese apples are soft and tasteless, lack juice, flavor, keeping quality, and almost every other good point. The Chifu apples, introduced from the United States and cultivated according to western methods, are very fair, but they have a tendency to water core and do not keep as well as the same varieties in the United States in similar temperature. Possibly apples grown and kept on some of the hills back in the interior will do better, and experiments are now being conducted in that direction.

The bartlett pears introduced at Chifu are of good flavor and size, and form a fine table fruit as long as they last. But foreign pears in China do not keep and the stock shows signs of rapid deterioration. The Chinese pears are comparatively small and more or less "woody." Their flavor uncooked is almost nil, and they have few attractions for those acquainted with them, although they are fair food when cooked. They keep indefinitely—under proper conditions, most of the Winter. They are of first-class appearance, and if crossed with foreign pears of high flavor could probably be developed into a very fine fruit.

Chinese cherries are poor and their season short. Efforts are now being made to introduce foreign varieties in Northern China.

The persimmon is highly esteemed in China by natives and by many foreigners. It has the characteristic flavor of the American persimmon, except that there is less of possible astringent qualities about it. It grows large and has strong merit as a keeper. Near Peking the most popular sorts of persimmons have rings or grooves near the stems which give them the appearance of having had strings tied around them when small and of having grown around the strings. The varieties in the central and southern portions of the Empire are smooth, grow very large, and are very handsome. Some persimmons are picked green by the natives and ripened in lime. Thus ripened they are less wholesome, perhaps, than otherwise, but they have a firmness of flesh which many people esteem.

Pomelo the Best All Round Fruit.

Probably the best all round fruit in China is the pomelo. It is grown in the south, central and southern Provinces, and is said to be the original citrus fruit. It resembles the grape fruit of the United States in size, shape, color, and somewhat in flavor, being sweeter than grape fruit, with less of the bitter quality, with flesh more perfectly separated in the sections, and capable of being pulled apart and separated from all surrounding sacs or membranes. The natives cut through the peel about one-third of the way from the top, crimping the edge of the section all the way round the fruit, then remove the flesh, tear the sections apart, replace them in the peel, and serve thus divided and prepared. The fruit is attractive, refreshing, wholesome, and comparatively cheap, good-sized pomelos being obtainable in Shanghai, Hangchau, Ningpo, Hankau, and similar ports, in season, for $1 Mexican (46 cents) per dozen. Generally speaking, the pomelo seems to be a cross between a shaddock and a good orange, but it is more hardy than either. It has better keeping qualities than the orange, and American horticulturists ought to give it their attention.

Fruit Picked Green.

Chinese oranges are of great variety. There are small and large Mandarin oranges, neither kind being very attractive to foreigners, although they have the merit of growing farther north than American oranges. There are several small varieties, having good flavor, but very many seeds. The larger are of fair flavor and have fewer seeds. The best oranges grow in the southern Provinces along the seacoast. The Fuchau or Swatau orange resembles the Florida seedling in size, shape, appearance and somewhat in quality. It is slightly more acid, but is very pleasant and satisfactory fruit. It has good keeping qualities, and is shipped over most of China without cold storage of any kind.

Bananas are raised in the southern Provinces and are now being shipped to most parts of the Empire. They are of good flavor, fair size, and keep well.

All Chinese fruits are picked green and ripened off the plant. The Chinese farmer is too anxious to sell his crop or too much afraid of thieves to wait until the fruit is properly ripened. Methods of packing and shipment are very crude. Much of the fruit is handled in bags and in bulk, some of it in bamboo wicker baskets, but ways of marketing are being bettered under foreign supervision and in imitation of foreign methods.

G. L. Dodds, general merchant, Melita, has assigned to C. H. Newton, and a meeting of creditors will be held Sept. 1.

QUAKER SUGAR AND CREAM CORN

This is a line we are now packing which we intend to make our main specialty. Packed from the finest Maine Seed, with the ears all selected, with the cans well filled with corn and not watery juice. We believe there is a future for an article of this class of goods if properly placed on the market and the attention of the consumers called to its superior merits. There is no line of goods packed in cans that varies so much as corn in quality, consequently there should be an opening on the market for a really high-class article, something in which the goods were not only at the tip-top but that every can could be depended on to be of a high and uniform quality. This is what we claim for Sugar and Cream and the reputation of the Quaker is behind these assertions. While the contents inside of a can are of more importance than the outside, it may not come amiss to say that these goods are sent out in very handsome embossed wrappers, far superior to anything we have yet seen from our competitors.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

THE record of dullness for the season has been broken by an unprecedented increase in export freight. This applies particularly to grain. Wheat has not for some time been shipped on a really paying basis. The abundant harvest has not had time yet to reach tidewater, but its actual effect is marked. For instance, for September shipments, shipping men at Montreal are asking 4d to 6d per quarter more than they were getting for August, and it would not be surprising if rates were increased even more.

bad, not only this year, but for several years, and the situation is said to be alarming. A glance at the manifests shows that there has been a fair amount of produce going forward from Montreal. The Allan Line ss. Virginian carried away, in addition to a large general cargo, nearly 14,000 boxes of cheese and close to 3,000 packages of butter. The ss. Milwaukee, for Liverpool, carried 85,000 odd bushels of corn and nearly 20,000 bushels of wheat, all in addition to a very large general cargo, including cheese, flour, lumber and hay. The ss.

On the lakes and rivers, trade is good, and the big Exhibition at Toronto has attracted enough freight to keep whole lines busy.

These rates are for general information only, and are subject to change at any time without notice; it is therefore important that all contracts must be reported by wire and confirmation obtained before closing with shippers, and unless specifically stated to be prompt shipment, or shipped within ten days after date of contract from the west.

The above rates are exchanged on basis of $4.80 to £1 Stg., excepting that when freight is prepaid, the ocean proportion of the through rate must be collected on basis of $4.86 to the pound sterling.

If freight is offered other than specified above, on which steamship connections are accustomed to quote a weight or measurement rate at their option, prompt replies will be facilitated by giving, when applying for rate, the relative weight and measurement of the merchandise.

It is understood that when reporting Sack Flour engagements, a carload is considered 28,000 lbs.

It is also important that shipper's name be given for every engagement made.

* Rates quoted in cents are per 100 lbs. † Per 2240 lbs, No Primage via Montreal.

Cheese is striking a boom, as prophesied in The Grocer, and to-day the shipping men are receiving at least fifteen per cent. more than they were last season at this time.

Notwithstanding the Russo-Jap war and the peace negotiations, quantities of Russian grain are finding their way to the Old Country, and it is presaged that if Russia keeps on shipping her grain abroad the chances of a local famine are strong.

It is generally stated by knowing ones that the steamship business has been Dominion took among other things 2,965 packages of meat, 5,510 packages of lard, and 25,180 pieces of deals.

The Oriana for South Africa carried an immense cargo, comprising meat, provisions, lumber, furniture and useful household stuff. A noticeable part of the cargo of this ship for Cape Town was 179 boxes of frozen fowl.

So, notwithstanding the wild cries of bad times, the steamers seem to be carrying cargoes and they seem to be glad to carry them, so all the shipping men say.

A NEW YORK VISITOR TO TORONTO

THE CANADIAN GROCER was favored at the Toronto office with a visit by Col. the Hon. C. R. Banks, the well-known magnate of the New York tea market. The Colonel speaks well of the prospects of the American tea trade. In a conversation with the editor of this paper he said:

"All jobbers in New York report great development in British-grown teas; they are continually gaining in favor, thanks to the way in which the representatives of the old Mother Country have unremittently pushed forward their merits."

He also paid a fitting compliment to the associations interested in the growth of Indian and Ceylon teas; he said "that advertising was practically unknown previous to these associations entering the field; now the tea gardens had become great advertisers and could not do without it; it was the only thing to do, to let everybody know the value of their products. To judicious advertising he attributed the extraordinary progress that had been made, in Ceylon especially; publicity, coupled with their great merit, had placed British-grown teas in advance of the older and once better known growths."

Col. Banks is the American agent of the firm of B. Fischer & Co., New York, one of the largest tea brokers and of world-wide fame.

"MADE IN CANADA"

The Best Cereal Food to Eat, and the Best Cereal Food to Sell is

Shredded Whole Wheat

It is made in two forms, Shredded Wheat BISCUIT and TRISCUIT.

TRISCUIT is a CRACKER, not a "breakfast food." It is used as toast in place of ordinary bread toast, and for all purposes for which the common white cracker of commerce is used.

Shredded Wheat BISCUIT is the standard wheat food of the world, delicious for breakfast, or for every meal for every day in the year. It contains all the nutriment in the whole wheat in digestible form. A good seller all the year round.

Flour and Cereal Foods

PUFFED RICE CEREAL MANUFACTURE.

IN this age of scientific resource, it seems scarcely possible to place a limit to the advanced methods thereby introduced, and the avenues of possibilities opened up. The following article, which recently appeared in the Southern Merchant, will be of interest, as showing the revolution which the introduction of cooking cereals by dry-heat and explosion has made:

"Among current cereal novelties reported, great interest is developing in puffed rice, an entirely new thing in ready-to-eat cereals. The product is said to be selling fast and advancing rapidly in public favor. The marvel is that some such way of transforming plain rice into a luxurious article of diet was not invented long ago.

"The drudgery of cooking rice several hours has checked the consumption of rice in this country for a half century, and sadly interfered with its sale. The sterling qualities of a food of the highest class, however, were always there. Apparently it only remained for an American, by a trifling idea, to change the world's most ancient and loved diet into a modern health food.

"Just three years ago the scientific journals announced a novel method of cooking cereals by dry heat and explosion. A visit to the mills where this novel process is in daily operation shows that dry rice kernels, thoroughly cleaned, are packed into a steel cylinder which is thrust into a furnace and heated to a high temperature.

"After the rice is cooked, the cylinders are withdrawn and locked into a closely-screened cage. The cap is removed from the mouth of each cylinder, and instantaneously, one hundred times quicker than lightning, the natural moisture in the rice grain flashes into a steam explosion expanding each grain ten times, and dashing the ricy berries of milk white out into the cage. The transforming is complete. Puffed rice ready for use in countless forms, lies before the wondering visitor.

"To the sightseer, this fairy-like transformation is absorbing. The furnace contains eight revolving steel air-tight cylinders, and the cooking time is forty minutes. The air in the cylinders expands with the heat and exerts a tremendous pressure, preventing the natural water in the rice from turning into steam.

"Cookery by explosion, truly, a wonderful idea, and one that rendered the process the cynosure of all eyes among the cooking, and cereal exhibits at the St. Louis Exposition, one year ago, this being one of the three exhibits that Prince Ito, the Japanese prince, visited while touring the fair.

"The crowds of visitors never tired of watching the metamorphosis at the exact moment when the rice changes into dainty puffs. The cylinder has been likened into a cannon by the wordy, curious public, and the interest is at boiling point from the moment the steel cannons run on a track into the oven, where they revolve ceaselessly and steady for forty minutes, until the explosion comes.

"Handfuls of delicious flaky product were handed to the curious, and they found that it would melt on the palate. The little party of investigators wander on and view each part of the glistening steel mechanical outfit. No hand touches the rice from start to finish.

"The great interest in the creation of puffed rice undoubtedly centres around its extraordinary finale—cooking by instantaneous explosive flash which robs the rice of its starchy properties and renders it a king of cereal foods.

"Much interest has been shown in the invention by western chemists, who are interested in the food question. The idea will be of incalcuable value to the rice growers of the continent, as it will increase the consumption of the highest qualities of rice several hundred per cent. annually."

FLOUR, GRAIN AND FEED AGENCY

Mr. H. J. Stevens has opened up an office at 126 Board of Trade Building, Montreal, as wholesale commission agent in flour, feed, grain, etc. Mr. Stevens was connected during the past eight years with the Chatham Flour Mills Co., Chatham, Ont. Previous to that time he was in the milling business at Aylmer, Ont. This knowledge and experience is bringing him most satisfactory business, and although only opened up as a commission agent in grains, feed and cereals of all kinds one month in Montreal, his close connection with all the leading bean, feed and oats, etc., dealers in Canada has resulted in extensive trading and sales in Ontario, Quebec and also the Maritime Provinces, over 100 cars having been turned over, disposition being made from Fort William to Halifax. Mr. Stevens has placed several travelers on the road and the encouraging outlook will probably lead to still further extending his representatives.

APPOINTED AGENT.

Wm. H. Dunn has recently been appointed agent for the Province of Quebec (except Quebec City) for Tillsonburg Mills Co., rolled oats, Ralston breakfast food, etc. He has also closed an arrangement with Burgoyne, Burbidges & Co., London, England, to represent them in Canada for confectioners' supplies, essential oils, drugs, chemicals, etc., and will shortly have a consigned stock of the leading lines.

With wheat coming in much faster than was expected, and cutting general in many districts, some uneasiness is expressed among western farmers as to whether sufficient harvesters will be on hand when wanted.

Tobaccos, Cigars, and Smokers' Accessories

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

TOBACCO PROFITS.

"There is a tide in the affairs of men, which, taken at the turn, leads on to fortune."

HOW many times an adage such as this is repeated, with little thought save to apply it to the "other" fellow, who is freely designated a fool for missing a chance everybody else saw but he himself. Steady, now, let's consider a moment, maybe the tide has risen, and is just at the turn in someone else's history.

How about tobacco trade — "your" tobacco trade—possibly you have not given this department the serious thought it deserves—have kept tobacco because you were asked for it and sent your orders forward, more by "rule of thumb" than keen judgment and common sense.

You would not think of treating your tea department in like manner.

The time has arrived when tobacco must be considered as much a staple as tea, coffee or cocoa. Many a man would prefer to go without either of those beverages than his favorite tobacco. It is a luxury of universal use and must be taken count of.

Now consider a moment, every grocer has his regular working expenses; rent must be paid, the rig must be kept going, heating, lighting, and a-hundred-and-one other charges; and all these to keep the store going for its regular staples. Is it not just here where the tobacco sales would come in and help? None of these charges need be increased one cent. Probably every family you now supply has one or more smokers among its number—why can you not then serve them all with tobacco goods, and serve them regularly, instead of occasionally?

Profits on tobacco are good; it is easily handled, it is a trade easily held, and furnishes a regular income, only requiring very ordinary care and attention.

There are three things worth remembering: First, be sure and carry the best goods—that means "good judgment"; second, sell them at the right price—that means "good buying"; third, let the public know it—that means "judicious advertising." Without these you cannot go ahead, with these success is assured. "Taken at the turn leads on to fortune."

THE AMERICAN TOBACCO CROP.

HUSTLE and bustle is the order of the day in most of the American tobacco districts. It is not so very long ago that the cry was going forth for rain, plenty of rain It has come, however, and for several weeks has been doing its welcome work. Farmers have watched their crops steadily advancing to maturity with no little anxiety, and now all is ready for harvesting.

Buyers have been visiting the various districts, viewing the crops and arranging their options on the cut. Views vary as to the condition and prospects of the harvest; in some places it seems to have suffered somewhat from the protracted early drought, but generally it would appear to be of good color, even, and well grown. To the shade grown tobacco the season has been particularly favorable, and if nothing goes wrong with the crop the growers will reap good profit. Every endeavor is being exercised to get the crops in quickly so as to safely harvest them before any storms occur, which have already proved so disastrous in one or two districts.

RAISING TOBACCO FOR EXPORT.

An important change in connection with tobacco growing in Italy is contemplated, and if carried out will create a considerable opening for capital and enterprise. A British official states in a report on the Province of Lecce that a few years ago the tobacco department conceded to certain firms the privilege of growing, drying and packing Oriental qualities of tobacco for export in given areas near Tricase; the consequence was the immediate formation of groups of land owners who petitioned the government to be allowed to do the same, not only for export but also for home consumption. These groups are now numerous.

TOBACCO WEATHER REPORT.

"Too much rain and a lack of sunshine have proved unfavorable to tobacco in Maryland, Virginia and Kentucky; elsewhere this crop has advanced satisfactorily."

The following extracts are taken from the telegraphic report of the correspondents in the different states on the condition of the tobacco crop:

New England—Tobacco very good; cutting well advanced.

New York—Tobacco doing well.

Pennsylvania—Tobacco thrifty and well advanced.

Maryland and Delaware—Much of tobacco on sand soil very poor that on farm land a short yield.

Virginia—Tobacco improving slowly, but needs sunshine and dry weather.

North Carolina—Tobacco all cured in east. Some report firing and some rotting.

South Carolina—Tobacco curing nearly finished.

Tennessee—Tobacco generally good, with but few worms; early crop ripening.

Kentucky—Early tobacco topped; late, improved by arms; complaint of

A TOBACCO PATCH EXPERIMENT.

THE following interesting experiment from the U. S. Tobacco Journal, in the growing of tobacco, is taken and is particularly of interest as showing what can be accomplished when a man is in right down earnest in his ideas:

Within a stone's throw of the district Government building, Washington, D.C., the unusual spectacle of tobacco in its growing state is presented to passers-by. Only a few doors from the district building there is a cigar store run by Notley J. Dutton, and there one may see tobacco in all of its stages, from the green plant to the boxed-up product ready for sale. Mr. Dutton is an old resident tobacco manufacturer and has a number of pots filled with growing tobacco in front of his place of business. He takes the greatest interest in the growth of the weed, and this, it may be said, is his pet hobby. Everyone stops to inquire how the crop is getting along. There are several lawyers, habitual smokers, with offices near Mr. Dutton's store, who never fail to stop and inquire as to the growth of the tobacco.

Years ago, the now enthusiastic botanist was a large manufacturer of tobacco in Baltimore, and as he was in the business for some time prior to that he learned to tell one kind of tobacco from another merely by the smell. About nine years ago he left his business in Baltimore and came to this city, where he started the cigar store of which he is now the proprietor. A few years ago as the result of an argument he had with a friend as to whether Havana tobacco was better than our domestic product, he sought to settle the dispute in a manner not to be questioned, and obtained seed from Havana and Virginia and planted them in his backyard. When the sprouts came up he transplanted them into large pots, which he keeps in front of his store. The first year he made a fairly good crop, and became so interested in the growth of the weed, that last year he again grew a crop. Last year's growth turned out even more successful than that of the preceding one, and this year he planted again.

In front of his store Mr. Dutton has three large pots of Veulta Havana tobacco, growing, and three pots filled with ordinary domestic Virginia tobacco. These plants are growing very nicely and promise well. Mr. Dutton says he has not found anything more interesting than the study of the growth of tobacco. It is his opinion that while Havana tobacco is the best for cigars, there is none to surpass the famous Virginia Gravely chewing and smoking tobacco. It is Mr. Dutton's intention to have a crop of Sumatra tobacco on hand for study next year.

STORM DAMAGED TOBACCO CROPS.

A recent report to hand tells of an electric storm which burst over the Hartford and New Haven, Conn., tobacco fields, and in one district did considerable damage. Fortunately, it was not sufficiently general to reach the more extensive fields or the loss must have been enormous, as it is, however, damage to tobacco plants alone is estimated at fifty thousand dollars.

Heavy damage was done to the tobacco crop of the Miami Valley by the recent severe rain and hail storms. It is estimated that the loss in German Township will amount to $100,000.

The sections around Union and Englewood, too, suffered considerably, the stalks of the plants in many cases being entirely stripped of their leaves. The loss is felt keenly by farmers who were confident that the crop would have been the best ever turned into the warehouse from the Miami Valley.

BOLIVIAN CIGARETTES.

The British Vice-Consul at Sucre, Bolivia, has reported to his Government that the city has one cigarette factory which manufactures on an average 1,000 hundred weight of tobacco annually, making first-class cigarettes at two pence per packet of 24. These are sent all over the country, and small quantities as far as Chile and Peru. The whole plant is driven by oil motors, which work at the same time a flour roller mill.

THE TOBACCO PLANT.

From a small seed, one of the smallest known, the tobacco plant grows to be often considerably taller than an average man, with leaves twenty to thirty inches long, and more than a foot in width. Remarkable to note, on one plant will be found upwards of half a million seeds.

PROTECTING TRADE-MARK.

An injunction has been granted by Justice Magee restricting Coulthard & Walsh from using the trade mark "Lord Nelson" in reference to cigars manufactured by them.

THE DIFFERENCE

There is nothing marvelous in our manufacturing

GOLDEN RUSSET VINEGAR

Any other maker could turn out a fruit vinegar as good if he spent the money and had the process. It is cheaper and easier to manufacture acid vinegars because flavorings and colorings are used in an attempt to correct imperfect manufacture, whereas in pure fruit vinegar—Golden Russet Vinegar—nothing but the natural fruit acid of the best apples is used. Sold in three strengths at prices proportionate.

Made in Canada

These words are the key to the success that every true Canadian heartily desires for this fair Canada of ours!

Why should we buy goods of any description that are made in a foreign country? The making of foreign goods does not give employment to our artisans. It does not retain money in this country.

Why use Foreign Salt? We have CANADIAN SALT that is superior to any foreign salt that is made

Why not help build up Canada by using

Canadian Salt

and thereby employ Canadian labor, Canadian works, and Canadian capital?

Demand of your wholesale grocer Canadian Salt, and if he does not keep it write to us for prices and samples.

CANADIAN MANUFACTURERS IN ENGLAND

By W. L. E.

CANADA'S OPPORTUNITIES IN GREAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE

ONE thing that impressed me a great deal while in Great Britain with the Canadian Manufacturers' Association was the unique position that Canada at present occupies in both Great Britain and France. To both countries Canada is attached by the ties of kindredship. In Great Britain they refer to Canadians as brothers; in France as confreres. Great Britain welcomed us with open arms, and entertained us for about four weeks in a most lavish manner. In France our official visit was confined to four or five days. The possibilities of entertainment were, in consequence, more limited than in England.. But the welcome was none the less cordial. During the four or five days they provided all the entertainment and pleasure that we were capable of digesting. And running through the public and private remarks of business and public men of France with whom we were brought in contact were sentiments warmer and deeper thon we dreamed of. In Great Britain sympathy toward Canada is based on what we are politically in relation to the Motherland; in France on what Canada once was politically in relation to that country. Then on the top of it all is the entente cordiale between Great Britain and France.

Naturally, in view of the sentimental relationship between Canada and Great Britain and France, the conditions are happy for the extension of trade between these two countries and the Dominion. Wherever we went in Great Britain or in France evidences of an interest in Canadian trade matters were to be seen. Naturally, their first thought was Canada as a customer; but there was also expressed a pronounced desire to purchase Canadian products.

In this group will be seen Messrs. T. H. Estabrooks and R. D. Emmerson, St. John, N.B., Mr. H. P. Allen, London, Ont., J. W. Scott, Mount Forest, and P. Clarkson, Montreal

Travel the wide world over and I do not believe there is any country in the world whose prospects for increased trade with other countries are as bright as those of Canada with Great Britain and France. In other words Canada is in the position of having customers abroad who are actually desirous of giving her products a preference as long as quality and price — and particularly quality—are right.

Under these circumstances it is obviously the fault of Canadians themselves if the opportunity offered is not grasped. It is true our export trade with what might be termed Canada's two mother countries has grown rapidly during the last ten years, that with Great Britain showing an increase of over 70 per cent. and that with France about 90 per cent.; but the difference between what these countries buy and what we can sell them is very great. What we supply is merely a "drop in the bucket."

Messrs. Allan and E. J. Davis, Toronto, and R. D. Macdonald, London.

Canadians are by no means unaggressive; but it dawned upon most of us while abroad that there was room for more aggressiveness. The field is there. What it wants is cultivation. The quality of the merchandise we send across the ocean is not always as uniform as the tastes of the people demand, and particularly those of the British people. Possibly there are some who may be inclined to pooh-pooh this idea. But seeing is believing. And some of us saw and believed. Then there must be promptness in filling orders and in answering correspondence. There is sometimes good and sufficient reason for not being able to promptly fill orders; but there is no excuse for neglect in answering correspondence. It causes irritation, and irritation is not good for business. We often hear complaints on this side of the Atlantic in regard to the disinclination of manufacturer in Great Britain to adapt themselves to the requirements of the Canadian market. One of the complaints of importers in Great Britain against some of the manufacturers in Canada is of a similar character. I know of the representative in London of one large Canadian concern who is taking a trip to Canada nearly altogether for the purpose of trying to instruct his principals in ways and means of meeting the requirements of the British trade. Another has but recently returned to Great Britain from a similar mission. If those in Canada who are unconcerned about such matters were conscious of the concern a great many people in Great Britain have who wish to see the development of trade between the Mother Country and her colonies, they would awake to their duty in the matter.

One of the first things Canadians should do who desire to do business with Great Britain, or who are ambitious to do more with that country than they are now doing, is to make a journey there. Get into touch with the men with whom they want to do business, listen to their suggestions and learn from personal contact and observation what the actual requirements of the market are. It is only by this way they can become cognizant of the actual situation. They can never learn by correspondence or through other persons. They must see and learn for themselves; and it is the easiest and cheapest way in the long run. Their ways are not our ways any more than ours are theirs. And with customers so promising it is folly indeed not to learn how we can best please them.

BUSINESS NOTES.

J. S. IRELAND, Mount Forest, Ont., is expecting to make considerable change in his store. When completed it will probably be one of the best equipped stores in the district.

FOOD ADULTERATION.

ARTEMUS WARD sends the following sensible letter on the subject of "Food Adulteration" to an American contemporary :

"In my opinion all pure food legislation menaces the retail grocer. The common law should be sufficient protection in cases of any injury arising from adulteration.

"Special protection may be necessary in the case of milk, but even there the rapidly increasing information on the part of even the poorest people largely offsets this necessity. The specific gravity tests sometimes produce ridiculous results when the large yield of a Holstein cow falls below the test, although it is absolutely pure, and when the family physician practically always insists that the pure milk should be reduced in strength to help the infant's digestion.

"I say that all pure food legislation menaces the retail dealer. He is absolutely a middleman, in nine out of ten cases unaware of the real character of the mixtures which he sells, and yet no matter how a pure food law may be framed its annoyance will surely fall on the retailer's head.

"There may be, there doubtless are, frauds committed in the matter of adulteration, but they are as nothing to the fraudulent intent which creeps into every pure food bill. The axes that are ground in this connection would supply an immense lumber camp.

"Modern food must be mixed, and by far the greater part of it is improved by the mixture. The farmer colors his butter to please the consumer's eye, and then roars that any article colored to imitate butter is a fraud. Chocolate is said to be adulterated by people who think it grows on trees wrapped in blue paper with yellow labels. The most delicious of our foods from the malted breakfast cereals to Huyler's candies, are judicious mixtures, and are yet susceptible to the nosing interference of inspectors and others under the proposed pure food laws.

"A law against poisonous adulterations might be an advantage, but I believe the common law will cover that, and years of experience with the question has shown me that if the farmer's opposition to oleo-margarine was left out of the discussion, and the envy of a few rival manufacturers ignored, and the terrible ahulterations discovered in pepper, mustard, and other spices were eliminated, the scarecrow of food adulteration would not amount to two sticks.

"The manufacturer's self-interest prevents him from using dangerous adulterants, and if he cheapens his products by some simple healthful process, it is the public that is to blame for cheap things."

TEA AS A TRADE HOLDER.

TO young grocery clerks, who are apt to think that any fellow can run a grocery store, and that the day for studying "points" is passed, the following twelve "pointers" may be of interest. The trade is getting aroused to the importance of technical education. Food products are being compounded on the latest lines of science, and the man who wishes to handle them successfully must be equal to them in full acquaintance and knowledge. To begin with tea is an excellent idea. Tea is the grocer's staple ; it is also the most popular beverage of the age, and perhaps the least understood.

In connection with the recent grocery exhibition given by the South Wales Grocery Associations, S. R. Cuthbertson was awarded a gold medal for the best points on "How to Retain Tea Trade," as follows :

Study tea ; really become a tea specialist, and then advertise this for all it's worth.

Leave no doubt that you have as good value to offer the public as any of your competitors, and better than the majority.

Taste at regular intervals some of the leading blends.

Make a leading line at a price suitable for your particular district and push it.

Consider ultimate profit first and immediate profit afterwards, recognizing that a big percentage of profit on cost

Monthly Account System for Retail Trade

In answer to our inquiry from one of the largest departmental stores in Montreal, who are using this system, this is their answer, viz :

"Briefly, we find the Loose-Leaf System of handling accounts a very satisfactory one. We have seven Ledgers containing about 5,000 running accounts, and a large number of pettys."

Ellis Bros, grocers, of Ottawa, write as follows :

"We have been using your Monthly Account System in our grocery business for the past four years. It has given the utmost satisfaction and is away ahead of the old-time system. Its greatest feature is in always having accounts ready for rendering.

"We heartily recommend it to any concern wishing to be up-to-date.

per pound won't do in these days of keen competition.

Sample regularly any customer whose tea orders you don't get ; persistently with varied blends if a competitor has pleased their taste and you have not.

Advertise, judiciously, originally, and systematically. Make your local newspaper advertisement unique in style. For circularizing scorn cheap paper and indifferent printing.

Don't be contented with a stationary output ; find out the reason it don't increase ; remove the cause.

Store with care, display in a noticeable manner in shop ; use attractive wrappers.

Compare frequently your own blends with neighboring competitors, especially those of the big companies. Don't sell a tea inferior to theirs.

Secure advantage gained in paying cash for all teas bought.

Stock the best known of proprietary teas, but see that your own teas are the best value, and don't be too modest in proclaiming this fact—be sure it is a fact. If, however, you see a customer has a prejudice and will have a particular pack, let her have it ; if you don't someone else will. Always show a few packets of tea in window ticketed, now and again put a tea window in. Occasionally exhibit prominently a really high-class tea at a good high figure.

PRESERVED MILK.

After several years of practical experimenting and testing, a Scandinavian specialist has succeeded (writes a correspondent) in perfecting a new process for transforming milk into an absolutely soluble powder, which retains not only the ingredients of fresh milk (excepting the water), but also its taste and appearance. It would really seem as if this difficult problem had at last been satisfactorily solved, which assertion is borne out by the fact that the navy of the country in question has given the small factory where some experiments have been carried on, and where rational manufacture has taken place on a small scale for some time, several repeat orders absorbing the whole output. After two years' keeping the milk powder retains its solubility and fresh taste; nor does storage in a comparatively high temperature seem to interfere with its good qualities. The powder, which is absolutely free from any preserving substance, is patented all over the world.

SLOT MACHINE TAXATION.

RECENTLY the Montreal City Council passed a by-law by which all slot machines were to be subjected to taxation. The Bode's Gum Co., however, after securing the best legal advice, intend taking procedure against the city to have the by-law rescinded. This firm is confident of the final issue of the case and expect the strong support of all other firms engaged in similar business.

HOW OLIVE OIL IS MADE.

The olives, stones and all, are first crushed in a stone mill run by ox power. The mass of pulp is then transferred in flat wicker baskets to the "torchio," or oaken press, from which the oil oozes into a vat below. The presses at Dievole are very old, elaborately carved with the arms and devices of some early padrone. Tremendous pressure is applied through a primitive capstan arrangement, which the men work by heavy wooden levers, walking round and round on the stone floor in a track much worn by the tread of laboring generations. There are commonly two or three squeezings of the pulp, the product of the first being of the finest quality. But the process, once begun, must be carried forward continuously, lest the oil should spoil in the making. It is finally drawn off into huge earthen jars of immemorial pattern, like those in which the Forty Thieves of the Arabian tale concealed themselves for nefarious purposes. And it stands thus for a week in the adjoining clearing room, called the "chiaratoio," after which it is ready for the market.—From "Life on a Tuscan Farm," by T. R. Sullivan, in the June Scribner's.

DANISH ARTIFICIAL BUTTER.

The Copenhagen correspondent of the Times writes that during the last session of the Danish Legislature "a supplement to the existing law regulating the manufacture and sale of margarine, etc., was passed and will come into force on January 1, 1906." It is enacted that artificial butter and cheese (margarine and margarine cheese) shall contain a substance which does not affect the quality or color of the article, but is easily detectable through a chemical examination. The Minister of Agriculture is empowered to fix the details which are necessary to make this law effective. It is prohibited to manufacture, import, export, pass in transit through this country or sell margarine and margarine cheese which do not comply with this law.

A MACARONI STORY.

A great many stories are in existence about the origin of the word "macaroni" and the invention of the dish so designated. According to one authority, a drunken chef employed by one of the popes was responsible both for the name and the dish. He was preparing a souffle for the papal soup, and having taken considerably more than a drop too much, he went on stirring the flour until the souffle was of the consistency of hard tack. The assistant chef, knowing that his holiness was not over patient about things pertaining to the table, ventured to call the attention of his chef to this fact, and the latter, being a resourceful man, decided to make a paste instead of a souffle. He waited the result with some anxiety, and responded to a call to appear before his holiness with considerably anxiety. Visions of a stay in the papal dungeons rose before him, and when the pontiff asked, with a smiling face, for the name of the wonderful paste served in the soup, he was too nervous to think of a name. "My caro" (my favorite), he replied at last; and the pontiff, not catching the words exactly, said: "Macaroni? Well, in future never serve me a meal without a dish of macaroni."—Indianapolis Sentinel.

PROMISING B. C. CROPS.

Dr. Saunders, director of experimental farms, is now in British Columbia, having made a tour of Manitoba and the Territories. His report to Ottawa by telegram is given herewith, and gives in few words his view of the crop conditions:

"Agassiz, August.—Crops throughout British Columbia are good. Hay very heavy and well saved. Oats, barley and peas good and mostly harvested. Apples, plums and pears generally good. In some localities crop heavy. Potatoes and corn equally promising. Crops on Experimental Farm very good."

Fresh and Cured Fish

A NEW LINE.

The new line of kippered herrings placed on the market by J. W. Windsor, Montreal, is a radical departure from the generally known style of similar goods on sale with the grocery trade. The shape of the can is oval; unlike the others, it has no labels, but is encased in a carton, bearing the designation of goods and the brand "Ice Castle," with packer's name and address of fishery. This style of package is most attractive, and as a convenience in packing and for counter and shelf display should appeal to jobber and retailer alike. The quality of the fish is excellent, as The Grocer can vouch from experience, and Mr. Windsor is to be commended for bringing such an excellent product of the Maritime Provinces in such unique style to the attention of the Canadian trade. The industry is one in which Mr. Windsor is largely interested and another "Made in Canada" article may safely be launched to advetise the excellence of Canadian products in general, and the merits of Maritime Province sea foods in particular.

OYSTER SUPPLIES.

Mr. F. T. James of the F. T. James Co., Limited, Colborne street, Toronto, has just returned from a ten days trip to New York State. He reports that the fish trade was flourishing everywhere he called, and especially so at New York City. He has succeeded on behalf of his firm in fixing a contract whereby they will receive the output of two of the best oyster planters on Long Island Sound. They expect by this contract to overcome the difficulties experienced in previous seasons of getting a regular and reliable supply of oysters.

FISH NEWS.

A considerable quantity of fresh mackerel was shipped from Nova Scotia to Boston by boat and rail last week. The price paid for them in the Province was 8c. each.

A shipment of salmon, the first of the salted variety ever forwarded south, has just been dispatched from Victoria, B.C., to Australia. Formerly only Spring salmon were cured in this manner. This innovation in sockeye salmon has been introduced by Findlay, Durham & Brodie, quite recently.

A number of salmon were lately caught at Richibucto, N.B., having the peculiar black marks upon them which distinguish the Restigouche salmon from those of other waters. The salmon usually caught at Richibucto are those of the Miramichi River in their markings. These are evidently the first fruits of the salmon hatchery which has been in operation for several years upon the Restigouche River.

The fish warehouse of E. M. Boutilier, at Halifax, was damaged on Friday last by fire to the extent of $5,000. This is unfortunately the second time this firm has been burned out within twelve months. In addition to the loss of the building, some $3,000 worth of salmon and empty barrels were consumed by the flames, and a $500 refrigerator.

In Newfoundland when "fish" is mentioned in a general way reference is invariably made to codfish.

In B. C. and the west when reference is made to "fish" salmon in invariably meant.

FROM FAR AND NEAR.

KANSAS millers, with but few exceptions, are urging wheat growers to change their seed by importing genuine Turkey wheat.

A new roller mill is to be erected in Calcutta, India, equipped from England.

Nicaragua has added corn, beans and rice to her free list, effective until December 31 next.

The new "Bobs" wheat of Australia is reported very prolific as well as rust-proof and drought resisting.

The bleaching process seems to have taken a firm hold on Irish millers, quite a number of whom have put the apparatus into their mills.

The weevil has been troubling some of the southern rice mills. One mill has temporarily abandoned making rice flour on account of the weevil.

The American Cereal Co., of Chicago, has recently placed on the market a new brand known as "Quaker Puffed Rice," which is being widely introduced.

New Zealand reports for 1904-'05 show that 258,015 acres were planted to wheat which averaged 55.38 bushels per acre (9,123,673 bushels).

Japan's total grain crop of all kinds is about 1,500,000,000 bush. For a population of 50,000,000 people this would give 30 bushels per head of the population.

The Australian Millers' Journal of June 28 estimated the Australian wheat surplus as all shipped, although it was then six months before new wheat would be available for grinding.

The harvest in Austria, Hungary and Roumania has been completed, and it is expected that Hungary will have a surplus of 7½ million metrical hundredweights (220.4 pounds) to sell abroad.

Consul Bartleman, of Barcelona, Spain, reports 26,000 tons of wheat and barley recently received at that port. Most of this grain was from Bombay, via Marseilles, with smaller quantities from Black Sea ports.

The C.P.R. is making exceptional preparations to handle the crop expeditiously. Already some 12,000 cars are distributed at points throughout the west, and by the time the crop is threshed upwards of 20,000 will be available.

Winter wheat in Alberta seems to have been very successful this season and cutting began about August 1. It is reported on good authority that nearly 1,000,000 bushels of this wheat have been sold to go to British Columbia for grinding in Vancouver mills.

Rice blast, which has caused great damage to rice growers in South Carolina in past years, is the subject of special study by Dr. Haven Metcalf of that State for the Agricultural Department. The blast attacked the rice earlier than usual this season. Although its action is very rapid and destructive, its character is not fully understood.

China has 640,000,000 of acres capable of cultivation. Rice is the natural food of the people. An acre of rice supplies subsistence for from five to ten persons. Thus, instead of from 300,000,000 to 500,000,000 China could be made to sustain from 3,000,000,000 to 6,000,000,000 of population, several times the existing number of the entire human family.

British millers are considering the question of reducing the standard sack of flour from 280 pounds to 224 pounds. The standard British flour package is a relic of the past that should be discarded without regrets. The handling of it is a thing to cripple men. The American flour barrel can be rolled, but the British sack must be handled. A half sack is large enough for a man to lift.

Imports of wheat flour from the United States by British North America for the month of June amounted to 6,638 barrels, valued at $26,956, as compared with 32,190 barrels, valued at $32,190, for the preceding June. The total imports for the year ending June aggregated 77,331 barrels, valued at $348,610, as compared with 230,285 barrels, valued at $973,501, for the year ending with the preceding June.

We make the best pickles we know how to make. We believe that the people want good goods—that the best pickles would sell the best. Our splendid success has proved that we are right. We are to-day the largest concern of the kind in Canada, and are still growing.

Our facilities for making good pickles are unequalled. We supply the seed, supervise the planting, the cultivation and the picking of the vegetables. We have them in brine not later than 6 hours from the time they are taken from the vine. They are well cut, the spice is pure and whole, and the vinegar is a genuine malted pickling vinegar—the very best in the world.

All our energy is bent on making a good deal better pickle than the other fellow, and we do it. Remember, our goods cost no more and they are guaranteed to keep firm, pungent and appetizing.

Windsor Salt

must not be confounded with ordinary Salt. In quality, it is as high above the common Salt of trade as can be imagined. It won't cake—it is pure, white, dry. There is no impurity in it because of the care taken in manufacturing. It is sifted, not ground. Every particle of it is a separate Salt Crystal. It pays to sell Windsor Table Salt, because it is so good, clean, pure—

it is all Salt.

CARELESS CANNING.

ATTENTION has been again directed to the serious question of improperly canned goods. Complaints have come to hand from time to time, more or less serious, but not sufficiently definite to locate a particular grievance. There has always been absent that conciseness which brings the matter to a crucial point.

Recently, however, attention has been drawn to a grievance which would appear to point definitely to a matter which, if correct, calls for immediate protective measures.

It has been asserted that wholesalers lose more money than they make every year on the sales of "canned lobsters," and this not on a question of the profits per cent. being insufficient, but on account of the enormous amount of allowance which has to be made by reason of the goods not being canned in such a manner as to insure their perfect preservation. Upon opening by the final purchaser they are found unfit for food. The grocer is in duty bound to make good the loss to his customer, and he in his turn expects the wholesaler to make good the loss to him.

It is just here, in the instance under discussion, where the question assumes a serious aspect. The wholesaler, not unnaturally, does not see why the loss should fall upon him, seeing that he is only practically a purchasing agent from canner. The canner, on his part, will not assume any responsibility in the matter, so that the loss to the agent by these allowances becomes of such a serious nature as to convert what would be a profitable line into one of material loss. Our correspondent expresses himself in the following terms: "Lobster pack.—Of late years the consumption of lobsters has fallen off tremendously, and seemingly so as to quality. The price is beyond the pockets of all but few people, but worse than this the goods will not keep. Wholesale houses are compelled to buy these goods in the Spring, to carry them over until next year * * * but every year people lose more money than they make on lobsters on account of the number of allowances which they have to make. Is there no remedy for that sort of thing?"

In the question of food supply it is of the first moment that the possibilities be far removed of a staple being put on the market which will ultimately prove unfit for food from any cause whatever. Yet our informant puts it that packed lobster, generally, is unprofitable from this cause alone.

This is serious enough in itself, and, if true, then, obviously, there is something radically wrong in the situation, and it is high time the matter was brought to the notice of canners in particular and the trade in general. Better stop canning lobsters altogether than to continue to can them with the possibility of serious harm to the consumer and loss to the sellers.

The consumption of canned fish of all kinds has assumed gigantic proportions. It has always been considered that present systems of packing were as near perfection as possible, and that the latest methods rendered the contents practically hermetically sealed, and the generating of poisonous gas an impossibility. It is therefore a surprise that such a question should arise for consideration.

In order to obtain personal experience on this subject The Grocer caused to be purchased three cans of lobster. The first can was purchased from a large provision store, one of many belonging to the same firm, and whose stocks are supposed to be constantly turned over. This can, on opening, was "repulsively bad," and was forthwith returned. Another can was obtained in exchange of the same brand, and from the same parcel. This opened up "eatable," but clearly of an inferior packing. A visit was made to a small, well appointed, one-man store, where the proprietor was in attendance himself. Asked for a can of lobster, he presented two brands. Told that either would do, he passed on one with the remark that he knew it was good. Nothing could have been better than that can of lobster.

From this experience it would appear that the whole cause of the trouble was distinctly attributable to imperfect packing, seeing that one can opened good and one bad, and both from the same parcel. Clearly a case in which the original packers were seriously to blame.

This is a subject which should certainly occupy the serious thought of all concerned—the wholesaler in particular. In these days of a legion of brands, the retailer is to a very large extent thrown back upon the recommendations of the wholesaler or his agent, and it is positively incumbent upon the wholesaler to make himself acquainted with the various qualities of all prepared foods, and be in a position to guarantee whatever he handles. Thus, and thus alone, will he be filling truly and faithfully his real position of "middleman." He cannot consider himself a mere handler of goods.

Time was when it took a seven years' apprenticeship to acquire the necessary knowledge to be a wholesaler, and though times have changed it has only done so in the "kind" of knowledge required. Never was knowledge more necessary than the present moment. Every day this fact is demonstrated in one way and another, and the successful wholesaler of the next generation will have reached the point of a food expert, and rightly so.

It is a circumstance of most serious consequences when, whether from carelessness or incompetency, canned goods are allowed to come upon the market in an imperfect state. It is not likely to do serious bodily harm, seeing it would probably be detected immediately on opening, but to Canada as a commercial power its bad results are far reaching.

Canada's export trade will ultimately become the great backbone of her industries, and quality alone will hold it. Previous experience is potent evidence of the bad effects of even a few indifferent consignments abroad.

The packing trades are making markets in all quarters of the globe, and it is of paramount importance that these industries should be conducted so perfectly that every can produced would come out in perfect condition. It can be done, and it should be done, and wholesalers should see to it that it is done.

All the canners of note are now advertising freely, and it would be a simple matter for buyers to insist that the clear statements set forth in their weekly advertisements be construed as an expressed agreement.

These advertisements, reaching as they do the retailer direct, would relieve the wholesaler of a measure of responsibility in all branded goods, as the retailer could by this means readily be made aware of the respective claims of the canners.

PROFESSOR MAVOR'S REPORT.

A VOLUMINOUS report on the wheat growing capacity of the Canadian Northwest has been prepared for the British Board of Trade by James Mavor, professor of political economy in the University of Toronto. The report is published under the auspices of the British Board of Trade, and it is described as a "Report to the Board of Trade on the Northwest of Canada, with special reference to wheat production for export." As is explained in the Blue Book, Professor Mavor was instructed to conduct an inquiry with the object of throwing "all possible light . . . on the existing conditions and future prospects of wheat growing in the Northwest of Canada for export to the United Kingdom." Clearly it was the desire of the Board of Trade to have some authoritative statement regarding the claims of Canada to be considered the future "Granary of the Empire," and unless immediate action is taken by the Canadian Government to correct the many mistakes and false conclusions contained in the report it will be considered authoritative by the British public, and work this country incalculable harm. For Professor Mavor personally we have the highest respect and admiration, and we can not believe that he would deliberately lend himself to an attempt to deceive and mislead the British public and to malign this country in order to provide campaign literature for the Little England party in the home land. The most charitable explanation is that the learned professor undertook a task for which he had no special qualifications and that he allowed his well-known anti-Chamberlain, anti-Imperial prejudices to warp his judgment.

Any graduate in political science from the University of Toronto in recent years is well aware that in the preparation of term essays by his students the learned professor always insisted that authorities should be quoted for all statements made. If then it is found that Professor Mavor fails to state his own authorities in this important report he is sinning against light. There are various reports and various authorities on the wheat growing capacity of the Northwest to which Professor Mavor might have referred, but he disregards such reports as those of Dr. Saunders, Dominion Director of Experimental Farms, and Hugh McKellar, late Deputy Minister of Agriculture in the Province of Manitoba, and bases all his conclusions upon the estimates of two anonymous gentlemen. Who these gentlemen are, what their qualifications to estimate the wheat growing capacity of the Canadian west, in what respect they are better qualified to judge of these things than Hugh McKellar and Dr. Saunders—on all of these points Professor Mavor's readers are left entirely unenlightened. Surely this is unfair; surely the value of the report is discounted at the start by such methods.

Hugh McKellar estimates the total wheat growing capacity of the Canadian Northwest in any one year at 1,000,000,000 bushels. His position as Deputy Minister of Agriculture in the Manitoba Government afforded him exceptional opportunities for independent investigation, and this is his estimate. Dr. Saunders, Dominion Director of Experimental Farms, estimates the total possible wheat crop at 800,000,000 bushels. Professor Mavor disregards these estimates by men who have exceptional opportunities for investigation, and he quotes two anonymous estimates. The first places the total possible wheat crop at 253,975,000 bushels, and the second at 357,445,000 bushels. Professor Mavor pins his faith to the first of these anonymous estimates.

According to the official report issued by the Manitoba Department of Agriculture in June, there were 2,643,588 acres of wheat above soil in Manitoba at that time. But Professor Mavor says that the total area available is only 2,800,000 acres. That is, there are only 156,412 acres of new land in the Province of Manitoba immediately available for wheat production. Such a statement is simply absurd. If Professor Mavor would disregard for a moment the opinions and estimates of anonymous gentlemen and consult the reports of the Department of Agriculture of the Province of Manitoba he would find that there are in that Province at least 25,000,000 acres out of a total of 41,169,098 acres immediately available for cultivation. About one-sixth of the available 25,000,000 acres is now under cultivation.

If Professor Mavor's report were not published as an official Blue Book it would do this country little harm, but under the circumstances it will be quoted as the final word upon the subject until such time as the actual wheat production of the Canadian west exceeds the anonymous estimates favored by Professor Mavor. Under the circumstances it is the plain duty of the Canadian Government to show the British public how utterly misleading the report is. The Winnipeg Board of Trade are already preparing a protest, but action by the Dominion Government is urgently required.

CANADA IN WORLD POLITICS.

A RECENT issue of the Outlook has an article drawing attention to the growing importance of Canada as a factor in the commercial and political problems which go to make up what is known as world politics. The writer argues that Canada is rapidly moving to a place on this continent in which she will be one of two, if not the largest, factor in its politics. Coming from a United States publication the article is significant as the spread-eagleism of Yankee journalism in the past has not allowed intelligent writers to draw attention to the wonderful resources and possibilities of the Dominion to the north of them.

Until the tide of immigration commenced to flow into the Canadian Northwest from the Middle and Western States practically no attention was paid to the development of this country, and not one "American" in a thousand would credit the statement that Canada's area is greater than that of the United States. The remarkable advances made in Canada's development during the past twenty years have not allowed the average Yankee engrossed in the growth of his own country to realize that there are other pebbles on the American shore. Canada has at last forced recognition, and it is not surprising that those who show the greatest amazement at this country's progress are our nearest neighbors.

The next quarter of a century holds much in store for Canada. What has been done in Manitoba, the Northwest and British Columbia since the construction of our continental railway will probably be repeated northwards in the fertile lands drained by streams flowing into Hudson's Bay and the Arctic Ocean. For a thousand miles north of Edmonton it is good farming country, and the Hudson's Bay Co. is now erecting a mill 300 miles north of Edmonton to grind the wheat grown in this rich district yet untraversed by iron highways. There are few who care to speculate as to Canada's possibilities of development to the north, but it is probable that the speculations of even the most optimistic will be more than realized.

Much could also be said as to Canada's strategical position as providing the nearest route connecting Europe and Asia, or at least the two island kingdoms which dominate these two continents. With Britain and Japan in close alliance, Canada's position is emphasized in importance. The Outlook, however, draws attention to another factor which bids fair to provide another source from which Canada will draw the elements which are required to make a nation great. It says :

"If a balance be struck of the natural assets of the United States and Canada, it is seen that Canada has the advantage in almost every respect. She does not as yet possess the sub-tropical lands, without which no country with a high standard of living can be regarded as economically self-contained. But it is manifestly her destiny to draw the West Indies, with British Honduras and British Guinea, into her political sphere of influence, and when this consolidation of British North America, for which Canadian statesmen-capitalists are preparing the way, is accomplished, she will hold within her far-flung boundaries every element of economic greatness."

THE WORLD'S HARVEST.

THE London Miller gives the following pithy summary of the harvest conditions of the leading countries of the world, which is particularly instructive reading at the present moment :

The crop outlook remains on the whole favorable, and seems to justify the expectation that the world's harvest will be a full average.

The French harvest has been delayed by unsettled weather in the north and northeast, and it is assumed that quality has suffered to some extent. Looked at in the most favorable light it now seems hardly likely that France can be self-supporting for the next cereal year —especially as old reserves are known to have been exhausted. As bearing upon market values, however, this feature cannot count for much at the present, as it is not likely the French will appear as buyers of wheat for import for many months, probably, indeed, not before next Spring.

It is claimed that Russia has, on the whole, grown a full average crop. The surplus from the Danube countries, the output of southeastern Europe, will be maintained at about the standard of last year. Probably this will be so, at any rate in the early stages of the new crop, and more especially as Russia is supposed to have a considerable quantity of old wheat remaining over from her recent years of plenty. The action of this shipper during the ensuing year, needless to say, is of vast importance to the home milling trade, as from this source they have drawn a very large quantity of useful wheats during recent years.

In India the outlook is not encouraging. The monsoon has been irregular, and in many districts there has been a considerable deficiency of moisture. It looks, on the whole, as if the supply from this source will be restricted during the current crop year, and, moreover, as if the price would not be low relatively as it has been during almost all of the last year.

The American position seems to show a distinct improvement on the week. Harvest is now in full swing in the Spring wheat belt, and already new wheat has appeared in Minneapolis. Estimates cabled during the week put the crop in the three great wheat growing States of the Northwest at 200 million bushels, a result which, if borne out, must inevitably bring the American miller once again into our market as a competitor. Already, indeed, flour business has begun on the new crop, Top Spring wheat patents having been placed here this past week at 26s. c.i.f., 27s. landed for September despatch from mill. We may, however, add that a large breadth of wheat still remains to be secured in the northern portion of the belt, so that the present outlook may be somewhat modified before the crop has all been secured, but looked at all round it seems fairly certain that the American miller will again be in evidence.

The crop in Manitoba and the Northwest Territories continues to be well spoken of, and a full surplus of wheat for export is confidently anticipated.

WESTERN ASSOCIATION NEWS AND TOPICS

Address all communications for this department to THE CANADIAN GROCER, 511 Union Bank Building, Winnipeg, Man.

HIGHLY encouraging, to say the least, is the long list of new association members published in last issue of The Canadian Grocer. Secretary Coulson is showing steady, substantial progress in the work of organization, and the association is being built up on sure foundations.

In every town a strong effort is made to bring every merchant in line in order that united effort may be made to attain the objects which the association have in view.

Last week the work of organization in one thriving little Manitoba town was held up by the obstinacy of one large dealer, who refused to join in the movement. It is hoped that the difficulties in this town may soon be smoothed over, but the secretary is well advised in doing his utmost to organize that town thoroughly, as one dealer outside the association can render the others almost helpless in some lines of effort.

The secretary is making every effort to cover as much ground as possible before November 1, and at the same time do the work thoroughly. The reason is that November 1 is the date set for the combined effort to shake off the ineubus of the credit system. It will be impossible for Mr. Coulson to cover more than a small portion of his territory before that date, but there is no reason why merchants should not make application for membership by letter and proceed at once to form their local associations. Now is the time to get out combined circulars announcing that all accounts must be paid November 1, and that from November to April 1 all goods must be paid for when taken from the store. United action in the year of the largest crop on record should meet with success.

A RECORD ORDER.

J. A. Laurie, manager of the Ottawa branch of Robertson Bros., Ltd., Toronto, has been in the city for the past week placing an order for confectionery with the head office. He placed the largest order ever given in the Dominion at one time, namely, four carloads — over fifty tons. It is the intention of the firm to build a large warehouse in Ottawa next year. Mr. Thomas Robertson, the president, leaves for Ottawa in a few days to select a location.

A CORRECTION.

We regret that we inadvertently attributed the reference to the Grand Hotel in our Maritime Number of August 25th to Mr. M. G. DeWolfe, whereas it should have read Mr. J. E. DeWolfe. The corrected paragraph is therefore :

The Grand Hotel came in for many compliments. J. E. DeWolfe said it only lacked an elevator and elevators. Another delegate claimed it was the best hotel in the Provinces.

BRANCHING OUT.

The Canada Business College, of Chatham, Ont., Mr. McLaughlin principal, will shortly begin the erection of a handsome building in the residential district of Chatham, where they will be able to accommodate twice their present number of students. The new institution (which, it is claimed, will be the only one of its kind in Canada) will be situated in attractive and extensive grounds, which will afford recreation and sport of various kinds for the pupils. The new building is expected to be completed by next Summer.

RECORD PRICE FOR COD.

A late report to hand from Halifax draws attention to a record price reached in sale of Labrador codfish, a full cargo fetching the unusual figure of $5.60 per quintal.

CELLULOID STARCH

Live dealers realize that substitution doesn't pay. People enjoy being the judges of what is best for them and it is wise policy to give them what they want.

The extra profit made from trial sales of unknown brands is very insignificant, compared with the continuous profit from repeated sales, sure to be the lot of any meritorious article aggressively advertised to the consumer.

Celluloid Starch does what is claimed for it and the present heavy demand is the result.

Its success is a "continuous performance."

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

Ontario Markets.

GROCERIES.

Toronto, Sept. 7, 1905.

GENERAL business conditions are good, although not considered equal to our previous week's report. Dealers for the most part laid in stocks in prospect for the rush expected during Exhibition. Attention on their part, therefore, has been more directed to effecting sales than to making purchases. If trade on the provision markets is a true index to the situation, there must have been extraordinary good times for the retailer recently. Canned fruits remain unchanged, with demand well maintained. Sugar denotes no change, with markets uncertain and demand active. Syrups are uninteresting. Coffee is interesting as showing increased favor. Tea is not drawing the attention which it should; the home trade is only from hand to mouth, whilst foreign markets are strong buyers. Foreign dried fruits are sitting tight awaiting early arrivals of new fruits. Rice and tapioca has been moving fairly well at well maintained prices. Fresh fish is very active at firm prices. Country produce has been slow, but a steady demand is apparent. Grain markets are only showing moderate activity, and prices are weakening generally. Hides are in a most unsatisfactory state, owing not so much to market conditions as to the manipulations of certain dealers. Prices are soaring right away beyond any possible probability of being maintained.

Canned Goods—Demand for canned goods continues to be well maintained. Reports are that old stocks are being well depleted, and that new arrivals will generally have a clean market. Prices remain unchanged. We quote :

Sugar—The recent fall in sugar has by no means given a firmer character to the market; the condition is still one of uncertainty. Demand has been well maintained on the home market, and is expected to continue. Recent quotations for beet sugars f.o.b. Hamburg were on a basis of 8s. 6d, but quickly recovered to 8s. 10½d, equal to a parity of 3.85 duty paid N.Y. for 96 per cent. centrifugal. The latter is held firm at 4c. spot stock. Prospects are for largely increased production in both beet and cane sugars.

Latest estimates indicate the world's available stocks at eleven million five hundred thousand tons. A very large decrease in consumption is expected. Now that sugar is back to the normal level, and with invisible stock believed to be almost nil, local prices are expected to continue unchanged. We quote:

Tea—Trade on the street is not marked by great activity; buyers are not showing great interest on present basis. Common teas, both Indian and Ceylon, have had a slight spurt owing to prices being more within the reach of the Canadian market, and not proving very attractive to the London market. Values have had a downward tendency. Foreign markets continue active with keen competition for all teas showing quality in the cup. London prices for Indian teas have exceeded expectations. In Ceylons prices have not been so well maintained, in fact a slight tendency toward decline was manifest at most recent sales. Chinas and Javas both excited little attention; prices, however, have kept firm. We quote:

Foreign Dried Fruits—The market has been active in buying for future delivery of new crop fruits, with previous quotations steadily maintained. Old fruits are well nigh depleted in most lines. Early shipments of raisins and currants are now on way, and are expected to arrive shortly. Prices are corrected up to present markets. Nuts are uninteresting, and small trade is attracted. Grain, Flour and Cereals.

The market generally is slow and uncertain. Great hesitancy is manifest amongst buyers, and sales are only of a limited nature, pending arrivals of new crops. Wheat has weakened off all through, and No. 3 Manitoba is now off market. Flour has dropped 20c. on previous prices, but appears somewhat firm at that reduction. Breakfast foods and cereals remain unchanged, with fairly active demand. We quote:

Hides, Tallow, Skins and Wool—An eccentric market still rules in these lines. Supply is still slow, with demand maintained in face of abnormally high prices. Quebec Markets.

GROCERIES.

Montreal, Sept. 7, 1905.

A GLANCE over this week's trade leaves little room for any such qualification as improving. In fact, where business has not been inferior, it has been only steady. Sugar is simply holding a somewhat fair position, with, however, hopes for near improvement.

Canned goods also are in a steady mood. Good business has been done, and these lines are qualified by dealers as satisfactory for the present.

Molasses are in a fair demand and syrups are quiet. Teas, however, are continuing to improve in demand and prices will probably be higher in a short while. Coffees and spices are active with a strong market well maintained. Foreign dried fruits continue active, but unchanged. Fish is in finest condition, owing to a large, steady demand, and business seems to be increasing steadily. As to country products there is nothing new to say. Beans are still selling at easier prices, holders wanting to get rid of their stocks quickly. Flour is quiet as buyers object to buy at present offers, although they witness a weekly decline. Feed is scarce and in such good demand that stocks may be exhausted if better shipments do not arrive shortly. Hay is also scarce owing to light receipts; some stocks of it are nearly exhausted.

Sugar—The sugar market has seen little change. Refineries say that activity has turned to refined and that much business will be done, as country stocks are bare. Other lines seem to be only steady with a good demand. Some jobbers are on the watch for a sudden dimp in prices, although no such thing has happened as yet. Prices remain unchanged. We quote:

Canned Goods—Activity seems to be the prevailing mood in canned goods, although it is known that the largest part of the business that is to be done has been booked already for present and future shipments. Jobbers claim to have very little old stock on hand, most of it has been disposed of satisfactorily. Prices for the coming pack of corn and tomatoes are eagerly awaited by the middle or end of September. At present there is no change whatever to report.

Syrups and Molasses—The market is unchanged. Enquiries for molasses are good, but only steady, and jobbers do not see any room for improvement. Syrups are rather quiet. This trade is at present featureless. Prices unchanged and firm. We quote:

Tea—The tea market shows much strength, and demand continues to grow larger. Japans of course are scarce and unobtainable at low prices. There has been a general advance in them, the finest selling as high as 36c. Much uneasiness is also felt about China teas which, as well as Japans, are short. Ceylon tea, however, is unchanged and many jobbers put all their hopes in it, although many of them fear a general rise sooner or later. Prices are as follows:

Coffee—The strong tone is well maintained in coffees. There is a good demand for all grades at present. Although dealers had given warning of an advance for the near future, such a prediction has not materialized as yet, although business is steady and stocks as light as last week. We quote:

Spices—The market is active in peppers, cassias and gingers. Late advice reports a shortage in the crops of all lines and, therefore, prices are liable to advance. There are no changes to report in other lines. Prices remain firm and unchanged. We quote:

Foreign Dried Fruits—Jobbers report that currants and raisins are finding a good market, while figs are quiet. There is not much change in fact from last week. As to currants, fresh stock will be here by the end of the month. Raisins, it is thought, have little room for a decline this year, as the demand is very large for Valencias, thus rendering the probability of an advance much greater. New Malagas are quoted at figures somewhat lower than last year. Prices unchanged. We quote:

Fish—There is a continued good demand for fresh fish of all kinds. As to lake fish, dore is still scarce, while on the contrary, lake trout is coming in more freely, quality being very fine. Consumption is steadily increasing as more people are every day coming back from the country. Smoked and salt fish, although in better shape have not improved remarkably as yet. We quote:

Beans—Beans continue in a very good condition. In fact, orders are constantly coming from lumber for shipments in December and January. Some jobbers feared that on account of this activity prices would rise, but it appears that as holders are wanting money a jump in price is improbable at present. It is stated by some that no beans are sold higher than $1.60, while others deny this. However, the margin of prices seems to be as below:

Evaporated Apples—Previous conditions prevail in this article. High prices are firmly maintained in spite of a very poor demand. Prices range from 7c. to 7 1-2c., although hardly any goods are to be found lower than the latter figure. Dried apples, dull, are quoted at 4c., with very little hope of an easier price.

Flour—The market is decidedly quiet in flour; in fact the demand is so small that millers have been forced to reduce their prices. This quietness is due to the fact that buyers only take the necessary quantity they require and this on account of figures being so high. It was expressed his morning by one of the local millers he did not think these first reductions would have much effect and that shortly prices would drop still lower. This, however, is only speculation. We quote:

LAST MINUTE PROVISION MARKET.

BUTTER—Market quiet and weak; choice, 22c.; fine, 21½c.

CHEESE—Dull, no demand; Ontario, 11½c to 11⅝c.; Eastern Townships, 11⅝c.; Quebec, 11½c.

EGGS—Market firm and active; good demand; select, 23c.; straight gathered, 2cc.

PROVISIONS—Only steady at rebate; live hogs, 7c. to 7¼c.; dressed, 9¾c.; hams, 13½c. to 14¼c.; bacon 14c.; exports, quiet; further decline expected within ten days.

Feed—There is a large and steady demand for bran and dealers report that supplies are not equal to requirements. Owing to this prices are firmly maintained. It is thought that by the end of the month prices will be easier. Mouillie, though not in bad demand, is not as active as it should be. The shortage in hay supply is responsible for this, notwithstanding the fact that oats are weak and low and that another drop is expected. We quote:

Manitoba bran, in bags, per ton	17 00 18 00
" shorts	20 00 21 00
Ontario bran, in bulk	17 00
" shorts	20 00 21 00

Rolled Oats—No important change to report in rolled oats. The market is generally quiet. Prices are firmly maintained, however. We quote:

" bbls	5 10
" 90-lb. bags	2 40 2 45

Hay—Hay is higher, owing to light receipts. In fact, arrivals have been inferior in size to the two preceding weeks and local stocks are believed to be very short; not large enough to meet requirements. In consequence exports are also very small. We quote:

No. 1 timothy	8 50
" 2 " choice	7 50
" 2 " ordinary	7 00

N. B. Markets.

St. John, N.B., Sept. 6, 1905.

THE Maritime number of The Grocer was considered a great success here, not only for the full account of the meeting of the Maritime Board of Trade at Yarmouth, but because of its other special articles in regard to Maritime trade. Never has a number of The Grocer carried so many St. John ads. There is no doubt local ads. and local articles create local interest. There is considerable talk here in regard to the drug combine. Our three wholesale men are interested. There seems to be a feeling that the combine will become a fact.

In business there is nothing of great importance. With the heavy staples rather weak, (except pork) there cannot be much snap in trade. Except with the banks, wholesale grocers, insurance men and lawyers, the half holiday is a thing of the past for this year. These keep it all the year.

Oil—In burning oil the consumptive demand continues to increase with the advance of the season. Higher prices are expected, This will mean increased profit for the outside dealers, as they have very largely bought. The city retailer does not as a rule buy ahead. Lubricatings are somewhat quiet. The paint oil situation is unchanged. Business is generally quiet. Some cod oil is now being received. Price this season is quite low. Output will not be large.

Salt—A further cargo of Liverpool coarse salt is expected by the next Manchester boat, about the middle of the month. This will be the last regular boat till the Winter port business begins. Prices are held quite firm. The demand has been good. This is the active season. The quantity used is about the same each season. In fine salt sale is not large. Canadian chiefly in demand.

Canned Goods—The stock of tomatoes is particularly light. Large quantities have been bought. Corn is also cleaned up. Peas are plentiful and the price was never so low. In fruits prices quoted quite firm except blueberries, which were very dull last year, and gallon apples. Fair sales of the latter have, however, been made. Salmon, since new Spring fish arived, has been rather lower, except a few pinks this is about the only grade sold in this market. In domestic fish new sardines and haddies freely offered. The latter are a light pack. Scallops will be very short.

Green Fruit—Apples are quite freely

Sellers of Soap

A Limited Liability Company with capital of $200,000 in shares of $50.00 has been formed to take over the business of Soap Manufacturing which has been carried on for many years by the firm of A. Savage & Son. The business, however, remains under the same management, the change being due principally to the desire of the sole partner in the old firm to interest some of his employees in the business.

Besides this was the idea that the change offered an opportunity to give to the trade a profit on all the Albert Soaps they handled.

While the wholesale price of Baby's Own Soap has never been changed since it was first offered to the trade, the retail price has been constantly reduced. Seeking to profit by its well-known excellence, and to draw trade for other lines, aggressive retailers have vied with one another in bringing down its selling price until now the public can buy it practically as cheap as the wholesaler.

The inevitable result is that many retailers object to sell it and only the keen appreciation of users has enabled its sale to constantly increase. To-day, twice the quantity is sold in Canada that was sold five years ago.

A limited number of Albert Soap shares is being placed on the market. By becoming shareholders in the Company retailers will share in the manufacturer's profit as well as their own. To give to all a good chance of securing an allotment this stock will be reserved exclusively for the Retail Soap Trade until Sept. 30th; any stock left over then will be offered to the public.

The face value of the shares is $50.00 and dividends will accrue from the start. Similar concerns are earning very large dividends in England and the United States, and shares bought a few years ago at par are worth very much more now. It is hoped that the Soap trade in Canada will avail themselves of our offer and complete prospectus will be mailed on request.

And a share of Blue Ribbon trade is yours if you hold to the Red Label line—the unbeatable at 40c.

received. Some good New Brunswick stock now received, and already some few from Nova Scotia. Good prices asked for best stock. Bananas hold very very firm for best quality. In oranges, supply very light and prices high. Lemons are at extreme figures. California fruit about done, though some nice pears and peaches are still seen. Eastern pears are freely offered. Stock tends small. Melons done; tomatoes keep high; Ontario plums bring full figures. Eastern crop is said to be light.

Dried Fruit—Currants continue of interest. Both local and import prices are higher. New York market is cleaned up on old goods. In new cleaned goods, import prices show a wide range. In raisins dealers will import Valencias quite freely. Price low. Quantity of Malaga layers to be imported will be light as demand is limited. Malaga loose and seeded quoted quite high. California not quoted, but will rule high. Apricots are higher, but are lower than peaches. Prunes are higher. Dried apples are higher. Evaporated very firm. Canadian onions now quoted. It is said stock will be small in size and crop light.

Sugar—Market unchanged since the decline of last week, but weak. There is a fair sale. Stocks are small.

Molasses—There is quite a large stock of Porto Rico here. Some of last year's goods were also carried over. Holders are, however, quite firm in their prices. Except in fancy, Barbadoes is rather a light stock.

Fish—Shad are a total failure this Fall. There is a fair supply of fresh cod and haddock. In dry cod, prices high and outlook firm. The extreme price causes some sale for pollock, which though higher than usual, are well below cod. It is yet early for finnan haddies. Pickled herring are perhaps not as firm, but are high and little change looked for. While smoked herring are low, price is somewhat higher.

Flour, Feed and Meal—In flour the situation is unsatisfactory. In Manitobas, price is off and a further decline expected. Oats are low and not as firm. Oatmeal is also rather lower. There is quite a stock of old meal held here. Cornmeal shows little change. Beans are rather lower. While it is largely speculation as yet, some low figures are named on futures.

Provisions—In barrel pork there is complaint that the well known term "clear pork" covers such a wide range of quality as to have no meaning as a standard of value. Mess pork is scarce. Prices are high. Beef is also held at quite full figures. Pure lard is scarce and high. Some American was imported, but that is now too high. Standard compound is quiet, low and held firmly. In fresh meats business continues dull. Beef, owing to free receipts of domestic keeps quite low. Veal has little enquiry. Mutton very dul and low. Lamb sells freely and is high. Large quantities have been shipped to the States. Pork has rather more inquiry.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

LAKE, river and ocean freight continues active but the grain shipments from Montreal are reported less than they ought to be for the season. From Fort William to Montreal by all water routes the rate is 6½ cents per bushel from September 15 to October 15 and 7 cents from October 15 to November 25.

Grain rates from New York are away below the rates from Montreal and so long as this is the case there need be little hope for increasing the shipping from Montreal. From schedules served on the Board of Trade every day it is obvious that the rates in New York are as much as 6d below the Montreal ocean rate to the Old Land. This applies to grain only.

The chartering of vessels from Fort William always includes the clause "privilege of unloading at Buffalo." From Montreal to Liverpool the rates on grain are 1s 6d for September and 1s 9d to 2s for October. It is understood that as high as 2s has been paid.

To London, Glasgow and Bristol about the same rates have been paid and will likely hold for some time.

A notable shipment of hay was recorded last week from New York and Boston. It was all Canadian hay and the freight rates were 10s to 11s 3d and 12s 6d for September shipment. Most of this hay is to go to Liverpool, showing as previously prophesied in these columns that the demand for Canadian hay is very large this season.

The manifests of the different steamers sailing from the ports of Montreal and Portland still show that immense quantities of groceries and provisions are being shipped to the Old Land. On the Tunisian there were, for instance, 4,457 boxes cheese local and 297 boxes through, also 430 packages of bacon, 275 cases canned meats, 1,034 packages meats, 1,490 packages lard, 2 barrels beef. There were also 5,666 boxes of fruits, 1,272 barrels of apples and a large quantity of lumber.

Many of the other steamers, such as the Ottawa, Lake Champlain for Liverpool, Devona for London, Hibernian for London, the Monteagle for Bristol and the Ionian and Lakonia for Glasgow, took heavy cargoes of provisions and grain, also general merchandise.

Notwithstanding the cries of "nothing doing" made by the chronic kickers, plenty of Canadian products are leaving Canadian shores for Old World consumption.

British North America imported from the United States during June 8,007 bushels of wheat, valued at $6,854, as compared with 6,758 bushels, valued at $5,085, for the preceding June. The imports for the year ending June aggregated 90,978 bushels, valued at $76,254, as compared with 1,194,753 bushels, at $1,002,372, for the year ending with the preceding June.

New crop Spring wheat (1905) began to arrive in Minneapolis on August 8, when a car from Kastota, Minn., was received. It graded No. 1 Northern, 58½ pounds, with no dockage, and if an index of the new grain, augurs a prosperous year for the millers. It sold at $1.06. Trading in the new crop to arrive began at Minneapolis on the same day with a sale of 5,000 bushels No. 1 Northern at 8c. above the September option.

These rates are for general information only, and are subject to change at any time without notice; it is therefore important that all contracts must be reported by wire and confirmation obtained before closing with shippers, and unless specifically stated to be prompt shipment, or shipped within ten days after date of contract from the west.

The above rates are exchanged on basis of $4.80 to £1 Stg., excepting that when freight is prepaid, the ocean proportion of the through rate must be collected on basis of $4.86 to the pound sterling.

If freight is offered other than specified above, on which steamship connections are accustomed to quote a weight or measurement rate at their option, prompt replies will be facilitated by giving, when applying for rate, the relative weight and measurement of the merchandise.

It is understood that when reporting Sack Flour engagements, a carload is considered 28,000 lbs.

It is also important that shipper's name be given for every engagement made.

* Rates quoted in cents are per 100 lbs. † Per 2240 lbs, No Primage via Montreal.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Special Report from the Winnipeg Office of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, Sept. 7th, 1905.

GENERAL wholesale grocery trade continues very active. The large crop now being harvested contributes in two ways to cause this activity. In the first place it inspires confidence in the business outlook for the coming year and this confidence is reflected in liberal buying. In the second place the busy harvest season and the arrival of thousands of harvesters are responsible for an increased consumption of many lines of groceries, notably canned meats and fruits, which are experiencing a healthy demand.

Throughout almost the entire list of our quotations there is a strong tendency towards higher prices and the history of the grocery market during the coming months seems likely to be a record of advances. Particularly is this the case in the dried fruit market, a market in which western Canada is much interested because of the large consumption. Apricots opened very low but the actual crop was not quite so large as expected and there has been a marked recovery in prices. The high prices and scarcity of other dried fruits has caused a greater demand for apricots with a consequent stiffening of prices.

Sugar—Since the decline noted in last issue there have been no further changes. The demand is lessening but the movement of sugar is still heavy. We quote :

Canned Goods—New canned tomatoes are on the market in small quantities but all wholesale houses have not yet received first supplies and the price is not settled yet. The general price seems to be about $2.75 per case but it is likely that when larger supplies arrive the price will be lower. New canned apples are being offered now on the local market and quotations will be found below. We quote :

Foreign Dried Fruits—New Valencia raisins promised for delivery late in November or early in December are likely to be cheaper than last year. Prices at which these goods are offered now for December delivery are quoted below. First shipments by direct steamer arriving earlier will cost a little more. Freshly seeded California raisins (old stock, of course) are on the local markets now and offered at prices quoted below. Prunes are climbing steadily and further advances will be noted in our quotations this week. Apricots have been advanced one-half cent more and are now selling at 11 and 12 cents per lb. The advance is due in great measure to the scarcity and high prices of other dried fruits which has had the effect of increasing greatly the demand for apricots. We quote :

INDEPENDENT—SURE THING!

IT is easy to buy canned PEAS now at cost; also very easy to criticise them, but it takes a lot of study and hard work to produce a satisfactory canned pea. We hope that every Packer is producing the best pea possible. This will do more to increase the consumption than the cost prices. We are doing our best to make the "AUTUMN LEAF BRAND" just right. We have a few thousand cases more of the medium grade peas to offer at prices that will forever eliminate the Hawker in that line.

"AUTUMN LEAF BRAND CORN."—When it comes to nice fancy sweet sugar corn it is a 100 to one that we lead. Reasons why:—Our Manager learned the corn canning business with the world-renowned corn packer, J. W. Jones, of Portland, Me., commencing August, 1869, and followed the business from that time. He has a thorough technical knowledge as well as the practical experience of all these years, with and at the head of some of the oldest and largest Packers in the U.S., as well as with the most important Packer in Canada. If you want more proof, and the best line of canned corn, ask for the "Autumn Leaf Brand."

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

Montreal, Sept. 6, '05.

THE cheese market, as far as new business over the cable is concerned, is most disappointingly dull and quiet, yet it is difficult to get prices down at country points and our prices remain steady in sympathy. It becomes more and more a question of which side will have to give way in the end.

Taking published figures of receipts and shipments this year, as compared with last year, into consideration, we come to the conclusion that stocks in Montreal are fully 125,000 boxes less than a year ago and the different markets in the United Kingdom all report lighter stocks than at this time last year. As there was an actual shortage of supplies at the end of last season, it is difficult to see that prices should decline. Against all this is the high range of prices now ruling and the consequent lack of confidence on the part of operators to stock up for future demands.

The output of cheese has been reduced in many sections, especially in the Province of Quebec, first by the increased production of butter, second by lack of rain. Some sections had plenty of rain, but others were very dry, so that wells have dried up and all the extra feeding of cattle on account of the high prices obtainable for dairy produce was insufficient to increase the flow of milk to any extent. It is almost too late now to expect much improvement in this respect, and the Fall or Autumn make of cheese is not likely to be large.

On the whole this has been a most unsatisfactory season for those engaged in the cheese business on either side of the Atlantic and the future is not by any means clear. While the statistical condition is undoubtedly strong, present prices are already so high that there is not much room for further advance, to pay for carrying charges into the winter months, when we have to consider the Australian and New Zealand shipments to the British markets, not only of cheese, but also of meats.

Our recent markets reflect a certain spirit of caution. This is as it should be, considering that prices are abnormally high and that danger is ahead, lest goods stored now might not advance in value sufficiently to pay for the risk of holding. While there seems to be no chance of a decline in prices, most dealers hesitate missing a sale for fear that they might not gain by holding their goods.

The butter market is also very steady, although the present demand from the United Kingdom cannot be called brisk. British markets want butter, but they want "shilling butter," and good quality for this. Canadian prices are too high for retailers to sell our butter at a shilling per pound and the moment that this price is exceeded, the demand falls off. Danish butter is put on the British markets fresh and commands the highest price. The British importer seems to speculate on Canadian butter and puts it into "second class," because he does not dispose of it in its fresh state. If our butter were sold fresh in close competition with the Danish product there is no reason why we should not increase our business in this line, but stale butter is not palatable and if our butter is generally being overheld for speculative purposes it certainly injures our reputation for quality. We can safely say that we produce as good quality of butter here as can be produced anywhere, and it does not seem right that we should get a bad name for our product because speculators choose to hold it when they put other countries' product on the market fresh.

LONDON, ENGLAND, LETTER.

(By Our Own Correspondent.)

SINCE my report some six days ago, the London market has asumed a decidedly more animated tone. This is not due to any advance in price on the Canadian side, but rather to the fact that buyers here are inclined to give 108s. for salt, and 110s. for saltless Canadian. This is for Eastern Townships, and Western run them very close as regards the selling price. It will at once be seen how stiffish these prices are when it is mentioned that about this time last year quotations ruled from 92s. to 96s. for Canadian butter.

Total imports of butter into the United Kingdom for the two first weeks of August, 1905, are as follows:

Australia	4,425	cwts.
Canada	41,493	"
Denmark	59,607	"
France	16,650	"
Russian	28,025	"
Belgium	2,089	"
Germany	1,014	"
Sweden	6,937	"
U. S. A.	8,191	"

This is an increase of 15,535 cwts. over the corresponding period last year. New Zealand is conspicuous by its absence.

A. E. Sowerbutts & Co., London, who are now diligently cultivating Canadian trade, have drawn our attention to the grading of Canadian butter. So have many other British importers of Canadian butter, and it really is a matter of the very first importance. Reference was made to this is the London produce letter of The Grocer of June 30th, at which time it was sugested that the example of New Zealand makers should be followed. It was pointed out that every pound of butter which enters British ports wears the New Zealand Government's mark, declaring it to be a fixed grade, and this is a guarantee against irregularity of quality. Two or three months ahead importers can contract for quantities of a certain grade, and know what they are going to get.

This system, which has proved so successful in New Zealand, would, if adopted by Canadians, bring into greater prominence the best brands of Canadian butter, while at the same time causing those who are not turning out butter so well to improve the quality.

The fact that a classification of butter (mentioned in The Grocer of June 2) has already been issued by the Canadian Department of Agriculture, is not being lost sight of, but the necessary qualifications required to merit classification in one of the three grades is of small interest to importers on this side, being evidently intended more as a guide to makers for the remedying of defects than as an absolute guarantee of quality.

To illustrate what is meant, it might be pointed out that, in the matter of packing, the classification says that boxes should contain only 56 lbs. To this very day boxes of butter are arriving in London which are not of regular weight. Those British importers of butter who have looked over the new classifications, issued by the Department of Agriculture three months back, feel confident that the measures taken by the department will have beneficial results in course of time, but, they ask, why not make your weapon a double-edged one, and, while recommending factors to grade and pack in a certain way, serve the interests of buyers abroad as well as of the makers by placing the Government stamp, testifying that quality and packing are what they should be, upon all boxes which satisfy the demands of the Government inspector. Such an arrangement would go further to secure the sale of Canadian butter on the British markets than, perhaps, Canadians themselves think, and it would be a decided incentive to many importers to handle Canadian stuff who up to the present have left it, at any rate to a great extent, alone. Even those who handle large quantities at the present time would have a powerful selling argument to help them clinch matters with their customers, if they could but point to the Government stamp as a guarantee of reliability.

This is the view taken by many good men along Tooley street, and in this case Tooley street is but the echo of opinion as held in many of the main British distributing centres.

Again, attention must be drawn to Canadian dairies. Those shipments which lately arived by the Savona are reported as varying very much in quality. Some boxes are worth many more shillings than others, and, to quote the actual words of one of those who has handled them, "We do not see why improvement should not be made with due care. We simply make this remark for the benefit of producers and dealers in butter."

New Zealand has taken quite the lead in the Australasian colonies by the careful supervision of the Government who insist upon passing as best only those butters which they consider to be worthy of grading as No. 1.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

TORONTO.

The home provision market still continues active, more volume has been done, probably on account of the extra trade consequent upon the National Exhibition.

Export trade has not shown any fresh feature, and is not expected to do so until an easier basis is reached.

Lard has stiffened somewhat and is firm at fresh quotations.

Hogs have been coming in freely and prices are easing off somewhat. Sales have been effected at $8.50.

Butter—There are no prospects of change for the immediate future in the butter market. Present indications are that little activity will accrue on present basis.

The export trade is practically nil. Home consumption is more alive on account of the Exhibition influx, but no real life is manifest. Arrivals continue small, and firm prices rule in consequence. We quote:

Cheese—Conditions remain practically unchanged since our last issue. Home trade is fairly good, but no bulk trade is in evidence, export demand being particularly dead. Enquiries are slow, and indications point to a much lower basis if any movement is to be expected. Qual-

The provision market is in the declining mood on account of a general drop in demand. Live hogs are easier at 7c. to 7 1-4c.; dressed hogs in small demand, are quoted at 9 3-4c.; hams, about the same as last week are sold between 13 1-2c. to 14 1-2c. Bacon, not very active, brings 14c. Lard remains unchanged, although there is little doing. Hogs are not in demand just at present by packers and exports are small, thus rendering stocks more plentiful. We quote:

Butter—There is active exportation in butter just at present and the English market is said to be strong. There is however, very litlle demand for butter locally and in spite of this quiet condition high prices are firmly maintained and dealers express the opinion that the whole Winter will elapse before any change of importance takes place. We quote:

Cheese—The cheese market is very slow and demand quiet for all grades. Arrivals of cheese are large enough, but nearly wholly destined for exportation. Considering the quiet condition of the market stocks are equal to demand. Ontarios are offered at 11 3-4c.; Townships at 11 1-2c., and Quebecs 11 3-8c. Otherwise the trade is featureless.

Eggs—Eggs as well as cheese and butter are finding their best market in exportation. However, the local demand is reported very good and stocks in some instances not equal to demand. Selects are hardly obtainable below 23c., and straights from 19c. to 19 1-2c. Others are as low as 19c. These prices are at present firm and dealers are reticent in their prophecies.

GREEK-BRITISH CONCESSIONS.

An official statement was issued from the board of trade giving particulars of a new commercial arrangement with Greece. His Majesty's Government have agreed to withdraw their protest against the Greek Currant Retention Law, and Land Tax, and Export Duty on Currants Law, in return for certain tariff concessions. Goods produced or manufactured in any portion of the British Empire will now enjoy unconditional and favored nation treatment in Greece, so long as such portion of the British Empire accords to goods of Grecian origin treatment as favorable as it gives to the goods of any other foreign country. The treaty of 1886, the agreement of 1890, and the present declaration will continue in force for five years, and thereafter from year to year, failing twelve months' notice of determination. Among the Greek tariff concessions is a reduction in the rate of duty on cod and stock fish. Formerly the rate was 6s. 5d per cwt., but under the new arrangement the duty will be 1s. 7½d. This reduction, it is pointed out, is a concession to Newfoundland in return for the free admission of Greek currants and sultanas into that colony.

QUAKER SUGAR AND CREAM CORN

This is a line we are now packing which we intend to make our main specialty. Packed from the finest Maine Seed, with the ears all selected, with the cans well filled with corn and not watery juice. We believe there is a future for an article of this class of goods if properly placed on the market and the attention of the consumers called to its superior merits. There is no line of goods packed in cans that varies so much as corn in quality, consequently there should be an opening on the market for a really high-class article, something in which the goods were not only at the tip-top but that every can could be depended on to be of a high and uniform quality. This is what we claim for Sugar and Cream and the reputation of the Quaker is behind these assertions. While the contents inside of a can are of more importance than the outside, it may not come amiss to say that these goods are sent out in very handsome embossed wrappers, far superior to anything we have yet seen from our competitors.

FRUIT MARKS ACT ENFORCED.

RECENT reports from Montreal bring news of the activity of the fruit inspectors at that port. For some time many persons have been shipping apples branded falsely and at variance with the regulations. Orders have in consequence been issued to strictly enforce the law, to prevent Canadian fruit depreciating in value on the European market.

Four out of eight cars recently consigned to Europe have come under the vigilance of the officials, who claim that the apples are not fully grown and are uncolored. The shipments failing to pass the inspectors are mostly from the Colborne district of Ontario. This activity must call forth the commendation of every business man. Commercial integrity is of the first and last importance in all circumstances and especially so in our export industries.

APPLE SEASON 1905.

The following report has come to hand from Boyd, Barrow & Co., apple receivers, Glasgow, Scotland :

"Every year is showing the importance of the Glasgow market as a distributing centre for Canadian apples ; during the past season the imports totalled 411,756 barrels.

"Glasgow is now the recognized market for the whole of Scotland, Ireland, and North and Eastern counties of England, and with the great facilities Glasgow enjoys in the excellent services of two steamship companies who run steamers specially adapted for this traffic, and the preference shown by consumers for Canadian fruit, it is quite evident that shippers will find it advantageous to avail themselves of this market.

"There is every indication of good results being realized here this season on account of the great shortage of the home crop, which from 192 reliable reports we have obtained show 163 to be under the average, while 29 only are an average crop. We therefore have every confidence in recommending large and regular shipments of all fruit of good color and quality—red fruit being greatly esteemed."

The Canadian agent for Boyd, Barrow & Co. is Eben James, Toronto.

Green Fruits.

Toronto, Sept. 8, 1905.

CONDITIONS of the fruit market continue favorable, trade is steadily increasing in volume, and a general healthy tone is manifest.

Californian fruits have had an extraordinary hold on the market for some time, and prices have been well maintained, but signs are in evidence of a break in this respect, and recent sales have resulted in general falling all round, whilst the incoming of domestic lines is relieving the situation. Plums, peaches, and pears, which are coming in from home points, are received in good condition and quality, and are fetching a good ratio of prices, these it is expected will supersede the foreign goods. Californian oranges are now nearly over. Jamaicas are, however, coming along, samples showing some good fruits. Tokay grapes are extra fine this season and are good values. Bananas have dropped materially, as have also peaches, plums and

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Green Fruits.

According to leading dealers the fruit trade is good and steady. But a general complaint is, that high prices of some fruits renders an improvement in deman impossible at the present time.

Bananas are high and just at present firm, though dealers prophecy decline owing to larger receipts. Some twenty-one cars arrived in Montreal last week against nine cars for the week previous.

At Monday:s auction, were sold about four cars of California fruits as follows: Pears, $2.75 to $3.25; peaches, $1.40 to $1.75; the latter were only in small quantity and are very scarce on the local market; plums, $2.50 to $2.95, and a half car of California Malaga grapes in crates sold $2.00. These enjoy fair demand, though high in price; peaches, it is expected, will be lower shortly.

There are some Bartlett pears in barrels, selling from $4.00 to $9.00 according to quality. Summer apples are found to be very hard to dispose of by dealers who say the market is over supplied.

Dealers' prediction on lemons is being realized; they have gone up $1 and are scarcer. Sweet potatoes in fair demand and at higher prices. Some Jamaica oranges have arrived and are offered at

The market has seen no change since last week and dealers have little new to say. The same domestic products arrive regularly and on market days Bonsecours market is flooded with them. In conseqpence they are selling very low. Retailers and others generally make an ample supply, thus preventing wholesale jobbers from getting rid of stocks quickly. Some red onions, newly arrived, sell at about $2.00 per barrel. Other lines are unchanged. Tomatoes, however, are very plentiful and are selling from fifteen to twenty cents per box. We quote:

FINANCE

CANADIAN banking methods will show proof of their excellence during the next three months. In the United States, where the branch bank system does not exist, the annual consternation is on as to how the western banks are going to get enough money to move the crops. The banks throughout the west, on account of the small population of the towns, are small, and as the call throughout the year is for loans and the deposits are small, they have not sufficient capital to handle the business which is put upon them during the harvesting season. Various attempts are made by means of Government deposits to tide them over the next few months, but the farmers and merchants of the west suffer greatly from the difficulty in getting money.

This condition does not obtain in Canada at all. By means of branch banks the big banking institutions are enabled both to plant banks where they could not live independently and to supply these with unlimited money to meet any extraordinary conditions. Here, as in the United States, the greatest wealth is in the east. Thus here the branches in the east receive much more deposits than they have calls for good loans. On the other side, the branches in the west have calls for loans almost exclusively. Accordingly the east feeds the west, and good profit is made from both branches where a single bank in either place would have difficulty in living.

A novel feature in banking is being exploited by the Monarch Bank. This bank has been incorporated, though it has not got in actual working order yet. The unique feature in it is the proposal to keep open at night. This would mean a very radical change, and is of very doubtful advantage. It is true it would be an advantage to travelers and might be a convenience to storekeepers who remain open at night. On Saturday nights particularly many grocers do as much business as they do all the rest of the week almost. But there is a great amount of work to be done in a bank after business is finished. All books have to be balanced each day, and this can only be done when business is closed. However, if a bank remained open day and night merchants who now have little difficulty in completing their business by three in the afternoon would soon begin stretching it out till four, five or six. This is where the great weakness of the scheme comes in, and the real advantage to a few would not equalize the general reversal of present methods.

WALL PAPER

WHERE to place the house furnishing department is a matter of no small difficulty to the drygoodsman. There are two main points to be considered. First, it must be conspicuous enough to make the people know it exists, and secondly, it must be in a place where some seclusion is permitted, as a quiet inspection of the stock is essential. The arrangement which is most frequently carried out is that of keeping the department in an upper floor storey and showing a few samples downstairs.

This handsome Dutch interior illustrates Burlap Weave No. 1710 for Dado Stencil 1689 for Frieze, and Landscape Border 4700 for Sub-Frieze. Manufactured by Stauntons Limited.

This has the great advantage of economy in space. A carpet department has to be so situated that a roll of carpet can be spread out on the floor and the effect seen when it is actually in service. Similarly, wall paper has to have considerable space for its proper display. It would be out of the question to take this much room on the ground floor. Every foot is too valuable for that. Moreover, the ground floor would be unsuitable also for the reason that it is busier and people are walking backward and forward all the time. Wall paper and carpets are not like an ordinary piece of dry goods. They have to be looked at from a broader standpoint. Enough of them must be shown to make it plain how they will look in the room to be furnished.

This suggests another point which is worthy of consideration. The house furnishing department should be made as homelike and luxuriant as possible. It will not do to have the stock of carpets and wall papers rolled up and set up on end. The department must be made to look like a real room. If rugs are kept, have one laid on the floor. Otherwise have a strip or two unrolled. Then have the walls hung with suitable stock. This will take the bareness off and besides will show your goods.

N. S. Markets.

Halifax, N.S., Sept. 5.

THE retail grocery merchants of Halifax intend putting forth strong efforts to suppress Sunday selling, and also to put a stop to the hawking of certain goods about the streets. Grocers say their trade is being seriously injured by these hawkers, who, having no regular place of business and consequently no rent or taxes to pay, go from door to door disposing of their goods at low prices. In most cases the goods are of an inferior quality, but because the people get them at a little lower price than supplied by the trade they invariably purchase, though not in reality getting as good value for their money as they would from the regular storekeeper.

During the week the Retail Grocers' Association of Halifax and Dartmouth held a meeting at the board of trade rooms to consider the matter of Sunday trading, and to take steps to have the proper authorities enforce the law in this respect. The association was unanimous on this point. It was also decided to call the attention of the city board of health to the hawking of meats, fruit, etc., on the streets, as these goods being exposed to sun, rain and dust are of necessity materially injured.

The association is in a flourishing condition, and great benefits will be derived by the grocery trade of the city and Dartmouth through its efforts. Alderman W. H. Camsey, of Halifax, is the chairman of the association.

The grocery market is satisfactory, and collections have shown a marked improvement. Another drop has taken place in the sugar market, contrary to the general expectancy that the price would advance. The prices quoted here are: Granulated, XXX, $5; granulated, Austrian, $4.90; bright yellow, $4.80; No. 1 yellow, $4.50; unbranded yellow, $4.35. It is now expected that these prices will stand for some time, as the refineries are said to have large stocks on hand.

Beef and Pork.

The market is firm and prices steady. American beef, carload lots, in bond, is quoted from $9.75 to $10.25. Pork has advanced. The quotations are higher than they have been for a long time. Chicago mess pork, in bond, is quoted at $15.75. Lard is also scarce and the price high. One carload lot here sold at 10¾c. on tierce basis, pails being a half cent higher. Several packers have not been in the market for some weeks owing to the scarcity of hogs, said to be due to the fact that the farmers are too busy to bring them to market. When the wheat is in, about the end of this month, lower prices are looked for.

Dairy Produce.

The prices of butter are very firm, and the receipts during the week showed a considerable falling off. Good butter is quoted at 22 to 24c., dairy at 20 to 21c. Some dealers here have received quotations from Quebec factories. These prices quoted are considered very high, 23¼c. being asked for 30 pound tubs.

Eggs are firm at prices quoted last week. Receipts of eggs are decreasing; cheese is firmer. The last quotation on the Charlottetown, P.E.I., board was 11 7-16c. Cheese is quoted here at 11½ to 12½c, and very firm at these prices.

Fruit.

Good fruit of all kinds is very scarce. Choice California Bartlett pears have reached a record price on this market. One retail dealer told your correspondent that he paid 69c. per dozen (by the box) for pears, and that he was selling them for 70c. He did not even expect to get his own money out of the transaction. The Nova Scotia apples coming to the market are also very high. Sweet Bough are quoted at $5, Orange Pippin at $4.50, and Gravenstein from $5 to $5.50.

Fish.

Heavy shipments of lobsters continue to go forward from this port. The Furness Line steamer Gulf of Ancud, which sailed during the week for Havre and London, took, besides other cargo, 11,000 cases of canned lobsters.

MATURING COFFEE.

A Swedish inventor has patented a process for improving the flavor of raw coffee. Coffee is usually stored for several years before roasting, the standing causing slight chemical changes which improve the flavor. This maturing process may be shortened to a few hours by exposing the raw coffee to the action of a powerful magnetic field. The magnetic field is advantageously obtained by two adjustable electro-magnets. It is claimed that the maturing process requires from one-half to two hours, according to the strength of the current in the magnets and the character of the coffee.

RICE REPORT.

THE unusual and unprecedentedly low range of values for all styles and grades of edible rice, prevailing during the Fall and Winter of 1904-5, had a demoralizing effect upon the entire rice industry in the United States. Prices remaining below the cost of production not only resulted disastrously to a large number of planters, but were calculated to delay the preparation of the soil for the coming crop of 1905-6.

Where, as a general rule, the latter part of February found the preparation of the soil for rice in the gulf section well under way, and the month of March plowing well advanced, this season every branch of the industry was backward, and all held back in hopes that values and conditions might improve.

The extremely low prices for American rice induced a greater movement in the way of distribution than was ever known and as early as April it was evident that not only the surplus stock carried over from last season would be consumed, but that the crop of 1904-5 was scarcely sufficient to meet the average requirements of the trade up to the coming of the new crop.

As soon as these conditions became generally known a sharp advance in the prices of all grades of rice became general, and the improvement in values naturally added great strength to the situation, and the preparation of the soil for the new crop was entered into with better spirit.

April, however, was accompanied with excessive rains, extending well into the month of May, which prevented plowing, and, while human ingenuity was disposed to battle with the adverse conditions, and many planters resorted to the "muding in" process, all operations were greatly retarded, and where last season on May 20 over 86 per cent of the crop was planted and sufficiently far advanced to enable this department to pass upon "the stand," this year (1905-6) at the same date not exceeding 30 per cent. of the intended rice area was planted, and not exceeding 50 per cent. of the plowing was done.

The acreage for the season of 1905-6, by necessity of late field operations, and for other reasons before referred to, is largely reduced, and even much more so than was originally expected. An excessively dry spell in early June made the land in the gulf coast section so hard as to make further plowing impossible, and this, succeeded by excessive rains and floods, carried the planters over the planting period, though this season, throughout the gulf section, it was extended to the first week in July.

In North Carolina, and the section of the State where the cultivation of upland rice is confined, the rice industry has continued to diminish for several years, until now the cultivation of upland rice is confined to "small patches" on the farms that are unsuited for the cultivation of any other crop. The decrease in acreage in this section of the State over last season is large.

In South Carolina there is a marked reduction in acreage. In the Charleston section the reduction in acreage will also be large. In Georgia the reduced acreage is not less than 21 per cent.

While the acreage of the two Carolinas and Georgia last season was estimated at 44,100 acres, this season (1905-6) it is estimated to be about 24,100 acres, or a reduction of about 55 per cent.

In Louisiana and the alluvial district along the Mississippi River and its tributaries, we are advised of a marked reduction in acreage. In the prairie district south of Western Louisiana there has been such a complex situation, arising from so many changes in the management of canals, new tenants, etc., that it is difficult to accurately estimate the acreage. Many of the managers of the canals intending to plant a certain area, realizing their inability to combat with the elements of flood and rain, have contented themselves with what has already been accomplished in the way of planting, and are now "checking up" what has been actually planted and is to be "watered."

In Texas we find a reduction in acreage, especially in the sections where the cost of production is high. Much new land is, however, taking the place of abandoned acreage, after considering the whole rice-producing area of the State we are led to feel the reduction in acreage will scarcely exceed 16 per cent.

Considering the States of Florida, Alabama and Mississippi, a reduction of acreage of about 25 per cent. is most likely.

The total area devoted to the cultivation of rice in the United States last season was estimated to have been 662,006 acres; this season (1905-6) the acreage will not exceed 490,000 acres, which indicates a total net reduction in acreage for the United States of 26 per cent.

SUCCESSFUL WINTER WHEAT.

A carload of Turkey red winter wheat passed the customs recently going north over the Canadian Northern to the Swan River district, where it will be distributed by Reeve Campbell, of Minitonas municipality. This is the second car to be sent out this season for use as seed in that district. With a report of fifty bushels per acre having been threshed in that district this fall, of wheat sixty-four pounds to the bushel, it is little wonder that farmers are taking a practical interest in winter wheat.

The Dominion government a short time ago, to make the securing of the best quality of seed somewhat easier, removed the duty upon wheat brought over to be used as seed.

The greatest revolution in the milling industry of the world was that caused by the invention and introduction of roller mills. Curiously enough, Switzerland, that small republic in the romantic Alps, which has extensive cattle and dairying interests, but is insignificant as a grain-growing country, was where the roller mill originated.

TOBACCO CROPS.

HARVESTING the new tobacco crops has been entered upon in real earnest on the American farms. The stormy and wet weather which threatened at one time to seriously damage the growing plants abated just at the nick of time, and followed as it was by excellent warm sunshine, soon transformed the situation into one anticipating full results.

The Pennsylvania crops are in excellent condition, the weather has been all that could be desired, the leaf is showing well, and promises tobacco surpassing the usual average.

In New England harvesting has already been started. Reports are to the effect that the crop is looking well, being more than usually free from insect and worm damage. The quality is reported excellent, and the leaf particularly smooth. The weight will not be up to 1904 crop, but will at the same time turn out much in advance of earlier reports. The late-set tobacco is expected to be superior in weight owing to the recent rain which will be an advantage to the late-set.

In the Wisconsin country competition for the standing tobacco is very keen, particularly so in the more northern points. Contracts are being signed for crops as they stand, and in the Vernon county reports are that all the tobacco has been contracted for.

IRELAND TO THE FRONT.

Promising results have followed an experiment in the cultivation and cure of tobacco undertaken by Colonel Everard, of Randlestown, County Meath, on behalf of the Irish Department of Agriculture. The experiment was extended to 20 acres, and a report recently issued puts the total yield at 8,800 pounds or 440 pounds per statute acre. The tobacco, we are told, has been inspected by several leading tobacco manufacturers, and samples have been submitted to experts both in this country and America. In every case a very favorable opinion has been expressed as regards its size, texture, color and burning qualities. The opinion of experts in America, to whom it has been submitted, is that it is first-class.

SUMATRA IN CENTRAL FLORIDA.

W. E. Embry, of Dade City, Pasco County, Florida, under date of August 21, addressed the following interesting letter to the Courier-Journal.

"Thinking it might interest some of your readers to know what a Kentucky man is doing in South Central Florida along the line of Sumatra tobacco growing, I write to say that I have grown and marketed my third crop of twenty acres, grown under shade made of slats, woven on wires stretched above a frame work nine feet high, slats forty-eight inches long and thickness of orange box sides, one inch wide, so they exclude the tobacco fly. Posts are 14 x 18 feet apart. We poison the bud worms with Paris green mixed with meal. We finished gathering our crop on July 25, and have cured by air. Have tied up in bundles of forty leaves and packed it unassorted in high case in dry goods boxes and expressed it to Quincy, to the largest dealer and a large grower at that point. He writes that 'he has never seen a finer crop.' We have it contracted for five years at 40 cents per pound around. The walling and slating lasts five to ten years. Estimated cost of growing the crop and marketing including shed, 25 cents per pound."

CIGARETTE EVASION.

The stringent laws put into force in the U. S. to secure the abolition of the cigarette have had the effect of calling into being many ingenious devices to evade the strong arm of the law, but the latest scheme evolved is a novel and artful invention, and possesses too, a good commercial appearance.

When any responsible person desires to secure cigarettes he goes to his dealer, who fills out a blank, guaranteeing the credit of the patron, which is forwarded to the factory. An account is then opened up with the patron at the factory; the patron gets his cigarettes by mail, and the retailer guaranteeing the credit of the patron gets a percentage for his trouble and has no stock to carry.

SIX MONTHS CUBAN EXPORTS.

The exports of leaf tobacco from Cuba from January 1st to June 30th, amounted to 140,326 bales or 14,377,429 pounds, an increase over the same period in 1904, of 22,379 bales or 2,398,535 pounds.

Cigars to the number of 110,959,285 were exported during this period, as against 101,922,646 in 1904, an increase of 9,036,639.

Cigarettes during the first six months of 1905 were exported to the number of 5,606,571 packages, as against 8,788,356 for the same period in 1904. This decline was caused by the high duty placed on cigarettes by Colombia, which was a large importer of Cuban cigarettes.

tax tea and coffee to secure additional revenue to meet the growing deficit of the treasury, is not only acceptable but is encouraged by large importers of cheap coffee, such as Arbuckle Bros., and others who hold millions of pounds of coffee, who, if there is a tax of 3 cents per pound upon coffee, would be benefited to the amount of millions of dollars. The imposition of such a tax would relieve the present fear of the tobacco trade of additional taxes being placed on tobacco.

A GOOD EXAMPLE.

A new and interesting experiment is to be tried by the United Cigar Stores Co. in New York City. In an excellent locality on the upper west side the company is to erect a large apartment hotel for the accommodation of its bachelor employes. The house will be modern in every respect, and, in addition to the ordinary features of the apartment hotel, will have bowling alleys, a gymnasium and a library. The restaurant will be run on the "club" plan, and occupants of the house will be able to get superior meals for a good deal less than restaurant prices.

The company is urged to take the step on account of the difficulty it has experienced in securing and retaining the services of reliable and capable retail salesmen. The apartment house plan is the first step towards making the service of the company attractive to young men.

HEALTH IN USING TOBACCO.

A writer in the London Lancet offsets a whole lot of stuff emanating from "aunties" in one brief paragraph thus:

"In the course of my association with tobacco, about twenty-five years, I have known men all this time, every working day, to be inhaling tobacco dust or fumes produced in the process of manufacture. Uninterrupted good health is the general rule of all persons engaged in tobacco proceedings of every kind, and generally of large consumers."

CO-OPERATION.

The mechanics of Amherst have formed a co-operative sociesy with a capital of $10,000, the largest portion of which has been subscribed. It is their intention to at once open up a grocery business. The provisional directors of the company are: James A. Arnold, president; George C. Sinclair, chairman; S. B. Strong, secretary; John Ball, James Duxbury, A. W. Allaby, W. A. Lowerison, Harold Dunlap. The manager will be William J. Moran, who conducted a grocery business for himself.

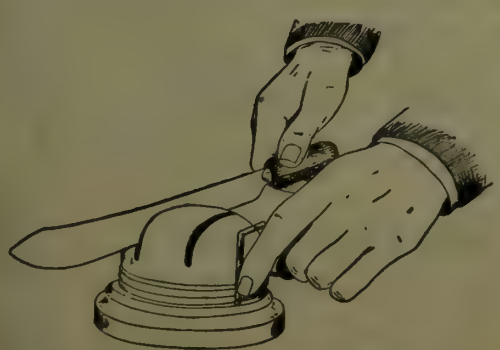
ROSE AUTOMATIC GRINDERS



No. 3 (Household), Retail Price, 65c.

DIRECTIONS

1. Stand the Grinder on a table, holding it upright with one hand, as shown in cut, and do not change its position while using. 2. Run the knife blade through one of the slots, its edge resting between the metal disc and emery wheel, as shown in cut. 3. Use some pressure and run the blade its full length forward and backward quickly a few times, which grinds one side. 4. Place the knife blade in the other slot and repeat the operation, as at first, which grinds the other side of the blade.

A Two Cent Mistake

Don't amount to much in any business, but the striking point is that a clerk is just as liable to make a mistake of $2.00 as he is of two cents, and a few mistakes like this would pay for enough of Allison's Coupon Books to last a year or more. With these books mistakes are impossible.

IF A MAN WANTS CREDIT

for $10, give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book, charge him with $10, and there you are. No trouble at all. If he buys a plug of tobacco for ten cents, just tear off a ten-cent coupon—that's all. And so on for all his purchases up to limit of the book. NO PASS BOOK. NO WRITING. NO TIME LOST. NO KICKING. There are other Coupon Books, of course, but why not have the best? In this paper cost 2 cents per word first insertion, 1 cent per word subsequent insertions. Contractions count as one word, but five figures (such as $1,000) may pass as one word. Cash remittance to cover cost must in all cases accompany orders, otherwise we cannot insert the advertisement. When replies come in our care 5 cents additional must be included for forwarding same. Many large business deals have been brought about through advertisements of 20 or 30 words. INDEPENDENT—SURE THING!

IT is easy to buy canned PEAS now at cost; also very easy to criticise them, but it takes a lot of study and hard work to produce a satisfactory canned pea. We hope that every Packer is producing the best pea possible. This will do more to increase the consumption than the cost prices. We are doing our best to make the "AUTUMN LEAF BRAND" just right. We have a few thousand cases more of the medium grade peas to offer at prices that will forever eliminate the Hawker in that line.

"AUTUMN LEAF BRAND CORN."—When it comes to nice fancy sweet sugar corn it is a 100 to one that we lead. Reasons why:—Our Manager learned the corn canning business with the world-renowned corn packer, J. W. Jones, of Portland, Me., commencing August, 1869, and followed the business from that time. He has a thorough technical knowledge as well as the practical experience of all these years, with and at the head of some of the oldest and largest Packers in the U.S., as well as with the most important Packer in Canada. If you want more proof, and the best line of canned corn, ask for the "Autumn Leaf Brand."

Fairbank's Scouring Soap
Fairbank's Sanitary Soap

We are willing and anxious to acknowledge the service they can render us by rewarding them in direct proportion to the interest they display in pushing these goods. Our method of rewarding is "The Fairbank Plan," which is a system of couponing our specialties in such a manner that the coupons can be easily removed when the goods are sold, and giving for these coupons useful articles, the best that money can buy. Our whole aim is to give the clerks the best value we can secure.

The products embraced in "The Fairbank Plan" are easily sold because they are the best value and give the greatest satisfaction to the consumer. They increase the trade of the store and "The Fairbank Plan" rewards the dealer or his clerks for selling them.

By W. L. E.

WHILE it is, perhaps, impossible to completely diagnose public opinion on political questions, there is nothing to prevent one doing his best in that direction. One could not, during a two months' stay there, examine the public conditions in every nook and corner of Great Britain, but if he employed his time assiduously he could learn a great deal.

I tried to learn a great deal in regard to the fiscal situation in Great Britain, conversed as opportunity afforded with all sorts and conditions of men, and my conclusions, therefore, whether right or wrong, have not been reached without perseverance.

With a great many people in Great Britain free trade is still almost a religious belief. Some people say they are short-sighted; other people use stronger language. But even those of us who, after careful study, are of the opinion that Great Britain might, with profit to herself, amend her fiscal policy, should not be too dogmatic in our conclusions. Since the advent of free trade Great Britain has undoubtedly prospered, and that greatly. This you will be told on every hand when you begin to suggest. Even those whose faith in the present policy is becoming shaken will tell you this.

It does not follow that because a certain bridge has for years carried one over in safety it will always do so. One thing is certain, it must be repaired occasionally if it is to do so. But because it has heretofore carried one over in safety, one has naturally a reverence for it, and naturally hesitates to make a change for that which may be of doubtful expediency. This, to my mind, about illustrates the fiscal situation in the Mother Country.

One thing, however, is certain: the public mind is undergoing a change in regard to the fiscal policy. It is in a transitionary state. Whether it will produce radical effects remains to be seen. But it is significant that there is any change at all. A few years ago it would have been an unpardonable sin politically to publicly advocate the doctrine of protection. To-day he is no longer a great sinner. He is at the worst a misguided man, while the number who positively think him right are a great deal more numerous. One cannot say positively what will happen, and the remembrance of the circumstances under which the legislation giving existence to free trade was enacted leaves one still in the dark.

Opinion in Great Britain in regard to the tariff question is diversified. There is one class who are avowed protectionists. They are in a minority, I should say a small minority. But they are growing in numbers, although at present one cannot say rapidly. In fact I should think scarcely as rapidly as during the year following Mr. Chamberlain's retirement from the Government. The trade returns have been persistently antagonistic to Mr. Chamberlain's propaganda, while the bye-elections have been discouraging to him, and the Balfour Administration has shown the white feather. Like the Laodicians, the Government is neither hot nor cold in Mr. Chamberlain's interest, although he was zealous enough on behalf of his party's welfare when he retired from the Colonial Office to preach the new crusade of protection and Imperialism.

Another class, and by no means a small one, is composed of those who are in a skeptical frame of mind. Their faith in free trade, with competing nations high protectionists, has received a serious wrench. As one manufacturer said to me, "We feel that something should be done in the way of tariff reform, but just what should be done is another question." Said another manufacturer to me, "The question is an important one. I do not think we should be in a hurry to make a change. We do not want to jump from the frying pan into the fire. Before a change is made there should be a thorough investigation by the Government. It is better to take our time than to act too quickly."

But the great mass of the people—the merchants and the working classes—are apparently yet unmoved by the fiscal policy. It is rarely that one ever hears them mention it. It does not appear to be a sufficiently live question for consideration. The only question that concerns them is the educational question. In regard to that they are by no means passive. It overshadows all others. They are "Agin the Government," and are calmly waiting for the next general election to express their opinion through the ballot. As an issue, therefore, the fiscal question has no chance of being fairly tested. Judging from public opinion, the Government will be routed, and their speeches indicate that they expect it. One cannot but regret that public opinion will not have an opportunity of showing at the next general election where it really stands in regard to the fiscal question. It would be interesting to know.

Three Montrealers — Messrs. Gravel, Horsfall and Robertson.

One of the undoubted drawbacks to the advancement of Mr. Chamberlain's protectionist platform is the tax on food plank. No matter how one may argue to the effect that a small duty on wheat would not materially effect the price of the loaf the idea is pooh-poohed. It is decidedly unpopular, and Mr. Chamberlain has a great deal more educational work to do in regard to the food plank of his platform than any other. And without a tax on food there can scarcely be a preferential trade arrangement with Canada and the other food producing colonies.

While Mr. Chamberlain's policy is not very much alive at present, it is by no means dead. Those who are its propagandists are too energetic to allow it to die. But at present it seems a long way from realization. And in no particular as much so as in its preferential trade proposals.

Fresh and Cured Fish

THE STURGEON ROE INDUSTRY.

"CAVIAR" is a fish product. It is made from the roe of the sturgeon. The best "caviar" is made in Russia, hence the use of "Russian" by sellers of caviar to get the price. Russian caviar does not always come from Russia. In fact, the bulk of "Russian" caviar is made in America. The best evidence of this is the growing scarcity of sturgeon along the Delaware River, where most of the American output of the delicacy is prepared.

Less than twenty years ago the old Delaware fishers used to "bag" twenty to thirty sturgeon a day. Many catches exceeded fifty fish. Very few are caught these days. A little over fifteen years ago sturgeon roe was worth $8 per keg of 135 pounds, or less than 6c. per pound. Now this roe is worth 80c. per pound, or $108 per keg of 135 pounds weight, a difference of $100 per keg in about a decade and a half. The sturgeon is a big fish. Many of those caught weigh over 400 pounds each. These monsters have as much as 100 pounds of roe each.

While caviar making is an art in Russia, and that country makes the best caviar in the world, very little of the best Russian product ever leaves that country, though other countries want it, pay the price and think they get the real article. Sometimes—very often, in the earlier days of the trade—the Yankee article took a trip across the ocean to get a foreign label, and then returned to its native land. This circuit enhanced the price, though the quality was never altered thereby. In later years this "Russian" caviar goes direct into the market untravelled.

Until a few years ago all of the American sturgeon roe was shipped to Germany for preparation on the continent. A German manufacturer who came here for his roe for a quarter of a century admits that the trade is dead, so far as the American importation of caviar is concerned, and that the local market is too high for the profitable export of caviar stock to the other side.

This salted fish delicatessen was popular as far back as the reign of Queen Elizabeth. It was even then imported from Russia. History tells us that Czar Ivan, who was a suitor for the hand of young Queen Bess, courted her favor with gifts of the succulent caviar. Shakespeare makes Hamlet say: "Caviar to the general." Thus literature and Bohemianism became flavored with caviar at an early period.

The roe sturgeon is caught in the same way in New Jersey, Alaska and Russia. The fish is taken in great nets. Caviar, on Delaware Bay, is the headquarters of the New Jersey roe sturgeon fishermen. The old open season for sturgeon fishing was from April 20 to June 20. Now it is all the year around; because, while New Jersey had a close season of ten months, the State of Delaware, just across the other bank, had a twelve month open season. The last session of the New Jersey Legislature evened up matters by repealing its close season law. In spite of laws, the principal catching season is in the Spring.

The "marines" work two men in a boat. These men get from $35 to $50 per month each and their food. Most of the men are in business for themselves. The nets are 30 meshes deep and 400 to 800 yards long. As each fish hits the net it is rushed ashore and the roe taken out while the fish is yet alive. Roe taken in this way is more valuable than that from the dead sturgeon. Shad roe is not so taken, because it is simply eaten as taken. The methods of roe sturgeon fishermen are the same all over the world, up to the taking out of the egg mass. The roe is then worked through a sieve to separate the small eggs from the muscles and tissue. They are then put into a salt solution. After this they are placed on fine sieves to dry. The product is then ready for shipment or treatment. The best caviar is not the large, coarse-grained kind. Quality is readily determined by the degree of cleanness and transparency. The darker the roe the poorer its grade and the product made from it.

Astrakan is the headquarters of the Russian caviar trade, the best fish for which are taken in the Volga and the Caspian Sea. Pressed caviar is usually for export. It goes forth in large casks and those of a sensitive turn of mind may not like the method of machinery used. After being drained, the caviar is placed in the casks and tramped down by barefooted Russian peasant girls. The best Russian cavier is called "parnaje." Very little of this leaves Russia, and none of it is tramped into space by the foot press. "Parnaje" is the product of the Caspian Sea belluga sturgeon. This species is not found in any other waters. Only 400,000 pounds of belluga caviar is made annually. Russia makes annually about 1,500,000 pounds of secondary caviar. Germany and Western Europe take about 500,000 pounds of this output.

Different nations eat caviar differently. Germans and Russians generally eat it as it comes from the packages; some continental folk serve it as a toast, covered with jelly. Americans have a habit of squeezing lemon on it. A connoisseur gives the following as the best dietetic method of serving the delicacy: "Take two tablespoonsful of the finest olive oil, one tablespoonful of fine vinegar, some chopped cabbage, parsley and garlic. Mix the above. Then, just before serving on a dish, put in half a pound of caviar." It is all a matter of taste.

B. C. FISHING LICENSES.

MR. E. G. TAYLOR, Dominion Inspector of Fisheries, has intimated that he is prepared to recognize fishing licenses issued in the Fraser River district as long as such licenses are used for cohoe fishing. This news is interesting as well as important to canners and fishermen, in view of the near approach of the cohoe season, which commences on Sept. 15. Some six weeks ago the Dominion Government, without any warning, gave notice that licenses issued in one fishing district would not be recognized in another. This meant that fishermen who desired to follow the fish along the coast would have to take out no less than three licenses at $10 each.

Now a concession has been secured in that. Fraser River licenses will be recognized for cohoe fishing as far north as Toba Inlet, which is not in the Fraser River district. The waters of Toba Inlet have always been among the best on the coast for cohoe fishing. and it would have worked a hardship on canners and fishermen alike if the Fraser River licenses had not been recognized as far north as that point.

At present there is little salmon-fishing going on, the only men engaged in the work are those who have contracts to supply the Fraser River cold storage plants with spring salmon, which salmon are frozen for eastern shipment.

B. C. LOBSTER PLANTING

Mr. E. Kemp, one of the experts of the Fishery Department, has just returned from British Columbia. He reports successfully planting at different points in B.C. waters, a quantity of lobsters. In previous years the attempt to plant lobsters has only been partially successful owing to the long and tedious journey from the Atlantic necessary for their transportation. This season, however, elaborate measures were taken to accomplish this successfully with most satisfactory results. It is intended to keep a strictly close seaon for two or three years.

WEST COAST OYSTERS.

Mr. E. G. Taylor, Inspector of Fisheries, in his report says the oyster beds on the West Coast are in excellent condition. No signs of the alleged torredo pest could be found during the whole of his inspection. The oysters thrive best where the brackishness of the water would not be favorable to the torredo, which only thrives in very salt water. Capt. Kemp, the oyster expert, has concluded his duties on the Pacific Coas' and has returned to the east.

SALMON IN PORCELAIN JARS.

The highest price brought for any salmon canned on Puget Sound is for the porcelain jars which are sold only to the English market. There are only three canneries on the Sound that handle salmon in this shape. These canneries have special contracts and sell to a large London brokerage firm. The method of packing in porcelain jars is practically new. It was started two years ago. The jars were invented and introduced by S. M. Okell, of Victoria.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

THE chief cry in freight circles is that Canadian shipping firms are charging excessive rates and the Georgian Bay combine rates are quite the talk of the shipping world. Combine rates which existed away last May are being dug up and the combine at present is acting in a way said to be against Canadian ports. For instance, in May last it is stated that when the combine rate was 5¾ cents from Fort William to Montreal some of the members of the combine carried grain at 3¾ cents and some even lower. What is being done now is to shut out practically all grain from Canadian ports because the combine rate is fixed for October 15 at 2½ cents while the American rate is reported to be from Fort William to Buffa'o, a longer distance than from Fort William to Georgian Bay at 2 cents. Half a cent a bushel is too much of a margin to be refused and the point is that Canadian steamer owners deserve as good a rate as they can get, but it seems altogether incompatible with a living business to keep this up. The American ports are flooded with the new Manitoba grain and it is continuing in that direction for shipment during the latter half of October and the first half of November.

This action is considered very serious for the port of Montreal, and shipping men—that is, exporters—are not any too well pleased with the situation in that city.

The rates from Fort William to Montreal for the next month are fixed at 6½ cents, insurance included, and for the following month up to November 25 the rate will be 7 cents, insurance included.

From Fort William to Kingston and Prescott 4⅞ cents will be charged from September 15 to October 16 and from that date to the closing of navigation the rate will be 5⅜ cents.

It is noticeable that the Railway Commission has reconsidered the order issued in July regarding the rates on grain and grain products from Ontario points for export. The new order authorizes some new station groupings and new percentages of the Chicago and New York rate which are somewhat more favorable to the railways than the order originally promulgated.

An order has also been issued dealing with the request of the American Cereal Company of Peterboro, that grain shipped from the upper lake ports and milled at Peterboro and re-shipped, the double shipment to count as one. The request was refused, but the company will benefit by the reduced rates from Ontario points authorized in July and modified as noted.

The Quebec-London Transport Company has been finally organized. It is expected that the charter of incorporation will be issued in a few days, after which the company will carry on a steamship service between the British Islands and Canada, Quebec being the Canadian port and London for the Old Country. The first sailing has been arranged for September 30th when the new steamer "Sif" will leave Quebec for London with a full general cargo. The new line have offices in Montreal in the Board of Trade building. The name of Mr. Thos. Harling of Montreal is mentioned as the new manager.

These rates are for general information only, and are subject to change at any time without notice; it is therefore important that all contracts must be reported by wire and confirmation obtained before closing with shippers, and un'ess specifically stated to be prompt shipment, or shipped within ten days after date of contract from the west.

The above rates are exchanged on basis of $4.80 to £1 Stg., excepting that when freight is prepaid, the ocean proportion of the through rate must be collected on basis of $4.86 to the pound sterling.

If freight is offered other than specified above, on which steamship connections are accustomed to quote a weight or measurement rate at their option, prompt replies will be facilitated by giving, when applying for rate, the relative weight and measurement of the merchandise.

It is understood that when reporting Sack Flour engagements, a carload is considered 28,000 lbs.

It is also important that shipper's name be given for every engagement made.

* Rates quoted in cents are per 100 lbs. † Per 2,240 lbs, No Primage via Montreal.

A DOUBLE PROFIT

Royal Baking Powder Pays a Greater Profit to the Grocer Than any Other Baking Powder He Sells.

Profit means real money in the bank. It does not mean "percentage," which may represent very little actual money. A grocer often has the chance to sell either:

1. A baking powder for 45c. a pound and make a profit of 5c. or 6c., or,
2. A baking powder for 10c. a pound and make "20 per cent profit," which means only 2c. actual money. Which choice should you take?

Royal Baking Powder makes the customer satisfied and pleased, not only with the baking powder, but also with the flour, butter, eggs, etc., which the grocer sells.

This satisfaction of the customer is the foundation of the best and surest profit in business—it is permanent. Do not take the risk of selling a cheap alum baking powder; some day the customer may find out about the alum, and then your best profit in the customer's confidence is gone.

Royal Baking Powder pays greater profits to the grocer than any other baking powder he sells.

FAREWELL TO THE EXHIBITION.

THE Canadian National Exhibition of Toronto closed its doors on Saturday, the 9th inst., after a period of unprecedented and unexpected prosperity.

Nearly seven hundred thousand visitors turned the stiles during its opening, exceeding by at least one hundred thousand any previous Exhibition.

Many were the happenings of interest which crowded themselves into the eventful two weeks: The visit of Prince Louis of Battenburg, with his stalwart Bluejackets; the exhibit of the Windsor plate; the excellently fine art display; the remarkably executed Coronation picture, are only units among the numerous attractions, yet they stand prominently out as showing that the "Canadian National" is rapidly developing into an attraction at once widely interesting, intellectually instructive, and of refined art.

The last week was one particularly marked by the influx of a great number of our particular friends, the country grocers. Many were the callers our editor had to interview, stretching from visitors from Vancouver and Winnipeg in the west, Montreal and Ottawa in the east, and a worthy American grocer from New York City. So great was the influx that many wholesale grocers kept their travelers in Toronto for that week, for the grocer, like the worthy John Gilpin of our childhood fame, "tho' on pleasure bent," has an eye for business, and was nothing loth to utilize his visit by "stocking up" his store.

The exhibitors, too, as far as the grocery section is concerned, gave expression to every satisfaction with the Exhibition trade. Never before have such satisfactory results been secured.

We were particularly pleased to note that the indiscriminate distribution of samples was conspicuous by its absence this time. Such distribution may have had its uses at one time, but at the present epoch of trade, when there are many articles on the market, all of the same character, an indiscriminate giving of samples is very much like placing a premium on dishonesty, by encouraging the public to use any artifice to obtain as many "somethings for nothings" as possible.

Whispers reached our ears from time to time, which sounded very much like the lispings of complaint from some exhibitors in the Manufacturers' Building. Why is it that that building presents such a mixed medley of variety? Could not the Manufacturers' Hall be devoted exclusively to finished goods, displayed for show and instruction only, and could not the "sale booths"—pretty artistic displays as they are, with their dainty maiden attendants—be relegated to a building such as the Women's Building? This, we are convinced, would be a great satisfaction to all concerned, as well as making a more uniform display. The appearance of the grocers in such numbers is gratifying in the highest degree, and appears clearly to point to the need for a "special day" at one time during another such exhibition for grocers and allied trades. It would be an event worthy of a great enterprise, such as the grocery trade is, and an opportunity of cementing the friendship already existing. The grocer leads the "van" in every pioneer district, and there is no reason why he should not hold it long after, and remain the leading store of each district.

THE ABUSE OF CREDIT.

THE credit system as an institution is probably one of the few things which must ever remain with us. In its use it is one of the greatest conveniences of commerce. Abused, it becomes at once a positive curse, and the toughest problem of business.

Constantly our attention is being directed to troubles arising from the abuse of the credit extended by enterprising storekeepers in their anxiety to secure an increase of trade. The storekeeper is often at his "wits' end" to scrape together sufficient cash to satisfy his wholesale men, whilst at the same time a glance at his accounts reveals a satisfactory balance. The reason is his inability to effectuate collections.

It is almost impossible for the country store to arrange prices to compensate for the extent of credit expected. Prices are, to a large extent, public knowledge. Almost all commodities of daily consumption are quoted periodically in the daily papers, and the people who want credit are keen enough to keep their eyes on these quotations, besides which the issuing of catalogues, etc., from large departmental stores, is a fruitful means of keeping the country districts posted with the latest lowest prices, based on the principle of "cash with order." It is a most remarkable fact that among these very people who expect low prices are found many large and prosperous farmers. The result to the storekeep r is most disastrous. He has to supply his goods in competition with these cash terms, and is expected to allow the payment to await the convenience of the farmer, which often means until his crops are harvested. Even to this many a storekeeper would not raise objection, for he can easily negotiate the note of a well-to-do farmer. Our information, however, tells us that the farmer's attitude to his store account is one of great injustice. With his other accounts, such as implements, etc., he has to show a measure of regard. The large firms who run such businesses are not as easy as our amiable and friendly storekeeper; they secure themselves pretty soundly by holding a safe lien until the last final payment. In addition, too, they cover their debt by a note, carefully stating a substantial interest for any future extensions in part or whole, generally never less than 7 per cent. The farmer, therefore, is much more likely to let his "store" account slide in favor of the ever-increasing implement "note," really using the storekeeper's money to pay his implement account. Now this, on the face of it, is a gross injustice, and one that cannot be taken up too strongly.

Our retail friends in Manitoba and the Northwest are about starting a campaign to put down credit entirely, owing to the injustice experienced and to the impossibility of getting prices equivalent to the credit enforced by their customers. We wish them every success.

There are districts, however, where credit will—perhaps must—continue; to adjust these districts is the serious problem. To demand "cash" after credit has been given for years is a hard matter, and fraught with difficulty and danger. But why not follow the example of our friends, the implement manufacturers? Give a limit as to time, draw on the customer for the amount, with interest to accrue after a fixed date, at say 7 per cent. Every man knows that money is worth its usage, and in using his neighbor's capital he is, on common lines of honesty, bound to allow him sufficient and adequate interest for the convenience. A clear notice to this effect to all the customers might have the effect of materially assisting collections, or at all events securing adequate remuneration for extended credit.

CANADIAN TRADE WITH JAPAN AND CHINA.

THE close of the war in the East will undoubtedly bring about a great commercial development in the countries which are immediately interested.

Japan, Corea, China, through Manchuria, will all be heavy buyers of raw and manufactured goods. A great share of this business should come to Canada. We already have a foothold in the East and with careful cultivation the market possibilities there should prove unlimited.

During the year ending June, 1905, Canada exported over $2,000,000 worth of goods to Japan, China and Corea. There is not one of the items in that list which could not be indefinitely increased. The principal items are cotton, flour, canned salmon and other fish, leather and its manufactures, metals and their manufactures, provisions, lumber and wood pulp. In every case the consumption is large and Canada is in the best situation to supply the demand.

Our transportation facilities are better than those of the United States as the boat trip from Vancouver is two days shorter than from any American port. Moreover, in China at the present time there is an intense prejudice against everything American. This should place Canadian products on a still better basis.

Manufacturers would do well to look into this market carefully. There is no doubt that unbounded propserity will follow the opening up of new provinces and countries to Japan's enterprise.

When the great numbers of men whom Japan has kept in the field during the past two years are turned to peaceful avocations and the regular business of the country is resumed, there will be a great call for foreign manufactures.

If Canada shows sufficient enterprise she should be able to multiply her present business with the East many times over. Now is the time to strike. Our fisheries and other natural products admit of the utmost expansion in exports. Our manufactures, too, have of recent years reached the stage where they can enter foreign markets and compete with the manufactures of the world.

Under all these circumstances the outlook for trade with the East is very bright.

THE MARKET AND THE CROP.

REPORTS from all points of the Dominion speak well as to the progress of harvesting operations.

The storms which passed over the wheat belts a few weeks ago somewhat checked operations, and produced a degree of anxiety, more or less justified by the damage which resulted in some districts.

The subsequent excellent weather, however, has hastened events beyond anticipations, and operations are now well in hand, with every indication of a record yield.

Quality, too, is pronounced as above the average. The scare of rust has proved in result to be little more than that, the general character being considered good, an average yield of nearly 25 bushels per acre with a total of approximately 100,000,000 bushels.

With this relief of anxiety the attention not unnaturally turns to the effect on the market of this extraordinarily large crop, not only of the Dominion but also of the United States.

From the Maritime Province districts reports to hand already denote downward tendency, Ontario flour having fallen to the extent of 50c per barrel.

The English market is perhaps the one of greatest importance. It is to it to which all eyes turn, and which gives the great index to the universal situation.

In the current issue of our esteemed contemporary, the London Miller, the subject is dealt with in a very concise manner, as regards that market, and it is evident that a great battle of price is in contemplation, as the natural result of the marketing of the present harvest.

Available stocks are, apparently, beyond the ordinary at similar seasons, and any attempt to rush the market is expected to have deplorable effects upon the market values.

The London Miller may be taken as voicing pretty generally the whole milling community. We cannot therefore do better than give our readers herewith a pithy extract from that publication:

It appears as if we are in the midst of a somewhat prolonged period of depression.

From practically all parts of the world there is the promise of abundance of wheat, and as a consequence operators are hard to meet with.

English wheat has become fairly abundant on all our exchanges, and prices have undergone a slump when compared with those of a month ago. At the latter period even the most impecunious son of the soil would have disdained an offer of 30s. for his poorest sample, but today he would be glad to get within 2s. of that figure for a much better lot of grain. It is just as we predicted, and if country millers will only take the advice we have been tendering to them for three months they will bespeak such a quantity of the native produce as will keep them in a position to compete with either English or American millers during the whole of the next cereal year.

There are ominous signs from across the Atlantic that we are to have the full flood tide of foreign flour before long and every possible safeguard must be adopted to meet it in the most effectual manner. It will be a terrible cut on prices, and nothing will prevent our cousins from once again measuring their skill against us.

Quality we are easy about, but we know too well how prone the British buyer is to pay attention to a cheap substitute, and we must be quite ready to meet the competition on its merits.

The United States weekly crop report is one which may now be thoroughly relied upon, seeing that it is practically too late for the scaremonger to have any influence.

Evidently we are face to face with another trying period, and during the Winter we may have American Spring wheat flour dumped on our shores in undesirable quantities.

It is true that if this occurs American millers will be the worst sufferers, but in such cases the offender against good business laws is not the only one who has to bear the brunt, and so the British and Irish miller must be prepared for an almost worthless trading period just as soon as his rival across the Atlantic can make sufficient flour to enable him to ship.

It is rather surprising that such a smart business nation as the Americans are reputed to be should follow such an insane policy as we know they have done in previous years but of course it is their own affair, and under our existing law of free imports the utmost that we can do is to be so equipped that our output shall be superior—as it has been for a long time now—and that our cost of production should be as low as possible.

We are rather afraid that in former periods of stress we were not in a position to meet them because of this very fact, but to-day it is not too much to say that nowhere in the whole world is it possible to produce a sack of flour as cheaply as can be produced in the United Kingdom, and this being so we are ready to meet our American confreres on their own terms; in fact we were never so fit for fight.

THE WEST INDIAN TRADE.

WHILE we, as Canadians, are proud of our country and are firm believers in its future, yet we must acknowledge that there are some things which we lack, the possession of which would be most desirable. The United States, to the south of us, are self-contained. From the wheat fields of Minnesota and Dakota, to the cotton fields and rice fields of Alabama; from the orchards of Oregon to the orange groves of Florida; from the forests of Maine to the fruit lands of California, the country is productive of every possible article that a civilized human being can require. And where the United States fail to supply any known want, their over-seas possessions fill in the gap. Can the same be said of Canada?

Desirable as it would be to be able to record that Canada is capable of supplying all her own wants, this is impossible under existing circumstances. True, we have an immense variety of products in boundless supply, but it must be remembered that the southern boundary of the Dominion lies far north of the tropics, and all the products of the tropical belt are denied us. To fill in this gap in the case of Canada, what could be more natural than to have recourse to our nearest sister colonies—the West Indies?

Geographically, Canada is not so far distant from the British Islands of the West Indies as one might be inclined to suppose. As compared with her distance commercially from Great Britain, the position of the West Indies is highly favorable to the development of a successful trade. Where it takes six weeks to get an order filled in England, it only takes three or, one-half, that time, to get an order filled in Jamaica. This is comparatively quick work.

The sentiment in the Indies, as voiced by travelers who visit the Islands, and by Islanders who come to Canada, is extremely favorable towards a closer political and commercial connection between the two colonies. At present trade is carried on principally with the United States, whilst the trade with Canada is nominally small. But the possibilities for a great expansion are there, and with proper cultivation there should be a considerable growth in the volume of products exchanged.

WESTERN ASSOCIATION NEWS AND TOPICS

Address all communications for this department to THE CANADIAN GROCER, 511 Union Bank Building, Winnipeg, Man.

First Vice-President H. C. Hamelin was in Winnipeg last week on private business and was interviewed by The Canadian Grocer regarding the progress made by the association. "I have not been in communication with the secretary for some time," said Mr. Hamelin, "but I am glad to see in The Grocer such an encouraging list of new members. It is quite evident that the association is making steady, substantial progress."

"What do you think of the business outlook?" inquired The Grocer.

"It is most encouraging. The big wheat crop is safe now and it is undoubtedly the largest on record. Moreover, the price is satisfactory and hence millions of dollars will be put in circulation in the west during the coming months. During the last year western merchants have been buying sparingly because money was tight and stocks are low all through the Canadian west. Wholesalers should reap a rich harvest during the coming months.

"Plainly this is the time for western merchants to insist on collecting their outstanding accounts and the association's policy on the credit question is undoubtedly a wise one. The only danger in the present situation is that the crop money may be used for speculative purposes while liabilities are left undischarged. The Retail Association by insisting upon the payment of all accounts can do a great deal to put the prosperity of this country on a permanent solid basis. The big crop and the money it will bring should be used to pay off all debts. It would be a splendid thing to start with a clean sheet."

Hamelin Bros. have sold their branch store in Lauder, but for some little time to come Mr. Hamelin may be addressed at that town.

From all parts of Manitoba come reports that association members are preparing to adopt the association policy this fall respecting credits. Notices are being printed and distributed, signed by all the merchants in a number of towns, to the effect that after November 1, all accounts must be paid and all goods bought must be paid for in cash. These notices show that association members mean business and they are highly encouraging to the executive Secretary Coulson is busy on the Yorkton and Minnedosa branches and it is not likely he will return to Winnipeg for some time. Every effort is being made to promote the organization before November 1st.

Echoes of the Canadian National Exhibition of Toronto

CANADA'S National Exhibition is over. The great fall Fair broke all previous records for interest and attendance. The weather of course could not have been improved upon. The special attractions were such as to astound us, great children that we are, and back of it all there were the substantial exhibits, wonderful and convincing proofs of the greatness of this young Dominion and vital with suggestion of the magnificent future that lies before us.

After all, the human element is the most wonderful and interesting feature of Canada's National Exhibition, and as the exhibits approach in their perfection and potentiality to man himself, so they grow in interest to the eager crowd of men and women who flock each year to Toronto to see and know the new thing that the subtle mind and conjuring hand of the inventor has brought into being.

Year after year the indefatigable directors search out the length and breadth of the land for new special attractions, and here again the human interest shows its strength. A prince of the blood, a Chinese potentate, the Irish Guards Band, or a regiment of American soldiers on a friendly visit, are the attractions that bring out the people by the hundred thousand and work up their enthusiasm to the cheering point, and who will forget who has once heard the ringing cheer of 25,000 or 30,000 of enthusiastic humanity stirred to the depths by the sight of a splendid human spectacle.

But were one to consider it, what is more interesting and wonderful at the great Exhibition than the very people who flock perennially to see and admire the wonders of which they themselves constitute the chief part?

With every year the crowd grows and will continue to grow, not merely because of the merits of the Exhibition, great as they are, but because we all, admit it or no as we will, want to be with the crowd. It is an established fact that if you let it be known that a crowd will be at a certain place at a certain time, the crowd will assemble of itself and find amusement of its own devising.

The record for attendance was broken this year right from the opening of the Exhibition, and the financial success of this Exhibition will make possible greater and more expensive productions in the years that are to follow.

Of the first importance both from the points of attractiveness and educative influence were the exhibits in the Process Building, this year more extensive than at any previous Exhibition. It was difficult most of the time to make your way past the crowds held interested against the railings where swiftly driven machinery was turning out manufactures of various kinds with a celerity that was amazing and an accuracy beyond praise. In the grocery line the most interesting was that of the Canadian Shredded Wheat Co., where Shredded Wheat Biscuits and Triscuits were made and baked for the edification and refreshment of all passers-by.

In the Manufacturers' Building where most of the exhibitors in the grocery section were located, one could note by the drawn and fatigued appearance of the attendants as the Exhibition drew to a close how severe the tax had been upon their energies. The demonstrating plan was everywhere adopted and you were invited to try this dainty or sample that food product to a degree that threatened you with acute indigestion should you yield to a tithe of the invitations extended.

There were many ideas to be picked up by the trade from this, the greatest of pure food shows. The art of display was never more effectively practised and the grocer with a note book and a copy of this number of The Grocer has a stock of new features available for window and interior display that should keep his store looking bright and attractive for months to come.

It is further notable that the manufacturers who demonstrated at the Exhibition have been able to interest thousands in their products who might never otherwise have heard of them. These will return to their homes filled with enthusiasm and eager to tell less fortunate neighbors of the sights seen at the Exhibition and the food products sampled. They will be in a frame of mind to buy the goods they saw and sampled at the Exhibition. The retailer will do well to take advantage of this fact and display and make a special feature of the goods he may have noticed as having attracted marked attention at the Exhibition.

Canadian National Exhibition—Edwardsburg Starch Co., Limited, Exhibit.

Edwardsburg Starch Co., Limited.

Two of the most striking, best arranged and artistic booths in the Manufacturers' Building were the exhibits of starch and table syrups by the Edwardsburg Starch Co., Limited. This company needs no introduction to the grocery and general store trade of Canada, and its enterprise and push are recognized throughout the country. Pioneers in the manufacture of culinary and laundry starches, they are also leaders in the manufacture of corn syrups, and their "Crown" brand table syrup is to-day almost equally as popular as their Edwardsburg Silver Gloss Starch, and Benson's Prepared Corn. The display of these lines in the two booths in the main centre aisle was a striking indication to visitors of the perfection of absolutely Canadian made products, and the highly artistic style of marketing the goods. The Edwardsburg Starch Co.'s exhibit was designed and arranged by Mr. E. A. Verey, of the Toronto staff of the company, and reflected great credit upon his taste and judgment. His unfailing courtesy to visitors was commented on by fellow exhibitors. His work, like his firm's products, was of the best.

The Bowser Oil Tank.

Few exhibits at the Exhibition were of greater general interest than that of the Bowser system of oil storage, better known as the Bowser oil tank. Situated at the extreme easterly end of Machinery Hall, the exhibitors were allowed a remarkably small space and were compelled to leave out one of the best features of their exhibit after having specially prepared for the display.

The showing was, however, a remarkably good one and hardware merchants, grocers, manufacturers and heads of large industrial plants were found at all times at the booth securing information regarding the Bowser system, and studying the working of the perfect self-measuring and perfection syphon.

S. F. Bowser & Company, the patentees of the system, manufacture at 530 West Front street, Toronto, and Fort Wayne, Indiana, pumps and tanks for the storage and handling of oils of all grades, delivery being made direct to the customers' cans in retail stores, direct to autos or launches, direct to the oilers used around mills or factories, and to the mixers in paint works. The system offers economy in oil and in labor with perfect safety and cleanliness as well as checking purchases and sales. Possibly the most important outfit is one for handling gasoline or benzine consisting of a tank of heavy galvanized sheet steel placed outside the building, either buried in the ground or in a shed and attached to a powerful pump inside the building capable of squirting an exact gallon, half gallon, quart or pint of oil from such outside tank a distance of 250 feet direct or up to any reasonable elevation.

This outfit (cut 41 in catalogue) is entirely evaporation proof and complies with the most rigid demands of the insurance companies in Canada and the United States. In a recent fire in a garage at Providence, R.I., the gasoline caused no danger whatever and the pump worked perfectly after the fire was extinguished. The firm's representative, Mr. J. B. Bates, reports a growing demand for this style and where they have been used no single instance so far exists of disappointment or of danger. Furniture factories are using them for benzine with pump on fifth floor of building.

A similar outfit (cut 15) for handling linseed, turpentine, or other non-lubricating oils, with tank in basement of building and pump on first or higher floors, has the advantage of taking up but little floor space and handles linseed without gumming and turpentine without evaporation.

A new style of tank and pumps has recently been put on the market for use at lumber mills, power plants, lithographers, cotton and linen mills or any place where "oilers" are in need of filling. This outfit (cut 51) delivers 1 quart, 1 pint and ½-pint at a stroke and can be placed in the engine room or other position securing economy in distribution, economy in labor and safety in storage. Many of the leading firms in Toronto, Montreal and other cities are placing second or third orders for this style.

The machines for measuring coal oil, either from tank on floor of store (cut 19) or in cellar (cut 1), offer accuracy, cleanliness, safety, speed and delivery and it is established that at least 2 per cent. more oil can be sold from a Bowser outfit than in any other way, a better quality of oil being furnished as well.

Many of the railway store departments are using the long distance systems of this firm, as many as 25 different classes of oils being handled in a separate oil house basement with pumps conveying the oil to other floors or transferring it through underground pipes to other parts of the plant. A very large order for this style was lately shipped to Scotland and men from Fort Wayne, Ind., went over to install it.

As showing the increasing popularity of the Bowser system, Mr. J. B. Bates reports that at our Exhibition he received calls and enquiries for goods from Siam, Indo-China, British Guiana, Switzerland and London, Eng. Visitors from New York, Chicago and other cities in the States also expressed their entire satisfaction with outfits which some of them had used upwards of 10 years and handed in addresses of others who are desirous of buying.

The manufacture of these goods in Toronto is managed by Mr. H. Rodgers, and to him and Mr. O. Cooley, one of his assistants, is largely due the handsome decoration of the exhibit in Machinery Hall. The Canadian business is solicited in the Northwest by Mr. T. Cragg, Mr. N. Roscom in Quebec and two travellers in the Maritime Provinces. Headquarters of the firm are at Fort Wayne, Ind., where a large plant is operated. The display made is most creditable but would have been far more comprehensive had more space been available.

Canadian National Exhibition—Borden's Condensed Milk Exhibit.

Borden's Condensed Milk Exhibit.

The exhibit of Borden's Condensed Milk Co. was one of the most striking and best arranged, as well as artistically designed, in the Main Building. The booth was blue and white—typical of the colors of the packages. Borden's Condensed Milk Co., as the pioneer manufacturers of prepared milk and creams, need but little introduction to the grocery trade of Canada. The quality of their product is absolutely of the best, and the numerous highest awards obtained at all the leading continental and world's fairs, against the competition of all the leading milk manufacturers in the world, is a guarantee to the grocery trade that these goods are the safest and most reliable to handle. The sale of these goods extends from Halifax to Vancouver, and the increase in trade is something marvellous. The booth was in charge of Mr. Irving and a staff of competent demonstrators, who explained the merits of the goods to the hundreds of thousands of visitors that made it their testing point. Mr. W. H. Dunn, of Montreal, is the eastern agent, and was present during several days of the Fair.

Cleaves Devonshire Cream Chocolate.

An exhibit that attracted a great deal of attention was that of Cleaves Devonshire Cream Chocolate. The front of the booth consisted of two handsome showcases filled with chocolate goods tastefully arranged. The decorations were in red, white and blue.

Cleaves Devonshire Cream Chocolate is the very latest thing in the chocolate line. It consists of the finest quality of chocolate incorporated with real Devonshire cream, and the flavor is exquisite. It was a remarkable fact that nine out of ten people who purchased a five-cent sample came back later for more. Nothing was given away at this booth, yet it was constantly thronged with people whose friends, presumably, had been telling them of Cleaves Devonshire Cream Chocolate.

The exhibit was in charge of Mr. J. C. Brackenridge, who is the Canadian representative of John Cleave & Son, Limited. He will be glad to receive inquiries from the trade at his office, 153 Lippincott street, Toronto.

Canadian National Exhibition—Shredded Wheat Exhibit.

Canadian Shredded Wheat Co.

An elaborate exhibit was that of the Canadian Shredded Wheat Co., whose new factory at Niagara Falls, Ont., a branch of the parent factory at Niagara Falls, N.Y., has recently been opened. Not content with their demonstrating booth, a handsome and commodious structure in the heart of the main building where Shredded Wheat Biscuits and Triscuits were sampled by the countless numbers who daily thronged this building, they secured space in the Process Building and installed a miniature plant for the manufacture of Shredded Wheat products.

To the vast majority of visitors to the Exhibition, Shredded Wheat Biscuits and Triscuits have been accepted as one of those gifts sent by the gods, to be received with gratitude but not to be explained to the uninitiated. All the wheat and nothing but the wheat, they well knew it to be, but how the hard little berry of the wheat could be transformed into the crisp, mossy and delicious shreds so well known at the breakfast table was "one of those things that no fellow knows."

The prospect, therefore, of seeing the Shredded Wheat Biscuit actually turned out, baked and possibly eaten before their very eyes was no small thing and the crowd made its way in ever increasing numbers to the section of the Process Building where the Canadian Shredded Wheat Company had set up their miniature factory.

Here were discovered the courteous attendants busily engaged in turning out these mysteries of the cooking art and explaining to the admiring crowd the processes of manufacture.

The first step is that of cleaning the wheat, the grain being put through seven processes so that every atom of impurity is removed, when it is ready for the cooking process.

The grain is cooked by steam. At the factory the wheat is placed in cylindrical wire sieves, especially prepared for the purpose and the steam turned on for 30 minutes when the berry comes out softened and swollen to double its former size. It must then be spread on clean cloths and exposed to the cool air for 14 hours, stirred from time to time with wooden paddles, by which time it is ready to be fed into the hoppers of the shredding machine, one of which is to be seen at the left of the illustration.

This machine is very simple, consisting of two steel rollers, one smooth, the other corrugated. The berry is crushed to a fine paste and finds its way into the grooves of the corrugated roller, from which it is removed by a steel comb in the form of shreds. The crowd were very much interested in this machine and the further process of converting these shreds into biscuits and triscuits.

Canadian National Exhibition—Shredded Wheat Exhibit.

When a sufficient number of layers of shreds had been deposited on the receiver they were taken either to the triscuit link in the centre of the picture where they were compressed into the triscuit shape and promptly toasted by electricity to a fine crisp brown in six minutes or were put through a shaper that cut them off into the biscuit form.

The biscuits were then put in the miniature oven to be seen in the background and baked under 400 degrees of heat which raises and browns the top of the biscuits. From this oven they are taken to another at 200 degrees of heat and baked for an hour and forty minutes to thoroughly dry the interior of the biscuit.

Of course at the factory all this is done on a much larger scale but the exhibit has wonderfully stimulated the interest of visitors at the Exhibition in these natural foods, Shredded Wheat Biscuits and Triscuits.

Grimm Manufacturing Co.

The exhibit of J. H. Grimm, Grimm Manufacturing Co., Montreal, in the eastern end of the Manufacturers' Building, was one of the booths that received steady and profitable attention. The exhibit displayed a miniature Canadian sugar bush and showed the old style of preparing maple syrup and sugar and the modern and more hygienic methods. The counter in front was loaded with blocks of pure maple sugar and the manner in which these samples were bought up by visitors showed clearly a desire to obtain the genuine maple product. The Grimm Manufacturing Co. are the largest makers of sugar-makers' supplies in the United States and Canada. They do not make money selling maple syrup and maple sugar, but in turning over the products of maple sugar makers, and only handle absolutely pure goods. They were instrumental in bringing into force the Act against adulteration of maple syrup and maple sugar. The sugar booth was in charge of Mr. D. Kelly, an experienced sugar judge and salesman. Mr. J. H. Grimm looked after the exhibit of sugar evaporators in the Implement Building and reports a number of good sales to farmers engaged in the maple sugar industry.

Upton's Jams and Marmalades.

A very popular exhibit was that of Upton's jams, jellies and marmalade. The stand was situated on a corner near the south entrance of the Main Building and was one of the places which was usually surrounded by a dense crowd, particularly when demonstrating was going on. The booth was a handsome structure finished in white, green and gold with a tidy little counter down each aisle. On this counter were a few fine samples of Upton's jams in which the whole fruit could be readily distinguished, along with several pots of "Home Made" and "Golden Shred" marmalade.

The stand was capped, as may be seen in the illustration, with a pyramid of Upton's goods in wood and tin, from the large pails of 30 pounds or so to the small, handy tin that caps the pinnacle.

The ground floor, if one may so call it, was given up to goods in glass, the right wall being covered with a captivating display of the many lines of jams and jellies put up by the Upton Co., strawberry, raspberry, red and black currants, peach, plum, etc., etc.

who were eager to taste as well as to see these delicious goods.

The Upton Co. put up all their jams and marmalades at their factory in Hamilton in the midst of the fruit district of Ontario and pride themselves

The Bates Manufacturing Co.

One of the booths in the Manufacturers' Building continually surrounded by visitors was that of the Bates Manufacturing Co., Limited, whose offices and factory are located at 9-11 Francis Canadian National Exhibition—Upton's, Limited, Exhibit.

Samples of these jams and marmalades were given the passing visitors on small soda crackers by a trio of neatly gowned young ladies who were kept constantly on the alert in serving the crowd street, Toronto. The attractively arranged booth displayed the now popular Peacock brand of Mince Meat, Unfermented Natural Fruit Wines, Cream Cheese and other grocers' specialties.

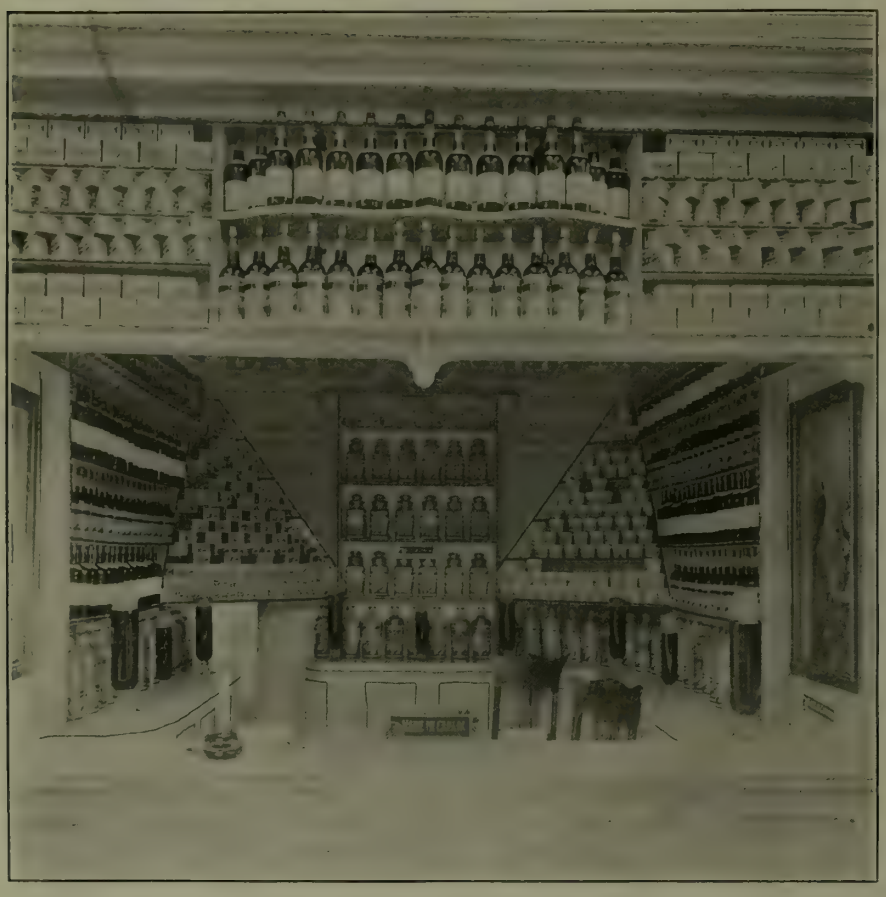
Samples of delicious mince pies were served to visitors, also cream cheese and crackers. "Purity in all our goods" is the motto Mr. Bates has adopted, and how the coffee should be made, and that it could be had from any grocer.

But coffee was not the only line shown by the Pure Gold Co. in the handsome mahogany-finished corner in the south-east part of the Main Building. Beneath the gold and white canopy that formed the roof of their corner, and formed the background, was a splendid glass case containing a full line of Pure Gold Flavoring Extracts, while the young ladies in charge, when not engaged with coffee, were demonstrating to the inquiring housewife the merits and possibilities of Pure Gold Jelly Powder, Pure Gold Pudding Powder, and Pure Gold Salad Dressing. There was also found a place in the booth to make an attractive display of Pure Gold Baking Powder, and Pure Gold Icings, lines which, although already household words, were brought home again to the eyes and minds of the hundreds of thousands who made their way through the crowded aisles of the big Fair.



Canadian National Exhibition—The Bates Manufacturing Co., Limited, Exhibit.

Cowan's Cocoa and Chocolate.

Since the Cowan Co., Limited, Toronto, have got in their handsome and commodious new building on Stirling road, they have given themselves more elbow room, and the result was seen in the handsome display the firm made at the Exhibition this year. They occupied their old corner on the centre aisle of the Main Building towards the eastern end, but made some alterations in their booth which improved the appearance considerably. The situation was admirably suited for demonstrating and the counters on both sides were lined almost continuously with samplers who seemed very much of the opinion of one crowd that the public appreciate the company's goods is borne out by the fact that their trade has more than quadrupled itself during the past season, and the goods are now on sale by the grocery trade far and wide. "Peacock" brand goods are well to the front.

Pure Gold Mfg. Co., Limited.

Being the first exhibit the Pure Gold Co. have made since moving into their handsome new premises out on College street, it was fitting that they should have some new line of more than ordinary merit. They had, and that in their Pure Gold Brand Coffee, put on the market for the first time early this Spring. This coffee, as many of the readers of The Grocer will remember, is put up only in sealed tins, and bears a handsome and characteristic wrapper in red, brown and gold. The coffee in these sealed packages is hand picked, and the public were invited during the Exhibition to pass judgment upon its merits. The invitation was eagerly accepted, and it was difficult much of the time to get through the crowd that lined up for their cup, while the half-dozen young ladies behind the counter sped their best serving the thirsty ones and explaining of ladies heard to remark as they were moving away from having partaken of a sample cup of Cowan's cocoa, that "Cowan's was all right."

Of greater prominence this year, perhaps, than heretofore was Cowan's Milk Chocolate in croquettes, medallions and wafers. On one corner of the counter was noticed a fine show-case containing an immense bar of chocolate, of fully a hundred pounds in weight, above which was suspended the pod from which the cocoa bean, the raw material of the chocolate, is taken. Around this bar were placed the various chocolate confections prepared by the Cowan Co. and a most creditable showing was made. Its effectiveness was further evidenced by the great demand that was made upon the young ladies charged with looking after this part of the display. The brands which are emphasized in this exhibit are Cowan's Perfection Cocoa, Cowan's Perfection Chocolate, Cowan's Milk Chocolate and Cowan's Cake Icings. The interest which the hundreds of thousands of people who passed the Cowan Co.'s booth in the course of the Exhibition took in their display will doubtless increase the sale of choçolate and cocoa throughout the country very materially, and the retailer who follows up the Exhibition by making a special display on his own account of Cowan's Cocoa and Chocolate will profit handsomely.

Canadian National Exhibition—The Cowan's Co., Limited, Exhibit.

Tobler's Swiss Milk Chocolate.

A most attractive display of Tobler's Swiss Milk Chocolate was that shown by Maclure & Langley, of Toronto. The decorations were in pale blue and white, and the counter was artistically arranged with chocolates in every variety of dainty shapes.

The firm of Tobler & Co. was established at Berne, in 1845. All the milk that is used in the manufacture of their chocolates is obtained from their own herd of cows, and is of a very superior quality. This is due to the fact that the melting of the snows on the Swiss Mountains provides "Spring" grass for the cattle all the year round.

One of the secrets of the fine quality of Tobler's chocolate lies in the fact that it is put in an electric machine and ground for seven days and seven nights, hence the chocolate is absolutely free from grit. That chocolate is a recognized food in Switzerland is shown by the fact that it is part of the regular rations of the Swiss Army, on account of its sustaining and nutritious qualities.

The Leeming-Miles Co., Limited.

This well-known Montreal company adopted the prevailing mode and erected a structure in white and gold with heavy colonial pillars, which supported a huge canopy of gold and black. Chief among the many well-known lines under this company's control and displayed in most attractive form were Royal Baking Powder, Nestle's Food, Sa-Yo Mint Jujubes, Bovinine, Sparklets, Seabury & Johnson's pharmaceutical products, Hoyt's German Cologne, Rubifoam, and Cafe Noir Egyptian Cigarettes. The noticeable feature of this exhibit was Royal Baking Powder, and the Royal Cook Books which were given to all the lady visitors, the latter proving a most acceptable present, as was shown by the enormous demand for them.

The Leeming-Miles Co. have for some years past given much thought and attention to familiarizing the public with "high-class" products, the supply of which they make a special feature. Many thousand fans, souvenirs and samples were distributed by the young ladies and staff of this most popular stand. The company have lately erected a splendid new warehouse and offices, consisting of eight storeys, at the corner of St. Lambert hill and Notre Dame street, Montreal, where the trade and their friends will always be cordially welcomed.

The E. W. Gillett Co., Limited.

The exhibit of E. W. Gillett Co., Limited, in the Manufacturers' Building, was acknowledged by visitors to be one of the richest, most artistic, and attractive of the entire Exhibition. To the general grocery trade this company's famous Gillett's Lye is a familiar and popular article. The manner in which Gillett's Lye is growing in favor indicates that the public are learning of the hundreds of ways in which this useful article may be used. The grocery merchant, more than any other, is in a position to bring the qualities and uses of Gillett's Lye to his customer's attention, and, aided by the extensive, continued and educative advertising the company is doing, the trade's interests should lie in encouraging the sale of Gillett's Lye more and more.

In the main aisle, near the eastern door, was the exhibit of E. W. Gillett Co., Limited, Toronto. Cervantes in his immortal Don Quixote says, "All comparisons are odious." How far the truth of this saying may be applied to the various exhibits at the Exhibition visitors are able to judge for themselves. Certain it is that the display of E. W. Gillett Co., Limited, this year admitted of no comparison, and while in a general line similar to that of last season, some attractive advertising features were added that did not fail to arrest the attention of visitors The large electrical cabinet in the centre told of the virtues and qualities of Magic Baking Powder, Imperial Baking Powder, Gillett's Lye, Gillett's Cream Tartar, etc. Two smaller revolving electrical devices displayed on two sides of the exhibit pertinent ads. of the firm's products. E. W. Gillett Co., Limited, have a reputation of making only one grade of goods, and that "the best," and the enormous increase in sales from Newfoundland to Dawson City shows that the public and trade do appreciate the Gillett Co.'s efforts to supply them with thoroughly reliable and absolutely pure goods.

The many "booths" in the Manufacturers' Hall did excellent service. The dainty maidens; the appetizing dishes, the many useful household commodities, all combined to create an animated spectacle.

The Manufacturers' Hall was a continuous scene of activity, and exhibitors speak highly of results accruing. The piano industry was particularly fortunate, most firms not only selling clean out, but booking orders far ahead.

The Transportation Building was, if possible, in advance of previous years, the display of vehicles for all conditions of weather and use presented a feature of grandeur itself, and we venture to say could not be surpassed by any similar exhibition.

The Coronation picture was a feature of immense interest, a constant flow of visitors being continually in evidence, and great was the admiration expressed. An inquisitive couple of the "Loving-couple" order was heard to remark, "I wonder how long they had to stand like that whilst they were being painted."

The erection of an entirely new Fine Art Gallery in a prominent position on the Exhibition grounds was an idea deserving of great credit. That it is fireproof, as well as ornamental, is a feature of prime importance, and will be a great inducement to owners of fine and valuable pictures to loan their possessions for exhibition purposes. We look for great results from this year on in art collections.

Canadian National Exhibition—E. W. Gillett Co., Limited, Exhibit.

Christie, Brown & Co., Limited.

Almost in the centre of the Main Building stood Christie, Brown & Co.'s imposing display of their 520 varieties. The booth was a handsome structure in gold with dark green trimmings surrounded with a silver railing and hung with festoons of vari-colored electric lights. All this is but incidental to the glass-faced tins of the numberless varieties of biscuits that formed the walls of the booth and a source of surprise and admiration to the passing crowd.

Among the very latest creations of the bakers' art in this fine display were noticed wafer rolls, a tube-shaped biscuit with icing filling and a line that is meeting with much favor. Philopena is the name given a little biscuit that very much resembles an almond and which is given a chocolate flavor. Lafete, a disk-shaped biscuit with assorted ice filling, is of the kind that melts in your mouth and is well worthy of its place among the Christie-Brown collection.

Canadian National Exhibition—Christie, Brown & Co's Exhibit.

A fine exhibit was also made of package goods, wafers of many kinds, tinned fruit cake, plum pudding, which by the way meets with great popular favor in the Northwest. These lines are put up in the most attractive shape and compare favorably with the high priced imported goods in this line.

E. D. Smith's Pure Fruit Exhibit.

A display of jams and jellies surpassingly fine was that shown by E. D. Smith of Winona. Here could be seen preserved fruits of every description shown on the counter and fine range of shelving at the back of the booth.

E. D. Smith's fruit house and jam factory is situated in the heart of the celebrated Niagara fruit belt at Winona, Ont., surrounded by thousands of acres of the best orchards and fruit plantations to be found in America. For many years there has been abundance of fruit and to spare in this section. No other district, therefore, can be better favored for the manufacturing of preserves, both as regards quality and price. A few lines to which Mr. Smith is devoting special care and attention are Pure Plum Jam, Pure Raspberry Jam, Orange Marmalade, and Black Currant Preserves. The testimonials he has received from all parts of the Dominion speak volumes for the purity and excellence of these products. Everything that comes from the factories is strictly pure—jams, jellies, and all preserves are positively guaranteed to contain nothing but fresh fruit and granulated sugar.

The Midway—well—silence is sometimes golden, and our representative found himself too busy to go into details. Next year we are promised a special superintendent to control these "side," or "many sided," shows.

The visit of Prince Louis of Battenberg, with his stalwart bodyguard of Bluejackets, was an opportune event for the opening of the National Exhibition, and from it followed two weeks' of unparalleled success.

The important place which gasoline is filling was clearly demonstrated in the Process Building. Engines of a variety of sizes and styles were there in evidence and commanded not only attention but interest of a practical kind. Several firms disposed of the greater part of their exhibits whilst the show was on.

Blue Ribbon Ceylon Tea.

A familiar landmark in the Manufacturers' Building was the booth of the Blue Ribbon Tea Co., where a large staff of lady attendants were kept busy fcom morning till night dispensing the popular Blue Ribbon Tea in dainty cups to thirsty throngs of visitors. Probably nothing was more welcome to the average lady visitor after promenading the various aisles of the building and inhaling the dusty atmosphere than a cup of tea, and if it was Blue Ribbon Tea, why so much the better.

Since Blue Ribbon Tea was first introduced, about a decade ago, its history has been one of steady, rapid and continuous growth, till the name is now a household word from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Its present great popularity is due in some measure to the enterprise of the Blue Ribbon Tea Co., but in far greater measure to the inherent virtues of the tea itself, which will be admitted by everyone who tastes it. The Grocer (or its representative) was favored with a cup of Blue Ribbon Tea, and now threatens to become a tea fiend.

Cerebos Salt.

In the Manufacturers' Annex Building the exhibit which attracted the especial attention of visitors was that of "Cerebos" Salt, for which W. G. Patrick & Co., 29 Melinda street, Toronto, are Canadian agents. This salt, which is universally used in Great Britain, is the only free running salt on the market—it is also the only salt containing mixed phosphates of bran. It is of particularly fine grain and will not cake. It is a nutritive salt as well as a seasoner, and no first-class grocery store can afford to be without it. Since its introduction to the Canadian trade by W. G. Patrick & Co. the demand has increased to an astonishing extent, and its reception by the public shows that its essentially superior qualities will make it a popular and necessary line for every up-to-date grocery store.

Canadian National Exhibition—Cerebos Salt Exhibit.

Canadian National Exhibition—"Blue Ribbon Tea" Exhibit.

J. S. Fry & Sons, Limited.

One of the most attractive and tasteful booths in the Manufacturers' Building was that of J. S. Fry & Sons. To speak of Fry's is to think of chocolate, and certainly there was no lack of variety in the chocolate line. A large sign rose above the booth with a humorous illustration bearing the legend "Be Y's when you RY's and eat 'FRY's.'" The decorations in pale blue and white were of the most tasteful description, while the goods were arranged in the way best calculated to create an appetite for them. Chocolate in all sizes and popular prices, boxes of every hue and every design, filled the counter and showcase, while the famous Fry's Cocoa, whose office is situated at 8 Colborne street, Toronto, was conspicuous against the hangings at the back of the booth.

The booth was in charge of Mr. M. D. Beard, the Toronto representative of the Canadian agents, D. Masson & Co. It is only since the month of March last Fry's goods have been actively exploited in Western Canada, and that their merits have been appreciated is amply shown by the fact that the agents have now about 500 regular customers in Toronto alone.

Canadian National Exhibition—Fry's Chocolate Exhibit.

Samples of delicious cocoa were distributed free in dainty Doulton ware to all comers. These goods have won over 300 medals at exhibitions all over the world, which speaks conclusively for their quality. The trade's attention is called to the fact that a large stock of Fry's goods is carried in Toronto.

Lowney's Chocolate Exhibit.

The Walter M. Lowney Co.'s (Boston, Mass.) exhibit of chocolates, bon bons and confections, in the Manufacturers' Building, was one that demonstrated the perfection of the confectioner's art in the highest degree. The display was well arranged, and the great variety of splendid chocolate preparations in their handsome boxes and cartons was one that could not have been excelled by any firm in the world. The Walter M. Lowney Co., Limited, have in course of erection in Montreal one of the largest chocolate, cocoa and bon bon plants in Canada, and during the Exhibition distributed thousands of pictures of the Canadian factory, and the motto "Made in Canada" displayed over the booth was another evidence of the development of the great industries that are making Canada known and appreciated at home and abroad. The exhibit was in charge of Mr. E. Littler, Montreal, general Canadian agent, and a competent and attentive staff of salesmen and salesladies, and it goes without saying that the public were well looked after by all.

The Machinery Building occupied marked attention, many of the exhibits being of particular interest to the visitor as showing the advances made in supplying equipments to meet every contingency, especially those of a domestic character for both home and hotel.

The Process Building was well filled this year, a proof of the ever increasing interest of the general public in the ways and means of production. The mysteries of the baking art vieing with the indispensable professor of the "last," and each receiving an equal amount of attention.

The dairy section had its usual attractions in butter making, etc., and received quite its share of attention and approval.

The dogs, man's faithful companion and friend, were not neglected by any means. Barking was the order of the day—my, how they barked! and threatened to work havoc with the mental capacity. Yet attention was continually active in the Dog Building.

Canadian National Exhibition—Lowney's Chocolate Exhibit.

Wee MacGreegor Exhibit.

The David Grierson & Co. exhibit of Wee MacGreegor Scotch Oat Cakes and Short Bread smacked true of "the land o' cakes." "Wee McGreegor" had a "tent o' their ain" with an imposing array of white-gowned ladies who before your eyes made and baked the cakes, scones and short bread that for centuries have been the staple food of Auld Scotia. Mr. Grierson himself stands in the centre of the row seen in the picture and at his left the brawny Highlander who proclaimed Wee MacGreegor Scotch Oat Cakes as the food that won the Battle of Bannockburn and made Old Scotland famous. The Exhibition visitors were attracted by thousands and found how delicious were these oat products when prepared in the Scotch way from real imported Scotch oatmeal. The Grierson Company's two bakeries on Queen street east and Yonge street north are now worked at their capacity filling the orders which the display at the Exhibition has excited. Wee MacGreegor goods may now be had from practically all wholesalers and are put up in a form that is both convenient and profitable to the retailer.

Dalton Bros., Toronto.

Dalton Bros.' exhibit in the Manufacturers' Building was pretty and tasty, their booth was draped in pale blue and white and gold, while in the back stood a magnificent plate glass refrigerator, made especially for their exhibit by Hillock & Co. The refrigerator was in the style of a silent salesman, illuminated with electricity showing to perfection the jellies and blanc mange powders which were made up in pretty and dainty shapes. The exhibit was in charge of E. B. Nettelfield, assisted by J. Towers and two demonstrators, who were kept busy showing the firm's latest product, their blanc mange powder. This is a new dessert which requires no sugar, milk or eggs, nothing but a package of the blanc mange powder and a pint of water, and you have a delicious dessert enough for six people. Judging by the number of orders taken (over 1,000 by Wednesday, Sept. 6) the blanc mange seems to be assured of a great demand. The firm sold their exhibit to the enterprising grocer of Queen street west, Mr. J. Butcher, and received an order from the T. Eaton Co. for 50 gross of blanc mange powders.

Melagama Tea.

One of the most interesting features of the Manufacturers' Building was the Melagama exhibit, now conducted or managed by Mr. F. J. White, late of White & Co.

Neither Mr. White nor the Melagama Tea needs introduction to the public, the former starting some 13 years ago in a comparatively small way in the commission business and wholesale fruits on Colborne street, Toronto, and by his persistent business methods and straightforward dealings he worked up what is known to be the largest business of its kind in the Dominion.

Returning to Melagama Tea, we might say that this is the oldest tea firm in Canada, and has enjoyed a trade of the best and most conservative buyers throughout the length and breadth of the wide Dominion for over 30 years.

Not only does Melagama Tea cover Canada, but it has found its way into several of the large cities in the United States, and its ever increasing sale is the best evidence of its popularity.

The firm has recently added to their list of travelers two of the oldest and best men to be had, who will be pleased to see not only the old customers but also the new ones, who are being constantly recommended by the numbers of their well pleased customers and friends throughout the entire country.

Ingersoll Packing Co.

"Paragon" cheese, exhibited and demonstrated in the Manufacturers' Building by the Ingersoll Packing Co., Limited, Ingersoll, Ont., was very much and freely sampled and favorably commented upon by visitors to the handsome booth. Speaking of the merits of "Paragon" cheese, Mr. Sumner of the Ingersoll Packing Co. stated that " 'Paragon' cheese was the first cheese put into jars in Canada and the steadily growing increase in demand for this article clearly indicates appreciation on the part of the trade and public. Hotels, restaurants, railway dining cars, steamboats, and private families are all to be found supplied with 'Paragon' cheese and the demand generally is rapidly increasing from all first-class grocers."

The show of cattle was one of unsurpassed interest. Many of the beasts shown, we venture to say, could not be surpassed anywhere.

The bands—yes, the bands—truly music hath charms to soothe the human breast, and to judge from the immense crowds that thronged the soothing process was proceeding apace. Thousands of visitors of all ages, sizes and nationalities were daily wandering around or sitting complacently listening to the delightful music.

NEW SPECIES OF FISH.

The Astorian, of Astoria, Ore., says Sheriff Linville, of that place, received from J. T. Borchers a fish which was caught on the north side of the river, and is a different species from anything ever seen here before. It was about one foot in length, a mottled black, shaped similar to a flounder, only longer. Scott Johnson says it resembles what is known as the "closed town" fish caught in Australia. It has been placed in a glass jar filled with alcohol.—Fishing Gazette.

Intercolonial Railway Exhibit.

Hot and tired as the visitor at the Exhibition may be, from much wondering and gazing, a refreshing and cooling feeling is experienced as one, on entering the original Art Building, turns to the first exhibit to the left and finds himself in the spacious rooms presided over by Mr. A. E. Barton where the Intercolonial Railway has its exhibit. A sense of nearness to nature is felt, produced no doubt by the manner in which the room is finished and decorated. The walls are overlaid with hemlock bark and logs of the same wood form the casing of the two large doorways. The protected by a rustic railing. On the fish are artistically grouped while a large illuminated sign bearing the trade mark of the Intercolonial Railway faces the visitor as he enters the main doorway. The pictures are enlargements from actual photographs illustrating some of the beautiful scenery through which the Intercolonial Railway passes, as well as typical scenes of sports and recreation afforded by the districts connected. The mounted heads consist of moose and red deer from New Brunswick and cariboo from Newfoundland, all being fine specimens, the sight of which is calculated to thrill the ardent sportsman in search of stands on a table nearby bearing the sign, "I am little Johnny Bear."

A further treat is in store for the visitor to this exhibit, as through one of the walls a rock finished grotto is built. It gives an added charm and takes the visitor miles away from the busy scene around him. On the walls of this cave glass cases are neatly concealed, illuminated from the rear, and in these live specimens of New Brunswick sea trout may be seen. For the purpose of catching the latter, and to have the satisfaction of engaging in this pastime many visitors take trips every year to the region where they abound.

Regarding the Intercolonial Railway

Canadian National Exhibition—Intercolonial Railway Exhibit.

same effect is incorporated in the ceiling, except for a space running entirely around where a soft white light is diffused by a screen to the scene below. From the centre an inverted pyramid of the bark is suspended, the latter being surmounted by a cedar burl from which hangs an enclosed arc lamp. For evening illumination this is supplemented by four incandescent lamp clusters also placed at the ceiling.

The middle of the floor space is taken up by a fountain of running water encircled by growing ferns, the whole being the larger game. No angler could look walls pictures, deer heads and mounted at the panels of mounted fish without experiencing a desire for a chance at least of catching some of these fine specimens. They are salt water salmon, caught in the Restigouche, Matapedia and Miramichi, and are considered the gamiest fish in America. That the sportsman is not limited to deer hunting and fishing is shown by the presence of a large black bear, shot in New Brunswick, while a cunning bear cub itself as affecting service, cars, equipment and all the added appointments and comforts that make railroad travelling a luxurious outing, it is not surpassed by any line on the continent. In fact in many of these it is easily first. There is certainly no finer dining service, no better cars and no more substantial road-bed to be found anywhere, so that a more enjoyable outing could not be planned than a trip through the surpassingly beautiful country that may be viewed from a passenger coach of the Intercolonial Railway.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

Ontario Markets.

GROCERIES.

Toronto, Sept. 14, 1905.

CONDITIONS of trade continue favorable and business is generally satisfactory. Exhibition weeks are usually good weeks for trade, but this season has been exceptionally good. Many buyers from outside points visited the city for the National Exhibition, and utilized the time for Fall buying, not a few of the wholesalers keeping their travelers in to interview the callers. Altogether, good trade has been done.

In canned goods there is little to report. Previous quotations remain.

Some of the new pack salmon has already arrived, and for the most part old goods are depleted.

Sugar has dropped 10c. all round since our last issue, apparently in sympathy with the fall in raws, and some are of opinion that it will go much lower.

Syrups and molasses are moving more freely. There has been some demand for confectionery grades, and table syrups move moderately well.

Coffee is in moderate demand at firm prices.

Tea is slow on home market. Buyers are showing great discrimination, and not disposed to fill up stocks.

Fish is moving well as regards fresh and at firm prices. Dried fish is inactive.

Honey is fairly active and showing good quality, at slightly firmer prices. Beans are uninteresting.

Hides are still showing an eccentric market, with prices still firming up. The excitement, which started the present condition shows no signs of abating, and with demand increasing and no stocks of note on hand, the probabilities are for still further advance.

Grain is moving more freely, with prices tending toward weakness. Flour has now reached a price attractive to the foreign markets, and an advance in business is expected. Already some fairly good orders have been handled on the market.

Canned Goods—Demand continues in moderate activity. Orders have been coming along for advance goods, and old stocks are reported to be well depleted, in view of new arrivals. Prices remain unchanged, but new quotations are expected to come to hand by any mail from canners. We quote:

Sugar—The weakness referred to in our last issue has developed into realization, and we have to report a drop of 10c. all round. This downward movement is undoubtedly in sympathy with the low ratio of raws. The European market too has been weak and unhealthy for some time, and is still in an unsatisfactory state. The general opinion is that the home market will continue in a fluctuating condition until more settled news arrives regarding raws. Consumption has been good, and demand keeps well up, but unaffected by the sudden drop in price.

Coffee—Trade has been fairly active for some lines of coffee, notably the commoner grades, although the demand for milder grades is making a marked advance.

Tea—The local buying has been slow, no particular activity is manifest, and little disposition is shown to make heavy buying. Better samples are reported as coming to hand, especially of Ceylons. Japans are not too plentiful but what have come in are showing good quality.

The London market reports denote much irregularity, for really fine quality teas there has been active demand, especially in Indias. Other teas however have been weakening; many of the newer arrivals have been disappointing in quality, and did not get much attention. In Ceylons little good quality tea has come to hand, and bidding was on comparatively low level.

Foreign Dried Fruit—Orders have been coming along in fairly good form for new fruit. Valencia raisins are continuing firm for all new fruit. Comadria figs are on the upward move. Latest advices denote crops to be decidedly short, and prices are quoted some two shillings and six pence advance on primal markets. Currants remain unchanged. Hides, Tallow, Skins and Wool—The market in these goods continues to be unsatisfactory. Prices have still further stiffened, although not showing perceptible advance in quotations. Arrivals are coming in somewhat slowly, and demand keeps well to the front. The present state of this market is attributable to what is considered an unhealthy competition between rival buyers, and by no means warranted by the true conditions. We quote :

Quebec Markets.

GROCERIES.

Montreal, Sept. 14th, 1905.

THE leading lines have assumed since eight days a somewhat more wholesome and steady appearance. As the fine weather comes nearer to an end, people are coming back to the city, thus forcing the retail merchant to increase his stock. Besides country dealers are preparing to renew their stocks, which in many cases are bare and the wholesale trade is called upon to supply both.

The sugar market, however, has been in the declining mood and has still much inclination towards that end.

Canned goods continue unchanged, bringing much activity and have practically only one interesting side just at present. Prices for new corn and tomatoes are expected out this week with some sort of anxiety.

Syrups and molasses remain featureless at a steady condition.

Teas are scarce and high, but the anticipation of a further advance has strongly stimulated the trade and sales are said to be steadily increasing.

Coffees and spices remain unchanged with a possibility of an advance.

Dried fruits, rice and tapioca are without a change, but all firm with good demand.

Fish is, as usual, in an exceptionally good favor; fresh fish is plentiful and active while salt and smoked have not begun to move very briskly as yet.

Country products are on the quiet side, awaiting cooler weather to stir up.

As to flour, the weekly decline has assumed interesting proportions but has not caused the least emotion to buyers, who seem to be curious to see if prices will go any lower.

Feed is a little scarce but very active at firm prices. Hay shows little or no change.

Canned Goods—Interviews with jobbers shows that activity still prevails in canned goods. Old stocks, it is now reported, are entirely gone, and fresh packs of early vegetables and fruits are quickly being taken, while new shipments arrive every day. Prices for new corn and tomatoes were expected early this week. Other prices are firm and unchanged.

Tea—Business continues to improve and prices have a strong tendency to advance. In spite of present high figures jobbers report an exceptional activity. Ceylons are the only teas in a normal quantity on the market. It is probable they will follow suit and go up with other grades. Last week's prices have not been modified as yet. We quote :

Coffees—The coffee market is strong and firm with an upward tendency. The steady demand and the probability of a shortage in the crops leave much room for a rise. It appears, however, that a jump is not for the near future, unless the local stocks, which are rather light, should come near to an end. We quote :

Spices—Conditions are unchanged in spices but the market is firm. There is activity reported in peppers, cloves and gingers at quotations. There has been no advance as yet but it is a thing generally expected on account of shortage in crops. We quote :

Foreign Dried Fruit—Most lines are finding first rate business. Locally the market is featureless. On the foreign markets the situation, however, is more interesting. As to currants, though they are firm at present, it is not impossible that an advance may occur. Valencia raisins have seen some speculation but are practically unchanged. The total export of Valencia raisins in 1904 was slightly under two million boxes, while the Sultana crop is estimated at four million boxes of 28 lbs. each. This week's figures are the same as last and seem firm. We quote :

Rice and Tapioca—There is no change in rice. Business is remaining steady. Prices unchanged. As to tapioca, the expected drop has not yet occurred although a sale of 500 tons at 3c is reported in the States. The local price is still 4c and seems firm. We quote :

Fish—Dealers report that demand for fresh fish is improving. Supplies of fresh British Columbia salmon are better, while Gaspe and Restigouche are finished, dealers falling back on the frozen. Lake trout is more plentiful but dore and white fish are still scarce. Fresh pike and halibut are cheaper. Finnan haddies are beginning to move as is customary at this time of the year. In salt fish there is not much doing. New salt British Columbia salmon will be in in about another week. Bulk oysters are arriving daily and selling at $1.50 the imperial gallon. The demand is not very brisk. We quote :

Choice prime beans	1 50	1 65
Lower grades	1 40	1 50

Evaporated Apples—Quietness is the ruling mood. There is only a small business done in evaporated apples at 7½c, while dried apples are not wanted. They are offered at 4c.

Hops—The hop market is unchanged. It is believed that both English and American crops will be good. Some samples of English are already seen. Choice No. 1 Kent are offered at 25c to 27c and Pacific Coast at 23c to 25c. We quote :

Flour—The flour market continues in the same dragging condition. A weekly drop is now one of the features of the trade. In fact, this week we have to register another reduction. And still buyers object to give their big orders in the hope to force the miller to go still lower. Prices although considerably easier than last week have not reached the bottom yet. We quote :

Feed—The activity noticeable for a few weeks past has been fully maintained again this week and for bran especially the demand is very brisk. Prices range between $17 to $18 in bags and from $16 to $17 in bulk. Though some good business is done in mouillie, dealers believe it could be better. All lines are short and prices hold firm. We quote:

Manitoba bran, in bags, per ton	17 00	18 00
" shorts	20 00	21 00
Ontario bran, in bulk		17 00
" shorts	20 00	21 00

Hay—The market is slightly easier owing to larger arrivals, but stocks are believed to be only equal to demand. The best quality in the market sells at $8.50 although there seems to be a margin of prices of 50 cents. The finest hay is not too plentiful. We quote :

CANADIAN REFINERS AND WEST INDIA SUGARS.

Editor Canadian Grocer,—Recently, certain articles have appeared in some of the Toronto daily papers regarding supposed unfair treatment on the part of Canadian refiners towards the planters in the British West Indies. As there is absolutely no foundation whatever in these statements, we should be glad if you would give in your valuable publication the following correct statement of the position of affairs in connection with the importation of sugars into Canada for refining purposes.

There is no truth in the supposed allegations of the British West Indian planters that the Canadian refiners get all the benefits of the said preferential tariff on sugar imported from these possessions. If that were the case the large business which Canadian refiners at present are doing with those colonies would not be possible and would not have been done at all.

The only planters who have made any complaints are those in Jamaica, and they have themselves to blame, as they are still working under the ancient methods and will not go to the expense of installing proper machinery and adopt modern methods which will turn out centrifugals. The bulk of the sugars made in Jamaica are muscovadoes, and these are of low test and can only be used in small quantities by Canadian refiners. What little centrifugals are made in Jamaica are shipped to England and the planters endeavor to palm off on the Canadian markets their poorer muscovadoes.

During the past year ending June 30, 1905, the total quantity of raw sugar imported into Canada for refining purposes amounted to 327,234,786 pounds, of which only about 66,000,000 pounds came under the general tariff and the balance, over 75 per cent. of the total, was imported from the British West Indies.

Under the preferential tariff no less than 246,000,000 pounds raw sugar were imported into Canada during the twelve months ending June 30th, 1905, against 15,000,000 from all other countries. The 246,000,000 were all from British West Indian colonies and British Guiana, demonstrating that Canada is by far their best customer and that Canadian trade is of course much appreciated by them, and complaints are out of question, except from Jamaica and for reasons above stated.

Yours very truly,

MONTREAL GROCERS MEET.

THE Montreal Retail Grocers' Association held their monthly meeting on the 7th inst. at their club rooms, St. Denis street.

Mr. P. Daoust, president, opened the meeting and after the routine business had been despatched, the grocers proceeded to elect their officers for the coming year.

Mr. P. Daoust was re-elected president; Mr. Ed. Upton, first vice-president. Mr. P. Bruneau, re-elected treasurer. Mr. A. Laurendeau was reappointed secretary, but only temporarily, for this reason: The by-laws and constitution of the Dominion Retail Merchants' Association having been submitted to the grocers for their consent to join, a committee composed of Messrs. P. Daoust, Lapointe, Menard, Laurendeau, Labonte, Guillemette, Sequin, Dore and Bruneau was appointed to study the question. From their decision the election of a secretary will result, for it is believed that if the grocers join the D.R.M.A., a secretary will be appointed by the latter.

Directors were also elected. They are: Messrs. J. A. Archambault, E. Beaudoin, E. P. Guillemette, W. De Repentigny, V. Raby, J. A. Labonte, E. Lafond, E. N. St. Denis, J. J. Malette, J. A. Dore, J. A. Menard, Aldermen J. H. Pequin, R. Turner, J. O. Ricard, J. Lariviere, S. D. Vallierer and Ethier of St. Henry.

Mr. Bruneau, the treasurer, announced that the gross receipts of the picnic amounted to $922.45, and the net receipts $350.

B. C. SALMON FISHERIES.

Editor Canadian Grocer:—In your issue of the 25th August we notice your British Columbia market report from Vancouver August 17th has reference to this year's salmon run.

The statement is made that millions of dead fish were floating on the waters of the Gulf. The statement is also made by inference that the traps are responsible to a large extent and that individual fishermen of course say all the fault is to be charged to the fish traps. Your correspondent also stated the serious feature of the salmon situation is that the prospects are that next year there will be a very light run.

Now we consider a very serious feature of this business is that you would publish such statements. We believe on a former occasion we had to correct some statements emanating from this Vancouver correspondent of yours (we presume it is the same person) and we can state most positively that on no occasion this season was there any occasion to throw away a single fish caught in the fish traps at Vancouver Island. No doubt a certain amount of waste occurred on the Fraser, but this it is impossible to prevent, as under the system of fishing with gill nets in the Fraser River, the fisherman cannot tell when the nets are put into the water what their catch is going to be. The consequence is that when a heavy run is on, although the fisherman knows the cannery will not accept more than 200 salmon from him for the day's delivery, yet his net may catch a larger quantity. This certainly results in waste but such is not the case in trap fishing, as the salmon can be held alive for days at a time and only what the cannery can use are taken out from day to day. We are very much surprised indeed that you do not have more reliable correspondents and it seems a failing of newspapers to publish articles written by incompetent correspondents who have no knowledge of the subject that they are writing about and are only too ready to air nonsensical opinions of their own, or are ready to lend themselves to publish the views of others who have a certain object before them, and which in this case you may depend, on the mainland of British Columbia, is the discrediting of the salmon traps of Vancouver Island.

Any expert will admit that in quality the fish caught in salt water at the Vancouver Island traps fresh in from the ocean are infinitely better than those taken from the muddy waters of the Fraser River, and which we feel will command in future very much better prices.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Special Report from the Winnipeg Office of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, Sept. 14th, 1905.

CONFIDENCE is the dominant note in all departments of the wholesale trade of Winnipeg, and the reason for that confidence is to be seen by every person who travels through the great wheat belt. The biggest crop in the history of Western Canada has passed the critical period of its history in safety and with satisfactory prices there should be enough money in the country to relieve the burden of credit and leave a handsome balance, which will ensure another year of prosperity.

The wholesalers are preparing to act in conjunction with the Retail Merchants' Association to curtail credits this Fall and put the business interests of the west upon a substantial basis. Payment of accounts will be strictly insisted upon.

Activity marks the local market this week, there being a heavy movement of some lines and liberal ordering of other lines to arrive.

Sugar almost alone shows a decline in the volume of sales. The price is steady at the recent decline.

As noted last week, new canned tomatoes are on the local market, but at time of writing the price had not yet been agreed upon by the local houses. It will be found in our telegraphic "Last Minute Manitoba Markets."

Tapioca is firmly held at the recent sharp advances and the increase in price is already having some effect on the demand.

Valencia raisins are likely to be somewhat cheaper than quotations given last week would indicate. The market is weakening.

Sugar—There has been a marked decline in the demand for sugars. The price is steady at the moment at the decline noted two weeks ago. We quote:

N. S. Markets.

Halifax, N.S., Sept. 13, 1905.

BUSINESS continues good in all lines, and collections are very satisfactory. Some lines are attracting much attention at the present time.

Cheese—Is advancing and a despatch from Charlottetown says that all the cheese boarded there at the week's end was sold for 11 3-16c. per lb., which is a considerable advance over former quotations.

Flour—Is also declining. There has not been a very great drop in prices here since last report, but as prices have declined at other places the price will also go down here, so soon as dealers dispose of some of the stock on hand.

Provisions—The scarcity of beef and pork continues here. Some dealers say that there is not a barrel of prime mess pork to be had on this market. American pork has advanced $1.00 per barrel, and the price of beef is also advancing. There is also a scarcity of lard on this market, and the supplies on hand are small. New pork, however, is now coming to market and plenty of fresh lard will soon be available. Prices generally remain unchanged.

Butter—There is no improvement in the butter market. Receipts are small and prices very firm, choice creamery being from 23c. to 24. During the week some country teams brought in several small quantities of butter in small tubs, which was readily bought up at 22c. per lb.

Eggs—Eggs are becoming somewhat scarce. They are selling here from 20c. to 21c. and on the Island at 18c. and 19c.

Molasses—There is not very much doing in molasses just at present. Large stocks are held here. Quotations are: Fancy Trinidad, 40c. to 42c.; choice Trinidad, 35c. to 36c.; fancy Porto Rico, 39c.; extra choice, 36c.; fancy Barbados, 38c. to 40c.; Barbados, 31c. to 33c.

Spices—There is a good demand for spices now that the pickling season is at hand. Quotations on pepper and cloves are considered high.

Canned Goods—There is little demand for canned goods. Dealers here predict that peas must advance in price. Meanwhile a retail firm of this city has been having a special sale in which standard brands of new peas were sold at 5c. per can. As the jobbing price is 62 1-2c. per dozen, the puzzle is how this firm can sell at such a price.

Apples—The apple crop of the Annapolis Valley it is said will not yield more than half of that of last year, though the quality is ahead of that of last season's product. A great deal of the fruit is spotted.

According to advices the foreign market quotations rule higher than the price realized a year ago. Many of the Valley packers are urging the sending of a finer quality of fruit to the Cape Breton market, claiming that as high a price can be obtained there as in England.

The heavy rains of the past week have damaged the fruit crop considerably, but will be of great benefit to the root crops.

Dealers report Gravenstein apples scarce throughout the Valley, but Kings, Ribstons and Blenheims are fairly abundant. A German who bought 7,000 barrels last year is now in the Valley purchasing fruit for the Hamburg market.

Prices have dropped considerably since last quotations. Gravensteins were quoted during the week at $2.50 to $3.00 for No. 1's, and $2.00 for No. 2's. With the increased demand, however, dealers anticipate higher prices.

Jobbers here say that the sales for August were good and fully equal to those of the same month last year.

N. B. Markets.

St. John, N.B., Sept. 14, 1905.

WITH the receipt of new canned goods, Fall business may be said to be well started. While the association have not named a price on tomatoes, one of the large outside factories have landed a car and prices here are lower. This is early for new goods.

Flour—The situation is still one of interest. Manitobas are dropping off and lower prices are looked for.

Spice—At this season spices come in for increased attention. In nearly all lines prices are firm and rather higher, particularly pepper. Nutmegs continue to be very cheap. Our local spice mills are doing an increasingly large part of the local business. In many lines it is the poorer grades which are imported. Our local mills, both doing a general wholesale grocery business, prevents their doing as much of the spice business with the wholesale grocers as would be the case if, like the big spice millers of Halifax, they confined themselves to manufacturing.

Oil—As for sometime, burning oil is being sold by the tank wagons to the retail dealer for the extreme low figure of 15c. per gallon, the lowest price which ever ruled here. The report is the market is very firm and an advance not unlooked for. In lubricating oils the sale at this season is not large, it is getting late. In paint oils, just a fair demand. Linseeds, which continue to keep low, are more firm while turpentine, which has been extremely high, tends to lower figures. Cod oil is now being brought in. Prices lower than last year.

Coarse Salt—This season the few firms importing coarse salt from Liverpool have worked together and maintained the price. Figures have been rather higher than usual. Freights ruling high. There are continued receipts and demand is good. In fine, sales are more quiet. Prices are unchanged.

Canned Goods—Peas have been slightly advanced. The extreme low price has led dealers to buy freely. It is strange when outside packers have tomatoes due here, that as yet the association have not named a selling price.

This withholding of prices, particularly on corn and tomatoes, is one of the unpopular features of the association. Lobsters are high, a dozen costing as much as a case a few years ago. Salmon, since new arrived, are rather easier. Meats unchanged. New domestic sardines and haddies are being received. Blueberries are dull.

Green Fruit—Quite a quantity of Ontario apples, particularly Spies, have been bought to come to this Province. Local crop is light. Plums have been very scarce, except western. Some nice Ontario peaches now received. They are preferred in flavor to Californian. Oranges and lemons continue high. Some Jamacias are now offered. Bananas have held very firm right through the season. Pears are quite high.

Dried Fruit—First shipments of Valencia raisins are about due. While not as many Valencias have been bought as was annually the case a few years ago, more have been bought there for the last few years. Prices will be quite low. California fruit, it is thought, will be rather high, which will affect the sale. In these lines, outside of other considerations, the tendency is to buy smaller quantities each year. In Malaga layers import is small.

California prunes have advanced 1c. since opening and are twice as high as last year. Apricots and peaches have also advanced largely. Stocks of all lines are very small.

Currants, which are higher than last season, have also advanced. In dates, figs and peels, changes will be slight. Evaporated apples are held firm and prices tend higher.

Canadian onions are now here. This market only takes yellows. It is reported these are a light crop. Malaga loose and seeded are quoted at very reasonable prices.

Sugar—There has been no change since the decline of a few weeks ago. Market, however, is easy and dealers are carrying light stocks. There continues to be quite a quantity of foreign imported.

Molasses—The situation is unchanged While there is quite a large stock of Porto Rico held, this is about the only grade in this market. While close prices are quoted, holders are quite firm.

Fish—In fresh fish receipts continue light and there is little variety. Some good halibut offered this week. Dry cod are still extreme and little chance for any change. Pollock have a light sale. Full prices asked. Pickled herring are being received quite freely, but the pack is not large and prices are quite high. Smoked herring are firm. Some new fish received.

Flour, Feed and Meal—In flour stocks are extremely light. Both Ontarios and Manitoas are down this week. The market is unsettled. Oatmeal while unchanged in the local market is likely to be lower. Beans are also tending this

HINTS TO BUYERS.

It would be well for buyers in search of special values to glance over E. D. Marceau's ad. on another page. See the unusual prices for Japan and China teas.

The banana business, after one of the most prosperous Summer seasons known, has taken a decline, and a little easier market can be looked for. White & Co., Limited, have handled a number of cars the past week.

The first shipment of Cape Cod cranberries arrived this week, shipped to White & Co., Limited, Toronto and Hamilton.

White & Co., Limited, have issued a very neat little booklet on the growth and culture of Long Island native oysters, the line they are so vigorously pushing. It is nicely illustrated and very descriptive, showing the remarkable progress that has taken place in the last few years in the production of this delicious bivalve.

Seeing that comparatively few import orders for Japan tea were placed this year, I endeavored to bring large consignments as soon as possible, in order to meet the requirements of those who did not buy early in the season. These goods are now all in warehouse, and I shall be able to offer them regardless of the recent advance in the home market. Therefore, the present is a good opportunity to place your orders with me as early as possible. For samples kindly advise direct to Shaw T. Nishimura, 22 John street, Montreal, or the following brokers: J. C. Hazard, London; Geo. Stanway & Co., Toronto; McFarlane & Field, Hamilton; J. A. MacKenzie, Ottawa; James Craig, Kingston; John A. CHANGE IN FISH HOUSES.

Arising out of the passing of Black Bros. and another large Nova Scotia fish house into the hands of a receiver it is understood that steps are being taken for reorganizing on a broader basis and that the Halifax, Acadia and Bluenose codfish business which has in the last two years reached such fine proportions will go on as usual and be pushed more energetically than ever.

QUAKER SUGAR AND CREAM CORN

This is a line we are now packing which we intend to make our main specialty. Packed from the finest Maine Seed, with the ears all selected, with the cans well filled with corn and not watery juice. We believe there is a future for an article of this class of goods if properly placed on the market and the attention of the consumers called to its superior merits. There is no line of goods packed in cans that varies so much as corn in quality, consequently there should be an opening on the market for a really high-class article, something in which the goods were not only at the tip-top but that every can could be depended on to be of a high and uniform quality. This is what we claim for Sugar and Cream and the reputation of the Quaker is behind these assertions. While the contents inside of a can are of more importance than the outside, it may not come amiss to say that these goods are sent out in very handsome embossed wrappers, far superior to anything we have yet seen from our competitors.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

Montreal, Sept. 14, 1905.

THE situation on cheese remains nearly unchanged. Recent country markets were a shade easier, yet so steady that prices cannot possibly be called "declining." It is simply a hand-to-mouth trade, as nobody seems to have sufficient courage to buy goods at present prices for next Winter's demand. As pointed out repeatedly in these articles, this lack of confidence is principally due to present high prices.

Advices from the different British trade centres report light visible supplies in addition to a general belief that even retailers are not overstocked and, unless something unforeseen should happen in the future, prices must gradually but surely advance during the coming Winter months when our season of production comes to a stop. Whether this advance will be sufficient, however, to pay holders for carrying charges on the basis of present prices, is a problem to be solved by future events and no man is at present ready to act with any degree of confidence either in making sales ahead for future delivery or buying any extra quantity to hold for higher prices.

There is no doubt a material shrinkage in the make of cheese and with light stocks both here and in the United Kingdom, it is hardly to be expected that prices will decline. It becomes, therefore, a question of how much higher can prices go in the future when we are already abnormally high for this time of the year.

From past experience we can figure that the natural trade in Great Britain will consume a certain quantity of cheese. We know now that our present visible supplies and the prospect of the quantity yet to be produced are now too large for this natural consumption, but there is an old saying that "high prices make a long crop," and meanwhile it is just as well to go slow as many things might happen to lead those who hold cheese for an advance to disappointment and loss.

Trade in Great Britain is slow when prices become too dear for the consumer and unprofitable for the retailer. The latter naturally tries to persuade his customers to buy some other article of food which gives him a better margin of profit, and if this is generally done by the retailers in Great Britain, it reduces the consumption of cheese very materially. There is always a limit to the value of any article of food.

Butter has lately shown a declining tendency, yet there is no real break in prices. Dealers have simply tried to reduce the price of their stocks by adding cheaper goods. Danish butter is high and as British retailers seem to use our butter only for a cheaper grade, we can do very little to alter this condition. Canadian butter is not retailed to the British consumer in a fresh state like the Danish product and it is therefore only in the second class, or a "shilling butter," and as we will now very shortly come in competition with Australian butter, there is not much room left for higher prices. The situation is now simply this: If we can offer our finest creamery butter at a price which leaves the British retailer a fair margin of profit to sell it at a shilling per pound, we can get a good many orders, sufficient to dispose of all our surplus, but our supplies are commencing to get shorter and our home demand will soon be sufficient to absorb the bulk of our supplies.

Dairy butter is still very scarce and in demand at prices beyond their relative value as compared with creamery butter and this condition is not likely to change until next year, when Russian butter may again regulate the price of dairy butter in the British markets.

LONDON PRODUCE LETTER.

By Our Own Correspondent.

THE past week has been one of the dullest which the London butter market has ever experienced, and very little buying has been done. There certainly was some improvement in the general tone of the market last week, and it appeared as though the activity would continue. August has now drawn to a close, and September, usually the busy month, is opening somewhat inauspiciously. The position is certainly peculiar, and, apparently, inexplicable.

But still matters might have been worse, and it is at least some satisfaction to notice that the imports of butter into Britain from all sources promise to be larger this year, i.e., from July 1, 1905, onward, than last, but it remains to be seen whether they will equal those of the year before. At that time the total amount of imports registered was 212,050 tons, as against 151,886 tons the year before. Until last year the growth of butter imports was continuous, but for the twelve months ending June 30, 1905, there was a decrease of 15,046 tons—a very considerable falling off. Almost the sole cause for this heavy deficiency was the very serious drought which prevailed in the centre and south of the European continent, and which caused many of those continental firms who hitherto had sent over heavy shipments to this market to give their attention to the European demand. This state of affairs was bad enough during the first six months of the period under review, but the latter six months was even worse, for the shortage of butter registered during the latter six months was 10,000 tons, whereas during the first six months it had been just under six thousand tons. In addition to this, statistics show that Russian butter, which for the most part consisted of Siberian, had fallen off in quantity to the extent of some four thousand five hundred tons, and practically all this shortage occurred during the last six months.

But it is at least satisfactory to note that while the imports of butter from foreign sources resulted in this very heavy deficiency, colonial receipts increased to the extent of 6,612 tons, making a total of 50,880 tons for the period ending June 30, 1905, as against 45,370 tons the year before. For the three years previous to that colonial supplies decreased every time.

It is, furthermore, pleasant to note that Canada's exports of butter to Britain last year were larger than they have ever been before, except in 1903. The following table shows Britain's imports of Canadian butter during the past six years:

1901	7,532 tons
1902	11,491 tons
1903	13,238 tons
1904	8,879 tons

Although it would scarcely be safe to prophesy that the present is to be Canada's record year, it nevertheless augurs well for the Dominion that the import of butter for July, 1905, is registered at 65,003 cwts. as against 43,913 cwts. in July, 1904, and for the first three weeks of August, 1905, Britain has received from Canada 56,893 cwts. as against 55,328 cwts. during the whole of August, 1904. This is an eminently satisfactory state of affairs, and Canadians may well indulge in some little self-satisfaction, particularly in view of the stiffish prices they have been asking. But at the same time it must be borne in mind that circumstances, in the form of shortage in continental supplies, have been in their favor, and although the drought, which was responsible for the decrease in foreign receipts, still continues on the European continent, Australasian buttermakers are promising to turn out some very heavy supplies, and importers here are hoping that they will not be forced to accept the high prices which Canadians seem inclined to ask. However, latest advices show that Canadians are inclined to ease off somewhat at present, a thing which certainly does seem advisable.

Since the above was written the latest reports have been published, advising a steady market with medium trade done. Canadian c.i.f. prices are meeting with no response, as they allow of practically no profit. The retail trade is buying in very small quantities.

There has been heavy buying in New Zealand at prices ranging from 104s. to 105s., c.i.f. These contracts are for shipment from October to March. How buyers will come out at the end of the season no one can tell.

August has been a very dull month, taking it right through, but Russian butter, being able to stand the weather better on account of its being of a waxy nature and drier than many other butters, has commanded the attention which it deserves. At the time it sells at about 98s. to 102s.

The Montrose has arrived from Canada this week with supplies of butter, and the comment has been to the effect "that our western friends would do well to add a little less water to their butter." The stuff in question was very much "pickled," and difficult to sell.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

TORONTO.

Considerable activity continues in all lines of provisions, stocks held are very light and arrivals are scarcely sufficient to keep things forward. The low range of prices prevailing last season is being reflected by short supplies, farmers, on that account, not having encouraged the increase of hog stocks.

There is a general stiffening, all bacon has advanced. Short cuts have risen 50c. In fresh meats, there is an easier market and trade has eased off somewhat. We quote.

MONTREAL.

Much unsteadiness is at present ruling in provisions. In fact the leading lines are on the weak side at a decline. Live hogs are now quoted at $6.50 to $6.55. This shows a considerable fall since last week. Dresed hogs are also lower at $9.00; both are lower on account of very little exportation, thus leaving on the market an amount of stock not wanted for home consumption. Bacon, steady at 14c. while hams remain firm at 13 1-2c. to 14 1-2c., stocks being light. We quote:

Butter—Butter is coming constantly in large lots and stocks are somewhat over supplied, for there is practically no local demand and exports are nil just at present. The result is a very weak market and consequently a near drop in prices. Finest creamery is offered at 21c. and fine at 20 1-2c. The medium grades have also been reduced from over 1c., but this does not seem to stir up buyers who are hoping for still easier conditions. We quote:

Finest creamery	0 21
Fine	0 20½
Medium	0 20
Fresh dairy tubs	0 18½ 0 19

Cheese—This market is absolutely in the same quiet mood as butter. In fact no demand seems to spring up, while shipments are accumulating in the local stores without dealers seeing very clear how to dispose of it as at present exports are only nominal. Ontario is quoted at 11 1-2c., Eastern Townships at 11 1-4c. and Quebecs at 11.

Eggs—The market is lower, although a fair demand prevails. The fact is that stocks are much too large for home consumption and that dealers cannot dispose of them otherwise as no exports of eggs are made at present. Prices are for select 22c., and for straight, 18c.

Provisions.

While barrel pork is tending higher, dealers are not free buyers. Stocks are light and demand the same. In beef there is little inquiry, the stock is very small. Prices are firm. Pure lard in rather light supply. Prices are high. Refined continues low and unchanged. In fresh meats market is dull. Beef continues low. Veal and mutton out of season. Lamb sells freely and holds at a good figure. Pork is still in very light receipt. We quote:

GREEN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

EXPORT APPLE TRADE.

MR. R. LLOYD SCOTT and Mr. J. Idieus, of London, Eng., representing two of the leading fruit importers of Great Britain, have come to Canada as a result of the manufacturers' visit to England, with a view to extending the apple trade. These gentlemen say the demand for Canadian apples in the London market is increasing yearly, but that much is lost to Canadian farmers by the fraud of the packers and shippers, who put all the best fruit on the top and centre the poor stuff. The effect of this is a move among the larger houses to cut out the Canadian commission men altogether and buy direct.

The price of good apples runs from $3.50 to $5 per barrel, on each of which a commission of about 50c is paid to Canadian commission men. When it is considered that from 20,000 to 30,000 barrels are sold at Covent Garden market in one day alone, the amount of money paid in commissions may be imagined.

English apple dealers think that by buying direct and supervising the packing and shipping they will save a large amount of money.

Mr. H. B. Cowan, as secretary of the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association, has been requested by the other officers of the society to arrange for a committee to appear before the Tariff Commission to express the views of the vegetable growers in regard to an increase of duty upon their products.

THE CALIFORNIA ORANGE.

THE importance of California's orange industry dates back practically to the winter of 1878-79, when there came into bearing near Riverside two trees of seedless fruit. These had been obtained by the Department of Agriculture of the United States from Bahia, Brazil. They were the first seedless oranges to be grown in North America, and, though it is stated that the first crop amounted to only 16 oranges, this was the beginning upon which California has based her steadily growing orange industry, until it is now claimed that the current year may show almost 11,000,000 boxes in that State, which would be more than the total production of the United States in any previous year.

In spite of this enormous growth in the production of oranges, Uncle Sam still has to import some each year to make up the deficiency of the home supply. In the last five years the average value of imports of oranges to the United States amounted to more than $900,000 a year.

Of these, a half came from the British West Indies, a quarter from Italy, with Mexico the next largest source of supply.

In the same five years exports of oranges to the United States averaged about $350,000, Canada taking 85 per cent., and the United Kingdom 12 per cent. of the total.

NEW RAISIN COMPANY.

A new company is under contemplation in California, which will practically be an amalgamation of raisin growers and packers. The Raisin Growers' Co. endorsed the proposition by a vote of 8,647 to 3,191, each vote representing an acre. There are some 40,000 acres already subscribed to the company.

It is to be controlled equally by growers and packers, with a neutral director as balance of power. The name of the company is to be the Central California Raisin Packing Co. The packers are to be remunerated on a basis of $5 per ton for selling the crop, and are assured a 40,000 tonnage.

Green Fruits.

Montreal, Sept. 14, 1905.

This week's fruit trade has seen a general drop in prices and consequently a regaining of activity. Many lines which were slowly moving have benefitted by this rebate. The reduction was due to the fact that arrivals of fruits were constantly increasing and local stocks not moving very fast, thus causing, in some cases, an accumulation of stock.

At an auction on Monday fruit sold as follows: One car of Colorado Bartlett pears, at from $2.00 to $2.80; one car of Idaho prunes, $1.00 to $1.25; one car of California peaches, $1.00 to $1.25.

The decline predicted for bananas has been fully realized by dealers, supplies and receipts being larger. In fact, last week came in nineteen cars of these fruits and the week previous twenty-one cars, thus filling up a long felt shortage and helping dealers to make a reduction.

Some oranges have been sold in barrels at $7.00. Pineapples are still on the market, though scarce, and are offered at from $4.50 to $5.00 per box. Blueberries have almost disappeared; what remains brings about $1.15 to $1.25 per box. Lemons, in some cases, have also been reduced, but not considerably. Some dealers are still asking $6.00 to $7.00 for

Mr. P. C. Larkin has left to visit the branches of the "Salada" Tea Company in New York and Boston.

Napoleon Chartrand, ex-president of the Montreal Retail Grocers' Association, was in Toronto for the Exhibition.

Crawford Griffin, of J. Y. Griffin & Co., Limited, Winnipeg, is away from the office this week on account of illness.

J. Russell Murray, Montreal, commission merchant, has been in Toronto during Exhibition combining business with pleasure.

Wm. Georgeson, of the firm of Codville & Co., Winnipeg, has returned to that city from a flying business trip to Toronto.

Bruce & Sanderson, Parliament street, Toronto, are putting in new fittings in hardwood and plate glass and also a new cash register.

Thomas Cunningham, Provincial Fruit Inspector of British Columbia, was in Rossland last week on one of his periodic trips of inspection.

Jules Cote, secretary and manager of the S. J. Major Co., Limited, Ottawa, was in Toronto during Exhibition, combining business with pleasure.

The annual meeting of the Dominion Millers' Association took place in the Board of Trade building on the 31st ult. Better freight rate arrangements were discussed.

Mr. Alex. Grose, Pilot Mound, Man., who for a number of years has been clerk in W. Endicott's general store, will shortly take over the bakery and confectionery business which he has purchased from Mr. W. H. McGregor.

The final returns in the retort count of the sockeye salmon pack at all the canneries on the Fraser River, thirty-eight in number, were received in Vancouver, B.C., on the 1st inst. The official figures place the aggregate pack at 782,442 cases.

L. L. Bernard, who has been for the past ten years with Evans & Sons, Limited, wholesale druggists, Montreal, has left them to enter the travelling staff of S. H. Ewing & Sons, Montreal. He will travel in the Province of Quebec on the same ground as before.

Mr. H. Hedley Shaw, president of the Shaw Milling Company, St. Catharines, has concluded arrangements for the lease of the Frontenac Cereal Company's mill, Kingston, which he will operate to the fullest extent. The capacity of the elevator is some 200,000 bushels.

The Booth Fishing Station on Cat Island, Fort William, has been washed away by the great storm on the 3rd inst. The island was completely submerged and there is nothing now left to indicate the location of the station except a small portion of the pier.

Gilbert Wheeler has secured a position with the Gillett Co., manufacturers of lye. Mr. Wheeler will act as advertising agent, and will tour the country in an automobile advertising the goods of the Gillett Company. Until recently Mr. Wheeler was with Goold, Shapley & Muir.

W. H. McLaren, of Hamilton, head of the Hamilton Coffee and Spice Company passed through Winnipeg the other day on his return to Hamilton from a trip to the Pacific Coast. Mr. McLaren spent a few hours in Winnipeg in consultation with the western manager of his firm, Mr. Wm. R. Harvey.

Mr. D. H. Ross has cabled the Trade and Commerce Department from Melbourne that the Commonwealth Government has added, for duty purposes, in case of articles shipped from the United States and Canada, the freight rate to San Francisco and Vancouver respectively. This will have a serious effect upon Canada's trade with Australia.

The Prescott Terminal Company on account of the large crop in the American and Canadian Northwest both of wheat and corn, will immediately fit up the elevator at Prescott and have it running within a month. The elevator was erected in 1895 and for two or three years did an excellent business, but for the past six years has been unremunerative and a short time ago was sold under the hammer to the present owners.

The members of the Montreal Produce Merchants' Association of the Board of Trade, recently adjourned for a short time, at the call of Mr. Harry A. Hodgson, to the committee room, out of respect for the memory of Mr. John Orpe, a well known member of the association, whose death occurred on the Saturday previous. There were present at the meeting, Pres. Henry A. Hodgson, John McKergow, J. H. Scott, Alex. Grant, I. Hibbert, A. C. H. Froemcke, Alfred Brice, Ernest Brice, Arthur Hodgson, R. M. Ballantyne, Alex. McGillis, A. C. Wieland, John Gunn and others.

Flour and Cereal Foods

OLD AND NEW WHEAT.

THE following interesting article appeared in a recent issue of the American Miller. Doubtless many of our readers have been aware of the distinctive merits of old wheat flours from practical experience; to know, however, the exact reason why, is a point of great importance, and we commend the following to our interested readers:

There is always a demand for old wheat flour a long time after the new crop comes in. This demand is not only from the city baker, who makes quality and conditions of flour a life study, but it extends even to the rural districts where the good farmer's wife has learned that she can get best results from old wheat flour.

This distinction between old and new wheat flours has existed only in later years, since farmers have adopted the practice of thrashing their wheat out of shock directly after cutting. When they made it a rule to put their wheat in stacks, ricks or barns, and allowed it to remain until all the elements that go to make up a perfect berry had passed from the straw into the grain, there was seldom any choice between the two flours. Then the grain was allowed to pass through the sweating period and become perfectly matured. It was not difficult then for the miller to make flour that would produce good bread the same day it was ground.

Now, as conditions have changed so materially, we must look for and practice the next best thing. It is contended that a good practice would be to grind and hold the flour for six months, when it would be suitable for bread-making purposes.

If the new wheat is ground as it comes to the mill, it is liable to become infested with eggs that soon hatch into worms. If it does not, consider how long one must be kept out of the use of the money he has invested in the wheat and the cost of manufacturing it into flour. Besides this, the flour will not be as good as if made from old wheat, for the simple reason that the wheat has not gone through the sweat, and, to a certain extent, the sweating will take place in the flour greatly to its detriment. I am thoroughly convinced that flour made from old wheat will give bakers better satisfaction six weeks after being ground than will that made from new wheat thrashed out of shock in six months after being ground.

As suggested, to keep the flour six months after grinding from new wheat is one way to satisfy the trade. The next is to have sufficient storage room to store enough old wheat to supply the trade with old wheat flour until the new is fit to grind. Do not imagine that customers are cranks and don't know what they are talking about when they say they must have old wheat flour.

WHEAT BETTER QUALITY.

First samples of the season's wheat from the Northwest have arrived at Montreal, and were shown on the board of trade by the Lake of the Woods Milling Co. Mr. Robert Meighen, president of the company, said that from a milling standpoint it was a much better article than that furnished by last year's crop, and the indications were that this year's crop would be on the whole much more valuable for flouring purposes than last year's.

WINNIPEG GRAIN INSPECTION.

THE year 1904 as a crop year may now be considered as closed, and some interesting statistics have been compiled at the office of the Chief Grain Inspector, Winnipeg, which are instructive as showing the amount of labor involved in order to secure accurate calculations as to crop results.

During the twelve months extending from September 1, 1904, to August 31 of this year, the total wheat inspected was 37,892 cars, or 39,028,760 bushels, compared with 38,447 cars and 38,473,000 bushels of the previous crop year, and 51,833 cars and 51,833,000 bushels in the crop year of 1902-1903.

In addition to the wheat inspected this year, there were 1,824 cars of oats, 390 barley, 288 flax, and 2 of speltz. The total quantity of grain inspected during the crop year just ended was as follows: Wheat, 30,028,760; oats, 2,188,800; barley, 390,000; flax, 288,000; speltz, 2,000; total inspected, 41,897,560.

The main vicissitudes through which the crop had to pass during July and August last year, when rust worked havoc, is shown in the reduced quality of the crop, and while last year's production compares favorably with that of the previous year, it falls far short of the standard set by the yield of the year 1901-1902. No. 1 Hard for which the west is famous, was an unknown quantity in this past crop year, only 176 cars being inspected. The bulk of the crop was 1, 2, 3 Northern, with the two latter grades in the lead. However, despite the short crop, the farmers realized more for their product last year than ever before, owing to the prevalence of extreme high prices.

CEREAL NOTES.

Texas led the Gulf Coast rice belt this season by putting the first bag of new rice into Houston on July 31, ten days ahead of last year's record. It was raised at Notawa, Texas, and was classed as fancy Honduras, and fetched $13.

The Railway Commission have issued an order practically refusing the application of the American Cereal Co. of Peterboro for an order establishing a basis of rates on ex-lake grain. The commission, in their judgment, express the opinion that no change in export rates should be made except those directed by them in response to the complaint of the Dominion Millers' Association.

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

TOBACCO CROP CONDITIONS.

REPORTS coming to hand of the condition of the tobacco crops in various districts are of value at the present time as indicating the probable outlook for future markets. In the American "Western" districts reports denote a harvest of fairly good quality, the leaf is broadening and thickening well, more sunshine is needed to perfect the ripening; cutting, however, has begun in many districts. There are complaints of damage by the early wet weather, and worms have been giving a measure of trouble. Generally speaking quality is good, but not over-abundant.

In the more "Central" districts reports are not so favorable, the excessive wet which troubled the main sections of this farming district has had a very damaging effect on the plants, suckers have made their appearance, house burning is in evidence, and consequently curing is delayed. A good deal is cut, and if fine weather continues the crop will be housed at a very early date.

About same conditions prevail in "Eastern" portions of the western belts. The crops, however, have made considerable advance during last month. Worms have made their appearance, and in the low lands there is much swamp, causing unevenness of growth. The early planted tobacco is reported good, but the late was more affected by the wet, and attacked by insects, only moderate results are therefore looked for.

In Virginia the reports are more favorable, although a good deal of anxiety has been felt, handling has been somewhat difficult on account of bad effects of the wet season. Color, however, is reported good, whilst quality is indifferent. The output is expected to be smaller than last season's in this section.

In New York State, cutting has become general, and advices have it that within a few days the major crop will be harvested. The acreage under cultivation in this State is scarcely more than half of last year. Owing to the difficulties in cultivation, many farmers plowed up their fields for other crops.

In the Connecticut Valley reports are much more favorable, a few days will finish the harvest, which is acknowledged to be a very fine crop.

The New England tobacco crop gives promise of turning out very good in quality, although a definite and final decision cannot be arrived at until the final cure. The result per acre promises to be good, some experts saying in advance of last season.

The general conditions throughout would rather denote a fairly full crop of only fairly good quality, with good color, and at prices about same range as last year.

CALCUTTA CIGARETTE FACTORY.

DURING the year ending June 1905, Calcutta imported upwards of 584,000,000 cigarettes, 385,000,000 of which were imported from Great Britain, the remainder mainly from China, Egypt, and U. S. The habit is increasing rapidly and has evidently rooted itself into the Indian customs, so much so that a syndicate has been formed who are erecting a small plant at Calcutta for the purpose of manufacturing the faccinating cigarette, and propose to use native grown tobacco for the purpose.

TO PRESERVE TOBACCO STOCKS.

A DEVICE has been perfected by a company in Indianapolis which it is claimed will make it possible for cigars and tobaccos to be kept on display for several weeks without losing flavor or becoming dry.

The invention consists of a cigar display case and wall case that is perfectly air-tight. The case is very handsome in design and manufacturers say they will supply a long felt want for tobacco dealers.

The bases of the display cases are faced with a bevel plate and opal glass lined with two thicknesses of waterproof paper and filled with granite rock wool. This, it is claimed, makes a complete insulation. The base is made of a peculiar kind of glass that is easily cleaned and will not scuff.

The top of the case is made with two thicknesses of bevel plate glass, there being an air space of about three-fourths of an inch between the glass surfaces. The lids open upward. The interior of the upper section is fitted with a series of moisteners, which are circular in shape. The moisteners are lined with granite rock wool and will retain water for three months without being redampened.

The moisteners are set directly under the case lids. In opening the case a fresh supply of air rushes in and as the lid is lowered it forces a current of air down upon the water laden tubes. It is claimed that a current of moist air will be forced down through the case every time it is opened and shut. Owing to the peculiar construction of the invention, no air can get in or out as long as the doors are unopened.

The interior of the storage compartments of the cases is arranged so that one brand of tobacco may be handled without affecting or touching other brands.

importations of cigars, cigarettes and tobacco into the Transvaal during the year 1904 were as follows: 3,733,720 cigars, valued at $89,180; 44,188,950 cigarettes, valued at $148,620; 183,782 pounds of manufactured tobacco, valued at $72,915; and 460,078 pounds of unmanufactured tobacco, valued at $58,618. During the year 1903 the importations were as follows: 3,531,650 cigars, valued at $85,542; 33,247,150 cigarettes, valued at $124,605; 88,124 pounds of manufactured tobacco, valued at $47,275, and 397,614 pounds of unmanufactured tobacco, valued at $49,570.

During the year of 1903 the values of the exports of all kinds of tobacco from Great Britain to her South African colonies were as follows: Exports to Cape Colony, $459,146; to Natal, $184,925; or a total of $644,071.

TOBACCO LEAF EXTRAORDINARY.

A farmer six miles east of the city of Orson Coon is raising twelve acres of tobacco which in size and quality is far superior to the general run of Southern Wisconsin leaf. Many of the leaves are a yard in length and average in width between a foot and a half and twenty inches. The fields are all of excellent quality and very even stand. It is believed that the crop will run at least 2,800 pounds to the acre. Mr. Coon, the farmer referred to, has two acres from Cuban seed, with which he has had much success and in this crop he takes particular pride. He holds the reputation of growing the best grade and of taking care of his fields in excellent style.

U. S. EXPORT TOBACCO.

There is a very marked decrease in the export of leaf tobacco from the U. S. for the past eleven months. There has been a falling off of upwards thirteen million pounds in that period, practically due to decline of trade with Great Britain and Europe. Exports have increased in other channels, notably Canada, Japan and France, but not in sufficient quantity to counterbalance the decrease referred to. On the other hand the imports of tobacco in the U.S. have materially increased by some eight million pounds, thus pointing to an enormous increase of domestic consumption, seeing that the home grown tobacco reports denote an upward tendency in productions.

DANGEROUS FEED ADULTERANT.

THE Pennsylvania Experiment Station has made a report upon a sample of bran submitted to it for examination by a Westmoreland county farmer. His cattle refused to eat it and his hogs that ate it sickened and died. An examination of the bran showed that it contained rice hulls, and the effect on the hogs and the sickening of such cattle as ate the stuff was explained.

The dangerous character of rice hulls or chaff as a feed ingredient is probably not fully realized. The stuff is practically without nourishment. The fiber is 34 per cent. The ash is over 18 per cent. It is the lowest in protein of any of the adulterants, containing only about 2½ per cent., and only a trace of fat. It is about one-seventh the feeding value of bran. Sawdust and sand would make quite as nutritious a duet as rice hulls. For purposes of nutrition they are worthless.

But they are worse than worthless; they are positively dangerous. This Pennsylvania farmer is not the first who has lost stock through ignorance of the character of the feed given them. The hulls contain sharp particles of silica, which is sand, that are irritating to the stomach and intestines of animals, producing sickness and death. In the South, where attempts were first made to use rice hulls as a stock food, the attempt was immediately given up, as it was seen that cattle and hogs died from the effects. Since then rice hulls have been used as an adulterant by ignorant or unscrupulous people.

In some localities millers have shipped in bran and found it adulterated with rice hulls. No miller can afford to be ignorant of the true character of this material or the means of detecting it. This last is easy. The unaided eye, a low power glass or even the feeling of the mixture will reveal the presence of rice hulls. They are almost as much a mineral as a vegetable product. Their use as a feedstuff should be prohibited by law in every State, as is already the case in Texas.—American Miller.

PEDDLING BREAD IN CHINA.

AMONG the many curious sights in China, none present stranger aspect to our eyes than the bread peddlers and their methods of disposing of their wares. They carry their stock in trade about with them, either in oval boxes strapped to their backs, or in two boxes depending from a yoke across the shoulders, or on trays held by a strap hung from the neck and carried in front of them.

In the city of Tien-Tsin these street vendors offer three different kinds of bread for sale. Two of these are twisted in oval shape, and the third is a thin, crisp cake sprinkled with seeds of sesame. But the peddler's bread is not more curious than his method of selling it, for it is frequently disposed of by raffle, for which purpose he carries three dice, held in a little dish.

In Peking, the capital of the Celestial Empire, the bread peddlers generally come from the province, mostly from Shan-Tung. They are called po-po sellers. Their street cry, "Yao-chin-mantoa" (Can I sell you a pound of bread?) is often heard until late in the evening.

Their bread is made of wheat flour and baked in hot vapors, distinguished from another kind which is baked in hot pans. They also sell several varieties of po-po, or baked goods, a special favorite with the Chinese being an oval oil cake made of the very best flour and usually eaten with pork, sausage or liver.

The Mahometans in China have a reputation for good bread, and evidently wish to be known as pure food advocates, for in order to enable customers to distinguish their wares from those of other vendors they ornament their carts or boxes with the Moslem emblem. This consists of a vase containing a branch of the olive tree, on the top of which is perched the Mahometan cap. On each side of this design is inscribed the motto "Pure and true Islam."

These Mahometan peddlers also sell a kind of patty filled with a mixture of meat, vegetables, oil and sago. Another of their products, which is called "la shouting ya chakuei," is a large roasted cake or dumpling baked in oil.

Many of these Chinese confections are much more appetizing than one would imagine from the description, but, like many foreign dishes, the taste for them must be acquired by cultivation before they can be thoroughly appreciated.

The average Chinaman eats very little bread prepared according to American formulas. Consequently, the bakery and confectionery shops are few and far between. Like all other stores in China, they are open in front, with no partition to protect them from the heat or cold or the dust of the streets. Wooden shutters are used to close them up at night.

One finds practically the same wares at the bakers' as the bread peddlers offer for sale. Among them is one special kind of cake having the figure of a hare imprinted on it, which is eaten by the Chinese in honor of the birthday of the moon. As soon as the festivities celebrating this anniversary are over the cakes are withdrawn from sale and are not again displayed until the next moon birthday, which corresponds in season to our Easter.—Living Church.

ELECTRIC ADVERTISING.

The most up-to-date electric advertising sign we have yet had the pleasure of seeing is one on front of E. W. Gillett Co.'s new factory, corner King and Duncan streets, Toronto, and no doubt many visiting merchants during the period of this year's Exhibition noticed the sign in question. The company make their own electric current, and must be complimented on the fine electrical display made every night during the Exhibition.

INDEPENDENT—SURE THING!

IT is easy to buy canned PEAS now at cost; also very easy to criticise them, but it takes a lot of study and hard work to produce a satisfactory canned pea. We hope that every Packer is producing the best pea possible. This will do more to increase the consumption than the cost prices. We are doing our best to make the "AUTUMN LEAF BRAND" just right. We have a few thousand cases more of the medium grade peas to offer at prices that will forever eliminate the Hawker in that line.

"AUTUMN LEAF BRAND CORN."—When it comes to nice fancy sweet sugar corn it is a 100 to one that we lead. Reasons why:—Our Manager learned the corn canning business with the world-renowned corn packer, J. W. Jones, of Portland, Me., commencing August, 1869, and followed the business from that time. He has a thorough technical knowledge as well as the practical experience of all these years, with and at the head of some of the oldest and largest Packers in the U.S., as well as with the most important Packer in Canada. If you want more proof, and the best line of canned corn, ask for the "Autumn Leaf Brand."

Western Association News and Topics

Address all communications for this department to THE CANADIAN GROCER, 511 Union Bank Building, Winnipeg, Man.

OFFICERS OF THE ASSOCIATION.

President, T. J. Lawlor, Killarney, Man.; 1st vice-president, H. C. Hamelin, Lauder, Man.; 2nd vice-president, J. D. Baine, Boissevain, Man.; treasurer, Robert Rollins, Killarney; secretary and organizer, W. A. Coulson, Williamson block, Notre Dame avenue, Winnipeg.

Executive: A. G. Munro, Morden, Man.; A. E. Hill, Griswold, Man.; W. G. McLaren, Souris, Man.; J. Brown, Neepawa, Man.; R. F. Moore, Cartwright, Man.; F. W. Clingan, Virden, Man.; N. D. McKinnon, Weyburn, Sask.; G. C. Sayles, Elva, Man.; E. H. Glinz, Oak River, Man.; W. Ledoux, Arnaud, Man.

IN this week's issue The Grocer is pleased to be able to present further evidence of the substantial progress which is being made in the association work. Through the courtesy of Secretary Coulson, who, although very busy promoting the organization in the country, always finds time to keep this paper informed, we are able to publish this week the following lengthy and encouraging list of new members secured in the last three weeks:

Hamiota.—J. Arnovitch, Ovans Bros., Wm. Chambers, Geo. Elliott, G. L. Thomas, Brady & Moore.

Harding.—Reed & Spence, Fred Dundas.

Bradwardine.—A. E. Fensom, Butler & Cascaden.

Lenore.—Carscadden Bros., Alf. Fulcher.

Westwood.—Geo. Brown, H. Bicknell.

Forrest.—Clifton Watkins.

Carnegie.—W. A. Pierson.

Miniota.—Jas. Forsyth & Co., A. Ross, W. L. Hodnett.

Arrow River.—W. L. Hodnett.

Crandell.—Brown & Warren, James Todd.

Pendennis.—Chas. Fox, O. L. Stewart.

Kenton.—E. W. McLean, S. T. Atkinson.

Wellwood.—C. E. Titus, Dalton & Co., E. Beeman.

Eden.—S. Patmore, Kerr & Graham.

Arden.—McCamis & Boughton, E. G. Hipwell.

Neepawa.—J. Brown Co. Limited, J. A. Clare, A. E. Fremlin, J. E. Fulton, Tritt & Shragge, J. V. Smith & Son.

Gladstone.—A. W. White, Galloway Bros., S. Schooley, Broadfoot Bros.

Birtle.—Miller & Co., H. A. Manwaring, J. Walley & Son, Hougle & Wickware.

Rossburn.—Hougle & Wickware.

Fox Warren.—Baker & Peters, Henry Leckie, J. M. McCrindle.

Franklin.—J. D. McDiarmid, A. M. Anderson.

Minnedosa.—Howard Leslie, N. Nystrone, Campbell Bros., Dickson Keyghley, J. D. McDiarmid, Wright & Co., Phelps & McCormick.

Clanwilliam.—J. D. McDiarmid, J. Brown Co.

McKenzieville.—E. Downton.

Brookdale.—J. W. Miller.

Rapid City.—Le Page Bros., Murray & Beattie.

In every respect the above list is highly encouraging and Secretary Coulson is to be congratulated upon the thoroughness with which he is doing the work. In one or two places the organization was delayed for a long time by the fact that not all the merchants were willing to join. It would have been foolish to have hurried on to other towns leaving the work only partly finished, for the success of the movement depends upon the united effort of every general merchant in a town.

Manitoba readers who are familiar with the towns included in the above list will appreciate the thoroughness of the organization in these towns. All qualified to join the association in these towns are now members.

During the last three weeks Secretary Coulson has been at work in the towns on the Hamiota, Lenore and Yorkton branches. In all places above Minnedosa on the Yorkton branch and in all the towns on the Hamiota and Lenore branches the stores have been handling tobacco at less than cost. As a result of the visit of the association organizer the merchants have come together, have seen the folly of their action, and have decided upon a definite, united course of conduct. On the 12th of September, the following notice was posted up in all the stores in the Hamiota-Lenore district:

"Notice.

"Owing to the advance in the price of tabaccos, we, the undersigned, are compelled to sell tobacco from this date until further notice at the following prices: T. & B., 3s, 30c; T. & B., 4s, 25c; T. & B., 9s, 10c; Briar, 10c; Prince of Wales, 10c; Lily, 10c. All other 10c packages and plugs to be sold at 10c straight. Signed:

"Hamiota.—Wm. Chambers, Geo. Elliott, Ovans Bros., Brady & Moore, G. L. Thomas, J. Arnovitch, P. Heddesheimer.

"Kenton.—S. T. Atkinson, E. W. McLaren, F. L. Cook, Barr Bros.

"Oak River.—E. H. Glinz, Wankel & Barr, Hess & Cochran, H. Parker.

"Miniota.—W. L. Hodnett, A. Ross & Co., J. D. Forsyth & Co.

"Harding.—F. C. Dundas, Reid & Spence, Jno. Adcock.

"Bradwardine.—A. E. Fensom, Butler & Cascaden.

"Lenore.—Carscadden Bros., Alf. Fulcher.

"Crandell.—Brawn & Warren, James Todd.

"Pendennis.—Chas. Fox, O. R. Stewart.

"Westwood.—Geo. Brown, H. Bicknell.

"Carnegie.—W. A. Pierson.

"Forrest.—Clifton Watkins.

"Arrow River.—W. L. Hodnett."

A similar notice has been posted up in Birtle and Foxwarren signed by the following merchants:

Birtle.—Walley & Son, H. A. Manwaring, Hough & Wickware, Miller & Co., I. Fitzpatrick, M. Chubb, L. C. Cann.

Foxwarren.—Barker Peters, H. Leckie, J. M. McCrindle.

On Wednesday of last week a successful meeting was held in Hamiota of the merchants in the Hamiota section comprising the towns of Hamiota, Kenton, Oak River, Harding and Bradwardine. Secretary Coulson attended the meeting, the object of which was to organize thoroughly that part of the country into a separate section. Prices were arranged on staples and produce and the agreed prices will be maintained throughout the whole of the Hamiota section.

The credit evil came in for thorough discussion and a decided stand will be taken by the Hamiota section on November 1st.

The gathering also discussed the compiling of a "dead beat" list for the section in order that each merchant may know how much is owed the various stores by those whose credit is not the best. Merchants will thus have a guide in the granting of credit during the credit months and in the worst cases all will stand together and refuse any credit whatever.

Similar organization has been effected in the Gladstone and Neepawa sections. The former comprises the towns of Gladstone, Plumas, Ogilvie, Keyes and Woodside.

A comprehensive schedule of prices on staples has been adopted to go into force at once. Mr. Collins of Galloway Bros. was appointed secretary for the Gladstone section.

The Neepawa section comprises the towns of Neepawa, Eden, Arden, McKenzieville, Franklin, Wellwood and Brookdale. J. A. Clare has been elected secretary of this important section and the organization has been thorough. A scale of prices practically the same as that obtaining in Gladstone has been adopted.

Last week saw the organization of the Hamiota, Lenore and McGregor branches completed, and this week the organizer is turning his attention to the Yorkton branch where there is much work to be done. Readers of The Canadian Grocer will be kept advised of the progress made in that important section.

Secretary Coulson writes that the time seems ripe for a strong effort toward the curtailment of credit. The proposal to shut off all credit on November 1st is being enthusiastically received by merchants in all parts of the country, and, moreover, it has the hearty endorsation of the wholesale interests. Any dealer who undertakes to adopt the association remedy and violates his agreement, thereby causing trouble for his neighbors, will lose the favor of his wholesale house—an important consideration. This is an aspect of the question which will be considered at length in next issue.

NOTES WORTH NOTING.

The shutting down of a great many of the small lumber mills in the Haliburton, Ont., district is having a serious effect upon the villages in that district. Many of the small stores are obliged to curtail their orders on account of the serious fall-off in trade through the shortage of money in the district, several hundred families being affected by the lack of employment.

The Keewatin Flour Milling Co. have just signed a contract for machinery equipment to the value of nearly $225,000, the greater part of which will be made in Canada by the Allis-Chalmers-Bullock Limited. The mill is to be one of the largest on the continent and will be capable of a 4,000-barrel capacity per diem. Provisions are being made, however, by the company for an emergency output of an additional 2,000 barrels. The power will be derived from the Lake of the Woods and electricity will be used wherever possible for the operation of the plant.

The construction of the two elevators at Rossburn, Man., is being hurried forward and they are expected to be ready to store this year's crop. The elevators will be a great convenience to farmers in the vicinity and will save the time formerly taken in hauling to Solsgirth, Kelloe and Shoal Lake.

Mr. W. H. McPhee, Hamilton, Ont., has been appointed Inspector of Foods for the Toronto district. Heretofore the Ontario districts have been worked from the head office at Montreal. The duties, however, have been too onerous, and a new system has been inaugurated culminating in the aforesaid appointment. Mr. McPhee will have charge of Hamilton, Toronto, Guelph and also the counties of Simcoe, Peel, York, Ontario, and the districts of Muskoka, Parry Sound and St. Catharines. The duties are to travel the different districts and make purchases of any foods suspected of adulteration, samples of which are forwarded to Montreal for analysis and reporting, and if found necessary prosecutions instituted.

The Horticultural Society of Hamilton opened on the 13th inst. their annual exhibition. The Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, the Hon. W. Mortimer Clark, was in attendance for the opening ceremony. The show was a very fine one and far surpassed any previous year's exhibition. From the standpoint of beauty, attraction and artistic display the show was the greatest possible success. There were upwards of three times the number of entries of last year, the greater part of the floral exhibits being from Hamilton and nearby districts. The fruit, however, which comprised apples, grapes, peaches and pears of every variety and size, was brought in from the Niagara Peninsula and a selection from the Ontario Agricultural College.

The Shefford Fruit Growers' Association held their annual exhibition at Granby on the 14th and 15th inst. New buildings have been erected at an expense of nearly four thousand dollars. The prizes aggregated about $1,200 and were paid to the winners on the spot. The competition was open. The attractions included a horse show, with special prizes.

Mr. F. M. Cockrell, the son of an ex-Senator in the United States, has invented a sugar cane cutter, which, if successful, is likely to revolutionize the sugar planting industries, and at the same time to bring considerable profit to its inventor. The machine, it is said, will do the work of more than a hundred men. It cuts, strips, and tops the cane, and experts who have seen it at work describe it as a mechanical marvel that promises as much for the sugar cane industry as the cotton gin has done for the cotton trade.

Advices from Chicago state that October 2nd is mentioned as the probable date for trial of the twenty-four packers and lawyers of corporations, under charges of combining to restrain commerce, accepting rebates, and interfering with Government witnesses. This action has quickly followed President Roosevelt's declaration that the prosecution of packers would be proceeded with.

The Canadian Minister of Marine, on his forthcoming visit to the Gulf, will make a call at Seven Islands, the headquarters of the Quebec Steam Whaling Co. The company has been encouraged by the success of the whaling industry off Newfoundland and has established a large plant at Seven Islands with every indication of making the business pay. Although somewhat late commencing operations this season the whalers of the Quebec company succeeded in killing twenty-three whales in twelve days. One whale alone gave 87 barrels of oil.

Recently a lobster in one of the aquarium tanks in England cast his skin. The process lasted about half an hour. A split appeared in the thin skin just in front of the first joint of the tail (abdomen), and through this opening the lobster slowly withdrew the forepart of his body, legs and feelers. Then with a jerk the tail was withdrawn. The old skin was left intact and absolutely perfect.

GOOD!
to the very last bit.
From the opening of the jar to the last morsel you scrape from the bottom,
MacLaren's Imperial Cheese
retains all the delicacy of flavor and rich creamy taste that makes it the perfect table cheese. The opal jar in which Imperial Cheese is put up keeps the cheese always as pure and sweet as it was when you broke the seal—never becomes hard or dry. And the fresh, clean, inviting look of the jar itself gives it an appetizing appearance on the table.
Imperial Cheese is ideal food, for it combines the highest percentage of nutrition with a taste so delightful that one wishes there were more such dainties.

RAISIN PRICES EXPECTED HIGH

There is a prospect of high opening prices on the 1905 crop of California loose and seeded raisins. The reports from Fresno are to the effect that the outlook does not favor a production of more than 90,000,000 pounds. Of this production, it is stated, a little less than half is in the hands of the packers-growers combination. There are no stocks of fancy or choice seeded carried over from last year, and the new crop will come on a bare market. Intimations from responsible sources on the coast indicate a high opening basis on both seeded and loose of the new crop. Speculative offerings of loose and seeded have been made by outside packers and seeders on terms guaranteed a shade lower than the basis to be fixed by the combination. The opening prices are looked for at an early date.

CO-OPERATIVE DAIRIES.

Prof. H. H. Dean, of the Ontario Agricultural College, returned a short time ago, from an extensive trip amongst the European dairies. He was very much impressed with what he saw, particularly in Denmark. He says that co-operation is the keynote of the success of the Danish dairy farmer.

Fresh and Cured Fish

SALMON TRAPS A SUCCESS.

THE success of the traps in the British Columbia salmon fishery appears to be pretty well an accepted fact. Perhaps nothing demonstrates it more certainly than the number of demands made for more sites, and that from many of the existing holders. It is said there are as many more locations available along the shore as are already in operation. The arguments against the traps have been fairly exploded. That the salmon is likely to be exterminated by their continued use is palpably incorrect. Under the old method, fish once caught must either be used or destroyed, but in the trap they can be kept for a week or more alive, beside which it is the most economical method of catching fish.

NATURE'S SCAVENGERS.

British Columbia canneries have little trouble with offal, as what one swiftly-running current does not take out to sea the army of dogfish devour. A gentleman was surprised to see a black mass of dogfish crowding close up to the wharf of a certain cannery. He got out a long gaff and was amusing himself spearing these fish, when the manager of the cannery said to him: "I dislike spoiling your sport, but I must ask you to stop. These dogfish, ugly and loathsome as they are, are my friends. If you kill a number of them, they will all leave and be shy about coming back. I encourage them and let them have full swing around here, as they are the best scavengers imaginable, and devour all the offal thrown from the cannery."

GROWTH OF B. C. SALMON PACK.

This year for the first time British Columbia will lead Puget Sound in extent of salmon pack. At the date the Puget Sound fishing closed the B. C. pack was still running and had then packed some six hundred and fifty thousand cases, fully one hundred thousand more cases than Puget Sound's total pack. The reason of this is that the Vancouver Island traps were taking fish and supplying canneries long before the run reached Fraser River or the Sound.

MUSICAL FISH.

Every bay and inlet on the coast of Ceylon abounds with musical fish. Their song, if it can be called a song, is not one sustained note like a bird's, but a multitude of tiny, soft, sweet sounds, each clear and distinct in itself, something like the vibrations of a wineglass when its rim is rubbed with the moistened finger. In the harbor at Bombay, India, there is a fish with a song like the sound produced by an aeolian harp.

FISH OUT-OF-WATER.

Many people think that fish when taken out of water die because air has a fatal effect on them. The real reason, however, is that their delicate gill filaments or membrances become dry and stick together, so that no air can pass between them. Thus they lose the power to imbibe the necessary oxygen, and the circulation of their blood stops. The painful gasping of a fish out of water is nature's efforts to free the passages through the filaments.

N.B. SARDINES ABUNDANT.

Sardines are reported to be showing in plenty at St. John. The last two seasons the fish have favored the American coast. This year, however, they have turned westward, with the result that an abundant supply is expected. Recently, two large boat loads were sent by the Sea Coast Packing Co. to their factory at Jones-port.

A STRANGE SPECIES.

A hundred eyeless fish have been brought to the surface from one of the wells of the Crude Oil Co., Whittier, Cal. The fish are transparent, and their blood is blue.

A CODFISH CATCH.

Twenty-two banking schooners arrived at Lunenburg last week with a combined catch of 11,275 quaintals, valued at about $60,000.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

NOTWITHSTANDING the heavy rates alleged to exist on the Georgian Bay routes a first rate trade is being done on the lakes and rivers incident to the export business to and from Montreal.

It was reported to The Grocer that in the announcement of rates from Fort William to Buffalo, etc., as quoted in the last issue, some exaggeration had been made and the probabilities were that some equability might be arrived at within a day or two. For instance the exports from Montreal are strong and the rates while not so high as the comlumber, 3,185 bundles lumber, 3,848 bundles staves, 12,985 bundles boards, 15 pieces timber, 3,266 bundles of flooring, 448 bundles headings, 1,761 bundles handles, also 31 organs, 126 bales cotton, 400 bags asbestos fibre. Then a number of other large steamers left port for Bristol and Manchester with equally large cargoes and of very similar variety of stock.

On the steamship Mount Temple for London and Antwerp there were 75,000 bushels odd of oats, also 8,000 odd sacks of flour and a quantity of wheat and barley, in addition to the 5,000 cases of

It is primarily to the preferential tariff that the Province owes a development of sugar refining which is destined to be of great importance. It was the existence of this tariff, providing as it

These rates are for general information only, and are subject to change at any time without notice; it is therefore important that all contracts must be reported by wire and confirmation obtained before closing with shippers, and unless specifically stated to be prompt shipment, or shipped within ten days after date of contract from the west.

The above rates are exchanged on basis of $4.80 to £1 Stg., excepting that when freight is prepaid, the ocean proportion of the through rate must be collected on basis of $4.86 to the pound sterling.

If freight is offered other than specified above, on which steamship connections are accustomed to quote a weight or measurement rate at their option, prompt replies will be facilitated by giving, when applying for rate, the relative weight and measurement of the merchandise.

It is understood that when reporting Sack Flour engagements, a carload is considered 28,000 lbs.

It is also important that shipper's name be given for every engagement made.

* Rates quoted in cents are per 100 lbs. † Per 2,240 lbs, No Primage via Montreal.

panies would like, are fair. The record of manifests tells a story that is convincing regarding the quantity of stuff going abroad.

For instance the Lake Erie, which sailed on the 7th of September, carried 45,000 bushels of barley and 42,857 bushels of corn, in addition to 550 sacks of flour, 500 of cereal foods, 1,471 boxes of cheese, 140 packages of bacon, 2,410 cases of meats, 6,118 packages of lard, 3,848 cases of salmon, 460 barrels of apples, 28,514 pieces deals, 2,163 pieces cereal foods and the lumber cargo which was very large. The Hungarian for example took for one portion of her cargo 55,000 bushels of wheat and 6,551 packages lard, a lot of cheese, 11,189 pieces deals and a lot of other lumber, also maple blocks in immense quantities and sundries, such as desks and furniture.

The Kastalia and the Pretorian for Glasgow had very large cargoes. The lake barges and steamers are very busy at good rates.

does for reduced duties on imports from British possessions, which encouraged the company to make the experiment of producing at least some of the sugar required for its own market.

To this end the mill and the entire estate of the Fiji Sugar Co. (a company operated from Bristol, England) was purchased, and operations begun with a total area of some 5,000 acres of cane ready to cut, from which, it is anticipated, some 7,000 tons of sugar will be produced during the present season.

LARD STATISTICS.

THE following concise summary of lard stocks compiled by the N. K. Fairbank Co. has been received by us and is revised to 1st inst.

Cable advices give the following estimates of the stocks of lard held in Europe and afloat, to which we add estimates of former years, and stocks in cities named :

Italy. Seeing this state of affairs would happen, White & Co., Limited, contracted ahead for their supplies at prices which at the time seemed out of reason. They have 1,100 boxes arriving within the next few days, which could be sold in the States at considerably above Toronto prices, but they prefer to bring them here and keep their large trade supplied at normal prices.

LARD STATISTICS.

The following comparative table of stocks of lard held in Europe and afloat on September 1, 1905 has been received from the W. K. Fairbank Co.:

THE SHORTAGE OF LEMONS.

The lemon situation has never in recent years had its equal for continued high prices and scarcity of fruit. In the matter of supplies, Toronto has been more fortunate than her sister markets in the States. Prices have reached as high as $10 per box in some instances. The reason given is the frost damage which killed about 60 per cent. of the Verdilli crop, and the continued warm Summer which was not only general on this continent but in Europe as well, and which drew heavily for supplies on

PEACHES IN ABUNDANCE.

Domestic peaches are coming to hand in great quantities, and in condition and quality superior to any of last season's arrivals.

It is particularly pleasing to note the advancement made in packing and selecting. Some of the recent arrivals have been made special objects of comment, notably a number of baskets arriving from Niagara Peninsula, which were perfect pictures of fruit, in selection, in uniformity, and in ripeness. The packers of these, W. Armstrong & Son, Queenston, have certainly succeeded in surmounting the difficulties of transit. White & Co., Limited, Toronto, are their agents.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, are offering a snap in the well known brand "John Bull" Pickles, put up in large 20 oz. bottles with patent top.

All dealers wanting Gem Jars should send in their orders at once to the Eby, Blain Co., Limited, who have a full stock of all sizes.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, are quoting at exceptionally low figures the well known brands, "Coupon" and "Quail" oats, each package containing a handsome dish or bowl.

White & Co. announce that they will again market the crop of the famous "Villalobas" vineyards, Almeria, Spain. These fancy pink-tinted grapes represent the finest that come from Spain and are noted for their long keeping qualities. They expect 1,000 barrels of this variety due in two or three weeks.

W. H. Millman & Sons, Toronto, report large sales of their new brand salmon, "Shamrock." The label is an excellent example of the lithographic art.

ANOTHER WORLD'S FAIR.

The Government of New Zealand has decided to hold, during the summer of 1906-7 (Nov. 1, 1906; April, 1907) an International Exhibition at Christchurch, Canterbury, New Zealand, in which all the nations of the world have been invited to participate. The object of the exhibition is educational and it is intended to demonstrate among other things the resources and possibilities of the colony as one of the world's food-producing factors.

Windsor Salt

must not be confounded with ordinary Salt. In quality, it is as high above the common Salt of trade as can be imagined. It won't cake—it is pure, white, dry. There is no impurity in it because of the care taken in manufacturing. It is sifted, not ground. Every particle of it is a separate Salt Crystal. It pays to sell Windsor Table Salt, because it is so good, clean, pure—

it is all Salt.

Lily White Gloss Starch

is that kind of a combination for the dealer.

When a stock of this well-known brand of Laundry Starch is put in, the grocer feels that he is not taking any long chances. It is distinctly a case of "backing the favorite." He knows it will "move"—and quickly. No bargain sales from tubs at the season's end of miscellaneous nondescripts. What a satisfaction it is to sell a Starch that you know from trial in your own home to be the "real thing."

Attractive packages, heavy advertising, everything in fact that could be done to help the grocer has been and will be done continuously.

COMMERCIAL TREASON.

TRUTH is not always the most pleasant news to hear. It is nevertheless the kindest for all concerned to speak plain and to the point. To be told that there are men right in our midst, and who are probably enjoying our confidence, nothing better than commercial traitors, is not pleasant reading.

Yet such really, in result, is the outcome of the latest news which has reached the export market. We are told that a consignment of cheese from Canada to Bristol, England, upon examination was found to have a filling of some spurious and foreign matter of an objectionable character, which upon close examination proved to be unmatured curd of several pounds weight, quite unusable.

The report is no idle talk, but is contained in an authentic communication from Mr. McKinnon, Government Commercial Agent at Bristol, confirmed by Dominion Dairy Commissioner Mr. J. A. Ruddick, who happened to be in the vicinity at the time of discovery. Its truth, therefore, cannot be questioned.

That it should have come just at the present moment is particularly inopportune. Canadian cheese has had an uphill fight in the export markets. American cheese has been running it pretty tight, mainly on account of the low price of the latter. Canada has, however, succeeded in securing a good front place, on account of the better quality of her cheese. Anything, therefore, of the character of a setback is particularly disappointing.

Exporters are rightly most indignant at such unscrupulous manipulation, and are unanimous in their denunciation of the maker whoever he may prove to be. Inquiry has, however, revealed the fact that such an occurrence is not altogether a new one. Some exporters have had, on several occasions, to make allowance for similar cause of complaint, although never of such a serious nature as the one under discussion.

It cannot for one moment be supposed that any maker of importance would knowingly allow such a discreditable act to be committed. If the cheese emanated from a factory of any importance, it was probably the act of an irresponsible employe, done to shield his own incompetency or carelessness, and unknown to his employer.

It is much more likely to have originated from some small maker, whose ideas were too narrow to see beyond his own momentary advantage, and who has need of a serious lesson in common honesty.

It is, however, no moment to waste time in conjecture. Whatever the cause and by whomsoever it was committed, it has occurred, and the occurrence stands forth as a "red flag" of warning.

A Suggested Remedy.

Nothing could have demonstrated more clearly the need of some definite system and legal protection in regard to export of all food stuffs. No single package of goods should lose its identity at any point of its transit. It should be a legal necessity that any article made for open market contain, at the point of production, some mark whereby the identity of its origin could be discovered at any point of its journey. This is of primary importance, and should be insisted on by buyers themselves. By keeping unmarked goods on a lower range of values, much could be accomplished in this regard. A producer of good products would willingly fall in line, in order to get the full value of his skill and care.

It should be a positive legal enactment the infringement of which should be punished by severe penalty, and if necessary compelling a person guilty of such reprehensive conduct as that under discussion to retire from the open market altogether. National reputation is at stake, and any person sufficiently blind as not to see the serious consequence of such conduct, proves himself incompetent to take part in the commercial arena and should be compelled to take a back place.

Quality alone counts in the great fight for commercial supremacy. The Canadian Grocer has again and again sought to enforce this on the dairy industries.

Quality and uniformity will alone hold the market of the world, and anything and everything must be done to secure a standard which will place Canadian products easily top of all others on the export market.

CANADIAN SALMON CONDITIONS.

THREE times in the history of salmon packing in British Columbia have the canneries put up a million cases of fish in the season—that is on the presumption, now fairly assured, that this year's total pack is up to an aggregate of a million cases. The year 1897 was the first year, and in 1901 the total pack was also up to the million mark. This year the pack is expected to aggregate that amount, but the Fraser River does not come up to the million mark alone. It takes the pack of all the canneries on northern waters of British Columbia, estimated in round figures at 200,000 cases, to bring the total up, the Fraser being estimated at 800,000 cases.

There may be some pessimistic sentiment abroad still with respect to the permanence of the quadrennial fourth year of plenty in the run of sockeye salmon on the Fraser River. It is even argued from the fact that not a million cases, but 800,000 cases is the pack, that there is evidence of a falling off in the "big run" of the fourth year. But there could have been a million cases packed. There was no lack of fish. To any one who saw the appalling and criminal waste of the finest salmon that runs, it is idle to talk of falling off in the pack. There were literally, absolutely millions of sockeye salmon destroyed, and many of them deliberately, wantonly destroyed.

To whose door the fault should be laid is a matter for official investigation. As far as the canneries are concerned, they were well equipped to take care of their full capacity, their employes were worked to the limit of endurance for long hours all through the run, and they did not have to wait for fish. There were fish in plenty brought to them. The fact is that the fish were caught in much greater quantities than the canneries could take care of while fresh. That explains the fact that such great quantities of fish were taken out to sea and thrown away, in some cases, it is alleged, whole scow-loads at a time. The run was short and very heavy while it lasted, but there was no necessity of catching such vast quantities of fish, when the canneries could not take care of them. Naturally the cheaper trap-caught fish were taken first. Then the fishermen who brought in their indi idual catches were limited to a delivery of 200 fish per boat per day. In many cases they would catch in their day or night drift on the river or gulf several hundred. The cannery would accept 200 and the rest had to be disposed of. These fish were in many cases simply dumped overboard. There was nothing else to do with them.

From some sources it would seem that officials are inclined to the view that even the fourth year, or year of the "big run," is failing. It is argued from this that the proper thing to do is to extend still further the artificial propagation, establishing more hatcheries. To that it is simply necessary to point out that in years of small run—for instance, last year—there was not quarter enough salmon ova secured to fill the hatcheries that then existed. It would appear that other very different measures are required to insure the perpetuation of the "big run" every fourth year.

The catch on Puget Sound, as the waters in the State of Washington are designated, while large was somewhat affected this year by the traps located on the south shore of Vancouver Island. Of this there can be no doubt. While it is perhaps deplorable that traps are a necessity, it is an incontrovertible fact that the British Columbia canners have simply no show as long as traps are allowed on the south side of the boundary. That is probably the only valid reason for allowing traps. But it is apparent that the catch per trap and per net must be regulated in times of a big run.

Though this is the third pack of a million cases in British Columbia it must not be altogether argued therefrom that the supply of salmon will be so large that the price will be low. Cost of production is mainly a fixed charge, varying but little, whether the pack is great or small. The market at the present time was perhaps never better cleaned up. Both British Columbia and United States salmon packers have in the past two years sold off all their old stocks, and any packs of lower grades of salmon, to the Japanese. The demand, too, has been good in other markets and some markets have greatly enlarged. Therefore it is not at all likely that salmon will be very much lower this year. The pack of the Columbia River, of the California rivers, and of the Alaska canneries can not be compared fairly to that of British Columbia, for the "big run" is confined to the Fraser River, and its contiguous sea waters, the Gulf of Georgia and Puget Sound.

THE U. S. SALMON PACK.

THE United States packing season has now passed the speculative stage, and results conclusively prove that abundance of fish have been secured. The salmon fishery on Puget Sound in American waters is fast drawing to a close and it is apparent that the much heralded second run is a failure. However, in commercial parlance the pack is "safe."

Notwithstanding all the mystery that has been thrown about the operation of the canneries this season it can be confidently asserted that far more salmon has been safely ensconced in cans than the public has been led to believe. A very conservative estimate is 650,000 cases; it is much more likely to be 700,000 when the returns are all in.

The abnormal feature of the situation is that a million-case pack would stand recorded on the American side were it not for a curious freak of nature beyond the control of man. In ordinary years the fresh water from the Fraser floods out into the Gulf and around in Mud Bay. The salmon follow it and are caught in the American traps. This year, however, the Fraser is very low and the fresh water does not extend to the traps across the line. The fish strike it before they reach Point Roberts and, striking it, stay in it, for once in the fresh water they will not go back to the salt. The result is that they miss the traps, which would otherwise get most of them, the run being comparatively small now, and come on direct to the estuary of the river whence they ascend to their various spawning grounds.

The increased number of traps off the southern shore of Vancouver, B.C., has also directly affected prospects in Sound waters. It is none the less a fact that a sockeye year has materialized in the regular four-year cycle, to prove which it is only necessary to instance the fact that the new purchasers of the Pacific American Fisheries plant have already far more than paid for the property in the amount of fish packed. At the receiver's sale the property was bid in for $310,000, and fish to the value of almost thrice that sum are now in the warehouses of the concern.

PROF. MAVOR'S REPORT.

A REPRESENTATIVE of The Canadian Grocer in Moosomin, Sask. last week called at the office of the Sutcliffe-Muir Milling Company. J. S. Sutcliffe, the president of the company, expressed himself as highly pleased with the outlook now that the crop seems to have come safely through the most critical stage. It was true that the first sample of wheat received at the mill was of poor quality, having a musty, disagreeable odor, but that sample of grain was an exception as the great bulk of the crop will grade high.

"Who is this Professor Mavor, who has been reporting unfavorably on our wheat growing capacity?" asked Mr. Sutcliffe. "Do you know anytning about him?"

The Grocer representative replied that he was personally acquainted with Professor Mavor and respected him most highly, but that he was forced to the conclusion that the learned professor had undertaken a work for which he was not very well qualified and that perhaps his prejudices against all Imperialistic movements had blinded his eyes to the obvious. Men very often find what they want to see.

"All I can say," replied Mr. Sutcliffe, "is that he is a very foolish man who would set bounds to the capabilities and possibilities of this northern country. I don't think that Professor Mavor is as well qualified to judge of these matters as any intelligent grain man in the west to say nothing of Dr. Saunders and Hugh McKellar, whose reports he apparently ignores."

"I am not an old man," continued Mr. Sutcliffe, "but I can remember when St. Paul and Minneapolis were referred to as the farthest Northwest, when they were upon the confines of civilization and when Fort Garry—this was before the days of Winnipeg—was a terra incognita. I remember a friend of mine made a business trip to Fort Garry from St. Paul and the journey was considered as extraordinary and venturesome as we now consider one of Lieut. Peary's exploring trips.

"Why, it isn't so many years since people were doubtful of the value of the Dakotas and as for the Canadian Northwest we believed it was all a frozen waste and good for nothing. Opinions have changed and perhaps the climate has, too. It is very foolish to set limits to what may be accomplished in this country."

NEW WHEAT GRADES LOW.

A NOTICEABLE feature in this year's crop of wheat arriving from the Northwest is the complete absence of wheat graded No. 1 hard.

From the extremely favorable weather that has prevailed, it was fully expected that at least a large portion would have graded No. 1 hard, but up to the present the wheat arriving had all been classed No. 1 or No. 2 Northern. The reason for this has not yet been explained.

VEGETABLE PRESERVATION.

"ADVANCEMENT" is an excellent motto; to business, it is life and being, not to advance means speedy commercial oblivion. Our canned industries have made remarkable progress, and have no doubt come to stay, we understand, however, that preserved vegetables in a new form will shortly be appearing on the Canadian market.

The new process of preservation is the result of recent experiments, and is such that the vegetables, though dried, retain all their natural freshness and aroma and require no preparation for the table beyond the usual boiling and seasoning.

A representative of The Grocer was shown numerous samples of carrots, turnips, French beans, cabbage, onions, mint, rhubarb, etc., and tested several of them by stewing. The vegetables turned out remarkably well, with good color and appearance, and it would be difficult in some cases to distinguish between the fresh fruit and the preserved.

The inventors of the process are enthusiastic over the boundless possibilities in store for these vegetables. They are being packed in neat metal boxes and the contents can be used altogether or in portions, as desired, without any risk of loss of whatever may be left for future use.

This style of preserved vegetable will be most welcome amongst those who do not care to use the tinned article. Samples have not yet reached Canada, but readers of The Grocer, who would like to receive samples or make close inquiries, may be put in touch with the packers by addressing the editorial department.

FLOUR MARKET PROSPECTS.

IT is now known for certain that the crops will come well up to early estimates. The danger of a possible disaster overtaking the crop before it could be harvested is now practically over, and a full and abundant harvest is assured.

The immediate effect of this record crop on the market is a decline in values. For some time prices have ranged far too high to encourage export trade, consequently that market has been, to say the least, indifferent.

The recent reduction of freight rates on flour made by the Railway Commission has also been of immense value as an incentive to trade. This concession will often mean just the difference between holding or letting loose the export trade.

Already export trade has commenced to boom. The fall in values is really the only thing which could have happened if trade was to revive. Prices on present basis can command a good run of trade, and millers are confidently expecting almost a record run of business.

Flour can now be placed on the English markets on the basis of say twenty-two to twenty-four shillings per 280 lbs. This price enables the baker to use a large quantity of Canadian in combination with other growths of flour, and makes it possible for bread to be retailed at the popular price of five pence, at which figure the consumption of bread in England shows a material increase. When prices reach the six pence margin bread consumption is immediately retrenched and cheap vegetables take its place.

The moment is opportune for Canadian exporters to push ahead and secure the English market without delay. Flour will in all probability show good grading this season, and with a record supply in reserve the thing to be done is to get first foot on the trade, as it is well known that large users of flour will stick to a grade of flour as long as it can be secured, in order to be certain of uniformity in their manufacture of bread.

A LESSON IN PACKING.

CANADIAN fruit growers can well take a lesson from California packers, to judge from the fine condition in which fruit is arriving this season.

A visit to the Toronto fruit market would prove to be time well spent for those interested in fruit packing.

Among other things seen there, the manner of packing the best grade grapes is worth noting. Not only are they packed regularly and uniformly, but are neatly laid in a covering of fibre netting which folds right over the top. Thus not only are they kept firm and secure without crushing, but the objectionable practice of pilfering whilst in transit is effectually prevented, and at the same time a current of air is allowed to get at them. The samples seen opened up in as good condition as when packed, with bloom on, and certainly added materially to their market value.

B. C. WINTER PREPARATIONS.

ALREADY the rapid movement of freight north to anticipate the close of the season's navigation on the Yukon has got well under way. The water in the Northern River is now very low and freight is pretty well piled up at White Horse. The outgoing steamers from Victoria and Vancouver continue to take all the cargo they can carry, and there are shipments left on the wharf every trip. The steamer Princess Beatrice, leaving here on the 11th, had not a square foot of space left, and there were still a hundred tons of cargo offering.

Of the 500 tons carried north by the Beatrice nearly all consisted of eggs, potatoes, vegetables, fruit and similar perishables. The bulk of the late shipments are of course of this nature, staples having been rushed forward long ago. The White Pass Railway Co. by offering special commodity rates in July and August endeavor to clear the way for these inevitable late shipments, but of course perishables, such as potatoes, apples, eggs and vegetables, are taken in as late as possible. The difficulty of providing food for the next eight months for the entire population of the Yukon presents itself very forcibly to transportation companies and merchants at this season of each year.

The 3,000 tons of cargo at White Horse awaiting transportation down the river would not be a great problem were it not for the fact that the quantity is being added to constantly and the navigation of the river is getting more difficult as the water is falling.

A big export flouring mill is now being erected at Calgary for the purpose of shipping flour to the Orient, most of it to Japan. The very rapid increase in the production of Fall wheat in Alberta, in the districts tributary to Calgary, makes the project not only feasible but very promising. In the Orient large quantities of soft wheat flour are purchased every year from Washington and California flour mills, and this trade is capable of very large increase. The Fall wheat from Alberta would rank with the soft wheat of the Pacific States in producing flour, and thus a most desirable market is awaiting it.

In connection with the development of power by the Vancouver Power Co.'s big waterpower at Lake Beautiful, the company is now in receipt of inquiries from flour millers who wish to secure power for mills to be located at Vancouver, the proposal being to ship the wheat from the Northwest, and manufacture on the coast, where a good market for both flour and by-products of the milling exists.

The Frye-Bruhn Co., large pork packers, of Seattle, are at the present time seeking a site in Vancouver for the erection of a plant with capacity sufficient to take care of a large part of the trade of this Province in the cured meat line. The intention is to bring hogs from the Northwest, and also to encourage local production till there would be a sufficient supply for the proposed packing house. The raising of hogs has not yet advanced in B. C. much beyond what is required for local demand in fresh pork.

Burnaby, one of the fruit growing districts close to the city of New Westminster, keeps up its reputation for second crop strawberries. As in past seasons, a quantity are on the market at $3 to $3.50 per case.

THE "SUGGESTION" SYSTEM.

HOW to get the benefit of your employes' brains as well as the output of their hands is the problem which has been solved by the National Cash Register Company at its factory in Dayton, Ohio. The means of solving the problem is the "suggestion system," which has been in effect at the Dayton factory since 1894, and which has in recent years been adopted to a greater or less extent in other factories.

The scheme of securing suggestions from employes has been carried out to a very complete extent at the N. C. R. factory, and arrangements have been made by which any suggestion from any member of the organization is easily and quickly brought to the attention of the authorities. The employes have taken hold with marked enthusiasm, and each year thousands of suggestions are received. For handling these and all complaints as well, a department of complaints and suggestions has been organized.

Any employe desiring to make a suggestion for the betterment of the tools, methods or output in his own or another department, writes it out on a slip of paper and drops it into a suggestion box; or, if he prefers, he writes it out on a manifolding autographic register, retaining the original copy and leaving the duplicate copy in the register. In all cases an employe signs his name to a suggestion, and also the name of the department in which he is employed. The suggestion boxes and autographic registers are distributed in all departments, and suggestions are collected from them twice a week by a representative of the Complaint and Suggestion Committee. Upon the receipt of a suggestion it is given a number, entered in a book provided for that purpose. The secretary of the committee then refers it to the head of the department to which the maker of the suggestion belongs, or to the party most directly interested, not disclosing the name of the suggester. It frequently happens that the suggestion concerns more than one department, in which case it is investigated through all of the departments, and its bearing on each considered. The original suggestion is never sent with the correspondence during the investigation, but it is retained in the office of the committee and a copy is made for investigation purposes, or the subject matter is embodied in the correspondence.

If, upon investigation, the suggestion proves practicable, it is put into effect and the originator is notified by letter, which authorizes him to receive one dollar from the cashier in payment for the suggestion. If, on the other hand, the suggestion is rejected, the author is duly notified.

Where possible the reasons for the rejection are given and in either case the suggester is encouraged to try again. At the end of each quarter the best suggestions are selected from those adopted during the three months past, and forty-four quarterly prizes are awarded. The amounts of these prizes vary from time to time. At present the value of the quarterly prizes is $750. Twenty-five prizes aggregating $450 are offered to the employes in the making division. Twelve prizes aggregating $200 are offered to the employes in the office division, and seven prizes aggregating $100 are offered to the members of the selling force. The prizes in both the making division and the office include a first and a second prize for foremen, heads of departments and assistants. They are eligible to compete for these prizes only.

A few examples of the suggestions may prove interesting. In the Indicator Department, where are printed the metal parts of the register which indicate the amount of a transaction recorded, it had been the practice for years to mix certain kinds of ink by stirring them in a bucket, then straining through a cloth. One of the women employes thinking this could be done better and more economically by machine, devised an apparatus, drew the plans and turned them over to the company. As a result the ink is now quickly and cheaply strained by a machine.

In the Typewriting Department the girls are constantly suggesting ways of saving time and labor, and in the office divisions new schemes for counting and recording are constantly being worked out. As one specific instance of how great a saving one suggestion made, it might be well to cite a suggestion recently made by which the expense of supplies for a certain kind of register is reduced nine cents per machine. This means a saving of $1,200 a year at the present time.

The pecuniary value to the company is not the only valuable result of the system. Under its encouragement the employes are taught to think for themselves and become more efficient workers. At the same time the man or woman who has originality is brought to the attention of the management, and in this way is placed in direct line for promotion.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

Quebec Markets.

GROCERIES.

Montreal, Sept. 21, 1905.

TRADE during the week among the grocery jobbers is reported as somewhat disappointing. The volume of business is small and when asked for reason for present dull conditions no one is prepared to state anything definite. Certain it is that trade is not as good as the country's reputed prosperity warrants. Farmers, dairymen, fruit growers, all have had a most prosperous year and it would be only logical to assume that orders should be good and plentiful and collections satisfactory.

The contrary appears to be the case and particularly as regards meeting of paper by country dealers there is serious ground for complaint.

It has been hinted that there is too much money withdrawn from legitimate trading channels by dealers and put into ventures and industries of one sort or another that are springing up throughout the country. Speculation also is hinted at, and no doubt with some measure of truth.

Instances are at hand where country merchants and farmers have withdrawn from legitimate business channels which are their mainstay money and investments and launched out into more or less plausibly advertised ventures, thus crippling not only themselves but affecting the general prosperity of the country.

The conditions of stringency reported from the west would indicate that too much money is being placed into land schemes and development ventures, to the detriment of trade generally.

As regards grocery matters the sugar market is giving aches and pains all round, and no one seems to know what to do or look forward to. Conditions are unsatisfactory to all but the consumer, who is approaching the 25 lbs. for a dollar period with apparent satisfaction. What the refiners think of the tobogganing going on is easy to guess. It would seem from latest New York and European reports that prices are going lower and will soon dig a hole in the cellar. For the sake of all, refiner, jobber and retailer, it is to be hoped that bottom may be shortly reached, and trading placed on a more satisfactory basis.

Teas are good stock and the market firm. All lines are strong and advancing. China Ping Sueys are sold almost like "trading jack-knives, unsight and unseen," as the boys have it. Scarcity and bare market are the stimulants. Ceylon greens and blacks are also firmer. Japans are doing good trade and latest reports from Yokohama place lowest obtainable at 15c. China blacks are stronger with fair business doing.

Molasses is steady. Better business is looked forward to shortly and the opinion seems to obtain that prices will advance, shortage of stocks being the argument.

Canned goods steady. Canadian Canners, Limited, prices on corn and tomatoes were given out to the trade last Friday and the prices, 85c and 82½c for corn and 95c and 92½c for tomatoes, were received with approval by the trade. Pack is expected to be up to 100 per cent. deliveries. American prices this year being now 95c to $1 f.o.b. factories will remove any chance of competition from that quarter.

Fish and oysters are improving in demand and good trade and prospects are reported by dealers. Oysters in bulk are coming in more freely and prices eased off 10c per gallon.

Flour, feed and produce are in fairly satisfactory condition.

Butter, cheese and eggs are all firmer and good business is in sight.

In foreign dried fruits an activity prevails in all lines and good business turning over.

Canned Goods—Not much activity is showing. Deliveries are continued of orders taken by the jobbing trade. The feature of this week is the issuance of the new prices on corn and tomatoes, the former being 85c for No. 1 group, and 82½c for No. 2; tomatoes 95c for No. 1 group, and 92½c for No. 2 group. These prices have met with satisfaction on the part of the trade, and despite the rumors that have been current during the past few days of the shortage of pack, jobbers anticipate receiving 100 per cent. deliveries. It is not expected that there will be any competition later on from American pack tomatoes, as was the case last year, as Baltimore and Jersey canners are asking 95c and $1 for standard 3s. Salmon is quoted at firm prices, and the rumor that some cutting had been indulged in lately seems not to have received much credence. The shortage of the pack at the coast would make the cutting of prices appear poor business. We quote:

Sugar—The sugar situation is weak. Buying has declined very much all round. Country buyers, as well as the jobbing trade, are looking forward to a still further decline. The New York market is very easy and prices are declining. New Orleans having started cutting a general reduction in prices is looked for. The European market is also very weak, and buyers abroad appear to be holding off on account of the weak position of the beet market. A decline of 10c is noted since our last issue, making granulated basis $4.70. This reduction took place on the 15th after issue of The Grocer.

Maple Products — Only a limited amount of business is done in maple products. Both sugar and syrup are in small demand but prices are unchanged. We quote :

Syrups and Molasses— The molasses conditions are unchanged. The same amount of business is turning over, and with the approach of the close of navigation not so many weeks off now, communications are that a better demand will spring up. Prices are held firm and holders of stocks, which are light, do not evince any inclination to come down. Corn syrups are showing an improvement in demand, and a good trade is looked for this Fall. These goods have been well received by the trade during the past few years and manufacturers report increased sales. We quote :

Coffee—The market generally shows weakness. New York advices to hand, however, report a firmness in Brazil, with advance in prices. Messrs. Watt, Scott & Goodacre, in their report under date of the 19th, say :

"The largest receipt of coffees at Rio and Santos is in the month of September ; beginning with the month of October a substantial decrease has always been the rule. This is the time for bears to make their onslaught. That they have been able to reduce Rio 7's only 3-16 to ¼c from the top shows the natural strength of the article.

"This week the New York option market has declined about 30 points. Rio 7's have declined 1-16 to ⅛c. Brazilian Exchange has declined ½d. The currency price of coffee in Santos is unchanged.

"The only market where coffees can be bought to advantage at the moment, is in Brazil. The business in milds, which has been fairly good from Europe for some time, is no longer possible."

Tea—The local tea market is in a very much improved condition and considerable trading is being done in all lines. Ceylon greens are much firmer for good quality teas. China blacks and greens (Ping Sueys) are firm, the latter scarce and being taken up readily. The Japan tea market shows a decided firmness and it is reported that nothing under 15c in Japan is obtainable. Locally a few lines of last year's low grades might be picked up at about 13c to 14c, but the quantity is very small and does not constitute a factor in the trade. Japan fannings and siftings very scarce, with very few offering. Cables received from Colombo advise Ceylon blacks firm at last quotations. Greens, only trifling supplies now being received. Foreign Dried Fruits—Currants: As the syndicate is now in working operation, the market seems to have steadied down to its normal basis, which is on a slightly lower plane than speculative figures, which at first obtained. S. S. Jaconxa, the last of the season, is now loading at Patras, and orders are going forward in fair volume.

Valencia Raisins : Without any reasonable cause, the market has experienced a slight decline, and prices this week are from 6d. to 1s. lower than our last report ; whether this will remain or reaction take place is difficult to say, but we should imagine, with the consuming season approaching, the probabilities are rather for an upward movement than otherwise.

Shelled almonds, which have been steadily offered at remarkably reasonable prices for some time past, have commenced to move upwards and quotations this week are probably 2s. higher than last, with a firm market to support this advance.

Shelled walnuts for immediate shipment are in small supply, and very firmly held, while new November shipments are quoted at about 4c. higher than current quotations.

Walnuts : As previously reported are poor crop in every growth and high prices may confidently be looked forward to.

Dates : Str. Umbilo was to have sailed from Bussorah on the 18th inst., probably the earliest sailing on record, and should reach New York about the 15th or 20th of October. Prices as yet have not been put out, but it is expected they will be reasonably low, as the crop is reported both large and fine.

Sultanas : As the crop has come to market in large quantities prices have receded from 2s. to 5s. according to quality, from figures which obtain for earliest shipment.

Figs : Comadras have shown a steady advance from open prices, and notwithstanding the crop of Turkish figs growers are very firm in their demand, and will look to see prices higher in future, rather than lower.

The position of California evaporated fruits continues strong. The enormous shortage in Santa Clara Valley, which will be about 25 to 40 per cent. of an average crop, will make prunes very firm and high. California seedless raisins are also quoted about 3c. higher than ever before and the outlook in California fruits this season is for higher and firm prices.

Rice and Tapioca—There are no changes to report in the situation of the rice market, firmness being the leading characteristic. Tapioca, which during the past month advanced considerably, still maintains its strong position. Business in these lines, however, does not show any surprising activity, but only the usual amount of business is being done. We quote :

Spices—The latest report from the New York market shows activity in all lines with increased grinding demand, especially for Cassias of all grades. The undertone is good throughout the list, due no doubt to the generally strong position in regard to supply and demand. The local market is firm and a fair amount of business doing. Fall orders are expected to be satisfactory. We quote :

Fish—Dealers report that fresh fish continue in great favor, and increased consumption is looked forward to. However, this week's trade shows little of interest. New haddies are still arriving but scarce. Fresh steak cod has gone up one cent owing to scarcity. British Columbia salt salmon is coming in limited quantity only, but price has not been altered as yet. Frozen dore is offered at 8 cents. Bulk oysters are arriving daily in fair quantity. There is a good demand reported for them, and as they

Sugar—The domestic trade continues active. A good run of orders is in evidence, but still has the character of hand-to-mouth supply. There is little confidence in the present situation; prices are by no means firm, and a drop appears to be expected without any apparent reason. The world indications are weak, but this is in measure due to the recent severe break in European speculation. Raws on foreign markets are still uncertain, a feature which naturally has influence on refined. No real indications of change are apparent for the immediate future, and previous quotations still rule. We quote :

Coffee—The consumption of coffee is fairly satisfactory, and a steady demand is manifest. Prices are unchanged. Foreign advices denote firmer markets. At several primal points stocks are being held against an expected advance. European advices represent an unsteady market, but prices unchanged. We quote :

Tea—Trade on the street has been fairly active, but no great interest is manifest. Some excellent samples have been in evidence, which should have induced greater buying. The English market continues remarkably firm for any teas showing good quality. Poor teas are passed by and have an inclination to weakness. The newer arrivals from primal markets are opening up in better condition than early samples. This is particularly so with Ceylons. Bidding has been active for all attractive grades. We quote :

Foreign Dried Fruits—No new feature of interest has developed since our last report. In most primal markets crops are collected and well forward for despatch. Currants continue firm. The basis is considered too low to allow of any downward movement. Valencia raisins are close on market; sample consignments are in the city and are showing up well. Almonds are firming up. Walnuts remain strong at opening prices. We quote :

Norwegian Smoked Sardines

are in the market to stay. You may as well stock now, as you will miss orders if you don't.

We have just received 500 cases Stavanger famous CROSSED FISH brand, and have 2,000 more cases on the way! Such figures are the strongest proof of the CROSSED FISH brand's popularity, and show conclusively there is an active demand for these goods.

OUR PRICES—There are some cheaper kinds of Norwegian Smoked Sardines, but the CROSSED FISH brand is the brand to build a trade on—not the kind your customer brings back. You can have

One case 100 ¼ tins for $11.50.
One case 50 ½ tins for $ 9.00.
One case 100 ½ tins for $17.00.

Lots of 5 cases or more, 50c. less per case.
Terms, net 30 days, or 1% off at 10 days.

You run absolutely no risk in ordering a trial case. CROSSED FISH Sardines are all carefully selected fish, preserved in finest olive oil; they appeal to the most fastidious, while their price is quite moderate. The highest tribute to their peerless quality is the numberless "Highest Awards" they have won wherever exhibited.

Grain, Flour and Feed.

Grain—Business has been slower since our last report. Arrivals have been coming in very slowly and demand only moderate. Prices of wheat have made a further decline. New oats are coming in in good condition, and show a slight advance of values. We quote:

Hides, Tallow, Skins and Wool—The market has settled somewhat to a steadier basis. The unhealthy competition between rival wholesale buyers has met with a check since our last report, having the effect of checking the unwarranted advances so noticeable of late. Prices have, in consequence, for the moment halted, and we are quoting previous prices, firm and steady. It is not at all unlikely that a downward tendency will be manifest at an early date. Manitoba Markets

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, Sept. 21st, 1905.)

Groceries.

ACTIVITY marks all departments of the wholesale grocery trade of Winnipeg, and large quantities of goods are being shipped this month. The demand for canned goods has been very strong since the beginning of the harvest season and the movement is still heavy.

Once again interest centres on the sugar market and in view of two ten cent declines last week, the trade are buying in very small quantities in what they believe to be a falling market. New prices have now been announced for almost all of the new season canned fruits and vegetables and they are quoted below under "canned goods." Dried fruits are in good demand and the entire foreign list, with the single exception of Valencia raisins, is very firm with a strong tendency towards further advances.

Sugar—Last week saw two declines, each of 10c., in the sugar market and in view of the pronounced tendency towards lower prices, the trade are well advised in buying only for immediate requirements. We quote:

Canned Goods—New prices on tomatoes, announced last week, show a marked decline as compared with the high prices that obtained all last year. New prices have now been announced on all new fruits and vegetables except peaches, pears, plums and pumpkins. We quote:

RETAINING TEA TRADE.

First prize essay, by Mr. E. G. Lockyear.

TO retain the tea trade in the hands of the grocer in these days of keen competition and combined monopoly requires a practical knowledge and personal study, as it is quite a trade of itself. Why should this important part of the trade be lost to the grocer? The reason is not far to seek. It has been studied too much from a remunerative standpoint, and we are slow to realize that we "must follow the times," and supply this article at a much smaller profit than of yore. Your leading features are to be considered: (1) "Leaf," "style," "liquor," and "flavor"; (2) sample various tea houses to obtain best value, liquor same on arrival; (3) obtain those teas suitable for the water and people of your district; (4) make it your personal study to meet the increased competition; (5) advertise your special blends on bags, parcels, and leading lines; (6) distribute handbills in your district showing price of tea; (7) if no tea ordered, enclose sample in box, parcel, or basket of groceries; (8) endeavor to get a good reputation for your teas; (9) always keep your teas uniform, so that you may be relied upon; (10) avoid cheap teas, they will do harm to your trade. It behooves every grocer in these go-ahead days, and especially this branch of the business, to thoroughly master it, leaving no stone unturned to increase what you have already got, and to do this we must leave behind the old-fashioned methods, and strive to hold our own.

MONTREAL WHOLESALE FAILURE.

Mr. D. H. Rennoldson, wholesale grocery sundries, 92 Youville square, Montreal, has consented to assign on demand of M. Herbert W. Smith. The petitioner, on application of Mr. Henry J. Elliot, his attorney, has been named as provisional guardian of the property. Mr. Rennoldson, it is expected, will be able to make satisfactory settlement and continue the business. Long credits and several serious retail failures which pressed him closely are given as the cause of the assignment.

A consignment of Spanish onions arrived this week for H. P. Eckardt & Co.

SOAP PROFITS

Certain articles of known quality have for a long time been used by dealers to advertise their business and increase their trade. These lines are offered at cut prices to draw custom for other goods.

Baby's Own Soap, the best and most popular Toilet Soap in Canada, has been one of the greatest sufferers in this way, and though the manufacturers have never changed their price, which is the same as that asked thirty years ago, yet the retailing price has gone from 40 cents down to 25 cents a box, at which price it can be bought in many stores in Canada.

While in no way responsible for this, yet the manufacturers have felt rather keenly for the retailers' loss of profit, and one of the ideas of changing the style of the firm and forming it into a limited liability corporation was that it would afford a means to offer the trader a chance to assure a permanent profit on this and the other lines made by this Company. This could be achieved by offering them an opportunity to secure at par shares in the New Company. Nor is this all for their benefit. While the sales of Bay's Own Soap have doubled in the last five years, and show a constant increase, yet it is easily seen that a much larger increase would result if the retailer knew he would share in the profits of the concern. And profits there will surely be.

Similar firms in England and the United States have seen their shares rise from par to two and three times their face value.

Until Oct. 1st we will reserve the entire amount offered for subscription for the trade. After that date subscriptions from the public will be allotted in order of priority of application. We have no agents offering our stock, so if you wish to secure any, kindly communicate with us at once.

Prospectus will be sent on application.

THE EBY-BLAIN CO., LIMITED, AT CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION.

WHOLESALE grocery houses don't as a rule pretend to do more than act as handlers of merchandise for manufacturers and to protect, as far as possible, the best interests of the retail trade by procuring at the minimum cost only pure and wholesome foods. It is therefore a sign of unusual business enterprise when a wholesale grocery house takes the initiative to branch out with independent lines of their own as The Eby-Blain Co., Limited, have done with such signal success. This really up-to-date house now does probably the largest strictly grocery business to-day in Canada and their influence and trade is spreading rapidly from coast to coast.

The very fine line of Eby-Blain specialties put up by this house under their own labels—and only the finest quality of goods are allowed to be so used—is being quickly recognized by the intelligent Canadian public, and the rapid growth of this trade from year to year is evidence enough to them that their efforts are being used in the proper channels.

Last year at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, where the best products of the different countries of the world were sent to compete with others, The Eby-Blain Co. were given the highest award and gold medal for "Eby-Blain's Wheat-os" and "Eby-Blain's Anchor Brand" canned goods.

This year, as for many years past, the official judges have again recognized the superiority of their high class goods by awarding them the prize.

Most houses would be satisfied with one exhibit at this Exhibition, and so would The Eby-Blain Co., Limited, if they hadn't been able to secure the agency for Canada of "Norka,—the only cooked oat food." After obtaining this valuable agency, however, The Eby-Blain Co. decided to take advantage of the Canadian National Exhibition to inform the public and the trade throughout Canada of this fact, and the popularity of this booth over others in the Manufacturers' building was proof convincing enough to those in charge of the exhibit that "Norka" is all that the manufacturers claim it to be, viz, the most nourishing, economical (as it goes farther than any other breakfast cereal) and thoroughly satisfying food on the market to-day.

Eby-Blain Kolona Tea was also exhibited at this booth as well as the celebrated Eby-Blain Quick Pot for coffee or tea.

In addition to the above exhibits the Eby-Blain Co were again in evidence at E. D. Smith's fine display of preserved fruits, which was also to be seen in the Manufacturers' building, for which they have been appointed Toronto agents.

JAPAN TEAS.

The following advice has been handed us by Mr. Shaw T. Nishimura, Montreal agent for Japan teas.

"Cablegram just received advises that third crop is again very much short and practically closed, which is much earlier than in any previous season. All suitable teas are eagerly taken up and in consequence prices are again advancing."

It is now evident that those who placed import orders early in the season made good purchases, but those who did not take this chance have at this moment an equal opportunity to make purchases from spot goods which are already in the hands of importers.

NEW ABATTOIRS FOR TORONTO.

The Toronto Junction Board of Health at a recent sitting, disposed of considerable business, prominent among which were two requests for permits to carry on business in the town. These were from Green Bros. and William Levack, both of whom are erecting abattoirs near the Union Stock Yards. The board recommended council to grant the necessary permission providing the industries do not prove offensive.

PURE FOOD CAMPAIGN.

The Minister of Inland Revenue, the Hon. L. P. Brodeur, has expressed his intention to put down the adulteration carried on by a number of manufacturers. He will, if found necessary, enter upon a rigorous campaign of prosecution of those persons reported as adulterating such products as jams, jellies, pepper, maple sugar, etc.

This movement is certainly one in the right direction. The Grocer has always been foremost in its advocation of a "pure" food campaign, and is only echoing the voice of every progressive and intelligent storekeeper in wishing the eventual success of the determination to enforce the pure food laws.

N. B. Markets.

St. John, N.B., Sept. 21, 1905.

THERE is a great improvement in business, what is termed the Fall trade is now geing done. The Fall more than any other time is the busy season for the grocer, at no other time ars such large stocks of goods received, as canned goods and dried fruits for a full year stock are now bought. This is somewhat less the case than formerly, particularly in dried fruits.

The wholesale houses are not buying as large stocks as a few years ago, besides this, to make business, there is the holiday trade, and the closing of navigation to look forward to. Markets seem in better shape.

While sugar is off again, both in this line and flour it is thought they are getting down to firmer values, and so dealers are inclined to buy at least some stock, which for the last few weeks they have not been doing, except for actual need. Some lines are very firm, such as cheese, dried fruit and fish.

Canadian National Exhibition—The Eby-Blain Co., Limited, Exhibit.

Spices—Are always of interest at this season. While prices continue quite low the tendency is upward.

Hops—Are very firm and higher prices expected.

Rice—Though not selling very freely at this season, is rather firmer.

Oil—In burning oil the extreme low prices still rule. There is improved business but it is yet early for the larger shipments to be made. The business is, however, booked. In lubricating oil, sales are light. Linseed oil is still low. Turpentine, while high, is rather easier.

Salt—In Liverpool coarse salt a small cargo arrived this week. This is the last direct shipment for some time. Rather higher prices are expected, as importations will likely have to be made via Boston. Fair stocks are held. Demand has been particularly good this season the nearby Maine ports having been supplied from St. John more largely than usual. In fine salt, demand is light. Chiefly Canadian sold.

Canned Goods—New corn and tomatoes are on the market much earlier than usual. Local prices are therefore lower than have ruled for some time. There is no particular interest in any line. Teas are still extremely low. Some few fruits, such as peaches and pears, not yet quoted. In blueberries, local packers supply the trade. This line is rather dull. Gallon apples are low. Salmon prices since new spring fish arrived some little time ago, are about 50c. a case lower than last season. Meats are rather lower. Sale this season has been rather dull.

Dried Fruits—The quantity of California evaporated apricots and peaches, also prunes, bought this season is rather less than usual, except perhaps apricots. These opened low, but have advanced quickly. Peaches also showed a large advance. Prunes opened higher than last year and have also advanced quickly Raisins, Valencias, have been bought freely at low prices. As Californias are expected to cast high, Malaga loose have found a fair demand. There is much dissatisfaction that California prices are not named earlier. Currants hold firm at prices well above last year. In all lines spot goods very scarce. Evaporated apples, while firmly held at higher prices, have little sale. Onions have attention, while quite a range of prices is quoted on Canadian stock. Market is firm.

Sugar—While prices are again off 10c., dealers seem to have more confidence, believing market is getting on a better basis, and though not buying freely, are inclined to carry rather better stocks.

Molasses—In Porto Rico there is quite a large stock held. Prices are quite low. It is said there is considerable range in quality. Barbadoes is held firm.

Fish—There is just a fair quantity of fresh fish offering and variety is small. Dry fish, particularly cod, high prices rule and market is firm. In pickled herrings there are fair receipts, but prices keep high. Some finnan haddie are now being shipped west. Prices are quite high. In our last week's report it was said new smoked herring had been received. This was a mistake. They will however be to hand shortly. Prices low, but firm.

Flour, Feed and Meal—In flour it is thought prices are about down to a fair basis, and dealers are inclined to buy in a small way. Manitobas showed a small advance this week, but Ontarios are again rather lower. Oatmeal is unchanged, but not so firmly held. Oats are lower. Cornmeal unchanged. In beans a variety of prices quoted. For later shipment, several cars have been bought low compared with the price ruling for some time.

CEYLON TEA FOR RUSSIA.

A great deal of tea has been despatched this month from Ceylon to Russia, to the Black Sea as well as to the Baltic ports. During the month of June altogether 938,875 lbs. of tea were sent to St. Petersburg, Riga, and to Odessa. Since then there have been several large shipments. The Spitshead, took away some 325,000 lbs. to the Black Sea ports. She was followed by the City of Corinth, with 148,566 lbs. for St. Petersburg, ond the Siam for the same port with 305,694 lbs. The total despatches of Ceylon tea to Russia, to the 24th Aug. aggregate some 6,295,700 lbs., which is just two million lbs. less than last year for the same period.

AN IDEAL MILK-CAN.

A new milk-can has been invented in Montreal by James Frederick Edward Rose. It is to be used for the transportation of milk either by rail or otherwise, which the inventor claims will enable milkmen to keep their milk at the necessary cool temperature in the hottest weather.

QUEBEC AGENCY APPOINTMENT.

Mr. J. H. Maiden has been appointed agent in the Province of Quebec for the Anglo-Canadian Supply Co., of Toronto, manufacturers of York Metal Polish and Gri-mo. Gri-mo is something new in the toilet line and used extensively by office men, automobilists, painters and machinists for cleansing the hands, and is said to be "miles ahead of soap." Mr. Maiden has just received a full supply of all sizes of these two lines, and will shortly call on the Quebec trade with his samples.

The Western Ontario Exhibition, London

AMONG the thirty-eight Fairs that have been held in London since the institution of the Western Fair it may safely be said that none has been attended with a greater degree of success than the one that came to an end on September 16.

Much of that success must, of course, be attributed to the beautiful weather that prevailed without a break until the Friday evening when Jupiter Pluvius gave vent to his pent-up energy and made those once thronged Fair grounds a drooping and a dripping wilderness devoid of human life save for the occasional figure of a stout lady making record time for the pavilion.

Who cared, however? The Fair was practically over, for Saturday was the day for exhibitors to pack up and look pleasant. Wednesday and Thursday were the big days on which the success of the Fair depended and on those mornings anxious-visaged directors could be observed scanning the heavens with as much interest as Galileo ever displayed, though of a different kind. Joy succeeded anxiety, however, and the number that attended the Fair on those days was greatly in excess of the corresponding figures of any previous year.

In the Main Building there seemed to be a slight falling off in the number of exhibits but from the aesthetic point of view they perhaps reached a higher standard than last year.

The piano industry had as usual the largest number of representatives. The furniture industry was also well represented. Two soap and two chocolate firms had displays. It seems a pity that London manufacturers do not display a greater interest in the Western Fair. Surely it is good advertising for the Western Ontario field and it would certainly help London. Yet several prominent industries were totally unrepresented.

The Stove Building was the scene of some excellent exhibits, six stove companies being represented there. The Machinery Building had its usual complement of farm implements and machinery very similar to last year, and the same can be said of the Carriage Building. The Agricultural and Horticultural Buildings contained an admirable display of farm produce, fruit and flowers. This was really one of the best feaeures of the Fair. As to the exhibition of paintings,

"I would that tongue could utter
The thoughts that arose in one,"

but we must leave that section to the art critics. A good deal of the life and fun of the Midway was lacking this year. The determination of the directors to admit no shows of questionable character or in the nature of fakes necessarily caused a good deal of cutting out. The vaudeville show included some new and thrilling acts and the fireworks were excellent and went off without a hitch.

Tobler's Swiss Milk Chocolates.

Prominent among the booths in the Main Building was the display of Tobler's chocolates by Maclure & Langley. The booth was in charge of J. L. Uttenweiler, of Toronto.

Blue and pink were the prevailing colors in the decorations. The front of the booth was tastefully draped with a prettily designed fancy fabric. A series of pictures representing different countries where Tobler's famous Swiss milk chocolates are consumed decorated the upper framework of the booth.

The popularity of Tobler's Swiss milk chocolates is not difficult to understand when one learns the conditions under which the chocolate is made. Tobler & Co. have their own herd of cows at Berne, Switzerland, where their great factory is situated. The milk from these cows is of a very superior quality, as in Switzerland they have green grass all the year round. Then again the chocolate is ground by electricity for nine days and nights so as to remove all "grit." These facts explain why Tobler's Swiss milk chocolate possesses such a delicious flavor. It is notable also for it nourishing and sustaining qualities. The latter fact has been recognized by the Swiss Government, for this chocolate forms part of the daily rations of the Swiss army.

AMERICAN TOMATOES.

Mr. C. Fairall Fisher, of 22 St. John street, Montreal, who returned from a business trip to Baltimore, Md., on Saturday last reports a very strong market in the States for tomatoes. The price has risen steadily for standard No. 3 tins, from 60c. to the present price of 85c. per doz., and Mr. Fisher met several large packers who refused to sell under 90c. The general impression of the American dealers is that they will see $1.00 tomatoes before the 1st of January. This would mean that to bring the goods into Canada would make the price almost prohibitive, and should tend to make Canadian prices still firmer.

N. S. Markets.

Halifax, N.S., Sept. 21, 1905.

IN nearly all lines of groceries jobbers report business good. In fact, during the past week trade may be said have been brisk all round. Good orders from outside points are coming in and the local trade keeps up to the standard. Prices generally remain pretty steady.

Butter—The condition of the butter market is causing considerable attention just at the present time, owing to the heavy falling off in receipts. It was thought after the farmers had finished hay making that butter would come to the market more freely, but such has not been the case. In fact, this article may be said to be scarce on this market at present, and dealers find some difficulty in obtaining supplies. Choice dairy butter is the scarcest. Those few who have a quantity in stock are getting from 20c. to 21c. for it, and they are holding it firmly at these prices. The factories are now quoting 22c. for creamery solids, and are jobbing here at 23c. to 24c. Creamery prints are quoted at 24c.

Cheese—The cheese markets in the Maritime Provinces are unsteady, and prices are advancing. The factories are now asking 12c. for large, and 12 1-4c. to 12 1-2c. for twins. Prices here are now about on a par with factory prices, as yet, however, business all around is pretty good. A prominent dairy concern from New Brunswick have recently opened up here, and they are reported to be cutting prices to some extent, so as to capture the local trade.

Fruit—The market is well supplied with fruits. Plums are in abundance and the price is reasonable. Pears are also very plentiful, but the quality is only fair. $2.25 per half barrel is about the general price quoted by jobbers. There has been a drop in the price of oranges. Some good Jamacias are now on the market and they are quoted at $6.00.

Nova Scotia apples coming to the market are only of fair quality and in consequence of this sales are not very rapid.

Eggs—Are firm and the price unchanged. With the falling off in receipts, however, an early advance is looked for.

Fish— Sixty-eight vessels of the Lunenburg Bank fleet have reported catches aggregating 49,995 quintals. The catch is valued at $287,471. The fish markets are becoming very brisk, and buyers are active at most of the centres. A big fleet of bankers was at Canso last week seeking bait and they reported catches from 200 to 1,200 quintals. Should the bait supply keep up, good catches will result, as fish are becoming more plentiful. Some dealers here say that the Labrador fishery has been much better than usual. Already some large sales are reported among the different Halifax dealers, and it would not be surprising if as many as 50,000 quintals of these fish came here this season, which would place the dealers in a more favorable position than last year. The last sales of Nova Scotia bank fish were at $5.75 ex vessel. The export markets, while a little quiet, are on the whole, satisfactory for dry fish. The consumption in Oporto is unusually large. Fish suitable for that market are in good demand and selling at high prices.

Flour—Shows a downward tendency on this market. The demand here is fair at present, but the stocks on hand are not very heavy. Quotations in a jobbing way locally are now about $5.75 to $5.90 for Manitoba patents. Ontarios are: 90 per cent. patents, $4.70 to $4.80; 80 per cent. patents, $4.80 to $4.90; 70 per cent. patents, $4.90 to $6.00. These are local jobbing prices and quotations in carload lots would be scaled down somewhat.

HERRING REGULATIONS.

The Vancouver Island companies engaged in herring fishing are anxious to have some of the regulations framed lately by the Dominion authorities altered, as it it claimed they injuriously affect their interests. Before Mr. Ralph Smith, M.P., left for Ottawa he and the Fisheries Inspector, Mr. Taylor, met representatives of the companies and discussed the matter. One regulation setting the fishing time for night, they want changed to allow of fishing at any time in the twenty-four hours. The desire was also expressed to have a boat license instead of a net license as at present, so that one boat might carry three or four nets if desired, not however to exceed in the aggregate 200 fathoms, and a seine net not to exceed 100 fathoms. At present the export of fresh herring is prohibited and the desire of those interested in the industry is to have the regulations permit of the export of fresh herring for food purposes.

WHY THIS DECLINE?

From the following report of the Dominion trade returns it would appear that within the period mentioned something like 3,674,072 lbs. less of Ceylon green tea was imported this year than last, while Japans despite the extreme shortage show only a decrease of 392,462 lbs. A shortage of 5,045,772 lbs. in all kinds of tea is noted. Without endeavoring to explain this heavy decrease in importation of teas into Canada it is interesting for the trade to ponder on the subject. Are people drinking more coffee, cocoa, cereal coffees or substitutes?

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

THERE is not much change to report on the cheese market for the past week, recent country markets were unexpectedly firm in tone and prices in most cases showed a slightly advancing tendency, but meanwhile, at least, there seems to be no general support to the market.

Goods now arriving are the most popular of the whole season, viz, September make. Recent frosts have had the effect of causing a marked reduction in the flow of milk and consequently a great shrinkage in the production of cheese. this has no doubt stimulated a few operators to buy more freely in country markets, and the result of this is that. no matter how much the majority of the trade may desire lower prices, values are kept up and prices remain very firm.

All this is no doubt due in a measure to large holdings of one of the principal speculative houses in England. Their interests are so large that they must keep on taking more goods through their agents and correspondents in the Dominion to prevent a sharp decline in prices. In this they are to a very large extent supported by good, sound "bull arguments," the general demand from the U. K. is not brisk, but stocks on either side of the Atlantic are not heavy and the fall make of cheese will undoubtedly be comparatively light, and statistically speaking, prices might be advanced considerably, and the "bull element" would reap good profits before the opening of the new season.

Shipments have fallen off lately so that we are now only a few thousand boxes ahead of last year's shipments, but the higher prices ruling this year have probably reduced the consumption in Great Britain sufficiently to off-set the lighter make and perhaps the available supplies may in the end prove sufficient for the consumptive demand, even if these available supplies are below the general average of former years. The British consumer has been getting his cheese for five pence and six pence per pound for years, and if he is now charged seven pence or eight pence per pound, he hesitates to pay the advance and the natural consequence is a falling off in the consumption. This is the danger of high prices at this season of the year, If the consumption were good now, the prices would be bound to advance considerably during the winter months, but, if goods must now be carried along to feed a slow consumption, there is not much profit ahead at present prices.

Butter has recently shown a slight advance in price, the quality is now very fine and under present conditions it can hardly be said that prices are too dear. from now on we are less dependent on the export demand. British markets will draw their supplies from Australia, etc., and our production is decreasing so that we will very soon require all we can make for our home consumption. The export demand is not brisk, our supplies of butter on the British markets are only a very small item as compared with other countries, and as our prices are now about as high as British importers are willing to pay. There is but little prospect of an advance, unless we find that we are running short in supplies for our own home consumption, and of this there is at present no sign.

LONDON PRODUCE LETTER.

By Our Own Correspondent.

IN the produce letter of The Grocer of August 25, the third paragraph, it should be undestood, was in reference to Canadian dairies. Other grades of butter have been found of fairly uniform character, and are quite up to expectation.

The past week has been one of great disappointment, for it has been signalized by a lamentable absence of business, although it was universally hoped that September would see a revival and that from now onward the briskness of trade would make up for past slowness. As things are, it is quite impossible to say when conditions will brighten, for retailers are acting with the greatest caution on account of the high prices ruling for butter, and are unwilling to buy more than they actually require to carry them over to the next week. The consequence, of course, is that there are large quantities of Canadian butter in storage, waiting for a more lively demand. "Choicest" quality of unsalted Canadian has been sought after, and prices rule at 112s. for eastern saltless. This price is 12s. per cwt. dearer than at this period last year.

Something like four thousand boxes of Australian butter have come to hand during the past few days and are meeting with good demand at high prices.

Butter from the Western Provinces of Canada has come in for some very sharp criticism this week, and deservedly so. The stuff in question is saltless, and comes from a factory of well known standing and of good repute. Had this particular concern sent over just one shipment of unsatisfactory butter, the matter might have been passed over in silence, but the saltless which it has been shipping has proved mouldy right through the season, thus giving great disappointment to those who bought c.i.f., and it must be added heavy claims have resulted therefrom. This is a matter which should be looked into and remedied by those in Canada who have it in their power to put matters right, both for the sake of the creameries themselves and for the sake of the agents. The quality of some of these western creameries' output has not been up to standard, although it would be possible to mention creameries who can claim as high a reputation as any eastern saltless factory.

In the Montreal Bulletin of Aug. 25. some anxiety was expressed that the reputation of Canadian butter might suffer from the deterioration resulting from long storage on this side on account of speculation amongst British importers. Inquiries made, however, seem to show that there is no real cause for anxiety in this direction. Whenever British importers lodge complaints as to the bad quality of Canadian butter, they always refer to butter which has just come from off the boat and but lately under examination, nor do they endeavor to pass off as newly landed butter, that which they have had in store for a considerable time. Canadian butter as a rule sold on its merits and after due examination by the purchaser, who can tell at once whether it has been kept in store for any length of time or not. Whether the importer is selling to a retailer who has come into town to test the butter for himself, or whether he is despatching it by rail on receipt of written instructions, it would not be to his own interests to push forward as best Canadian (if that were asked for) a butter which had deteriorated by long storage. He would lose the account. To put the matter as briefly as possible, the average British retailer can tell at once, upon inspection, whether the butter is fresh or stale, and knows from constant study the real cause of the staleness, if there be any. He emphatically does not want inferior goods in the place of superior, and if an importer endeavors to play bluff he soon finds that he is at a losing game, since the customer goes to a competitor who has the butter which is right. The result is that the importer prefers to deal fairly and squarely with his retail customers, and the form of business immorality to which reference is made has no part in business circles here. This is the rule. That there are occasional exceptions no one will deny.

The demand for cheese is somewhat dull, as retailers are not liking present prices very much. Canadians are quoted at 56s., as against 45s. this time last year, and this fact speaks for itself. An advance in Canadian quotations is expected, however, and will be responded to. From Jan. 1 to Aug. 30 Canada has sent to Britain 1,010,518 cwts. of cheese, of which 299,263 cwts. came along during July, and 275,625 during August.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

TORONTO.

THE market in provisions has shown somewhta of a lull, as regards activity since our last report. Arrivals have been coming in more freely, with the result that stocks are in better form. Lard has firmed up, and is strong at quotations.

Beef and mutton has weakened, owing to a large extent to the fall in demand. Local trade reported as slow since closing of the National Exhibition.

Butter—Market is steady. No change in the situation since last report. The firm tone noted then continues. Cable Inquiries are not frequent or tend towards active business. Holders seem to be playing a waiting game. Fancy Eastern Townships is quoted at 21 1-2c. to 21 3-4c. with slightly higher prices asked by some dealers. Choice creamery 21 1-4c. to 21 1-2c., and good to fine, 20 3-4c. to 21 1-4c. Dairy is scarce and steady at 18 1-2c. to 19c. We quote:

Cheese—A better feeling obtains in cheese this week, and although prices are easier on country boards, local quotations are firm and no holder anxious to dispose at a loss if present figures were to be shaded. Little trading has been done abroad, though inquiries are arriving more freely. Finest Ontario is firm at 11 1-2c. Finest Townships, 11 1-4c. to 11 3-4c., and Quebecs at 11 1-8c. to 11 1-4c.

Eggs—Eggs are eggs. Market shows great strength and advance. Country producers are asking 17 3-4c. to 18 1-2c. Local demand is steady but dealers, retail, are not stocking up, considering prices too high. Straight gathered quoted at 19c., selects 22c. to 23c. Candled and cracked 18c.

Provisions—Barrel pork is perhaps a little easier. There is a rather better demand. At this season there is always some sale to the lumbermen. Beef is still quite high with stock light and sales small. Lard is still very high and firmly held. Refined is quoted well below pure. Fresh beef is dull, domestic is low and western is but little higher. There is little being done in smoked meat. Lamb has a good sale; it is scarce and is quoted about the same as western beef. Mutton very dull. Veal a fair price, but little seen. Pork is rather more freely offered and price is quite high. We quote:

A FRENCH AGENCY APPOINTMENT

C. T. Kyle, Front street, Toronto, has secured the agency of the celebrated firm of Dandicolle & Gaudin, Bordeaux, France. This firm are the makers of a full line of French goods, such as peas, sardines, anchovies, and table delicacies.

QUAKER SUGAR AND CREAM CORN

This is a line we are now packing which we intend to make our main specialty. Packed from the finest Maine Seed, with the ears all selected, with the cans well filled with corn and not watery juice. We believe there is a future for an article of this class of goods if properly placed on the market and the attention of the consumers called to its superior merits. There is no line of goods packed in cans that varies so much as corn in quality, consequently there should be an opening on the market for a really high-class article, something in which the goods were not only at the tip-top but that every can could be depended on to be of a high and uniform quality. This is what we claim for Sugar and Cream and the reputation of the Quaker is behind these assertions. While the contents inside of a can are of more importance than the outside, it may not come amiss to say that these goods are sent out in very handsome embossed wrappers, far superior to anything we have yet seen from our competitors.

SHORT, but plentiful," is the accepted opinion of competent judges of the peach crop. All through the Niagara Peninsula the fruit is showing to its best, and has been pronounced superior to any for ten years. It is just the opportune moment to lay in preserving stocks. Two weeks are quoted as the limit to present abundant supplies. Prices are kept firm on account of the excellent quality, but are considered very moderate.

It is instructive as well as interesting to take a look into the reasons given for the very excellent crop. It is stated on every hand that the San Jose scale — the pest which has worked such havoc in past years—has been completely overcome. The remedy is "spraying"—simply spraying—persistently and with individual care and attention, and the results are said to be marvellous. Never before was there so much orchard under cultivation and never before has there been such good, healthy fruit, clean and comparatively free from blight or any other drawback.

An exceptionally plentiful crop of plums has been in evidence this year and still continues. Prices have fallen right away down but are still considered remunerative to the growers. The great scarcity of good apples is being fully compensated by the excellency of the plum crop, both in regard to quality and quantity. The absence of damage from blight or other causes is as marked a feature with the plum as with the peach

The apple crop is now sufficiently advanced that a very fair estimate can be arrived at.

Southern Ontario.—The Lake Erie district will give a light crop of Winter apples. Quite three-fourths of the orchards report failure.

Lake Huron apple district and neighboring counties report a good medium crop, in excess of local requirements, thus providing a quantity for export purposes.

The Lake Ontario apple districts are anticipating a medium crop of really good fruit, and in some sheltered districts a full crop.

The British Columbia apple crop is expected to give a good showing, and will in all probability come to the rescue for Manitoba and Northwest supplies

The Annapolis Valley and Nova Scotia apple districts are reported in better condition and will probably give an ordinary full crop, the surplus of which will be utilized for export to England.

Pears are reported as only a small crop in every district, excepting British Columbia, where fruit generally is prosperous.

An interesting feature in the present situation is the excellent price which has been obtained, particularly for this year's apple crop, and which has been commented on by the Agricultural Department of Ontario.

Where co-operative associations have been established for the purpose of handling fruit crops, and particularly at Chatham, Forest and Walkerton, excellent prices have been obtained for this year's apple crop. The societies have had their agents go through Manitoba and the west and have sold the crop direct to wholesalers for cash. The fact that the associations have been able to ship specified quantities, in car lots, has greatly aided in the disposal of the crops.

SMYRNA FIG SEASON.

Cables received from Smyrna report the shipment of first cargo of figs for American markets, of some 300 cases, with prices billed 30 to 36 shillings. These will probably reach New York towards the end of the present month.

Forward sales are reported as unusually light, owing, it is attributed, to the unsatisfactory experiences of last season's declining markets.

Dealers are offering October shipments at New York markets 7¾c to 11¾c, according to qualities.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Green Fruits.

Toronto, Sept. 21, 1905.

The local market exhibits great animation at the present time, owing to abundant arrivals of domestic fruits. The condition is, generally speaking, good, some specially packed peaches arriving from Niagara Peninsula from Armstrong & Son were particularly remarked as showing excellent, not only in quality but in style of packing and selection.

Some new shipments of lemons have arrived from Italy and are excellent fruit. Prices have eased slightly. Bananas are low owing to preference given to domestic fruit. Prices are revised to latest moment of going to press.

Vegetables.

A revival in trade has been noticeable since our last report, quite a brisk demand for vegetables suitable for canning, and as these have been coming in in fair quantities, prices have adjusted themselves, making it profitable to buy. Tomatoes have eased off some 5 cents. Egg plants, parsnips, and squash have made a similar drop.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Green Fruits.

Montreal, Sept. 21, 1905.

The fruit market continues active and prices are generally lower than last week. There is a good demand for all fruits.

Bananas, however, are firm at $1.25 to $1.75. There have been fair receipts this week, fifteen cars arriving.

California fruits have seen another decline, stocks being good and receipts larger. One car of peaches was sold on Monday at auction, prices ranging from 85c to $1.10.

Pears are easier on account of the fruit held in stock tending to soften, dealers offering them at lower figures.

Lemons are sold at $5 to $5.25 per box. There are also a few barrels of Jamaica oranges at $5.50 per barrel.

Grapes are getting more plentiful, and selling in 10 lb. baskets at 25c and 30c. In crates, prices range from $4.25 to $6.

There is a large quantity of Fall apples on the market, which appear to meet with favor. The grades are the Alexanders, Colverts, Jenetings, Wealthies and St. Lawrence. Prices for the first three mentioned, $2.25 to $2.50, and for the others $2.50 to $3.

A little more activity has been noticed in pineapples, but this fruit is scarce and generally moving slowly. Prices are revised to date. We quote :

there are still large stocks on hand. They are offered at 10c per dozen.

Tomatoes are also very plentiful. This is not only due to heavy receipts from farmers but to the fact that the whole stock of the Ste. Therese Cannery, which was burned two weeks ago, was sent to Montreal to be marketed.

More celery is offered this week than for two or three weeks past. Potatoes, however, are only in sufficient supply to meet requirements. iOther products are in fair demand, but the trade lacks in briskness and new features. We quote:

A CANNED SALMON NOTE.

THE booking of orders by the canning companies for this season's pack of canned salmon is about completed, although some heavy stocks were carried over they moved out during the hot weather, and on account of the low prices of this year's pack large orders are booked. When the best brands can be sold for 15c. per tin retail, it would seem as though a good many grocers may find themselves short of the first-class brands when Spring trade opens, and will have to pay a higher price.

One of the pleasant features of this year's salmon situation is the fact that the Pacific Selling Co. have arrived at an agreement with the "Grocers' Guild" by which their justly celebrated "Clover Leaf" brand of salmon has been listed.

Mr. C. E. Kyle, their agent here, says that on his territory the wholesale grocers have very generally responded to the spirit of the agreement, especially in Toronto and looks for the trade generally to take hold of this well-known and reliable brand and give it the position in their sales which its excellent quality deserves.

NEW COMPANIES.

The Victoria Wine & Spirit Co., Limited, Victoria, B.C., has been incorporated with a capacity of $50,000 divided into 50,000 shares of $1 each.

The Frontenac Cereal Co., Limited
KINGSTON, ONT.

Flour and Cereal Foods

A NEW VEGETABLE FOOD.

IT is an admitted fact that all legumes (dried peas, dried beans, lentils, etc.) are very indigestible in their natural condition, or when simply reduced to meal. This is unfortunate, as they are cheap materials, whose ingredients are of alimentary value.

It is claimed that systematic and long continued experiments have resulted in the discovery of a process by means of which all disadvantages are obviated and a new food product obtained which is both appetizing and highly nutritious.

By means of chemical treatment, it is asserted, the protein and carbohydrates of the legumes are made soluble and entirely digestible. The leguminous meal produced by this process is a concentrated food suitable for infants and invalids, as well as for the every day use of adults.

The product, as analyzed by Drs. Popp and Becker, of the Chemical, Technical and Hygienic Institute at Frankfort, Germany, contains moisture, 7.86 per cent.; fat, 2.29 per cent.; soluble carbohydrates, 40.42 per cent.; albumen, 21.70 per cent.; other soluble nitrogenous matter, 22.65 per cent.; mineral matter, 2.86 per cent.; fibrous matter, 2.22 per cent.

The meal, a fine yellowish powder with a slightly sweetish leguminous taste and perfume, is notably rich in albumen. Moreover, its carbohydrates are of a form which makes them easily digestible. The mineral ingredients of chief value are potash and phosphoric acid, the latter being of use in the formation of bone.

According to Playfair and Liebig, a normal man needs daily, when actively employed, 155.92 grams (2,406 grains) of albumen, 70.87 grams (1,093.6 grains) of fat, and 567.50 grams (8,757.7 grains) of starch and sugar total, 12,357.3 grains, 1.75 pounds avoirdupois. As at all meals the body receives fat in various forms, the above analyses show in this specially prepared meal the correct relation between its albumen and carbohydrates.

The amount of nutrition contained in ordinary vegetable food which is utilized in the human digestive apparatus is much less than is that of meat. Of the albumen in ordinary legumes 17 per cent. remains undigested, in wheat bread 9 per cent., in black bread and potatoes sometimes as much as 30 per cent.

In order to obtain from ordinary vegetables the requisite quantities of carbohydrates and albumen, it is necessary to consume a larger amount than the appetite demands. It is claimed that this, and other disadvantages are obviated by the use of leguminous meal of the imported sort, either alone, as a vegetable, or in soups and sauces, or mixed with vegetables and meats.

Mixed in equal quantities with cocoa it makes a pleasant and nutritious drink, with the following percentages of alimentary value: Soluble albumen, 22.19; carbohydrates, 53.88; fat, 12.69; mineral matter, 4.15; phosphoric acid, 1.46.

THE RICE CROP.

Conditions in the Texas rice fields just now are better than for many years, according to the reports, and while this is true the yield bids fair to prove considerably less than was the case last year. This is the outcome of two causes. In the first place the extremely low price of last year induced many to curtail their acreage and in the second place red rice had taken hold in the fields and in order to rid them of it the land was permitted to lie idle in great lots this year. By this means the red rice can be cleared out and fresh seed of the proper sort planted.

A careful compilation of the acreage in rice for the present year shows a reduction of, some say, as much as 40 per cent., while others think 25 per cent. will cover the reduction. Of course, this is going to insure a much smaller crop than heretofore.

Another encouraging feature of the situation is that prices are about 30 to 40 per cent. better than last year, and the belief among mill men, growers and brokers is that even better figures will prevail before the season is over. Harvesting will not begin for some weeks yet

The Japan rice crop this season is reported a failure, owing to the very heavy rains. On this account it is expected that the demand from Japan for flour will be considerably in advance of previous years. Canadian winter wheat flour is particularly suitable for that market.

During the month of June British North America imported from the United States 357,093 bushels of corn, valued at $190,294, as compared with 811,936 bushels, valued at $448,248, during the preceding June. For the year ending June the total imports of corn amounted to 8,513,813 bushels, valued at $4,572,944, as compared with 5,456,746 bushels, valued at $2,832,729, for the year ending with the preceding June.

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

IRISH GROWN TOBACCO.

THE great bulk of the tobacco crop grown by Colonel Evarard in the county Meath, Ireland, was purchased by Messrs. Murray, Sons & Co. of Dublin and Belfast. A quantity of it was blended with American grown tobacco and in that form gave excellent satisfaction. Some of the better kind has been manufactured by itself under the style of "Irish Brown Cut Cavendish" and sold in packet form with good results.

The pungent and pleasing aroma of the tobacco is noticeable immediately the packet is opened. The tobacco itself is light, dry and flaky in texture, and its brown is of a rich, golden color throughout. When smoked it burns freely, but not rapidly, to a fine white ash without waste. It is mild and cool, and has a peculiarly rich flavor and fragrance.

While it is not a very strong tobacco, there is a good body in it, and the taste is undoubtedly agreeable and attractive. In fact it can take its place beside some of the most popular of the American mixtures as a medium tobacco with a distinctive flavor.

It will surprise many people to discover on the market a pure Irish grown and Irish manufactured leaf so highly perfected in every respect. The quality of the leaf is undoubtedly excellent, the manufacturing part of the work has been well done, and the result is most encouraging as showing the great progress already made in what may yet become, in its threefold aspect of cultivation, manufacture, and sale, an important Irish industry.

TOBACCO GROWING EXPERIMENT.

A NUMBER of experiments have been carried on at the United States Agricultural Experimental Station, in Virginia, with the object of showing that more and better tobacco can be raised on the same land with the same cultivation by using a better grade of fertilizer and larger quantity per acre.

The land selected was considered poor for an ordinary crop of tobacco, and was divided into three lots.

The old method is to plant the best lands in tobacco, 4,500 hills, and use 400 pounds of fertilizer at a cost of about $5 per acre.

At the station one acre was planted, upon which was put about 4,500 hills of tobacco. On this was used 400 pounds of fertilizer that cost $5. On two acres was planted 5,000 hills and there was used $15 worth of fertilizer specially prepared, and on two acres there was planted 6,000 hills and used $30 worth of specially prepared fertilizer per acre.

The difference in the tobacco on each different lot was very perceptible. The opinion of all was that the 4,500 hills would yield about 850 to 900 pounds, the 5,000 hills would yield 1,250 to 1,300 pounds and the 6,000 hills would yield about 1,800 to 2,000 pounds per acre. All pronounced it the prettiest crop of tobacco ever seen, being so regular and well developed and great praise was expressed for the skill and management shown.

REVENUE FROM TOBACCO.

Tobacco has a great deal to do with the governmental affairs of the world. The French Treasury report of the tobacco monopoly for 1904 shows a clear profit of $71,000,000. The Government receipts from tobacco tax in Great Britain last year were $60,000,000. In the United States the Government collects $45,000,000 from tobacco in internal revenue taxes. In Italy tobacco selling is a Government monopoly, and will yield a net profit this year of $45,000,000, and Austria-Hungary expects to collect about the same amount.

FROM LONDON, (ENG.) GROCER.

AN extract given herewith from the Grocer, London, Eng., August, 1905, is of interest to Canadians as showing the manner in which all eyes are directed to the progress and development of the Dominion of all Dominions.

The grocer of Canada has possibly the greatest scope for distinguishing himself and that a prominent figure in their midst should be selected for world-wide comment, is a source of congratulation to all members of the trade, as well as a nealthy stimulus to all young grocers.

"In coming through Toronto we tarried long enough to visit the home of Salada Tea, owned and conducted by P. C. Larkin, the 'Tea King of America.' It is a six-story establishment, wholly devoted to the blending and packing of British-grown tea. The great iron cylinder or tea-mixer has a capacity for 5,000 lbs. of tea. As the tea is dumped into the machine, the dust is automatically removed or drawn off by an air suction, and at every place where the tea is removed from one machine to another it is subjected to the air suction or blast. The tea is automatically weighed in a scale enclosed in glass and fitted with round, shallow brass pans, into which the desired quantity of tea falls, and then tips over, discharging the tea into the packet, passing along as another scale pan follows. This may be no novelty to your readers, but to Americans, who use an average of one pound of tea per capita, such an establishment as Larkin's is a source of wonder. The ingenious adaptation of machinery to the cleaning, weighing, packing and labeling of tea awakens great interest, and shows the observer how it comes about that he can purchase packet tea at a low price.

"Mr. Larkin holds life insurance to the amount of £23,200, and alluding to this an insurance journal says: 'Mr. Larkin is still a young man. He was born in the city of Montreal, May 13th, 1865, the son of Canadian parents. Embarking in the wholesale grocery business, he soon gave proof of business ability, which ultimately raised him to a high position in the commercial world. Like many other leaders in commerce, he recognized that there was a place for the specialist in the business world as well as in the professional sphere. He commenced about twenty years ago to make a specialty of tea, and he is now the acknowledged head of the tea trade on this continent, and familiarly known as the Tea King of America.'"

AGENCIES FOR JAPAN.

Mr. Reginald O. Simmons, of London, England, and latterly of Montreal, has decided to locate in Yokohama, Japan. He wishes to secure some reliable agencies for manufacturers who are anxious to promote trade in the Far East. Mr. Simmons has excellent social and financial standing and would urge parties interested to apply promptly as it is his intention to sail for Yokohama early in October. Further information might be obtained by communicating with the offices of The MacLean Publishing Co., Montreal.

NIAGARA DRAWS CROWDS.

THE season just closed shows no abatement in the tide of travel toward Niagara Falls. The great cataract still holds its own as the greatest natural wonder on the continent. More pilgroms have gazed upon the beauties of the picturesque Niagara region this year than ever before in its history. Whether this is due to newspaper talk about the possible destruction of the falls in the near future or to the normal desire of the people to perform a patriotic duty is of little consequence; the interesting fact is, every summer brings an increased tide of travel toward the Niagara region.

Instead of detracting from its beauty and grandeur, the harnessing of the cataract to many industries has added greatly to the popular interest in it. The "show place" among these industries is the beautiful "conservatory" in which Shredded Wheat is made. Not only the industry itself, but the noble building in which it is housed is singularly fascinating to the popular mind. Its location in the heart of the choicest residence district in Niagara Falls is the result of a search for cleanliness and beauty. There are wheat foods and wheat foods, but only one Shredded Whole Wheat Food, and the thousands who visit the Falls never seem to tire of going through this "castle of light" and noting the extraordinary provisions made for the welfare of the employes and witnessing the process of shredding wheat.

Here are made every day in the year a million and a quarter Shredded Wheat Biscuits—and, of course, the company would not make them if the people did not eat them. It is not known how many people have passed through "the home of Shredded Wheat" this year, but so great have been the crowds that it has come to be an interesting question as to which is the greater attraction at Niagara Falls, the cataract itself or the conservatory into which pours every day a constant stream of golden grain which emerges in the form of Shredded Wheat. No pilgrim to the Falls should consider his trip complete without a visit through this unique establishment.

CHANGE OF PROPRIETORSHIP.

The business of John Neilson Cuthbertson, chemical and produce broker, 29 Bath street, Glasgow, was transferred to Thomas Henderson, formerly manager to the late Sir John Neilson Cuthbertson, and is now being carried on by him in his own name and for his own behoof at the same address.

Mr. Henderson will pay all outstanding accounts due by or in connection with, and shall receive all outstanding accounts due to the said business.

The Story of Our New Publication

The BUSINESS MAGAZINE

We have decided to start almost immediately the publication of a new monthly magazine for busy men and women, in which we will reproduce the very best articles contained in the magazines of the world—not dry statistical articles, but bright, clever, readable matter of special interest to business men.

Readers of The Canadian Grocer know that every month a great many articles and sketches appear in the magazines, which they would like to read. They are prevented from doing so by the great number of the magazines and by the expense of securing them. Just think what an opportunity the Business Magazine affords them of getting the very best of these publications at a ridiculously small cost!

All the magazines of the world will be received month by month at our office. They will be distributed among the members of our editorial staff, who will make selections from them. These will be submitted to the managing editor of the magazine, who will cull out the unsuitable matter. Finally, before being sent to the printers, a council of the managing editors of the MacLean Trade Newspapers will be called to pronounce a final verdict on them.

The result will be a magazine without a dull page—a magazine that you can read with pleasure any time—a magazine that is the gateway to the best current literature in the world.

In addition to the articles which will be reproduced, those other articles which we are unable to print will be listed, so that every month readers will obtain a key to every article on a commercial subject that has appeared.

The Business Magazine will contain 150 to 160 pages and will be published about the first of every month. Its subscription price will be $2.00 per annum.

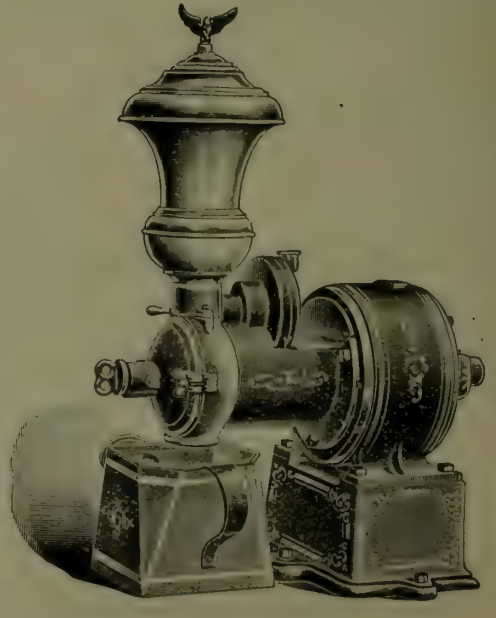
"ENTERPRISE" PAYS

The buzz of customers—the ring of the cash register—the clink of coin increase in a grocery store that is Enterprising in methods and equipment. An "Enterprise" Electrically Driven Coffee Mill decreases expense, increases business. A novelty a few years ago, now a necessity in every grocery. :: :: :: :: :: ::

The illustration shows our mill No. 83 fitted with ¼ H.P. motor, furnished for either direct or alternating current. It is 30 inches high, 22 inches long, 14 inches wide and weighs 115 pounds.

The nickel-plated hopper has a capacity of 4 pounds of coffee. It will granulate 1 pound of coffee a minute or pulverize ¼ pound a minute. Each machine is equipped with pulverizing grinders and can be regulated for fine or coarse grinding while running.

We will be pleased to send prices and practical suggestions; also our catalogue showing complete line of Mills, Food Choppers and other "Enterprise" grocers' specialties.



THE ENTERPRISE MFG. CO. OF PA.,
PHILADELPHIA.

How It's Done

It's surprising how the Coffee business is growing in Canada, about double what it was a few years ago, and yet you may not have noticed it. In nearly every town there is one grocer who gets most of this trade, just because he knows how to handle it. There is only one way to do it right. In the first place, you must have a mill and grind it as you sell it. Ground coffee a week old scarcely imitates fresh coffee. You should buy often, and not much at a time, not load up, because there is no speculation in roasted coffees. Then, buy a Good blend even if your profit is not so large. "Boston Luxury" is sold on a close margin, but its sale is large and the satisfaction wonderful. It has both strength and good flavor—makes a rich, creamy drink. Costs you twenty-eight cents—doubt if you can match it less than thirty-two. We would like to send you a tin on approbation, to get a start.

TRAVELLERS' TALES

The Knight of the Grip Sack is famed for his tales! Also for his very human love of the good things of the earth. Small blame to him. He must make up as best he can for the lack of home comforts. Every traveller who has carried a grip for The Albert Toilet Soap Co., and many who hardly know the firm's name have for many years carried for their own use a cake of Baby's Own Soap.

It is recognized as the best, and our gallant Knights want it for themselves. Their efforts joined to the excellence of the Soap have carried it to the front rank of toilet soaps in Canada. In fact, no other soap commands a sale which approximates that of Baby's Own Soap. Its popularity has caused price cutting, and while the dealer's loss is the consumer's gain, the manufacturers feel that to bring the sale of Baby's Own Soap to the figure it should have the retailer must be interested in its profits.

To share in the manufacturing profits is the only means of achieving this, and when the question came up of the advisibility of changing the style of the firm, and converting it into a Limited Liability concern, one of the reasons which helped to decide was the opportunity it offered to interest the trade in Albert Soaps generally, and specially in Baby's Own.

Albert Soaps Limited, have now taken over the business of A. Savage & Son and under the same management as before the business is going on as usual. But a limited amount of shares are to be sold, and before offering a single one to the public the trade are offered the opportunity of interesting themselves in the Company. They have this privilege until October 1st, when subscriptions from the public will be allotted in order of reception.

Similar companies in England and the United States have earned large dividends, and shares in them bought at par can now be sold at twice or three times their cost. Dealers have first call on the stock offered for subscription, and it is hoped that they will avail themselves of it. Prospectus giving full particulars will be mailed on request.

The Matter of Flavor is everything in canned fruits and vegetables. It is the difference between success and failure, between a pleased and a dissatisfied customer, between increasing and decreasing business, between profit and loss.

We stand between you and loss because Old Homestead Goods are perfect in flavor.

The Reason Why!

We have been telling you the reason why these past months. Our new and modernly equipped factory, our sanitary precautions, our situation in the midst of the Garden of Ontario, our use of only the choicest fruits and vegetables. All to the one end, the end that the flavor of Old Homestead Canned Goods should be perfect.

Little things are they? Yes, but by attending to the little things, we have attained the success we have reached—success that is tangibly represented in Old Homestead Brand Canned Fruits and Vegetables.

Notes on the Annual Convention in the Ancient Capital.

IN certain respects the 34th annual convention of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, which opened in Quebec on Monday, 18th September, was not attended with the full measure of success that usually characterizes both business and social functions of the organization. The registration list showed an attendance of only a little over 150 delegates, whereas 100 to 150 more were expected. Then the weather was decidedly unpleasant. On Monday there was a sort of combination of Scotch mist and genuine Canadian rain. On Tuesday the rain ceased, but the clouds and muddy streets remained.

But the moderate attendance and the weather did not after all seriously affect either the business transactions or the social functions of the convention. In spite of these things the convention was a success. The large proportion of the members of the association who came to Quebec evidently did so for the purpose of attending the business of the convention. Consequently the attendance at the business meetings was possibly as large as if the registration of delegates had been larger.

The pre-arrangements of the good people of Quebec were excellent. They could scarcely have been better, and the proof is that everything went off without a hitch. The handsome and spacious city hall was practically deeded over to the association for the purposes of the convention. The council chamber, from the windows of which could be seen the St. Charles River and the famous Laurentian Mountains, was set aside for the regular meetings of the convention while the committee rooms were reserved for section meetings and the secretary's offices. And what applies to the arrangements for business applies with equal force to the social functions. Mr. G. A Vandry, chairman of the Quebec branch, and Mr. Geo. E. Amyot, vice-president for the Province of Quebec, spared neither time nor pains, and much of the success of the convention was due to their labors. The association can scarcely forget the Quebec convention.

Monday morning was devoted to getting the "house in order." Secretary Younge and his staff of assistants were "at home" in the room of the comite du feu, and there delegates registered, got their badges, tickets and instructions. In adjoining rooms some of the sections were at work transacting business in which they were immediately concerned. A couple of sections called to convene did not do so, in one instance because only two members put in an appearance, while another had practically transacted its business before reaching the Ancient Capital.

The Manufacturing Grocers' section had a knotty problem to solve, or rather, try to solve. They struggled with the proposed amendments to the pure food law, and after discussing it all morning decided to have another meeting a few weeks hence in Toronto. The particular problem to be solved is what constitutes pure food. If that which is injurious was the question it would not be so difficult, but when there are certain ingredients used in the manufacture of an article with a view to cheapening it, which are beneficial rather than otherwise, the wise ones are at sea. In a word, what is the standard of purity and who is to determine it? Philosophers never had a more difficult task when they essayed to determine "what is truth."

Another little matter which received some attention from the manufacturers of grocery supplies was in regard to the tariff. On some lines of raw material they claim they are taxed without reason. These lines are such as are altogether of foreign production and cannot be grown or produced in this country. The duty on these lines ranges from 12½ to 25 per cent. On these they desire a readjustment of the duty. On such descriptions of articles which, while produced in Canada, is their raw material, they are content to allow the duty to remain as it is. They realize that it is the other fellow's finished product.

Mr. C. C. Ballantyne, Montreal.
The New President of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

The stove manufacturers want a specific instead of an ad valorem duty. They contend that the Customs duty as it at present stands does not give them sufficient protection on the cheaper classes of stoves. On the better classes of stoves they are quite competent to meet competition from the United States or any other country. And this was the sum and substance of the business that occupied the attention of the Stove Manufacturers' section. And they all appear to be agreed as to its necessity.

While there were a number of woolen manufacturers present, the different branches of that industry were not "strongly manned." The section, however, met and after transacting routine business adjourned to meet again shortly. The tariff is of course the chief matter of concern to the woolen manufacturers, and their attitude is the same as it has been for some time.

The convention proper opened on Monday afternoon at 2.30. President W. K. George occupied with becoming dignity the imposing chair, or rather, throne, of his worship le Maire of Quebec. Secretary Younge, with equally becoming dignity, occupied a seat at his right, and the benign finance minister of the association, Treasurer Booth, sat at his left. while on the front benches, taking a fatherly interest in the proceedings, were ex-President W. K. McNaught, fresh from his victories at the Canadian National Exhibition; Vice-President Ballantyne, Montreal; ex-Secretary T. Russell, Toronto; Mr. George Amyot, Quebec, and other veterans.

President George did not waste any time in preliminaries, but at once got down to business, the report of the treasurer being the first item on the programme. Treasurer Booth does not present his report after the manner finance ministers do their budget speeches. He does not attempt to make things appear better than they really are. He did not mince matters when he said that while there was a balance in the bank of $4,250 at the end of the financial year, and that the association possessed a surplus of over $6,000, the expenditures had increased at a greater ratio than the membership, rapid as that increase had been. He was so earnest about this that he asked for an expression of opinion from the convention as to the advisability of increasing the membership fee. This led to the most important discussion of the afternoon. The consensus of opinion was in favor of something being done, but just what demanded careful consideration. It was felt that nothing should be done that would tend to impair the membership. As one delegate said, "What we want is members. It will have more effect with the Government when we are impressing our views upon it." As no alteration in the fees can be made for another year, the question was relegated to the executive committee for consideration. If the opinions expressed can be taken as a criterion, the increase in the membership fee will be

A proposal was made by Mr. A. W. Thomas, of Toronto, to set aside a sum of money yearly for the purpose of creating a trust fund to be drawn upon only under certain conditions and provisions. Mr. D. L. McGibbon wanted it made a contingent fund. But the convention decided against both proposals.

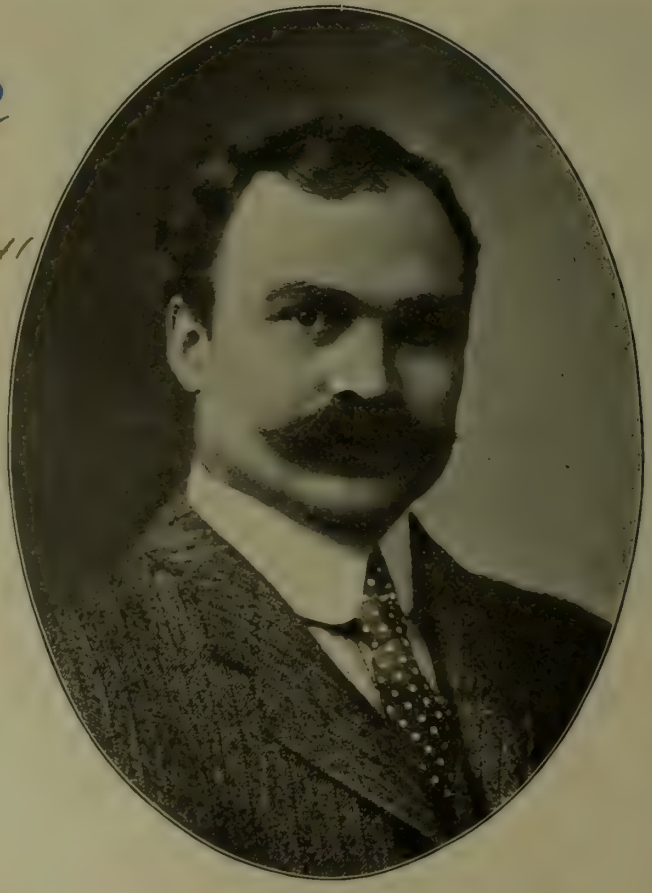
Secretary Younge's report was noted for two or three suggestions it made One was to the effect that although the membership of the association had increased by 328 during the year "it was absolutely necessary for something to be done to increase the membership fee." In this it will be seen he concurred in the suggestion of Treasurer Booth. The other was recommending the appointment of a traveling secretary. In fact, he pointed out that the present staff of 25 employes needed enlarging, while the present headquarters offices were inadequate for the present requirements of the association.



Ex-president George.

The consensus of opinion among the members was favorable to Mr. Younge's recommendations, and that referring to the appointment of a traveling secretary was referred to the finance committee, who will in turn report to the executive committee.

The report of the parliamentary committee, whose duty is to keep an eye on Provincial and Federal legislation, showed that that committee had not slept—at any rate, when it should have been awake. And by keeping awake, some objectionable legislation had been prevented. There was one thing, however, which the committee had not been able to prevent, and that was the tax which British Columbia and Quebec had imposed on commercial travelers. The report deprecated the tax and the members of the convention who spoke in regard thereto endorsed its sentiments. Mr. George Amyot, of Quebec, was cheered to the echo when he declared that each part of the country should do business with the other, without the legislative barriers as that described in the report. Mr. Edward Gurney, of Toronto, declared that all trade legislation should be in the hands of the Federal Parliament. His sentiment was also warmly applauded.

In the evening Quebec did itself proud. The weather outside was disagreeable, but the arrangements for the entertainment of the guests were so elaborate and complete that within the town hall, where the public reception was held, the unpleasantness of the outside was forgotten. From the sidewalk to the main entrance of the hall was erected a canopy which effectually sheltered the guests as they alighted from their carriages. Over the main entrance in letters of electric light was the word "Welcome." The corridors were hung with bunting and the Union Jack and tri-color flags, while in front of the gallery in the council chamber, where the reception took place, were the words emblazoned in electric light, "Soley les bien venu." The ladies with their bright and pretty dresses of course very much added to the scene. Addresses of welcome were made by Mayor Parent and Mr. G. A. Vandry, and responded to by Mr. W. K. McNaught, after which President W. K. George delivered his annual address. It

Before 10 o'clock on Tuesday morning the convention was at work again considering reports. The report of the Fire Insurance Committee recommended that authority be given that department to conduct an insurance brokerage for placing the insurance of the members of the association and was productive of a great deal of discussion. Mr. G. M. Marter strongly opposed the proposition, urging that they would be antagonizing the insurance companies, while, before the insurance branch of the association could place business, it would be necessary to become the agent of one or more of the existing insurance companies. The discussion was profitable as well as interesting. It was shown that in consequence of the Toronto conflagration increased rates were arbitrarily imposed throughout the country on risks that were altogether dissimilar from the class destroyed by the fire. Mr. McGibbon, of Montreal, made the assertion that rates in Canada are two to three times higher than in the United States, which, in view of the fact that the latter were their competitors, seriously militated against the Canadian manufacturer. The consensus of opinion was that a campaign of education in regard to insurance would be of great benefit to the members of the association and that a great step along this line would be made if Mr. Heaton, the manager of the fire insurance department, or his staff would visit their factories.

Mr. Fleury, of Aurora, Ont., pointed out that as a result of suggestions made to him by Mr. Heaton he was securing a much lower rate than formerly.

The Insurance Committee will be permitted to do what it deems best in regard to the brokerage proposal.

What is generally conceded to have been the best report submitted to the convention was that presented by the Railway and Transportation Committee showing that the efforts of the committee had been productive of results most beneficial to the members of the association. For example: On behalf of the Metallic Roofing Co. the committee had made representations to the Board of Railway Commissioners in regard to classification of metallic shingles, and the result obtained, according to the statement of the manager of the company who was present, was the saving of about $3,000 a year in freight rates.

One point in the report which occasioned some little discussion was in regard to the owners' risk condition and penalty clause imposed by the railways, and was raised through a question by Mr. W. S. Fisher of St. John. Several of the delegates expressed the opinion that the clause was illegal and instances were given in which, where shippers had refused to be governed by it, the railway companies had not enforced it. Although the matter has been before the board of railway commissioners for some time a deliverance has not yet been made upon it.

On Tuesday evening a reception was tendered the party at Spencerwood by Lieut.-Governor Jette.

The chief interest in the election was, of course, centred around the contest for the vice-presidency. There were two aspirants for this office, namely, Mr. J. O. Thorn, of the Metallic Roofing Co., Toronto, and Mr. Harry Cockshutt, of the Cockshutt Plow Co., Brantford. Both gentlemen have been energetic workers in the interest of the association and both had a large number of friends. Mr. Cockshutt, however, was the choice of the convention for the office, the holder of which naturally steps into the chief executive office the following year. Mr. Cockshutt has just returned from a six months trip to Australia, while Mr. Thorn has been in Winnipeg for some time on business and is still there.

The banquet on Wednesday night at the Chateau Frontenac was particularly unique in one respect and that was in regard to the speeches delivered. Certainly at no previous banquet of the association was there such a galaxy of brilliant speakers. Hon. Mr. Lemieux, the Solicitor-General of the Laurier Cabinet, delivered an address the eloquence of which will not be forgotten by any one privileged to hear him. Then there was the silver-tongued Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Hon. Mr. Fitzpatrick, Attorney-General of the Laurier Cabinet, Hon. R. L. Borden, leader of the Opposition, Lieut.-Governor Jette, to say nothing of the excellent addresses delivered by such members of the association as President Ballantyne, ex-President Geo. Drummond, and Mr. Edward Gurney

Millers who have never heard of mixing a white pulverized clay into the flour to increase its weight will be astonished to hear that the police in the town of Priesen, Austria, searched a mill recently at night and found 98 bags of wood flour near a mixing and blending machine. This flour was shipped by a firm in Bremen, and the court felt certain that this product did not leave the mill as wood flour. A sample of the blended article, composed of two-thirds wood flour and one-third wheat flour, could not be told by a layman from the pure wheat flour.

The American Can Company, Chicago, U.S.A., is manufacturing cans for canning companies at the rate of 1,200,000,000 a year, an increase of 500,000,000 on the annual output eight years ago. The Civil War gave impetus to the canning industry, and a decade later experiments were made in every direction and meats, vegetables and other American products went in cans to the remotest parts of the earth.

Inspectors of feedstuffs in North Carolina find that a very heavy proportion of the commercial feedstuffs offered for sale is adulterated. Of 37 samples of wheat bran examined, 10 contained corn bran. Of 123 samples of cotton seed meal examined, 21 samples were below the legal standard as to the amount of protein required. The first report under the new law points out that while corn bran, rice chaff, ground corncobs and peanut hulls may not be deleterious, yet when mixed with better feeding stuffs, without proper label, they ought to be regarded as adulterants. Examinations now show that such materials are being largely used in the stock feeds for sale in the State.

Great Britain consists of some 50,000,000 acres of land, besides water and foreshore, and of that area 45,000,000 acres are utilized for the purposes of agriculture and stock-keeping.

Pasture land and mountain and heath land used for grazing show a gradual increase, while arable land exhibits a corresponding reduction.

Yet the price of wheat in the past decade, to which the figures relate, has not decreased, but on the contrary shows a recovery from the level of 1894.

THE CENTRAL CANADA EXHIBITION AT OTTAWA

THE eighteenth year of the Ottawa Central Canada Fair has been concluded and the Exhibition had prosperity unfolded to it in every way. The weather was fine and the best days of the Fair were perfect Autumn specials—clear and cool, and just enough of the radiant September air in them to stimulate everyone. The Fair again accentuated the growth of the manufacturing and commercial interests of the Dominion, and especially did it illustrate the importance of Canada's capital as a centre of activity growing in importance from year to year.

Ottawans are justly proud of their exposition. They are, to begin with, proud of their city as a political centre, and there is, in addition, a tone about Ottawa that is peculiarly its own. For instance, there are the traditions of Confederation, the distinct atmosphere of Federal politics, the life of a capital—like Washington—a little world within itself; in fact Ottawa has fashion and memories entirely its own. All these elements combine to give the place a tone, and all this is more or less interlaced with the Exposition.

The beauty of the city is remarkable, with the Parliament buildings and the magnificent Chaudiere Falls, all with their incidental attractions, shaded by the development of man-made accessories.

When it is remembered that on the best Fair day 45,000 people passed the turnstiles, a small city in itself as far as numbers are concerned, Ottawa and its Fair may be said to be hand in hand in their drawing powers.

Never has Ottawa seen a better Fair, and never have the results vindicated it so strongly by the sheckels in the exchequer. Secretary McMahon and all the officials are again worthy of congratulation, for the different departments were most creditably managed.

The Main Building.

No better arrangement and no fuller complement has ever been in this famous Aberdeen pavilion, named after the honored former Governor-General, for in every part the exhibits were nicely placed and copiously represented. A high order of excellence marked all the displays, and those who took part were rewarded by the magnificent attendance.

It was noticeable that only one chocolate company was present, namely, the Tobler Co., represented by McClure & Langley of Toronto. The old favorites, Cowan's and the D. R. Perrin Co. were missing.

The well-known Bovril Co.'s fine show of previous years was, to use an old phrase, conspicuous by its absence. The tea trade was again absolutely neglected. Cereal foods were fairly shown, but not with aggression that would excite unusual attention either from the press or the public. Malta Vita certainly gave away many packages of their goods, and Shredded Wheat distributed many samples, but there was no attempt to splurge.

Soap companies were noticeably absent, and the Comfort people were the only firm represented. They are referred to elsewhere.

The Berliner Gramophone and the various piano makers were well represented, and these were pleasing parts of the great Fair.

Machinery Hall.

Over in this hive of activity the various machinery houses of Canada were represented. Threshers and manure-spreading machines, also labor saving devices for farm uses were to be seen.

Every man with a bucolic instinct took to the Machinery Hall, and there he heard the latest news regarding improvements that were going on in the busy world, while the mighty harvests of Canada were being housed.

Carriages were displayed in great profusion—fashionable buggies with rubber tires and big comfortable rigs that delighted the eye of the well-to-do farmer.

Grimm's famous sap evaporator attracted many farmers, and the Chapman Double Ball Bearing Co. also had a fine show. There were also fire extinguishers of which the "Diamond" seemed to take the most attention. It was displayed before the grand stand and delighted everyone.

Ottawa Exhibition—"Oka" Wine Exhibit.

The Tonic Wine of Oka.

A novelty at the Fair was the exhibit of the tonic wine made by the famous Monks of Oka. The discovery of this wine has been handed down from the ages and the secret of its purity and excellence remains still in the hands of the conscientious and hard working Monks. Up to recently they were opposed to the disposal of the wine for commercial purposes, and kept it for years within their own sacred set. Business men, however, have succeeded in inducing the Monks to sell certain quantities, and Messrs. Motard, Fils & Senecal, of 5 Place Royale, Montreal, have secured the sole agency for the wine. It contains tonic properties such as the quinine bark alone can give; then the strength and nourishing qualities of the wine are equal to the finest rare old port or sherry. Rates are quoted on application for cases and bottles. The wine is unequalled for invalids, and is a delightful beverage for all classes and all ages. It gives health and strength, and offsets colds and fevers. In fact it is a wine endorsed by medical men wherever it is used.

The exhibit was very pleasing, and attendants made the goods known by the judicious distribution of circulars and samples.

Tobler's Chocolate Display

In the centre of the Main Building was to be found a handsome exhibit of chocolate by Tobler & Company, whose confection is known the world over. The display was in charge of Mr. T. F. Bradley, who is the representative of the firm for the Ottawa district. The public was attracted to the Tobler chocolate stand by the many diplomas won at the great fairs of the world. The chocolates carried off honors at St. Louis Fair, Toronto and St. John, N.B., and scores of other exhibitions. At the present time the Tobler goods are represented at forty exhibitions in Canada and the United States. The famous brand of chocolate is selling in every continent of the world. The Tobler chocolate is made of finest cocoa, pure sterilized milk and sugar. These ingredients are combined by a special scientific process at Berne, the capital of Switzerland. All orders for this delicious chocolate will be attended to promptly by Mr. Bradley, who may be reached by post card or otherwise at his Ottawa address, 100 Waverley street. Tobler's chocolate, both in tablets for eating and in powder for cooking, is considered a first-class nourishment, strongly recommended to all.

Canada Maple Exchange Exhibit.

Ottawa Exhbition—McClure & Langley's Exhibit.

The Canada Maple Exchange.

Once more Mr. Small, of the Canada Maple Exchange, scored a big hit at Ottawa. His chief booth was this year located in the building nearer the gate, where the honey and dairy produce were situated. However, he had a booth in the Main Building, and both were doing excellent business. The arrangement of the decorations was in the usual good taste of the originator of these delicious maple products. Then to back up the purity of the products, and the merits which go without saying, Mr. Small had the assurance of having won all the medals offered for maple products in Canada this year. Then the daintiness of the packages of all sizes and in many varieties impressed the visitor. The maple leaf so strongly marked on the boxes and the tins tended to stamp everything as distinctly Canadian, and brought a thrill of pride to many a visitor to the Fair. No other manufacturer has been able to equal the Small products, in fact for purity and excellence the Small maple goods stand unrivalled to-day. The manufacturers have studied the latest hygienic methods of preparation, and the sugar is put up in neat tin jars and other goods are equally well protected from dust and dirt of any description. Every package bears the certificate of a Quebec analyst guaranteeing the purity by official law.

Snowdon, Forbes & Co.

One of the very nicest and most practical exhibits at the Fair was that of the now famous "Bee Brand" goods owned and manufactured by Snowdon, Forbes & Co., Montreal. From small beginnings this firm has grown to be one of the largest of its kind in Canada, and their large and growing trade extends from ocean to ocean. The display was in the form of a fine brown painted rustic Summer house which was latticed and trellised so as to look like a glimpse of fairyland having Chinese lanterns of odd shapes, flowers, vases and pictures, silverware and a bewildering profusion of Bee goods all stamped and labelled as obtainable by using Bee Starch or Bee something else, including the long list which is so carefully described in the elaborate catalogue. The new plan of endless chain is that by saving the coupons it is possible to buy brass beds, dishes, silverware and almost any household article at about fifty per cent. less than they can be bought for in the regular way. Then there is the guarantee of the quality of the goods on the strength of the money back system which is in itself unbeatable.

The display was the talk of the Fair. Snowdon, Forbes & Co. have built up an enviable reputation for promptness and fair dealing, and to-day are among the leaders of the young generation of Canadian manufacturers.

Gowans, Kent & Co.

Gowans, Kent & Co., Toronto, were eligibly located on Queen street with sample rooms and a handsome display of crockery, fine glassware and vase work of manifold descriptions was to be seen. All kinds of fine English and French china and fancy art goods were on exhibition. This served a first-class opportunity to the trade to look over some fine goods such as travelers do not carry on the road. Large numbers of visitors took advantage of the accommodation, and many orders were placed.

Ottawa Exhibition—"Bee Brand" Exhibit.

George A. Mann, who is the eastern representative at Montreal, was there to welcome the visitors, and some interest was aroused among the travelers inasmuch as there is some probability of Mr. Mann becoming a candidate for the presidency of the Dominion Commercial Travelers' Association.

Intercolonial Railway

The exhibit of the Intercolonial Railway occupied over a thousand square feet of wall space at the east of the main building. Among the large photographs which have won the admiration of thousands of people since they were installed were pictures of hunting and fishing scenes at Murray Bay, Bic the Beautiful, Cacouna and Matapedia Valley. There was also a handsome photograph of Canada's train, the Maritime Express. This train runs daily except Saturday between Montreal, St. John, Halifax, and the Sydneys. Too much cannot be said about the excellence of the sleeping and dining car service along this route. The stream of tourist traffic is increasing rapidly and patrons of the Government railway are always accommodated in the most excellent fashion. People who love to hunt are able to find abundance of moose, caribou and deer, while the streams abound in salmon and trout. These valuable resources of the hunting arena were represented by a tastefully arranged gallery of pictures. The large black bear and cub was one of the strong attractions of the Intercolonial exhibit. The exhibition goods were in charge of Mr. A. E. Barton, of Moncton, who was appointed nearly ten years ago. He distributed plenty of literature about the fishing, hunting and Summer resorts of the territory served by the Government railway. Lately the I.C.R. has been gaining greatly in popularity. Its passenger and freight service has been wonderfully improved and its trade noticeably increasing. It is one of the best of the roads to the sea and passes through a country where the scenery is unsurpassed. Every mile reveals to the passenger new scenic beauties and a journey over this popular road in its comfortable coaches cannot but be a source of pleasure and delight.

"AUTUMN LEAF" BRAND CREAM SUGAR CORN

May cost more, but it is worth more. Of the thousands of cases that went out last year not one can or tin has ever been reported as poor or swelled. How many brands have that record? Now, our Process is the Maine Style, whereby the corn is cut fine and the Cream scraped from the cob, thereby the delicious flavor is retained and the corn has a creamy appearance that cannot be obtained by the old style coarse-cut. We affirm that we have to offer a few thousand cases of the Fanciest Corn ever put in this or any other country. While we have Tomatoes and Raspberries, and intend packing a full line of CHICKEN SOUPS, CATSUP, etc. We claim the "AUTUMN LEAF" BRAND Cream Sugar Corn leads all others, and Mr. Retail Grocer, it is to your advantage ten to one that you have our BRAND on sale. You are the one we wish to reach. Write us, and we will tell you how you can obtain the best line of Can Goods that is packed, and at prices, quality considered, that you ever handled. We are answering all inquiries as fast as possible. If you are looking for a cheap line of goods do not try ours. We are not in that crowd. We meet them every day that say a can is a can. Do not be mislead, you can't fool the consumer. Try the "AUTUMN LEAF" BRAND, AND YOU WILL FIND A CORN THAT WILL PLEASE THE HIGHEST CLASS OF TRADE.

The FRANKFORD CANNING and PACKING CO., Limited.

FRANFORD, ONT.

A. H. ALLEN, Manager

The Grimm Mfg. Co.

The Grimm Co.'s exhibit of maple syrup in the dairy and honey building was most attractive. There might be seen tastefully disposed maple sugar and syrup neatly put up in parcels to suit the different commodities. The goods were sold over the counter, and all who purchased recalled the fine goods and the excellent testimonials given of the purity of the stock by the exhibit of last year, wherein old and new methods of sugar making were exemplified.

Grimm Manufacturing Company's Exhibit.

The company has pushed its business to the four corners of the globe, and the trade at Ottawa only tended to emphasize the good taste of the visitors to the Fair.

The sap evaporator exhibited by this company in the Machinery Hall was the talk of the farming community, and many of these convenient machines were sold.

The Beefene Display.

The popularity of Beefene as a fluid was again emphasized at the Fir. A most artistically arranged booth was fitted up and rows of bottles of the fluid beef were disposed neatly on shelves one above the other so as to give a pyramid effect. The huge bottles on the side called forth surprised remarks from the many thousands that passed by the exhibit.

Admirably located near the front door the display was a constant attraction. Careful attendants were busy serving literature describing the wonderful merits of the fluid beef. The Beefene is strong and nourishing. It makes weak people strong and strong people stronger. For the athlete it is invaluable, and for the invalid there is no other food to equal it. Children thrive on Beefene, and they get to like it, so that being pleasant to the taste and nourishing the food has the unexcelled advantage of a doubleheader. The medals won by the Beefene manufacturers are solid and creditable, while the record of sales is the best testimony to its popularity.

Mr. C. Hugh Shaw, the untiring representative, made many new friends at Ottawa, and certainly his painstaking energy would win success for any firm. He has made a big success of the Ottawa business, and no doubt greater things are in store for this enterprising house. Some handsome new advertising posters and cards will appear shortly that will be noticed everywhere. Girls served thousands of cups of hot Beefene daily. This firm took a diploma at Ottawa.

Ottawa Exhibition—"Beefene" Exhibit.

The American Dressing Company.

Situated just beside the Beefene exhibit was the display of the American Dressing Co., of Montreal, also represented by Mr. Shaw. Success was written all over the goods, which were arranged in just the best possible way to please the visitor and attract the attention of the passerby. Shoe and leather dressings of all descriptions were there, and the merits of the different articles of use were described by the attendants, and all under the personal supervision of Mr. Shaw himself. The famous Vit shoe polish is a great winner and unique because no liquid is necessary to use it. A.D.C. polish won the highest awards at the Glasgow Exhibition, also at Paris in 1900. It is a paste which does the work of both liquid and paste, and will not soil the most delicate garment. The polishes of the American Dressing Co. vary in style and character to suit the purse of all classes, and the quality is always the best.

The A.D.C. polishes are the famed ones, and have been before the public 14 years. This firm handles the Diamond Harness Dressing, and took diploma at Ottawa Fair.

MILLING PLANT ACQUIRED.

Nicholson & Bain, of Winnipeg, have bought a half interest in the Pilot Mound milling business formerly conducted by Dow & Curry. The firm will now be known as the Dow Cereal Milling Co., and their entire output will be handled by Nicholson & Bain, who are selling agents for so many important firms. In Calgary, of course, Nicholson, Bain & Johnston will act in a similar capacity. The output of the mill will consist of rolled oats, pot and pearl barley, granulated standard meal, corn meal and similar products. Eastern houses wanting quotations on rolled oats delivered will be furnished with same on application to Nicholson & Bain, Winnipeg.

DISHONEST PACKING.

THE immense advantage of adopting the "marking" of all market produce has just been demonstrated in a most absolute way. The Canadian Grocer has been continually pressing the importance of this, and a case which has just come to light is convincing proof of its utility.

Mr. J. W. Woods, general manager of Gordon, McKay & Co., Toronto, purchased a basket of what looked like "fine ripe Duchess apples," but upon examination it was found that the bulk consisted of "Scrubbed Greenings." Mr. Woods rightly looked upon it as a most serious matter and at once communicated with the secretary of the Board of Trade. The fruit inspector was sent for and the matter was handed over to his care.

In this case the name of the packer was clearly marked on the basket, so that it was an easy matter to trace its origin and thus made the task of the inspector an easy one.

The bringing to light of this case has led to the exposing of a good deal of deception in the packing of fruit. One prominent citizen remarks that he recently purchased at a high price what he supposed was a basket of highest grade peaches but found that the bulk was composed of very indifferent fruit.

Another retailer reports that he recently purchased 24 baskets of tomatoes from St. Catharines district; from their appearance they looked like excellent fruit, but when opened up for sale, the bulk were composed of stunted and green fruit. In his case he made vigorous protest and succeeded in getting an allowance.

Another citizen also says that when he was in Manchester he was invited by a commission merchant to inspect a consignment of apples which had arrived from Canada. Each end of the barrel was composed of beautiful fruit with a filling in the centre of about a bushel of the rankest kind of scrubs. He remarks that he was ashamed when he looked at them of his own country.

It would appear that this question is not looked upon with a severity that it really deserves.

Both shipper and packer are liable by law for false packing and one would think that the dealer would certainly use the greatest scrutiny in order to secure himself. As it is, however, dealers appear to be quite satisfied by merely insisting upon an allowance from the packer after they have received complaints from their customers.

In the interests of the general public it is necessary that strong measures be taken to secure the honest marking of all market produce and any infringement should be at once reported to the inspector and prosecution immediately proceeded with. Only by the rigorous enforcement of the law can healthy conditions be maintained.

It is said that there has been trouble heretofore in obtaining convictions from the police court magistrates, but we cannot be made to believe that where the law has been violated our judicial Bench would fail in their duty.

This is a large question and concerns not only our home trade but if indifferent packing is allowed to continue it will have an ultimate serious effect upon our export trade.

A SHARP PRACTICE.

A CUSTOM has been prevalent amongst the British Columbia salmon packers of packing quite a number of cans of the lower grade of salmon for shipment to England unlabelled. A report current, which has received a good deal of credence, is that upon reaching England these cans are labelled so as to pose in the market as Fraser River product. It is claimed that a good deal of damage is done to the Fraser River trade by this means, as it is from the northern canneries that most of the unlabelled cans are despatched.

At the meeting of the Fishery Commission the matter was brought up for discussion and it was proposed that the next sitting of the Legislature be asked to pass a bill to the effect that all salmon leaving the Province must have the canner's name and the location of canning clearly stamped on the can.

It is to be hoped that something on these lines will be adopted. The false labelling and marking of products has been far too prevalent, not only from the financial aspect but also in the interests of both the consumer and producer.

It is only right and proper that the consumer should have a means of knowing the origin of his purchase, and it is clearly to the interest of the producer that his product should be open to identification at any time after leaving his factory.

The only one to object is the packer of inferior goods and it is in the interest of healthy commerce to put a stop to such men.

A JUDICIAL BOYCOTT.

IT is with a degree of hesitancy we approach the judicial salary problem, and it is only the important bearing it has on every branch of industry which has led us to express our views with regard to the salary question of judges. The latest developments of this much vexed question must be somewhat perplexing to the lay mind.

That lawyers themselves should take the initiative in seeking to prevent one of their number returning to his practice after having resigned his seat on the judicial Bench is, to say the least, astonishing. One would rather have expected to have seen the fullest expression of sympathy from those who may at any moment find themselves in a similar position.

It is but natural that every right-minded individual should covet the highest point of eminence in this profession and doubtless it is the fascination of the woolsack which makes that the ultimate goal of the legal aspirant, but little satisfaction can accrue when it is discovered that renown must be gained by considerable financial sacrifice.

The effect of this boycott can only aggravate the situation. We understand that already several of the ablest lawyers in practice have declined the position now vacant, and if it becomes a fact that promotion to the judicial Bench means complete and final severing of the former links with their clients it is not at all improbable that we will have to face a famine of judges.

Further, it is self-evident that we Canadians have not yet elevated our "professions" to the platform of prestige which is absolutely necessary for the "dignity of office." To those who have had any measure of foreign travel, the position of the "professional" man in Canada forms a strong contrast to what is seen in European centres. There, it will be noticed, the "professional" man, whether it be legal, medical, or religious, carries with him the dignity and authority which is absolutely necessary to his respective sphere.

We would have expected that a society with such affinity and unity of thought that is expected from a legal brotherhood would have taken this question up with a view to securing a final issue which would have completely obliterated the possibility of the recurring of such a deplorable event as this voluntary surrender of an exalted position for one of less eminence.

The nearer a high order of civilization is approached the greater the obligation of the citizen becomes, and the higher the citizen is in the social scale the greater the necessity for him to be able to maintain dignity and prestige; this cannot be done unless the individual's finances are sufficiently large to not only relieve his mind for the present moment but to secure an assurance of financial competency for the rest of his days. Better advised it would have been had the society drafted a scheme which would have fully met the case and at the same time completely satisfied the judicial requirements, thus removing the possibility of misunderstanding in the future.

A RECORD EXPORT SEASON.

EVERYTHING indicates that the present year will close a record one for the port of Montreal. Upon the opening of navigation in May the outlook for foreign trade was by no means bright and many merchants looked forward to the year's trade with mingled feelings of doubt, but the season has turned out remarkably well. Shipping men, too, predicted a dull season, for there seemed little cargo in sight. But these anticipations fortunately have not been realized.

In grains the total is considerably in advance of last year. Corn last season was exported from Montreal (between the first of May and the first of July) to the amount of 335,000 bushels, while in the same period this year the exports have run up to 2,000,000 bushels.

Barley was exported to the extent of 545,000 bushels from the opening of navigation to the first of July this season, as compared with only 79,000 bushels for the corresponding period of 1904.

Canada continues to advance in her cheese and butter trade, and indications point to a great season for both products. From the opening of navigation to the first of July, the exports of cheese from Montreal amounted to 354,805 boxes, as compared with 332,683 boxes for the corresponding period of last year. In butter the increase in exports is equally as large, the total amount this year up to the first of July being 55,110 packages, as compared with 43,166 packages for the corresponding period of 1904.

A further comparison for the 1904 year's trade with that done four years ago reveals a most remarkable increase. In 1904 butter shipments in the aggregate reached 556,850 packages against 261,768 for 1900, whilst the increase in cheese for the same period is some 200,000 boxes.

The export cattle trade is in an unsatisfactory condition. The exports have fallen off nearly 4,000 head since the opening of navigation, as compared with last year. The decline in this trade is due to the abnormally high prices at which the animals are held on this side of the water. As a matter of fact, butchers right here in Canada are today paying as much for their cattle as their London brethren.

There is also an enormous trade growing up in all lines of produce. Lard, ham, and eggs are all well to the front in their interest to Montreal exporters. Many fruit lines, too, are making remarkable increase.

The improved cooling rooms, cold railway cars, and the refrigerating chambers installed in a large proportion of the ocean steamships of the principal lines now insure the delivery in the United Kingdom of Canadian dairy products and fruit in prime condition, and have given an enormous impetus to the business of the many firms who are engaged in the commission business. Science has made such improvements in the practical method of applying refrigeration that every up-to-date firm is now in possession of cold storage facilities which enables it to do justice both to the producers from whom it buys and to the British consignees to whom the majority of such exports goes in ever-increasing quantities.

There is no longer any need to rush shipments at a time when excessive exportation might mean a loss to their country clients, for within the walls of their magnificent warehouses exist the opportunities for storing for long or for short periods thousands of tons of every species of the dairy, fruit and canning industries in just the temperature best suited to its preservation in good condition.

No one should know better than the Montreal merchant how entirely the extension of his business connections in the United Kingdom is dependent upon the uniform standard quality of the article he sends, and consequently no care should be spared that every detail of transhipment and storage shall be supervised with a keen eye to the mutual interests of which he is the guardian, and upon whom the brunt of failure most seriously falls.

To build up a reputation as an exporter of goods, up to sample and consistently well packed and selected, should be the ambition of every firm engaged in the business. To this end the co-operation of the grower, the railway and steamship companies has also to be enlisted, and their friendly rivalry is becoming increasingly successful. Out of the hundreds of thousands of tons shipped between May and November it is a rare occurrence to hear of any serious condemnation taking place after the goods reach their distributing centres.

THE DOMINION EXHIBITION.

ALL the fruit-growing districts of B.C. have prepared district exhibits for the Dominion Fair, which began at New Westminster on the 27th. Very good prizes are offered, and a certain sum has been granted in aid of the expenses attached to the preparation and shipping of big exhibits. The very handsome grounds of the association have been improved and the space well laid out to make an attractive place of "Queen's Park," as it is locally known. Indeed, it is really a park, and a very pretty one, too, lying at a considerable elevation above the Fraser River, which it overlooks, and being above the main portion of the city. The new buildings, erected this year, to give special accommodation to the many manufacturing and industrial exhibits offering, are both tasteful in design and neatly finished. They have been wired for lighting at night, and the trial made the other evening showed that as a scenic effect the illuminations were perfect.

Manager Keary and his staff have been busy with the last work of arranging exhibits, and seeing that allotted space is taken by the right people. Mr. Keary says that if the buildings had been three times the size, the space would all have been utilized, so many manufacturers and others asked for allotments. Many had to be given less than they wanted, and many had to go without, as the space was all taken when their applications came in.

In last issue it was explained that the secretary is now busy organizing a new plan of campaign. The various towns in certain districts are now being organized in sections and each section has its own secretary in charge of all local work. In this way friction between neighboring towns may be eliminated as by the division of the country into these sections wide areas are secured in which the same prices for tobacco and staples will obtain. Above will be noticed a list of the various sections now organized, with the towns in each section and the name of the secretary in each section.

In the Hamiota section in addition to the effective work done in regard to selling price of tobacco, referred to in last issue, the local organization has prepared an agreed price for certain staple lines of groceries. All association members in the towns of the Hamiota section have agreed to sell the following goods at the following prices:

Sugar, granulated, 15 lbs. for $1, per cwt. $6.25 cash and $6.50 charged. Sugar, yellow, 16 lbs. for $1, per cwt. $5.75. Corn, 2 cans for 25 cents. Peas, 2 cans for 25 cents. Tomatoes, per can, 15 cents. Cheese, per lb., 17 cents. Salt, per barrel, $2.50. Salt, jute sacks, 50 lbs., 65c. Salt, duck sacks, 50 lbs., 75c. Pickles (Blackwood and Dyson), sour, 90c. Pickles (Blackwood and Dyson), sweet, $1. Force, per package, 20c, or 2 for 35c. Grape Nuts, per package 20c, or 2 for 35c. Vim, 2 packages for 25c. Orange Meat, 15c and 25c per package. Tobacco, as per printed card prices (quoted in last issue of The Grocer). Spools, 5 cents straight. Price paid for butter in tubs, rolls or bricks, 16c, tubs to be charged for in all cases. Price paid for eggs, 18c per dozen.

This price list went into effect September 13th. Produce prices are subject to change according to market conditions and members will be notified promptly by the secretary.

In the Gladstone section the following price list was adopted: Sugar, granulated, 16 lbs. for $1 or $6 per cwt. Sugar, yellow, 17 lbs. for $1 or $5.50 per cwt. Tobacco—All cut tobacco regular 10c to be sold for 10c straight; P. of W. tobacco sells for 10c straight; Bobs tobacco sells for 10c straight; Pay Roll tobacco sells for 10c straight; Jim Dandy tobacco sells for 10c straight; Briar tobacco sells for 10c straight; Currency and Old Tom, 3 for 25c. Salt, per barrel, $2.50. Salt, jute sacks, 50 lbs., 55c. Salt, duck sacks, 50 lbs., 65c. Rolled oats, 6 lbs. for 25c, 20 lbs. for 75c, 40 lbs. for $1.45, 80 lbs. for $2.80. Corn, per can, 12½c. Peas per can, 10c. Tomatoes, per can, 15c. Glass sealers, pints, per dozen, 90c; quarts, per dozen, $1.20; half-gallons, per dozen, $1.45. Prices to be paid for butter—Bricks, No. 1, 16c; bricks, No. 2, 15c; tubs, No. 1, 16c, keep tub; tubs, No. 2, 15c, keep tub; tubs, No. 1, 15c, return tub; tubs, No. 2, 14c, return tub. Eggs, buying price 18c, selling price 20c.

In the Neepawa section practically the same schedule of prices was adopted.

From an examination of the above price lists readers can readily gather what is being done by the association in those districts and what the same organization may effect in their own districts. In framing these price lists there is always a tendency to put prices too high, but it is a tendency which must be vigorously resisted for if it is given free play it will defeat the very objects which the association has in view. Extremes are always dangerous and they must be guarded against carefully, for in the end prices that are too high will incite more competition and prove as disastrous to the trade as the cut-throat prices which have prevailed so long. It is not suggested that the prices quoted above are too high but there is always this danger to guard against.

Only one short month remains now until the date when the association makes its united effort to kill the credit system. From all parts of Manitoba and from many places in Saskatchewan come reports of preparation to make November 1st a red letter day. Some dealers are going farther than the association programme requires and they are announcing a strictly cash system with no mention of credit after April 1st. For instance, Wilfrid Ledoux of Arnaud has been advertising during September the inauguration of a strictly cash system after October 1st. Mr. Ledoux in his first advertisement referred to the large crops which would enable all to settle their accounts and pay cash in the future. He explained that there has been a great change in recent years in the methods of doing business and that the man who buys on long terms is at a disadvantage. He announced that it was his object now to buy and sell for cash only.

"We beg to advise our customers," says Mr. Ledoux in his advertisement, "that we will adopt the CASH SYSTEM on the first day of October, 1905, and will close our books on that date. To those who have not marketed any wheat before that date we will extend the time until October 15th. After that date no goods will leave our counters unless paid for in full. This rule WILL APPLY TO ALL, even our best friends."

It can not be too clearly understood that the association remedy for the credit evil has the enthusiastic support of all the wholesale interests of the west and that the wholesale trade are prepared to exert every legitimate influence to keep in line any faint-hearted merchants who, growing weary in well doing, are disposed to fall by the wayside. An interview with a prominent business man appearing in a daily paper illustrates the attitude of the average wholesale man:

"Will the west be able to pay off all its debts when the big crop is harvested?"

"Will it be able?" was the reply. "It will have to."

Now and then The Canadian Grocer hears from a merchant who is anxious to adopt the association credit proposals but who is afraid that his weak-kneed neighbor will not have sufficient persistence to keep in line longer than a few weeks. All such should remember that the wholesale interests are behind this movement and that, while there will be no coercion, the merchant who undertakes to join in the association movement and then fails to carry out his agreement will find that he has lost favor with his wholesale house. If he can not secure long credit himself he will probably conclude that his best policy is to keep his agreement with the association.

Secretary Coulson returned to Winnipeg on Saturday and called at the office of The Canadian Grocer. Returning to the country the first of the week he completed the organization of the Minnedosa, Shoal Lake and Birtle sections, with the results recorded above. He informed The Canadian Grocer that in more than 300 stores there are at the present time notices to the effect that all credit will be refused between November 1st and April 1st—thirty days accounts to be treated as cash transactions.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

Ontario Markets.

GROCERIES.

Toronto, Sept. 28th, 1905.

BUSINESS conditions continue to denote progress. Demand has been steadily advancing and almost all lines are becoming interesting.

There has been a good deal of activity on the street, tea buyers showing considerably greater interest on account of present samples showing improvement in quality. Mediterranean fruits have been very active, and arrivals are awaited with anticipation.

Canned goods are now occupying the main feature of interest, the newly completed list of prices is being discussed and is considered generally satisfactory.

Coffee is ruling well, much fresh interest is manifested and there is every prospect that coffee will soon occupy a much more prominent place on the market.

Rice is in steady demand and prices rule firm.

Tapioca is in good demand; stocks, however, are at very low point, in consequence of which there has been a great run on rice and sago.

Honey is coming well to the front and sales have been more active since our last report. The quality is considered excellent and prices fule moderate.

Beans are reported from points of production as showing good prospects both for quality and price.

The grain market has been only of moderate activity. Arrivals are slow at coming to hand, and prices are showing a general weakening. Many reductions will be noticed in this week's quotations.

Flour has obtained what is considered a fairly even basis, and good trade is reported. Export, especially, has been noticeably active, the export prices being considered now to be on a basis which is attractive for European trade.

Cereals are improving in activity as is natural at the present juncture of seasons.

The market has somewhat righted itself in hides, and is expected to rule at present prices for some time. Demand is quite equal to present supplies coming to hand.

Canned Goods—There has been fair activity in all canned goods since our last issue. The canners prices have now come into effect and are ruling the market. Our list is revised and completed to date, the last additions being red and black cherries and black raspberries.

Sugar—The domestic market is still showing weakness. An active trade is in progress, orders being plentiful and of fairly large bulk. The season is right in full swing for active trade, fruits being fairly abundant for the preserving industry. It is noticeable, however, that buyers are only purchasing on the hand-to-mouth basis. Spot stocks are extremely low, and there appears to be no disposition to make any purchases in advance of requirements. The present weakness rather denotes the probability of a change of a downward aspect before the market will ultimately recover its stability. The foreign markets especially are showing an uncertain condition. This is especially so in regard to raws. Refiners maintain a waiting attitude, the result being that holders have little or no market to sell on. In refined the situation is on similar lines, but recent quotations were on a declining market and little or no trade was effected. We quote :

Syrups and Molasses—There has been active demand in this line for confectionery purposes since our last going to press. In syrups the grocers' trade has made a marked move, probably on account of the high prices ruling in the butter market.

The foreign molasses market at the present time is in an unsteady and uncertain state. Early reports denote prospects of good crops, but more recent information rather denotes to the contrary. This, in the face of reported small holdings, has had the tendency of firming the market. There is no perceptible change, however, in home market quotations. We quote :

Coffee—In the domestic market consumption denotes a marked improvement. There is a steady progressive movement in the demand for lower grades, although the milder grades are noticeably making headway. European advices are more encouraging as showing a decidedly firmer attitude. On the primal markets the movement of the crops is only at moderate figures. The Brazil crop has every appearance of being behind last year's average. On the New York market demand has been slow but prices have moved upward.

Tea—The home tea trade has developed strength recently, and buyers are getting more active, probably on account of the fact that arrivals are showing better liquoring properties. Many of the tea experts consider that recent arrivals show all those points which satisfy Canadian trade. Prices are ruling firm and fair trade is being done on the streets. On the London market little activity was manifested at the tea sales, and the market was in consequence somewhat irregular. In Indians the best grades always found buyers, but lower qualities had a tendency to weaken. In Ceylons the situation was practically the same. China teas were only on offer in small bulk, and the market has consequently remained steady but without excitement. We quote :

Foreign Dried Fruits.—The principal feature of interest in this market is the increase in upward tendency. The market has developed a firmness which indicates a probable advance in present values. Orders were well placed ahead, however, and this may somewhat help to maintain an even but firm market. New goods are expected to arrive well on schedule time, and reports denote quality as up to expectations. The currant market opened at a low point, and in view of the new currant law it would not appear that there can possibly be any lower range of prices. The great probability is for a moderate advance. Valencia raisins have developed a very firm market indeed. producers at primal points have already begun to ask an advance equal to 50c. a cwt. We quote :

Syrups and Molasses—Very little has been doing in molasses during the week, and no revival is looked forward to until towards close of navigation.

The cargo of molasses received at this port a few days ago is being held back evidencing the belief of holders that an advance is in sight. Prices remain unchanged. In corn syrups a somewhat better trade is being done and orders are growing in quantity and volume. We quote :

Coffee—Market continues unchanged. Locally trade is on the quiet side with firmness the leading characteristic. New York reports indicate strong position in all lines except Brazils, which are a shade easier. Mild coffees, on the other hand, are firm. We quote :

Tea—Market is firm. Latest advices give Ceylon greens as decidedly and distinctly higher, one cent per lb. being mentioned as an advance since last report. Ceylon blacks also are strong and an advance is looked for any day. Japans very strong and brokers do not feel inclined to cable for less than 2c. per lb. advance over latest figures, and at that advance few orders being turned down. Japan siftings and fannings are scarce and high, good quality commanding top prices. China greens, Ping Sueys, are in favor and have sold well at good prices. Choice blacks are being inquired for somewhat more frequently, and in some quarters the feeling obtains that the best classes of China blacks will find ready sale among the retail trade. We quote :

Foreign Dried Fruits—There are no changes to report in the dried fruit market with the exception that currants are reported somewhat easier. The first shipments of new Valencias arrived end of last week and, as usual with first small lots, were readily disposed of. Prices obtained were 6c. for f.o.s. and 6½c. for selected. New figs are reported on New York market, and small advance lots are finding their way here. California dried fruits all round are reported as showing further strength, latest reports indicating that the shortage is heavier than was thought. We quote :

Spices—Market is steady with upward tendency in cassias, cayenne and cloves. Pepper is weak. Grinders' demands in New York market is very heavy. October and November prices on cloves likely to be higher. Generally speaking market is stronger with exception of nutmegs and peppers. Locally dealers look for higher prices within the next few weeks. Trade fairly good. We quote :

Fish, No. 1—The fish market is practically unchanged. Fresh fish continues active but featureless. In salt fish, green cod is reported scarce, while new salt salmon is arriving freely, as well as Labrador, which is being sent in tierces, barrels and half barrels. First car of new B.C. salmon is due in Montreal this week. There is a brisk demand for haddies and other smoked fish. Shell oysters are on the market this week and finding a ready demand. Beans—The bean market is active and improving owing to the large demand from all parts of Canada. Buyers in Quebec and the Maritime Provinces are eagerly looking for beans, and as the crop is short it is very hard for them to find sufficient supplies. Local prices are unchanged. We quote :

Choice prime beans	1 50	1 65
Lower grades	1 40	1 50

Evaporated Apples—There is only a small demand reported for evaporated apples, as the crop of apples convenient for evaporating is short. Supplies are not too plentiful. Old stocks are hardly to be found lower than 7½c., while fresh stock is quoted at 8c. Dried apples continue dull; offers are made at from 4c. to 4½c., but buyers show no sign of a hurry to purchase.

Grain, Flour and Cereals.

Flour—The local market is reported steady at firm prices. Buyers, it is said, are beginning to take hold, but not very actively as yet. Choice Manitoba bakers are offered at $4.10; this is made from new wheat and is much superior to that of last year, as wheat is of better quality. Prices are unchanged. We quote :

Feed—There has been no important change, but the last week's briskness has slackened a little in bran and mouillie, and consequently a reduction in price has been made. The cause is believed to be the cheapness of oats. We quote :

Hops—The local demand for hops is quiet. It is now believed that the New York crop is not as large as first thought; it is estimated at only 50,000 bales. Common hops are offered locally at from 15c. to 16c., while new Canadian are quoted 19c. to 20c. We quote :

B.C.	0 22	0 25
Choice Canadian	0 19	0 20
Fair to good	0 17	0 18

PROVISIONS.

The provision market has assumed a little stronger and firmer tone. Supplies do not seem to be large and the demand is generally good. Live hogs are quoted at $6.75 to $7 and stronger; dressed hogs firm at $9. Both hams and bacon are in good demand at unchanged prices. Lard is in good demand and stocks light. We quote :

Lard, pure tierces		0 10¾
" 5-lb. tubs		0 10¾
" 20-lb. pails, wood (10½)		0 11¼
" cases, 10-lb. tins, 60 lbs. in case		0 10¾

Hams	0 13½	0 14½
Extra plate beef, per bbl	11 50	12 00

Butter—Dealers report a good demand for butter, both from the local buyers and from the other side. Stocks are bare owing to arrivals being light and dealers predict higher prices in the near future. Prices show an advance of from one-half to one cent over last week's quotations. We quote :

Finest creamery		0 22½
Fine		0 21½
Medium		0 20½
Fresh dairy tubs	0 18½	0 19

Eggs—The market is on the dull side, a poor demand being reported. Dealers are expecting lower prices in the near future. Selects are offered at from 22c. to 22½c.; straight gathered and No. 1 both at 18½c. to 19c. Exports are quiet.

Cheese—The cheese market is slow and the local demand very small. Exports are also quiet. Arrivals, however, are large and steady. On Tuesday, the 26th inst., the local supplies were estimated at 400,000 boxes. The price, according to dealers, has little room for a reduction; the cost of making has been extra high this year. Ontarios are quoted at 11½c., Eastern Townships 11¼c., and Quebecs at 11⅛c.

N. B. Markets.

St. John, N.B., Sept. 26, 1905.

THE one item of local interest during the past week has been the canned goods situation. The trouble started last year when one of our large wholesale houses, who are not in the Guild, successfully introduced a new brand of canned goods bought from one of the factories outside of the Canners' Consolidated Company. Another large house handling outside goods also proved troublesome to the Guild. It is said that though not members of the Guild these houses entered upon an agreement to only sell at Guild prices. The charge is made that this agreement was not kept, which is, however, denied by those interested. There were other unsatisfactory features last year.

This year the factory referred to above sold to three of the larger dealers. The local agreement in price was still, however, continued. The firm referred to have again made large sales. The situation was not improved by the same firm handling a large quantity of foreign sugar and under-selling the Guild prices. Some of those dealers, who are more particularly Guild members, have taken the situation seriously, with the result that the local abreement regarding prices is set aside for the time. The outcome is being watched with interest.

Oil.—In burning oil the tide has turned. Prices which have been extremely low have been advanced in the city a half cent and at some outside points three-quarters. In lubricating oil demand is quiet. Paint oils have but a fair sale. Linseeds are low. Turpentine continues high. Cod oil is very scarce, and prices are higher. This is the season when there should be good receipts.

Salt.—The sale for Liverpool coarse salt has been very large this year. The outlook for the year will show an increased business of about 25 per cent. over last. Prices have been firm. Two cargoes by tramp steamers are expected next month. In Liverpool factory filled sales are light. Canadian fine holds the market.

Canned Goods.—As referred to at the opening of our report this is a matter of vital interest. For two years the dealers have had an agreement in regard to prices, particularly corn, peas and tomatoes, which, while not altogether satisfactory, certainly led to much better profits than had been made, at least during several years previous. This agreement is set aside and dealers do not know just where they are, but fear much confusion and uncertainty and perhaps loss. New goods are to hand early. In meats rather easier prices rule. The sales have not been large. Salmon are lower than last year. In domestic fish, scallops are very scarce. Haddies a fair pack. There has been a good pack of sardines. It is early for kippers.

Sugar.—There is a good steady sale. There is no further decline since that of last week. It has been a falling market all the year and it is thought the end is not yet. Still dealers are more inclined to carry some stock at least. Since the quite large stocks held early in the season buying has been very light.

Molasses.—In Porto Rico, the situation is not a strong one, still for best grade dealers hold prices quite firm. There is quite a full stock. Barbadoes is not so plentiful and prices are quite firm.

Fish.—In fresh fish variety is somewhat improved. Prices firm. Dry fish, particularly cod, are very high and very firm. In boneless fish, pure cod has been advanced. Pickled herring are a fair stock but full prices are asked. There is a good demand. Smoked herring are low; new shortly expected. This will mean, at least for a time, rather higher prices. Finnan haddies are now being quite freely shipped west.

Flour, Feed and Meal.—In flour the market seems rather firmer. Buyers, however, move slowly. Stocks are very light everywhere. Feed rather higher. Oatmeal is in small supply, while lower prices are expected, situation seems firmer. Corn meal is unchanged. In beans prices are lower, particularly for yellow eyes. Market is unsettled and quite a wide range of figures quoted.

Dried Fruit.—Prices on California raisins not yet named. This is very unsatisfactory to local buyers. Their buying of Valencias and particularly Malaga loose and seeded raisins depends largely on the California price. The fact that these are not named earlier places them badly in regard to taking advantage of the foreign market. This year, however, foreign prices being low, and the outlook for California fruit high, quite large import orders have been placed. Market at present is quite bare. In currants market is firm at rather higher figures. Prunes will be much higher than last year. Evaporated apples are higher. Old fruit is getting well cleaned up.

N. S. Markets.

Halifax, N.S., Sept. 26.

MERCHANTS report business good all round. During the week many business men from outside points visited the city and left orders.

The Exhibition, as usual, attracted large numbers of people to the city, and thus gave a great stimulus to trade. The weather throughout was bad, and as a result the show was a big failure financially, and will probably be about $13,000 behind. The attendance was about 65,000 while it will take over 100,000 people to pay the expenses, the prize lists being very heavy.

Fruits.

There is a good supply of local grown fruit on the market, particularly apples, pears and plums. Pears are in abundance and the quality is good. Bartletts are quoted at $3 to $4 per barrel, half barrels at $1.50 to $2.25 and boxes $1.50 to $1.75. Clapp's Favorites are the same. There are more pears than apples on the market. The latter are coming in much slower than usual, and it is thought the growers want to get clear of the pears first. Good Gravenstein apples are quoted at $3 to $3.50 for No. 1s, and $2.50 for No. 2s. Astrachans are quoted at $2. and Sweet Boughs at $3. The early variety of plums is about over. The market was flooded with them, and they retailed from 20 to 25 cents per six quart basket. The best varieties are now coming in, and dealers find no difficulty in disposing of this stock. Egg plums are wholesaling at 50 cents per six quart basket, and Lombards and the Japanese at 40 cents per basket of the same size. The fruit is of good size and flavor.

Flour.

Since last report the announcement has been made that Ogilvies have advanced the price of their flour 15 cents per barrel. While local dealers are not asking any more they have to pay it themselves, but it is always more difficult to take advantage from advance on this market than elsewhere. The principal effect it will have here will be to steady the market and prevent further declines.

NOVA SCOTIA PERSONAL.

Walter Calhoun, who has been conducting a grocery business at Middleton, N.S., for the past eleven years, has disposed of the same and returned to Amherst, where he will assume the management of the Terrace Hotel.

HIGHER DUTY WANTED.

CIGAR manufacturers in considerable numbers met recently in London, Ont., and decided upon a list of changes which they would ask the Government to bring into effect. They are as follows :

First—That the present duty of ten cents a pound on imported tobacco be increased to twenty cents a pound.

Second—That the rebate of ten cents a pound allowed on cuttings of imported tobacco shipped out of Canada, be done away with.

Third—That in future the Government issue but one stamp for cigars manufactured in Canada, no matter whether they be made from Canadian leaf or imported leaf.

It was stated by a number of the manufacturers after they returned that it was practically understood that the Government would grant them the requests. The reason given for desiring the abolition of the action of the Government in allowing ten cents a pound rebate on all tobacco cuttings shipped out of Canada, is that it helps the foreign product at the expense of the Canadian article.

On the question of customs' labels for cigar boxes and packages, there seems to be a diversity of opinion. Several of the largest retailers in Montreal gave their opinions to The Grocer, and the concensus was that the one stamp for Canadian goods would be a grave mistake. To-day there are four stamps, namely, the black stamp for the genuine imported stock made up in Canada; the blue stamp for the pure Havana goods or any straight imported goods; the red stamp for the half and half, i.e., part Canadian tobacco and part other tobacco, while the green stamp means all Canadian tobacco. The argument that the average smoker could not tell the difference between the Canadian tobacco cigar and the imported cigar stock that is made up in this country by Cubans is considered ridiculous. The first puff would be a tell tale, and then the dealer would be considered a trickster in having only one label or stamp for the cigars. This side of the matter is vital to the retailer, and the manufacturer knows perfectly well that it would not stimulate Canadian tobacco sales at all. On the other hand, it would tend to loosen the grip that the Canadian tobacco has now obtained upon the public. Such men as Mr. Morris Michaels, of the Windsor Hotel; his brother, A. Michaels, who keeps a leading down town tobacco store, and A. E. Myers, a well known up town tobacconist, would scout the idea of one stamp, and their ideas are just as quoted.

The test of a smoker's taste is when he is asked to differentiate between a Cuban imported cigar and a cigar made of Cuban tobacco but manufactured in Canada by Cubans. Mr. M. Michaels, it will be remembered, gave a heavy prize offer to the man who could tell the difference, and no one won it.

BUSINESS PERSONALS.

P. Johnson, of Campbell Bros. & Wilson, Winnipeg, returned last week from a shooting trip in the Lake Manitoba district.

R. J. Campbell, of Campbell Bros. & Wilson, of Winnipeg, is absent at present on a trip to the Pacific coast. He will return to his desk early in October.

Wm. Lean, better known as "Billy, the '2-in-1' man," has completed his trip in British Columbia and is now visiting the trade in Alberta. He reports business for F. F. Dalley & Co., of Hamilton, better than ever before.

F. B. Featherstonhaugh, whose name is familiar to the public as a leading solicitor of patents, has opened an office in Winnipeg, which will be in charge of Mr. Roxburgh. Offices have been secured in the Canada Permanent building on Main street and western clients will have the best service possible.

Mr. C. S. Armstrong, Orono, Ont., has returned from a two months' trip to Manitoba and the Northwest and Montana. He has been very much charmed with the prospects in the Northwest Territories and speaks in high terms of all he met.

S. Greaves, College and Clinton, Toronto, has bought out the adjoining store and will now have a very fine corner premises. His increasing trade has made this movement necessary. The adding of this store to his existing one will give him quite double capacity.

The premises of the Brown Milling Co., Toronto, Ont., were completely destroyed by fire recently, damage being estimated at $160,000. A captain of the fire brigade unhappily lost his life. The fire originated in the lower part of the elevator, from unknown cause, the loss is covered by insurance.

The Berlin and Wallaceburg sugar refineries have notified the Department of Agriculture that they intend claiming a share of the bounty which is given to the sugar industries. The total amount of the bounty is usually in the neighborhood of $75,000, which is divided amongst the factories in proportion to their outfit.

R. Smeall, formerly with the Montreal Biscuit Co., has joined the traveling staff of Messrs. J. & W. Kearney, tea and coffee importers, Montreal. Mr. Smeall will cover the Eastern Townships and as "Dick" is well known to the grocery and general store trade of that section, he should make good.

P. J. McCallum, an old Montreal newspaper man who has made a success travelling for E. D. Marceau, the tea and coffee merchant, was shaking hands with many old friends at the Ottawa Fair. "Paddy," as he is familiarly known, has "made good," as the saying goes, and is well liked on the road.

Walter C. Gaden, Montreal representative of T. H. Estabrooks, St. John, N. B., was a caller at the office of The Grocer the other day, and left one of his Red Rose Tea girls which are creating so much talk in the city, as an advertising novelty. Mr. Gaden reports that the demand for the better grades of Red Rose Tea is rapidly growing in Montreal.

Mr. Charles Gyde, Montreal, has returned from a two months' trip to Manitoba, the Northwest Territories and British Columbia. Mr. Gyde, who is well known to the trade as the agent for Rowntree's, Terry's, and other prominent English concerns, reports most satisfactory business for many years, and speaks well of the prospects of the future of Canada's Great West.

Mr. J. C. Black, of H. J. Heinz Co., Pittsburg, Pa., was a caller upon the jobbing trade last week in company with Mr. Stewart, Quebec representative of the "57 varieties." Mr. C. W. Greenslade, St. John, N.B., representing "Heinz" in the Maritime Provinces, formed another of the bodyguard escorting Mr. Black through the devious ways of the wholesale grocery section of Montreal. Mr. Black reported that "All I can say is that 'Heinz' is selling better and bigger than ever."

RAILWAYS AT WAR.

RAILWAY difficulties in New Westminster city, as between the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. and the V.W. & Y. Railway Co., or the Great Northern, occupied the attention of the Railway Commission which began its western sessions in the Royal City this week. The C.P.R. opposes the permission of a line laid by the V.W. & Y. along the river front, and between the water and the C.P.R. track. The city of New Westminster, which claims title to the waterfrontage in question, had granted the V.W. & Y. Railway the privilege, and now the C.P.R. sets up prior claim, both on the ground of occupation for twenty years past, and that the property in question was granted to it by the terms on which it built into New Westminster. A curious anomaly is presented in that the city council is opposing the C.P.R., while the New Westminster Board of Trade is apparently supporting the attitude and claim of the railway. The Commission, which has ended its sessions in the Royal City and is now sitting in Vancouver, has not yet handed down a ruling in the matter.

A recent tour of the Okanagan Valley, along the various shipping points on the lake, as well as on the railway leading from the lake to the C.P.R. main line, is an object lesson, not only in the resources and production of fruit and grain in the district, but in up-to-date methods of handling and shipping. Every day carloads of fruit in neat and uniform packages are transported to Okanagan Landing by the steamers and barges operated along the 75 miles of lake route by the C.P.R., and all this fine fruit is shipped by rail thence to the Northwest, where a ready market absorbs all offerings with avidity.

EASTERN TOWNSHIPS EXHIBITION AT SHERBROOKE

NOTWITHSTANDING four days of rainy, unsettled weather, Canada's 21st annual Great Eastern Exhibition at Sherbrooke, Sept. 2nd to 9th, was more than a qualified success from every point of view.

The attendance during the early part of the week was necessarily smaller than in previous years, but nothing could deter the crowds and the bright sunshine on the last two days brought up a respectable total for the week.

Over 20,000 people were on the grounds Wednesday and Thursday, which affords some idea of the drawing power of this Exhibition, which the Lieutenant-Governor, Premier and Ministers of Quebec Province honored with their presence.

A splendid array of exhibits in all departments did credit to the progressiveness of the Eastern Townships and practically assured a successful Fair. The horse and cattle departments were especially commendable, while the farm products and horticultural exhibits could not be neglected.

Dairy produce was of a high order and keen competition prevailed.

The "Midway," with its alluring "onlys," proved as interesting as of old and the performance in front of the grand stand could hardly be excelled.

The directors deserve unstinted praise for their enthusiasm during the early part of the week when sunshine appeared unacquainted with these precincts. Good races were impossible under such conditions, and the postponement from Tuesday to Saturday proved a wise step.

As usual the immense Main Industrial Building proved the big drawing card, and it is surprising how scantily the grocery trade was represented in comparison with other lines.

The exhibits were larger, more representative and costly than ever previously, except in lines of interest to the grocery trade. Quality perhaps made up for quantity, especially when Comfort Soap, which the Fair might well have bonused, is considered.

A good deal of criticism might be directed against the motley arrangement of industrial exhibits, stoves alongside soap, then pianos, etc.

The Comfort Soap Exhibit.

Fair visitors naturally expect a high order of exhibits from the Pugsley-Dingman Co., Limited, but none of their previous exhibits at any fair compared with this attractive "Comfort Soap" show, which was rendered doubly effective by means of the wholesouled work of its sponsors, F. D. Cockburn and F. E. Perry, assisted by an able staff.

Sherbrooke Exhibition - "Comfort" Soap Exhibit.

Undoubtedly this booth was the stellar attraction in the Main Building, and the guessing contest instituted on the colossal bar of "Comfort" proved almost too alluring, as visitors literally trampled upon one another to get a chance to estimate its weight, realizing that the bar itself, or a gold watch, etc., might be theirs. Six prizes were given. A splendid class of gift souvenir was also distributed, including popular music, fans, etc., and the new friends made by this company must have numbered many.

The booth itself was dainty, pleasing, and attractive, and much larger than ever before used. An inkling of the wealth of premiums to be obtained from their Toronto and Montreal offices was afforded in a choice range displayed in a showcase and at various advantageous points throughout the booth. The advertising literature given out was convincing and timely, and the catchword phrase, "Comfort Soap—It's all right," was heard on all sides. Incidentally, Mr. Perry's humorous sayings established him as a popular favorite among the crowds, and his peculiar way of enunciating "Get your guess in, girls," took the popular fancy. The show is all right, and so is "Comfort Soap," was the popular verdict.

The Empire Tobacco Co.

Popular interest was aroused and sustained by the remarkable, interesting and instructive exhibit of this firm, which took the form of no less than a complete tobacco plantation, elucidated by a huge poster at the rear reading: "Tobacco plantation, showing how the raw leaf used in Pay Roll Plug Chewing Tobacco is grown, cured and packed before being manufactured." Every process was minutely planned and carefully executed. Small cards explained the progressive scenes. It proved a means of valuable education for the Canadian farmer. At the corner of the extensive show a huge array of premiums was displayed, affording a suggestion of the prizes awarded the collectors of Snowshoe tags. Literature of a costly nature was dispensed by the many assistants. Mr. P. Menard, in charge of the exhibit, outdid even his former efforts.

The Edwardsburg Starch Co.

The Edwardsburg Starch Co.'s exhibit was a notable one, and the arrangement was tasteful. Benson's Prepared Corn Starch for cooking purposes and Benson's Enamel and Edwardsburg Silver Gloss Starch for cold water use were chiefly exploited. Samples were eagerly sought. Crown Brand Table Syrup in all sizes was shown and the small, unique samples given out aroused favorable comment. Mr. W. A. Sadler proved a competent and industrious manager.

Notes.

"Chew Pay Roll" figured prominently in the balloon ascension.

"Royal Sports" and "Hogen Mogen" cigars were literally in everyone's mouth.

W. R. Webster, Sherbrooke, had many streamers calling attention to "El Presidente" and "Dutch Mike" cigars.

C. R. Clough & Co., Lennoxville, exhibited Blatchford's Calf Meal, characterized as the perfect milk substitute.

Sweet Caporal Cigarettes were ubiquitous, and the clang of their huge wagon with the well-known driver was always in evidence.

GOOD ADVERTISING

Advertising Circulation.

"ONE of the most lamentable delusions any merchant can entertain is that buying newspaper space is different from buying any other necessity—and the word "necessity" is used advisedly, too. Of course, in making ordinary, every-day purchases, a buyer is frequently and not improperly influenced by a desire to bestow his patronage where hir relations with the seller are friendly; but the cases in which this friendliness induces a buyer to pay more than the ruling price for the article purchased are very rare. In buying any of the usual commodities, the buyer usually has choice of several stores from which to buy, and ordinarily the purchaser of newspaper space has at least two papers from which to buy. It may seem that the space offered by each paper is identical—just as the sugar or soap one buys at one store is just the same as that sold at another store—but this is not true. Differences in the character of the papers and in the character of their circulations, make differences in the value of the space they sell.

"The size of the circulation, of course, adds another factor to the problem. But when the merchant goes to buy space, he should consider that he is not doing an act of charity. He should not buy space except with the expectation of making profitable use of it, just as he expects to make profitable use of a delivery wagon or hand saw or a hat. The publisher "delivers the goods" just as certainly as does the wagon-maker or the hardwareman or the hatter, and if buying his product—advertising space—is "doing him a favor," then buying the wagon or the saw or the hat is conferring a favor on those who sell them. He buys something that can be made profitable, and if he uses it intelligently will profit thereby—whether it be newspaper space, delivery wagon, hand saw or hat."—Advertising World.

There is a certain amount of profitable advice for the retailer in the extract quoted above, but the Advertising World, like a good many of its contemporaries, lays undue stress on the circulation theory. In fact, this phase of the advertising question is being driven so hard that one often wonders if some retailers are not well-nigh mystified as regards the scientific difference between newspaper space and newspaper circulation, or in other words, the fallibility of paying for what you don't get. To make the retailers' case of interpretation more hopeless, now and then some wiseacre rises into prominence who alleges that the readers of certain papers are practically a unit in their wants and tastes. Or, perhaps, he goes further, and avers that to advertise certain commodities in certain papers is worse than useless. He has proven it by tests. He runs a paper or an agency.

I may be selecting abnormal instances, but scrutinizing journals and magazines nowadays I find too much of what I consider "indefinite talk about definite circulations." Any sensible merchant knows that a country paper will be read by more rural than city people; he likewise knows that a trade paper will have more commercial readers than a church monthly. He also is aware that a magazine devoted to women will be a better place to advertise feminine needs than a sporting quarterly. But to try to tell a merchant that two papers in his city or town, existing under practically the same conditions and being both devoted to news—to say that one of these papers can offer inducements gratuitously to the advertiser while the other must charge a premium, is the poorest kind of logic. If the advertiser is quoted different rates by these two papers for the same space, he reasons that that difference constitutes a difference in circulation, but he does not necessarily conclude that the difference goes beyond numbers. If he accepts the highest figure he knows he is getting smaller space for his money, but more readers. As to the CLASS of readers, that's another question.

When advertising journals speak about the "differences in the character of the papers and in the character of their circulations," what do they want advertisers to do—from solid argument? If a city supports, say, five papers, there may not be two of these papers identically alike either in policy, principles or politics. Yet they may all be good mediums to the majority of advertisers. One of these five papers may be especially rabid, of the yellow journal variety. The merchant selling high-class goods, going directly opposite to "character" discrimination, advertises in this medium and, as far as can be traced, gets as much business from it as from the other four papers, proportionately. This seeming paradox (according to the wiseacres) is possible on the following grounds: In the first place, the people do not make nor materially govern the policy of a newspaper, neither is an allegiance to it politically or socially any criterion of business methods. Proof of this assertion is found in the fact that scores of people subscribe for and regularly peruse papers whose policies on certain lines they disagree with and whose editors they perhaps dislike, but they get the papers and read them for—news. Among such readers of the rabid paper may even be a number of the "400" who are calm people, hence the reason of the high-class goods man getting business.

In the second place, the rich generally "take all the papers" regularly; so do the gentry. The poor as usual take what they can get, mostly irregularly. Yet a man of small means may buy something through an ad. that the rich and gentry repeatedly passed over. He may also occasionally get a peep at a paper avowedly launched on the motto: "For the classes, not the masses." And that peep of this one and that one of the masses is reason enough for the advertisements of a maker for the masses appearing in a paper for the classes.

Glancing over the newspapers of cities and towns one readily notices that the majority of advertisers, directly in opposition to the definite circulation theory, use all the mediums within a radius governed, of course, by the class of business pursued, local or mail order. These advertisers know that human nature is an indefinable quantity, that no one is absolutely sure what a man reads, what influences him in the matter of purchases, what creates his opinions. Not knowing these things, unlike some of their wiser fellows, they adopt the sanest course—they advertise to the people as a body on the principle that while all the people are not the same there are a mighty big number who require the same things and they are not all reading the same papers.

The newspapers are of benefit to the retailer, but he must be the best judge of whether they can benefit his particular case or not, because he knows best the conditions under which he merchandises, and the extent of his competition.

If he advertises in newspapers he may perhaps find certain papers of more benefit to him than others, but the reason for this might be traced to the kind of management as well as the kind of circulation. He may also get better results from newspapers with the poorest advertising systems and the biggest list of regulations, but he may find on investigation that their mailing systems and train connections are ideal. When the retailer is told, however, as I noted before, that certain papers will give him just the class of readers he is looking for and certain other papers give him just the class of readers he is not looking for—and the papers in question are one and all straight, everyday business newspapers—then the retailer is being treated to nonsense. By all means the retailer must advertise "judiciously," but let that judiciousness rest on the wisdom of being timely, straightforward and thorough, of being guided by conditions, not sentiment, necessity, not caprice, and of having a belief in the people as well as the paper.

THE GRIMM CO.'S SUCCESS.

The Grimm Manufacturing Co. of Montreal was very successful at the Ottawa Fair, having won by the products of the Champion Sap Evaporator nine prizes out of twelve, and among these were four firsts. These were for purity and excellence. Mr. Grimm is a strong champion of the purity of maple products and his record at the Fairs speaks well for his determination to carry into effect a work that will be of the greatest benefit to Canada in advertising the fact that pure maple products may be always obtained in this country.

A SUGGESTED BRITISH TARIFF.

THE British Tariff Commission, working in co-operation with the Right Honorable Joseph Chamberlain, has issued a circular of much interest dealing with the tariff systems of Europe and America. It is pointed out that the tariff systems of Europe and America in operation at the present time are exceedingly diverse in character, no two countries having identically the same system. The differences which exist arise from the fact that the structure and organization of industry of one country differs from that of another, and that the tariff systems adopted have been gradually worked out, not with a view to satisfying any theoretical criteria, but in order to secure certain objects of public policy. Moreover, the actual system of tariffs adopted by any one country can rarely be understood without reference to other parts of their public policy, such as their transport system, navigation laws, (such as exist in France, and were recommended by the shipping commission, which recently reported in the United States), methods of regulating labor, and generally the relations between the Government and industry and commerce. Notwithstanding, however, this diversity of practice in the various countries of Europe and America, their tariff system at the present time falls into certain broad divisions.

The system of tariff proposed by the tariff commission differs from all those adopted abroad. That system is as follows:

(a) A general tariff, consisting of a low scale of duties for foreign countries which admit British wares on fair terms.

(b) A preferential tariff, lower than the general tariff, for those of our colonies which give adequate preference to British manufactures, and framed with a view to securing freer trade within the British Empire;

(c) A maximum tariff, consisting of comparatively higher duties, but subject to reduction by negotiation to the level of the general tariff.

The duties recommended are, at the present stage of the inquiry, stated as ad valorem rates, but this is without prejudice to the question whether the duties ultimately recommended should be ad valorem or specific. That part of the general tariff which has so far formed the subject of recommendation, namely, that which has to do with the iron and steel and the cotton industry, provides for the free admission of iron ore, raw cotton and yarns of all descriptions, and for graduated duties, in no case exceeding 10 per cent. ad valorem on the various manufactured products.

A TRADE CAUTION.

AS the trade well knows there is a large run of salmon on the Fraser this season. A gentleman who is a well-known authority on the subject says that the quality of the fish running late in the season is decidedly inferior and at least some of the canneries refuse to pack them, claiming that they are unfit for food.

As this inferior quality of fish that has been packed cannot be sold in Great Britain, where, of course, the bulk of the salmon pack goes, it may naturally be inferred that it will be offered principally on the Eastern Canadian market.

In view of this the trade in Canada cannot be too careful when making their purchases of canned salmon and should not be tempted to buy any low-priced goods that may be offered. At least not until they are assured that the quality is good.

BUSINESS CHANGES.

ANTOINE DAOUST and Edmond de Roche have registered under the style of the Standard Confectionery, Montreal, Que.

The General Trading Co., Barwick, Ont., has sold out.

Francis McGarvey, grocer, Petrolia, Ont., has assigned.

C. W. Elliott, grocer, Winnipeg, Man., is out of business.

Ed. Chapleau, general store, St. Paschal, Que., deceased.

J. R. Ouellet, general store, Black Lake, Que., registered.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. H. Gilbert Nobbs, representing Holbrook's, Limited, Birmingham, Eng., was a caller at the Montreal offices of The Grocer this week. Mr. Nobbs' energetic and up-to-date work in introducing Holbrook's Sauce to the Canadian trade is having good results, and a good future is in store for this excellent appetizer and relish.

WESTERN BUSINESS OPENINGS.

Secretary W. A. Coulson of the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada informs The Canadian Grocer that there are general stores for sale in the following western towns: Beulah, Bradwardine, Crandall, Hamiota, Shoal Lake, Rossburn and Kenton.

CAPSTAN BRAND

High-Grade Tomato Catsup

Put up in 10-oz. and 20-oz. bottles of a new design, and is very attractive.

This Catsup is far superior to many others and is giving perfect satisfaction.

Ask your wholesale grocer for it or see our travellers' samples.

A PREMATURE STORY.

A WINNIPEG paper contained a dispatch one day last week from Edmonton to the effect that Foley, Lock & Larson, of Winnipeg, are about to erect a large warehouse in Edmonton.

"What have you to say about this report, Mr. Lock?" a Grocer representative asked Thomas Lock.

"I don't know where these papers get their news," was the reply. "We have enough on our hands at present with our new biscuit and confectionery plant in Winnipeg. We expect it will be completed in November and then it will be time enough to think about Edmonton. You can say the report is premature."

"No, we don't intend going to Edmonton just yet," was the reply of A. S. Lock to the same query.

"We are too busy with our new building here to think about the matter just at present, but it is not improbable that we will open a branch in Edmonton before very long. However, this daily newspaper report is quite premature as we have taken no definite steps yet and we will not take any for some little time yet."

NEWARK GROCERS IN QUEBEC.

An excursion party under the auspices of the Newark, N.J., Retail Grocers' Association spent a couple of days last week in the city of Quebec. There were about 225 in the party and although the weather was not all that could be desired the excursionists had an enjoyable time visiting the many points of interest in and about the ancient capital.

As a souvenir of the trip the association got out a neat little booklet giving in brief the history of Quebec and reciting some of the many instances for which that city is famous.

The Newark Association is an enterprising one and has a membership of about 200.

The committee in charge of affairs was as follows:

John Waferling, chairman.
John W. Cockefair, treasurer.
R. L. Smith. J. H. Markey.
A. McKenzie. Wm. H. Everett.
W. J. Dealaman.

THE BLUEBERRY HARVESTING.

The blueberry season in the Lake St. John district, Quebec, has ended. The price of the succulent fruit has during the present season varied from 40 to 90 cents per box. It is estimated that fully 3,000 people have been engaged in the industry this year, Mr. Patone, the inspector, having six hundred families inscribed on his books. Last year it was estimated that the crop brought something like $50,000 to those engaged in the industry. This year while the little berries were much more numerous, the pickers did not get so high a price for them.

BETTER THAN YEAST CAKE.

Just about fifteen months ago a piece of fine property of less than one hundred feet frontage on Yonge street, Toronto, was purchased as a personal investment by Mr. William Dobie, general manager of E. W. Gillett Co., Limited, and a few days ago was sold by him at an advance of $50,000 It is plain to see there are gold mines located right in Toronto. Mr. Dobie's many friends will heartily congratulate him on this stroke of good fortune.

Manitoba Markets

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, Sept. 28th, 1905.)

BUSINESS continues very active in all branches of the wholesale grocery trade of Winnipeg. The crop is already beginning to move. It will be some little time yet before the increased amount of money in circulation in the west will have any appreciable effect but a marked improvement in conditions is looked for. Wholeasle houses are determined to collect accounts this Fall and continue buisness again with a clean sheet.

The sugar market has been steady at the decline noted in last issue and is quoted again at last week's prices, subject to possible changes in our "Last Minute" report. The new canned goods list is now complete and some additions will be noted in the list quoted. Rolled oats have declined sharply since the new goods have come on the market. Coffees are firmer and there is a good inquiry for teas.
